Looks Like Action

WITH the public behind them and a widespread and active interest being shown, the city council, with the co-operation of the Chamber of Commerce, Trades and Labor Council and other organizations, is now really exploring the possibility of relieving the housing shortage which exists in Prince Rupert today and which, with industrial expansion, gives promise of being a continuing problem.

The need has been well pointed out and one of the most convincing pieces of testimony in its support is that of the medical health officer who tells of deplorable conditions under which many people are living today. These conditions, he suggests, are injurious to health and morality, to say nothing of the morale of the people who are constrained to endure them. Many people who are able to live comfortably may not realize that slum conditions do exist in Prince Rupert today and that their instances are no longer few.

Whether or not action under the joint governmental low rental or purchase housing scheme can be successfully consummated, and there appears reason to expect that it should be, at least the dire need of housing here is being pointed up in a most effective way and the urgency of something being done about it with a minimum of delay. Of course, the most desirable thing would be private enterprise.

During the war we saw how they hustled up hundreds of houses in a hurry for industrial workers. Not since then has the situation been more critical than it is today.

WHAT OF MIDDLE CLASS?

CANADIANS are still among the most fortunate of peoples but one important group of them, the white collared or middle class, is not quite so fortunate as it was 10 years ago, says Financial Post. Some new official information on personal income and expenditures is worth the most careful study. It indicates some significant deterioration in the economic standing of a group this country or any other can ill afford to see weakened.

It may not be news to the hard-pressed housewife, but it is of national significance nevertheless, that Canadians are spending a considerably higher proportion of their incomes on the bare necessities like food and less on such things as books, recreation, travel and education than they were in 1939.

They are also spending less, in some cases much less, on household help, clothing, medical care and funerals. On automobiles they are spending a little higher percentage of their earnings but on gasoline and oil a little less—which means that motor cars cost a good deal more than they did in 1939, but we are not taking so many long drives because gas costs far more too.

Boiled down and digested, these statistics confirm what has long been suspected, namely that the standard of living of our middle or white collared class, which suffered a body blow during the war, has not yet recovered. And so long as bare necessities like food and shelter continue to be high, and taxes continue to be heavy, it will not recover.

Since 1939 the pressure has been severe and continues so on this group. In this category income has risen some but not nearly to the extent as the increase in wages. And of course the tax take of governments has multiplied.

Over wide areas of Europe, two world wars, heavy taxes, and inflation have almost wiped out the middle class. The position of that very important group in Great Britain deteriorates further every year.

What makes a country strong and gives it stability is the size and vigor of its middle class. What is needed is more "levelling up" and less "levelling down."

CAT NAP

Rest and relaxation help to tone up the body. Even a few minutes' rest taken during the day's work will help to ward off weariness. Sitting quite relaxed, with eyes closed and, if possible, feet raised, for 10 minutes or so will bring new energy to carry on the job. Good ventilation in the home, office or shop is a great help—stale air adds to that tired feeling.

Letters to the Editor

VALUE OF MUSIC

Editor, Daily News—The recent visit of the Greenville Concert Band has stirred up considerable interest. A letter to the editor that appeared in the Daily News a few days ago over the signature of Helen M. Denning seems indeed to have voiced the sentiments of many who heard this fine organization.

The village of Greenville, entire population approximately 750, was able to turn out over 60 excellent bandmen for our Armistice Day parade. What a fine tribute to these people and their leader! Musicians of the Greenville Concert Band and Fred McKay must have worked overtime to attain such a high degree of proficiency because their principal occupation, fishing, would keep the members widely scattered for a good part of the summer making frequent rehearsals difficult.

The Prince Rupert Shrine Club Band drew many fine comments for their good musicianship and smart appearance. But in a city that boasts of 10,000 population Bandmaster Peter Lien could only persuade about 20 to come on parade. Why?

Have we parents lost true perspective of the value of music in the lives of our children? Leading educators seem to think so and are working toward adding music as a regular subject in schools and colleges. In a survey conducted by some of these leading educators, at Canadian and American universities and also at Oxford, it was found that the greatest percentage of honor students had either studied music or were quite proficient on some musical instrument.

English factories were among the first to make use of the "music while you work" idea. Not only does music keep the workers happy and contented but working to rhythm tends to prevent or lessen fatigue and therefore results in greater production.

Basketball, boxing and other forms of sport are fine for building up a strong, healthy body, but has your ball-playing son thought of how the study of music can improve his prowess in the field of sport by adding rhythm and accurate timing to his movements?

Readers must have the most sincere interest of their sons or daughters at heart. By giving them an opportunity to study music they are doing their finest duty as parents. For music builds, creates and develops the finest in every child. It builds character. Out of 1700 children to receive training in recent years in the Denver, Colorado, Junior Police Band, not a single one ever appeared in juvenile police court. This alone is proof that the idea of using music to fight juvenile crime is sound. Music creates self-confidence; it develops initiative, it encourages wholesome companionships, provides discipline, assures health, aids friendship, offers opportunities and is a guarantee to a lifetime of happiness.

So by all means let the Navy organize a band. Let us have a High School band. Let our own Shrine Club Band under the leadership of Mr. Peter Lien retain their identity as they deserve after so much persevering work but may their ranks increase in numbers.

Any boy or girl can be a smart addition to any band or tomorrow. "Give the boy a horn." MIKE COLUSSI.

TO "ANCIENT"

Editor, Daily News: You have signed yourself very appropriately. Take a look around you, sir, and you will find our world has progressed a great deal since your childhood days, thanks to our many lazy people of today. They couldn't quite understand why they had to spend many hard hours working with make-shift appliances on farms and in the homes, so they invented tractors and cars and washing machines and, since you've had time to look around, you have noticed their other inventions.

So you see, Mr. Ancient, why today's children no longer have to spend their time laboring as you did in your time but that does not give you reason to begrudge them their facilities today.

Do you suppose any normal teen-ager with good health and good personality is crying because he or she can't occupy their time. I think not. We have the teen-ager who is unhappily complaining about this unnecessary misfortune and I fail to see how they can be normal children. Let's stop pointing our fingers at the offsprings and try their parents instead. What a pity they couldn't have developed good character in their children so that they would be able (Continued on Page 4)

TEEN-AGERS BUSY

Editor, Daily News: "Ancient" may have something in that letter he wrote, November 16, but you can bet that not many of the old timers and adults of this day would care to go back to the days when they fought Indians and slaved away from 12 to 18 hours a day. He (or she) didn't give parents much credit for the way today's teen-agers are brought up. Granted—some aren't brought up properly. In fact a good many aren't, but that is no reason to condemn all of us. Perhaps many haven't enough to do. That's very evident but a good many have.

I could name for him a good many fifteen-year-olds, including myself, who cook a good number of the meals in the house and also make or buy most of their own clothes. I receive no allowance but buy many of my own clothes or buy material to make them. This money comes from baby sitting alone as my mother says I'm too young to work (I'm 15). She, and others, say that we teen-agers have plenty of time to work after graduation. Perhaps they're right.

If everyone lived on farms and ate out of the cellar, made shoes from cow hide and clothes from sheep's wool not only teen-agers but "Ancient" himself and all the other adults would have a lot more of a rough time than they have now.

Is that what "Ancient" wants? Or does he think some pleasure a waste of time? "ONE OF THOSE USELESS, GIDDY TEEN-AGERS"

DYNAMITE

Editor, Daily News: Here is to the man who called himself "Ancient" in the Daily News of November 16. If you will look back in your teen-age days and if you wanted to, you will find some of your friends were "mollycoddled," too. I am sure "Ancient" merely closed his eyes when he saw some of his friends were "mollycoddled." So when he wrote his letter he said: "In our younger days there was none of this mollycoddling." Try and think hard, Ancient, after all you must admit that there was a certain amount of mollycoddling in "your" days, too.

Instead of judging all of us just by the traits of a certain teen-ager, why don't you look around. I'm sure you will find quite a difference. I don't want to think of you as a Communist but you seem to judge all of us by the traits of just one person. However, I hope this isn't true.

All of us aren't "like birds in a nest" nor are we "gullible seagulls." Just to prove to you that some of us aren't mollycoddled, I will give you an example. "There is a girl whom I will call Miss X. If she ever wanted anything, she has to work for it herself. She works in the summer, in order to buy clothes. When school opens in September, she does odd jobs like housework or babysitting, in order to "enjoy" life such as going to the show, or basketball games or other kinds of entertainment. However, she doesn't spend all her hard earned money on entertainment. She buys school supplies; puts aside so much for collection on Sundays; and when birthdays, or the Christmas season rolls around, she buys presents for one and all of her friends and relatives. Besides all this, she is paying her own way through school and furthermore, she is going to go to one of the universities (at her own expense) when she graduates. Now Ancient, tell me the truth, would you say this girl was "mollycoddled?" Don't you think tag days help a lot of people? If you don't think they do, try thinking harder the next time "you think." To mention a few, there are the tag days for the Blind; for the Veterans (poppies); for the Veterans, the Hospital, etc. When (Continued on Page 4)

Mr. Peabody and the end of the rainbow. You could have knocked Mr. Peabody over with a feather. For there, right through the window of his own room, came a rainbow. And at the end of it was a huge pot of gold! As he approached it to see if it was real, he heard the sound of bells. "The whole town has heard of this!" thought Mr. Peabody. "That's why the bells are ringing." And the sound of the bells grew louder... louder... LOUDER... Mr. Peabody awoke with a start. The alarm clock beside his bed was ringing... ringing... RINGING. Shutting it off, he sighed sadly, got up and dressed. At the breakfast table Mr. Peabody read his newspaper. In it a speaker was reported to have said that old-age benefits should provide everybody with enough to retire on. "Humph!" snorted Mr. Peabody to himself. "More rainbows! I like the idea of additional help for older people. But to build the kind of comfortable old-age income I want, I fully expect to need all my life insurance—and maybe more. It gives my family protection now. And it covers my own special needs in a way no mass programme could possibly do." Arriving at the office, Mr. Peabody, like millions of other Canadians, began another day of earning and saving for his future security with life insurance. "Even without pots of gold, it's a pretty good world," he said to himself. And as he worked, he began to whistle softly.

Chiselling To Be Stopped

OTTAWA—Chiselling on unemployment insurance by newly married women will be made more difficult under the new Labor Department laws which became effective last week.

The regulations will not be felt by working wives but will affect those who resign jobs for marriage and then try to collect unemployment benefits without intending to return to work.

No difference is noted in the principle of the Unemployment Insurance Act. Jobless benefits will be obtained as usual, by married women—those who have lost employment because of layoffs due to shortage of work; who have lost their jobs within two weeks of marriage or any time after marriage because of an employer rule against retaining married women, or by those whose husbands have died or become wholly and permanently incapacitated.

Austria Thwarts Communist Scheme To Wreck Economy

By HUBERT HARRISON

VIENNA (Reuters)—Austria is unique in the post-war world, not only for maintaining her unity despite division by Russian and western occupation, but for being the only country where resistance has been put up against Russian designs in regions under Soviet control.

Vice-Chancellor Adolf Schaerf stressed this in a speech following the recent Communist-instigated attempt to disturb the economy and political life of the country by widespread strikes and demonstrations.

It was the first time since 1945, said Schaerf, that Austrians have actively crushed movements favored by the Russians instead of passively accepting them.

It was the first time railwaymen, police, or postmen in the Russian zone had taken measures against "demonstrators and saboteurs who felt themselves to be under the protection of the Russians."

It has never happened in Hungary, Rumania, Czechoslovakia or Eastern Germany. The people in those countries have never revolted against a Soviet-inspired movement or prevented it from achieving its objective.

What did happen in Austria during the first week in October this year? Was there really an attempt to overthrow the government and set up a "people's democracy"? Were the lurid accounts in some sections of the foreign press accurate or not? Perhaps these questions will never be satisfactorily answered.

Communist leaders claim it was simply the legal strike weapon being employed by the workers to prevent "an attack upon their standard of living." They claim the government blew the affair up and then crushed it by the use of brutal force through police and Socialist "defence corps."

Johann Boenn, president of the Austrian Trade Union Federation, on the other hand, claimed: "We have infallible proofs that the aim of the Communist efforts was the establishment of a people's democracy."

GOVERNMENT VERSION
A government proclamation stated: "An assault was made on Austria and her economy, carried out by irresponsible elements, frustrated by virtue of the decisive resistance of the population and the courageous actions of the security forces."

The proclamation added: "During the past few days... the Communists attempted to establish a people's democracy here."

Officials of the People's party, the largest parliamentary party which with the Socialists forms the coalition government, have pointed out also that this was much more than a mere legal strike.

The activities of the strikers and the well-organized motorized bands which carried out the sabotage had obviously been planned. They were moves laid down in any text book on revolutionary action.

The occupation of post offices, railway stations, telephone exchanges and other such points by workers not working in those establishments, it is claimed, had nothing to do with strike activities. The fact that they had concrete ready mixed to pour into the switches bands of women and children drilled to squat on the rail and streetcar tracks, groups trained ready to move into the non-Communist controlled factories and force the workers to leave against their will, car loads of sand ready to tip on the streets in Vienna to stop traffic, points to a well-planned campaign going far beyond mere strike action.

The government promised

these organizations hold tag days, they are holding them because they need the money to buy things or else for improvements. However, when we asked permission to hold a tag day (because we wanted to raise money for a school band) it was immediately "vetoed" for the simple reason that "we will be begging on the streets." Now, don't you think that this is unreasonable? We're trying to raise money for a good cause. Don't you think so? Isn't it going to "boost" the morale of Prince Rupert? Or are you one of those people who thinks that it will be just a waste of money? In my own opinion, I think it will really give Rupert a "boost" and also, it will be a great asset. Come on Ancient! "Be a Rupert Booster."

As for public nurses and doctors, I think that they are wonderful! When we accept their help, it is given from the bottom of their hearts. Their help isn't given just because it is their duty. They chose their profession because they are giving from their hearts. I'm sure that couldn't be termed "charity." In "your days," as you say, "people stood on their own feet." I'll admit that this may be true, but, there must have been some help somewhere. From relatives? Neighbors? Grown sons and daughters?

Do you mind telling me if you still make your own clothes and shoes? Or do you buy your clothes from the stores. We're not living in the 1500's to make our own clothes and shoes. After all, there are a lot to choose from and the price is reasonable. If you want something to your liking, you "could" have it made to order. Couldn't you?

Are you insinuating that our parents are inexperienced with the training of their children? Didn't you think that some of the government employees and the staff of the schools have families of their own? Would you call these people inexperienced? Do you think that they only give out their knowledge to other children and nothing to their children? Kindly give this a thought some night when you're not busy.

Whoever this 68-year-old woman may be, she certainly must be "extraordinary," or are you combining the work of some women in your family? Whoever she may be, I'm quite sure that in her heart, she envies the teenagers of today. After all, we're in 1950 and not in 1897. In fact, I've known some "oldsters" claim that we're more mature than they were when they were teenagers. That is really quite a con-to use their own initiative today. And I wonder how many of these same parents actually encourage their children even now, to form small parties or games in their own homes, or do anything to show the child how to take full advantage of all the joys the world has to offer them. Or I wonder if they take your attitude, sir—"When I was young we never had that, so why should you?"

Truly sir, your idea of psychology is exactly what is forming the discontented teen-ager today!

Forgive my biased opinions and I'll forgive yours.

tradition to your point of view isn't it?

What would you do if you saw a sick widow with children? Who would help her? Somebody has to help her. But the somebody who sees her will say: "Let somebody else help her." Suppose the somebody else says the same thing? She has to accept help from someone. The government's only help. She accepts. It's only natural, isn't it? It's only human to want to live, to see loved ones grow up and to "grow up" with them... Have you ever seen or heard that the government has gone "bankrupt"? Do you honestly think that she ever will? Even if she does go insolvent, I'm sure that the Mother Country and her sisters will be glad to help out. To prove my point, look what happened when there was a flood in the Winnipeg area. The British Isles sent things that would be needed to help out the flood victims. It was accepted. If they rejected, how would the people of Britain feel? How would you feel if you gave a present (if you ever do) to someone you loved and she said that she didn't want it?

In closing, I hope you will open your eyes to the "other" teenagers, and not just "one" teenager. You can't judge people by the way they look or dress. It is what's inside them that counts. So, you can't judge all of us just by one teenager. Can you?

Judged Canada's Finest

BY MEN WHO KNOW BEER

BRUSSELS, Aug. 10-11, 1950—Masters of the Brewing Industry gathered at the International Food Institute Exhibition, in the Grand Hotel Central, Brussels, to compare, and judge, brewers' entries from the Dominion of Canada.

These men*, respected throughout the brewing industry, awarded LUCKY LAGER,—the same clear, amber LUCKY LAGER enjoyed by thousands of Canadians—the "STAR OF EXCELLENCE", the first prize.

Men who really know fine beer, chose LUCKY LAGER as Canada's Best Beer.

Russian or any other — which would or could dream of attack- ing that enlarged U.S.A. For not only every citizen of the enlarged U.S.A., but also every person be- yond its borders would know that such an attack offered no chance for success. It would be met and reversed by the whole armed power of a Federation vastly stronger than the present U.S.A.

OF COURSE WE ALL KNOW that neither Canada, Britain, France, Western Germany or Scandinavia would simply haul down their flags, disown their past, and apply as political bank- rupts for admission into the U.S.A. The British, Dutch, Norwe- gians, Swedes and Danes are too attached to their kings to con- sider any such thing. But it is possible for all the peoples con- cerned to secure the advantages of such an amalgamation with- out suffering any of the disad- vantages.

Under the federation plan pro- posed by Clarence Streit in 1932 the democracies would pool their sovereignty for certain subjects. There would be one money, one army, one navy, one air force. One elected parliament would make laws relating to defence, foreign policy.

The British, Dutch and Scan- danavian thrones would not be disturbed. Any country could be socialist or capitalist. Canadians would still be as Canadian as they are now. The main differences would be that the border be- tween Canada and the U.S.A. would be wiped out, not just be- tween the North Americans, but between the Americans and the entire British Commonwealth.

NOW CONSIDER HOW SUCH a federation - of - the - free plan would dissolve some of the worst difficulties. As things now stand, the question of German re-ar- mament is insoluble. We are damned if we do and damned if we don't.

A revived, re-armed nationalist Germany will always upset the balance of power in Europe. But any part or all Germany could be admitted on a free and equal basis to a federation-of-the-free. Other countries could join later as able and willing.

Anyway, he says so.

Blackwood On Bridge

By Easley Blackwood

The following morning do you think of the clever reply you might have made the night before—but couldn't think of it at the time? A lot of the bridge hands you read about in the papers are just like that.

The experts didn't make the play described, but thought it up afterwards. A few days later you read about the hand, but the bridge writer has had time to get his story straightened out and he says he did really make that brilliant play.

I want to show you a few hands as they were actually played by expert and near-expert players. Some of them are so terrible you will find them hard to believe, especially if you are inclined to be awed by the stories the experts tell about themselves.

BASKETBALL UPSETS--

Co-Ops Are Toppled By Gordon and Anderson

High School Downs Fashion Footwear in Close Intermediate Leaguer

The Co-op, who has dominated the Senior Basketball League roost for the past three years or more, were toppled from their lofty perch by the league underdogs, Gordon and Anderson, with a tidy 50-to-45 win Saturday night. It was no fluke win either, as Gordon and Anderson grabbed the lead early in the work under the basket where he snagged rebounds galore. It was strictly a team effort that won with every player hustling all the way. Smith, Marshall and Dumas, just up from Intermediate ranks, played excellent ball. Bob Gill, although he missed several shots, was a regular workhorse effective in the key, and scoring six points. Les Mathews, teacher at the High School, is another new find, not quite used to the team style as yet, but speedy and a fine ball handler. It was a good team, playing excellent ball-Currie, Ciccone, all of them.

Co-ops were not giving anything away. They played good steady ball. Don Scherk with 13, Beynon with 7 and Morgan with 6, all were working as hard as ever. Joe Davis was just as smooth and just as tricky, and made 8 big points. Webster looks better every game. Sid Scherk was held to one lone point, made on a technical in the first period. He wasn't as effective as usual, getting three fouls in the first quarter which made him wary, and possibly cut down his effectiveness. Co-ops took their loss philosophically and to put it in the words of Beynon: "Oh well, the Canadian champion Cloverleafs were beaten by the U.B.C. Chiefs last year."

This victory should ensure a big house for Tuesday night when Gordon and Anderson meet Co-op's arch rivals, Brownwoods, who have played Co-ops twice this season and lost by a single point on each occasion. Brownwoods gave Gordon and Anderson quite a trimming the first time they met but, now that G & A's are starting to roll, any senior game should prove a close and exciting contest.

"Doc" Montgomery's coaching started to pay off on Saturday night. His two experienced senior leaguers, Holkestad and Flaten, worked like trojans to lead their team to victory. Flaten scored 16 points while sparking his team mates by his hustle and

INTERMEDIATE

It was a night for upsets. In the Intermediate League, Fashion Footwear, who have lost very few games in the past, found themselves up against a smooth-working High Gold team which grabbed a big lead in the first quarter and held right on to win 34 to 32. It was the students' game until the final half, when Fashion outpointed them in both quarters but not enough to overcome the early lead. Unfortunately, there was considerable friction shown, with players from both teams causing a bit of a squabble after the game, which will likely bring some severe reprimands at Wednesday's meeting of the basketball executive, if not a game suspension.

Fine Show Of Bowling

Fashion Footwear provided a fine exhibition of both team and individual bowling last week-end although their 3 to 1 victory over Bulger's only leaves them with a close one-point lead in the place of Group One over runner-up team, Shenton Sheet Metal which easily overcame Social Welfare 4-0.

Fashion Footwear's game score of 1326.1225. 1382 established a new season three game total of 3933 which was about 400 pins over and above the last record mark. Also their third game total of 1382 is a new single game team score record.

High scorers for the evening were A. Pierce of Fashion Footwear with both the high ladies' total of 339 and high ladies three game total of 753.

High men's single was made by H. Price of Bulger's with 307 and the high three game total for men was rolled by G. Paul of Fashion Footwear with 735.

Team results were as follows: Shenton Sheet Metal 4, Social Welfare 0, Fashion Footwear 3, Bulger's 1, Dubs Printing 4, Booth School 0, Miller Bay 3, Ideal Cleaners 1, Cremation 3, P.R. Fire Damage To Home Is $2000

Quick Work by Fire Department Saturday Afternoon

Nearly $2,000 damage resulted in a fire believed started from children playing with matches at the home of J. W. Long, 709 Sixth Avenue West, Saturday afternoon. Building insurance up to $1500 was carried.

Quick action by Fire Chief E. R. Becker and eight firemen controlled the flames within ten minutes of arrival.

"Within a minute after Ken hung up the receiver, the fire department were here," said Mrs. Kenneth Wilmot, 716 Sixth Avenue West.

"Our house is within a few feet of Long's and when I heard a noise I looked out to see their house blazing—I shouted to my husband to phone the fire department. Brother, those firemen sure worked fast!" said Mrs. Wilmot.

Flames, circling around a 45-gallon oil barrel on the back verandah, had gutted the porch, melting the window, bursting into Long's bedroom. Three hundred dollars' damage was done to clothes, furniture and personal effects in the bedroom before the flames were quelled.

Bed clothes, spring filled mattress and bed were lost. Chief Becker threw out flaming clothes to Foreman Jack Franks who was on the fire hose outside.

Summoned home from the C.N.R. yard, Mr. Long told the chief that "it's bad enough losing furniture, but when you think you loose sixty dollars in cash it makes you despair."

Mr. Long said that he had left in the beuroom $60 cash in a wallet in the inside pocket of his suit coat. Upon inspection of the

By the time I reached home from the C.N.R. yard, the flames were controlled," said Mr. Long, praising the fire department.

Two one-and-one-half inch hoses from the fire truck and one two-and-one-half inch hose from the hydrant helped firemen extinguish the blaze.

At the time of the fire, Mrs. Long and the five-year-old twins, Donald and Donna, were visiting neighbors.

Chief Becker admonishes Prince Rupert householders who increase the danger of fire and the danger of lives by keeping improperly vented oil drums in wrong places.

"These tanks must be built upon a cement foundation—the basement will do—equipped with gas vents that run to the outside of the building," said the chief. He added that should oil drums ever ignite from improper venting, the explosion would cause untold expense, endangering the lives not only of the firemen but of the neighborhood.

NEW, MIRACLE ELECTRONIC EAR HIDES DEAFNESS

CHICAGO, (Special)—An amazing new electronic ear which hides deafness and transmits even whispers with startling clarity, has been revealed by a noted Chicago electronic scientist.

He disclosed that this miraculous new discovery has rendered old-style hearing aids obsolete almost overnight, and brings new hope to the 15 million persons in the United States who are hard of hearing.

He reported that this electronic ear enables the deaf to hear without any button showing in the ear and without dangling battery wires.

To acquaint the hard of hearing readers of this paper with this new miracle electronic ear which hides deafness, full details are described in a fascinating booklet, "New Discoveries to Help the Deaf Hear."

It will be sent free in a plain wrapper to anyone who requests it. Address: Electronic Research Director, 1450 West 19th Street, 78B Belton Building, Chicago 8, Ill. A penny postcard will do.—Adv.

Small Boy Big Figure

TORONTO — Rickey Sharpe, the 13-year-old boy from Munson, Alta., who won the Canadian National Railways trophy, emblematic of the world's wheat growing championship, is small in height but his achievement made him a towering figure among the other winners of the world championship grain trophies.

A. J. Lomas, vice-president, central region, C.N.R., presented him with the large engraved silver tray and cheque, which went with the award and read a telegram of congratulations from Donald Gordon, chairman and president, Canadian National system, which reads: "The news that you grew the best wheat in the world in 1950 is most gratifying to me and to everyone interested in seeing Canada's position as the world's best wheat producing country maintained."

It means not only that Canada should have the benefit of your agricultural skill and enterprise for many years to come but it is further proof, if proof were needed, that young Canadians are of good stuff and great things can be looked for from them on the farm as in the laboratory, the factory or wherever else they put their talents to work. Your achievement in winning the Canadian National trophy, emblematic of the world wheat championship, reflects great credit on the work of the council of farm boys' and girls' clubs and will give thousands of young Canadians cause to consider the opportunities for accomplishment and success that still exist in the vital field of agriculture. Sincerest congratulations on your victory and every good wish for continued success." Lord Digby, D.S.O., M.C., deputy president, Royal Agricultural Society of England, who was the chief speaker of the event, touched the same note in congratulating Rickey upon his achievement. He said that it was a magnificent performance and showed that in Canada, as in England, the junior agricultural clubs were doing an essential work in scientifically training the food producers of tomorrow. He saw no better example of its value than the fact that Rickey was this year awarded the reserve grand championship and thus attained the coveted C.N.R. world wheat championship trophy.

Facts of Life On Screen Here

Owing to the intimate biological nature of the subject matter "The Story of Bob and Sally," a moralization on the sex subject, will be shown to separate audiences of men and women at the Capitol Theatre here tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday. Children will not be admitted.

"The Story of Bob and Sally" presents an account of the lives of two young couples who through ignorance and lack of knowledge, find themselves on the threshold of tragedy. It strikes at the heart of marital incompatibility, congenial psychology and the biological urges of youth, depicting sad consequences which may arise therefrom.

Supplementing the fictional part of the picture, several reels of clinic film are shown, the first of their kind, it is said, ever released for presentation outside the medical profession.
