Yankees Win Series Opener

Issue Settled By Lone Run

SHIBE PARK, Philadelphia — Big right-handed Vic Raschi was the conquering hero in a great World Series opening game here today but it was only after a brilliant pitchers' duel with Jim Konstanty of the Philadelphia Phils. One run in the top of the fourth frame sufficed to give the Yanks the victory. It was the eleventh one run shut-out in World Series history.

Konstanty pitched for eight innings and was then relieved by Russ Meyer.

Scoring run came when Bobby Brown doubled and was brought home by Coleman's long fly.

A crowd of 35,726 fans jammed the park.

Morisseton Case Is On

The Crown today opened its case before Justice John V. Clynne at the Supreme Court Fall Assizes today against Tommy Mitchell, charged with unlawfully assaulting a peace officer while lawfully engaged in executing his duty. R. M. MacLeod is prosecuting and J. T. Harvey is defence counsel. Accused pleaded "not guilty."

Cst. Edmond Corson, first witness for the Crown, testified that on June 3, accompanied by four constables and a game warden, he visited Morisseton Indian reserve to execute a search warrant. At approximately 1 a.m. June 3, accused had been arrested on a charge of intoxication and was put into the police car with two other Indians. The car proceeded to the residence of the accused to execute the search warrant. At the residence, he saw Alfred, son of the accused, who was allegedly causing a disturbance. He was also arrested. Following Alfred's arrest accused had become violent. He seemed peaceful up to that time. As witness was stepping into the police sedan he was struck in the face by accused. Accused struck again, but witness ducked and accused's hand hit the post of the car. As the car was being driven away by another constable, accused kicked him with his shoe once, then twice more. He exhibited a scar, which he said was the result of the kicks.

On cross-examination, witness denied he had broken accused's arm. He first knew the arm was broken the following morning. He said accused was cut on the top of the head when he pulled witness over on top of him in a scuffle. He denied striking accused with either a blackjack or flashlight. He said everything had been orderly until after the search warrant had been executed. Afterwards accused's son had started calling the police vile names. He had been ordered by the constable in charge of the search to arrest Alfred.

Witness denied he had threatened accused earlier in the spring. He also denied suggesting that accused plead guilty to the charge under which he was being tried.

The case is continuing.

Jury for the trial is Douglas Hugh Payne, foreman, Vernon B. Ciccone, J. R. Watson, Charles C. Ormlston, E. J. Garofani, Stanley Saville, Archie Hedstrom, M. J. Keays, Carl Matson, David Abel, W. W. Noonan and George Fowle.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Mansell, who have been spending the summer at Peachland on Okanagan Lake, returned to the city from the south on the Prince George this morning.

Mrs. George Frizzell, who has been visiting for several weeks in Vancouver and Victoria, returned to the city from the south on the Prince George this morning.

Completion of the last link of the new 247-mile highway connecting Whitehorse with Mayo, Yukon Territory, was announced today by the Department of Resources.

The all-weather road, built to aid development of the largest lode mining areas in the Yukon, provides direct access from the Keno mining districts to Whitehorse. It joins the Alaska Highway at a point ten miles north-west of Whitehorse.

Fernly and Freeze were given 21 days to cover the distance of 25 miles. The first few days the going was not so bad and some prospecting was carried out as planned but as they proceeded, it was all they could do to keep up to schedule in traversing the country and, finally, they fell behind. Deep canyons, almost impenetrable bush, rough terrain made it as rugged a country as the pair had ever seen. Nor was there any evidence that human beings had ever penetrated the area before.

The two men suffered no injury nor did they actually run out of food although it did become short and they were forced to ration themselves. It was a welcome relief when Mr. Moore sighted their mirror signals from the air last Friday and dropped them parcels. Mr. Uruski, who had been put off at Egeria Reach, went upstream to meet them and accompanied them out.

Mr. Fernly and Mr. Freeze will leave for Vancouver tomorrow.

Witness said, accused was nervous all the time he was telling him the story and seemed to want to get it off his chest. Afterward, he had gone with Cpl. (Continued on page 4)

Requiem Mass For Mrs. B. Macdonald

Mrs. Bridget Macdonald widow of the late A. J. Macdonald, passed away suddenly this morning at the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Johnson, 1117 Seventh Avenue. She was in her 77th year.

A native of Ontario, Mrs. Macdonald spent her early married life in Winnipeg, where she was associated with Catholic and social welfare activities. She later moved to Vancouver, where she lived for about ten years before coming to Prince Rupert about four years ago to live with her daughter. She enjoyed good health until the time of her death. She has been associated with church activities here.

A Requiem High Mass will be said for her tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock in Annunciation church. The remains will be accompanied by Mrs. Johnson to Vancouver, where they will be buried in Ocean View cemetery. Mrs. Johnson is the only surviving child.

Peoria Folk Visiting City

Four party of forty-five persons, travelling under the auspices of radio station WMBD of Peoria, Illinois, arrived in the city on the Prince George this morning from Vancouver and will proceed by the evening train to Winnipeg enroute home. The group is led by two farm editors — Emil Bill of station WMBD and John Wankey of the Peoria Journal newspaper. Mark Hadden of the Northern Pacific Railway is in charge of the party.

Prospectors Out Safe After Rough Trip in Rugged Region

Rupert Fernly and Ed. Freeze, field prospectors for the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Co., are agreed that there is no tougher and more rugged part of British Columbia than the twenty-five miles between Sandifer Lake, 3½ miles west of Tahtsa Lake and the Tsaytsis River which drains into Gardner Canal. They are safe in Prince Rupert after some concern had been felt for a couple of days last week as to their safety when they failed to make rendezvous at Egeria Reach, Gardner Canal, with Neely Moore, flying exploration superintendent of the company, who was to have met them there last Wednesday. Mr. Moore finally located them on a bar six miles up the river when he went back last Friday to make another search.

Three Meet Death as Steamer Hits Launch

VANCOUVER, (CP) — Possible "horribly mangled" bodies of three employees of the British Columbia forestry service were sought in the choppy waters off Bowen Island yesterday following collision between a sturdy coastal steamship and a launch.

Four other persons were injured, one seriously, and were rescued by the Union Steamship Co.'s Lady Cynthia which late yesterday smashed into the provincial forestry department launch A. L. Bryant while enroute to Vancouver.

Missing and presumed drowned have been identified as F. A. Longstaff, aged 30; W. M. Ingram, 30, both of Vancouver, and A. P. Wrotnowski, North Vancouver.

The rescued are Frank Patterson of Vancouver; H. L. Coles of North Vancouver and J. W. McDonald and J. H. Kilby, both of Burnaby.

Patterson is in poor condition in hospital here with one arm almost severed. The other three suffered shock.

Two passengers aboard the 925-ton Lady Cynthia said the accident occurred when "the launch either tried to beat across or else it went out of control."

After 25 minutes' deliberation, the jury at the Supreme Court Assizes last evening brought in a verdict of guilty against Ernest Jabour, charged with unlawfully supplying hot water and castile soap to Betty Young, knowing such were to be used to bring about an illegal miscarriage. Mr. Justice John V. Clynne sentenced him to two years in penitentiary.

In pronouncing sentence, His Lordship thanked the jury for their strict attention during the long "morbid" proceedings.

Yesterday morning a long legal trial within a trial began over the admissibility as evidence of statements made by Jabour to police constables the morning Betty Young's dead body was found in his room.

Constable Turner said Jabour had come into the police station at about 7:30 the morning of April 19 and asked to see the sergeant. He told Turner the matter was so serious that he had to see the sergeant. He would probably be in jail by noon. He asked Turner to let him know at a taxi stand about two blocks from the police station when an N.C.O. came in.

Constable Redhead came into the office between 7:45 and 7:50, Turner said. He telephoned Jabour at the taxi stand and Jabour came over to the police station. He went into the back room at the police station with Redhead. Jabour was a crown witness in a case at the Supreme Court Assizes, which were in progress at the time.

Constable George Redhead testified he came on duty at approximately 7:45 the morning of April 19. He was informed Jabour had left a message to be called and he telephoned the number and asked if Jabour wanted to see him. Jabour said "yes" and arrived at the police station about 7:50. The two went into the back office, Cst. Redhead said, and on entering Jabour threw some keys on the desk saying: "There's the keys to my room, Red, she's in there dead."

Constable Redhead said he then gave Jabour the official police warning and added that he was not under arrest but, if there was a trial, what he said would be used as evidence. He told the jury Jabour was not under suspicion or investigation at the time.

Jabour had told him that a girl he knew as Betty was dead in his room. He had found her and she was blue all over. He said it was an abortion, but he did not know how it was done or who did it. She had come to him the preceding Sunday and asked him if she could use his room and he had said "yes." She had come to his room the morning of April 18. He had stayed in the room until 10 a.m. when he was called to a taxi stand to take a long distance telephone call.

They spent two weeks guarding supplies of the beachhead and escorting ships carrying vital fuel and ammunition.

Sensational Commie Plot

Judge Finds War Machine Designed to Overthrow U.S. Government

PITTSBURGH, — Judge Michael A. Masmunno on Tuesday produced a bulky sheaf of seized documents which he said proved that Communists in a war machine in the United States were seeking to overthrow the government.

The judge said he had sent seventeen of the documents to the House of Representatives un-American activities committee which established the aims of the Communists without question.

Committee investigators say the papers are sensational.

World Series Time

THIS is the week when baseball monopolizes two or three hours a day on the radio—even CFPR—and breaks into the front page newspaper headlines. It is World Series week and we are going to get baseball the next few days whether we like it or not. But we might as well like it and maybe it's not so bad after all to think about such things once in a while. It is a diversion from dull care and the serious events and problems of the day which beset and perplex us. It is good, in fact, that we are able to turn our thoughts to lighter matters for the time being. And we might be thankful that, even though we dwell in the midst of alarms, we can take this diversion without pangs of conscience. We can all remember sombre autumns, and many of them, when the World Series could not be given the modicum of attention it now gets owing to the serious and solemn and sad events that were transpiring.

So may the supporters of the Yankees and the Phils enthuse and speculate! And, if you ask us who we like, we'd say the Phils. A club that has not even had a pennant in thirty-five years can be rated an uncertainty and an underdog and, as such, they usually have the sympathy of the uninitiated and the uninformed.

THIS IS NAVY WEEK

FROM coast to coast attention is being focussed on the Royal Canadian Navy and on its sister-service of the sea, Canada's Merchant Marine.

Activities of the week will be climaxed on Navy Day, Saturday, October 7, when naval divisions, including HMCS Chatham, Prince Rupert, will hold "open house" to the public.

Sunday, October 8, will be the Battle of the Atlantic Sunday.

The Battle of the Atlantic began on the day that war was declared. It did not cease until the last surrender of the last enemy submarine had been accepted. It was at once the longest, and in many ways the hardest battle of the entire war.

A proud record was achieved but not without sacrifice. Almost thirteen hundred of our sailors gave their lives in battle against the enemy or the elements. Many others shed their blood in the heat of conflict. Twenty-four of our ships fell victim to the enemy's assault.

Nor did the sacrifice end there. The hardships of long separation from home and family, of sleepless vigil in the chill dead of darkness upon the waters, of struggle against wild weather and the danger and emergency of life at sea in wartime—all these have taken their toll in years of life which, in a world at peace, could have been better used.

Yet it is to those stout-hearted souls who dared so much and endured so much that we owe the security we now possess. Their sacrifice has held for us all the quiet Christian way of life.

It would be hard indeed to believe that the great achievements of the longest struggle of the war could have been possible without an inspiration beyond the power of man.

No damage was reported in either of two fire calls the fire department answered Monday. One was started when some children playing under a rooming house owned by G. Leighton at 733 Fifth Avenue east set fire to some paper. That was at 1:35 p.m. The other, at 6:15 p.m., was at the Central Rooms in the 80 block, Second Avenue West. It was started by a dirty chimney. No damage was reported.

Can Old Dog Learn?

TOWARDS THE END of the Hitler war a smart young army doctor came to see me. He was about to return to civilian life and to set himself up as a specialist in the care of old people. (They have some high faluting name for it which I can't remember and haven't the ambition to look up.)

He wanted me to write articles to stress the need for more organized activities for old people. People were going to live longer—we could be absolutely sure of that, he said. And the purely medical end of how to care for them was the simplest part of the problem. Old folks had to have a place in life that made them feel that life was still worth living.

We talked about worthwhile activities for older folks. Most folks know about what they do at community centres. Churches, clubs and all sorts of organizations are taking an interest in this.

It certainly gives me a thrill to go to the night school and see people well up in years going in to take the various courses.

IN MY TALK WITH the doctor I made a break which he immediately checked.

"You can't teach an old dog new tricks," I said, for all the world like any other Colonel Blimp.

"You CAN teach an old dog new tricks IF THE OLD DOG wants to learn," the young expert replied.

I have thought a lot about that in the years since that chat. I have thought how foolish it is for us just to accept those old sayings, without question. Of course most of those old folk sayings are partly true. But few of them are the whole truth.

STILL I DON'T know whether or not you CAN teach an old dog new tricks. I would surely like to hear from readers as to whether you can or not.

But I do know you can teach old humans new things.

Not everything, of course. If you try to teach a really old person to do stunts which require the physical strength of youth then you are not only attempting the impossible, but are as big a fool as your pupil.

But old folks can learn all sorts of new handicrafts. If you still have eyes to read with, you are never too old to read the many great books that have been written. There are over 120 night school courses in our town alone. And no matter where you live on the face of this earth, if you have postal facilities you can learn just about anything by mail. Just about anything, this is, that you would be competent to learn if you lived actually in a big city—and the thing you wanted to

New Lieutenant Governor Takes Over—New Driveway to Legislative Buildings

VICTORIA—With a new Lieut-Governor, Hon. Clarence Wallace installed at Government House, provincial historians have been scurrying around looking up the past of the big mansion maintained by the taxpayers (about $50,000 a year) atop Rockland Avenue's hill.

The first Lieut-Governor to live there was Sir Henri Joli de Lotbiniere. He moved in during August of 1903. The old Government House—Cary Castle—burned down in 1899 when Dr. Thomas McInnis was Lieut-Governor. A temporary Government House was found—the Moss Street mansion of the banker, A. A. Green, late, the David Spencer home. In this home King George V and Queen Mary, when they were Duke and Duchess of York, had dinner in 1901.

The present Government House cost $100,000 and $20,000 was spent at the time on furniture. It has 32 rooms—including 10 bathrooms—and sits in 12 acres of magnificently landscaped grounds. Its main corridor, running east and west, is 120 feet in length.

Clarence Wallace is the twelfth Lieut-Governor to live in the present Government House. The others were in this order, Sir Henri Joli, James Dunsmuir, T. W. Paterson, Sir Frank Barnard, E. G. Prior, Walter C. Nichol, Randolph Bruce, J. W. Fordham Johnson, Eric W. Hamber, W. C. Woodward and C. A. Banks.

Next time you come to Victoria you won't be able to drive up that graceful curved roadway to the Legislative Buildings. The rush of modern traffic has outlawed it. It's being closed up and the new driveway will run east and west immediately in front of the Buildings, with entrances from Government and Menzies Street. The curved driveway, of course, will remain but there will be chains across its entrances and they will only be removed when the Lieut-Governor, or some other distinguished person arrives on a ceremonial occasion. Traffic is so heavy at the War Memorial that the Buildings' driveway was dangerous. To put in the new driveway many fine trees and shrubs had to be torn up.

This column has been doing some digging in recent months into the life of Emily Carr, that strange woman whose paintings and writings are now looked upon as truly outstanding in the Canadian field. We came across an old jingle that Miss Carr wrote to her favorite sheepdog Billie. We think it's worth printing in part. We think you'll like it, appreciate its whimsy its humor, and its touch of pathos: "I ain't got no Pa nor Ma—I ain't got no brothers—ne'er a uncle or a aunt—I ain't got no lovers. Kith what wants me to live away, Kin what's here don't like me. When I'm sittin', thinkin', darn it, ain't it drear—Billie ups and whimpers—licks away the tear."

Ernest Love arrived in the city on the Coquitlam yesterday from Stewart and proceeded today by air to attend the British Columbia Conservative Association convention at Vancouver. Years ago Mr. Love was superintendent of utilities here. He now operates the telephone system at Stewart.

The Experts Say...

FRUIT NUT CANDY

Junior should get fresh fruit rather than candy when he comes asking for a between-meal snack, says a Health Department official.

But that doesn't mean candy hasn't a place in the average child's diet.

"Candy and soft drinks can be associated with meals," suggests Dr. L. B. Pett, chief of the department's nutrition division.

For instance, there is the tooth-thin child who suffers loss of appetite because he is in the habit of eating a lot of candy between meals. This youngster could be given candy at the end of his dinner, thus arousing in him the incentive to eat the more substantial food first.

On the other hand there is a high sugar content in soft drinks and candy-bars, and Dr. Pett says over-indulgence in such sweets is often responsible for the obesity suffered by a good many children.

Basically fresh fruit is by far the best sweet, he says, particularly at this time of year when peaches, plums, apples and grapes are selling in quantity.

Not only is it better nutritionally but it frequently is more satisfying to the child than candy.

VITAMIN D

Vitamin D, the sunshine vitamin, is doubly needed now to prepare the children for the long winter months ahead.

Health department experts describe vitamin D as a "chemical substance needed by the body to make use of the calcium and phosphorus in food in order to form strong, straight bones, good teeth and well-developed bodies."

It should be given to the youngsters all the time they're growing, from birth usually until 16 years.

The health experts say vitamin D may be derived from sunlight and from certain foods such as salmon, sardines, and irradiated evaporated milk.

But sunlight is not a dependable source. Smoke fog and dust prevent the ultra-violet rays from reaching the skin where they can form vitamin D. Food is equally dependable because the vitamin in food ordinarily eaten is not present in large enough quantities to meet the needs of growing children.

Children need vitamin D every day, winter and summer, say the health experts. Infants up to two years need 400-800 international units and all other children need 400 units.

These units are standards of measurement to indicate the quantity to be taken of the vitamin which comes in liquid, tablet or capsule form.

WHAT BODY NEEDS

Milk, fruit, vegetables, cereals and meat are needed by the body daily in both winter and summer. Any person's whose diet isn't balanced properly feels the cold more often than a well fed person. These crisp October mornings particularly require a good breakfast. In fact, make sure that all your meals are properly balanced.

Ray Reflects and Reminisces

Trees bearing apples have been flourishing in Prince Rupert this summer but it might be a bit playful to refer to them, as "orchards". Nevertheless here and there can be seen sturdy growths. There is a tree on First Avenue in the neighborhood of Totem Pole park. Apples are there, all right, but everything is on the small and immature side.

With General MacArthur leading, the Lord's Prayer was publicly recited in Seoul the day following the flight of the Reds, when the smoke of destruction still drifted above smouldering ruins. It must have been a moving spectacle, especially the line "Give Us This Day Our Daily Bread". For verily, it was needed.

Space problems will not plague the new liquor store on Second Avenue. Just now, with contract yet to be completed, it's roomy enough to give one a sense of loneliness. It will take care of everything — including brown October ale.

The Dionne quintuplets are commencing to step out. They are sixteen and about to make their first visit to New York, where a department store outfits them for a benefit dinner. Where will the quintuplets go from there? If Papa Dionne has his way, they may go no where in particular. But original, fast-stepping, money-making New York may have a few ideas. Youthful and pretty quintuplets do not happen along every day.

Never before has the art of publicity attained such a degree of perfection as it has today. For publicity, as now understood, is an art. Literature is presented and embellished with a skill and insight little short of marvellous. This very expertness may be one of the reasons why sex is so widely read by all ages and classes, a somewhat disturbing fact. It is not at all improbable that, with some, the choice of reading matter becomes restricted, and this in turn involves the threat of mania.

There was an impression in Prince Rupert last summer that by October, there would be signs of the administration building on First Avenue becoming the home of tenants. There is a large sign that reads "Edgewater Apartments." It's been there for months. October is here, but not much else. Now, it would appear that in January some action can be expected. Anyway, that's the latest.

If Canadian troops are to sail again for Asia, they will have many advantages an earlier and smaller force never possessed. This was the contingent that went to Hong Kong in the second war and suffered a crushing defeat at the hands of the Japanese. There were reasons. From the very beginning, the trans-Pacific adventure went wrong. And at Christmas, of all seasons, came the climax when Canadians, with all Asia looking on, surrendered.

Two Vancouver men, arrested on intoxication charges, are dead, one from the effects of cerebral hemorrhage and the other from head injuries. Similar cases are on record. It is only too true that, though sometimes a person seems under the influence of drink, he has not even tasted liquor. Or possibly, while his breath might indicate the presence of alcohol, he would actually be sober. There are many and perplexing angles to such situations but, above all, the point is save life, and to allow the approach of death under the mistaken impression that "oh, he'll sleep it off".

The president of Canada Packers Ltd., J. Stanley McLean, which was in northern BC waters recently, said he could not say when the price of meat might go down. The reason for this was that prices were fixed in the United States. Mr. McLean came north on a fishing trip, and about ten days were spent in Queen Charlotte Island regions. He was a guest of friends in the south.

Mr. and Mrs. Reg Kelsey returned to the city on the Prince George this morning from a trip to Vancouver.

Catholic Bazaar Is Social Centre

Newly renovated Annunciation School Hall will be the city's social centre today and tomorrow as the annual Catholic bazaar is held. The proceedings go on both afternoon and evening. Ladies of the city started moving early to the affair to be received by Mrs. E. L. Coughlin president of the Catholic Women's League.

There are many attractions such as the "baby" booth, also a beautiful assortment of plain sewing and fancy work, unexcelled home cooking, a hot-dog and cake stand, and a fish pond to delight the children. Tea is being served both afternoons with bingo and amusements in the evening.

The grand drawing takes place Thursday evening.

Craft Club Draws Many

The beginners leathercraft class met for the first time at the Civic Centre on Monday night and sixteen enthusiastic students learned the fundamentals of skiving and cutting leather as well as the first steps in thonging. There is still room in this class for further registrations. The next meeting will be held in two weeks time.

Latest word from Miss Jean Travis regarding the extension of British Columbia extension department courses to be held at the Civic Centre next week is that the classes will start on Tuesday as Monday is Thanksgiving and a holiday.

The Junior Boys met in the workshop for their first session on Monday afternoon and looked over the projects which are to be made this year. The Monday group is for boys from 6 to 9 years of age while the 10 to 12 year old boys meet on Thursday afternoons. It is hoped that the boys in these age groups will take the opportunity of the wood-working sessions. Owing to the Junior Boys having their boy's games period on Monday at the same time as the woodwork, the Monday session of woodwork has been changed to Tuesday at the same hour after school.

The teen age girls are being requested to come to their craft class on Monday instead of Tuesday as Tuesday has been set aside for the boys woodwork.

Trade Boards Are Respected

Speaking from experience as a Parliamentarian, Olof Hanson, former M.P. for Skeena, told the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce Monday night that representations of local chambers of commerce and boards of trade were always listened to with respect by governments. The support of such organizations could be a great weapon in the hands of members. There should always be care, however, in the matter of drawing up effective resolutions which should be decisive and reasonable. He advised against representations of a demanding character. More could be accomplished by a friendly, co-operative approach.

Another guest at Monday night's meeting was W. H. Crocker, field representative of the regional development division, Department of Trade and Industry, who spoke briefly, expressing his pleasure at being present.

Wales to room 8 in the Dominion Rooms and unlocked the door. He said the pictures previously introduced as evidence were a true record of what he had seen on entering the room. He identified a mark on the picture as being in the same place as a stain that was on the floor when he entered the room. Nothing in the room had been disturbed while he and Cpl. Wales were in the room. They stayed only a few minutes and went out. The door was padlocked and he stood guard outside.

Cpl. Simonds, who had been a constable with the city detachment at the time of the offence, said when he came on duty accused was in the back room with Redhead. When they came out, the policeman was carrying a bunch of keys. Redhead told him, on being asked, that the excitement was about a body in Jabour's room. Accused was perturbed and he warned him that anything he might say would be used in evidence. Cpl. Wales then came in and, when Jabour told him he was in a mess, Wales again warned him. He had then given him a statement quite voluntarily. He wrote the statement down. The statement was entered as an exhibit. It was to the effect that the girl had come into his room on the morning of April 18. He had got her some hot water and was called away about 10 a.m. No one else was in the room when he left. He knew she was planning an abortion. He returned to the room about 11:30 p.m. and found the girl with little clothing on. Her face and neck were purple. He had then walked about most of the night and had finally gone to a friend's room to sleep for a bit before coming to the police station. Cpl. Wales returned to the station just as the statement was completed and witnessed the signatures being made on the statement.

Cpl. Wales said that what he saw in the room agreed with what Redhead had seen. He said he had tripped over some fish hooks and kicked the basin when he stumbled. Otherwise nothing in the room was moved. He had then gone back to the police station and found accused and Simonds just finishing recording the statement. He warned accused and read the statement to him. Then he passed it to him for signature.

Cst. J. White, recalled, identified a razor blade wrapper and said the telephone call was checked and also said a woman had said at the inquest that the girl had been seen alive at the King George Hotel between 11 a.m. and noon of April 18.

Mr. Justice Clyne, in charging the jury, told them of their responsibilities and told them they were so judges of what the facts elicited meant and it was their duty to find the accused "guilty" if those facts elicited in evidence called for that finding. Otherwise they were to find him "not guilty."

EARLIER EVIDENCE
Mrs. Sarah Hartwig testified that she was working in Wallace's drug store at the time of Mrs. Young's death and that, before that time, Jabour had bought some castile soap and other items. She did not remember what the other items were. They were obtained from the back of the store. Mostly disinfectants were kept there. On cross examination she said accused might have bought Kleenex. The cash register was at the back of the store.

Cst. J. R. White of the R.C.M.P. said he had been a member of the B.C. Provincial Police in April. He said he knew Jabour, who lived in room number 8 at the Dominion Rooms. Witness was in the building about 10:30 the night before the body was discovered making a routine check. Jabour's door was locked with a padlock. At 9 o'clock the following morning he had accompanied Corporal Wales and Dr. Greene to the room. Cpl. Wales unlocked the door and he had entered after Wales and Dr. Greene. Shown the pictures, he said they showed what he saw on entering the room. No one had disturbed anything in the room before the pictures were taken. There was no plumbing in the room. On examination and search of the room, he said he had found a basin, which he produced. It was entered as an exhibit. The pan was upside down under the bed and was clean inside. There was some sticky substance on the handles. He produced a bottle of lysol with a small portion used, which he said was in about the same condition as when it was found. He said there was a package of razor blades that he could not find among articles he had in court. On the dresser he found a knife, fork and two tablespoons but nothing that could be called an instrument. He produced four fingerstalls, a blanket, and articles of feminine clothing. He said all the articles would be worn by a woman when she was dressed. He was present at the post mortem examination by Dr. Greene. He detected an aroma similar to carbolic soap. After the examination, Dr. Greene gave him a number of articles which he listed and sent to Victoria for analysis. He gave them to Cpl. Simonds April 20. He was in the room from the time he entered until the coroner ordered removal of the body.

On cross examination, he said he had a cold that day, but that he recognized the smell of carbolic soap. He said fingerstalls were sometimes used by fishermen who cut their fingers on hooks.

Meth Davies Passes Away

Meth Davies, for many years engineer at the Shawatians Lake power plant here and prominent in vocal circles during a residence of thirty years in the city, passed away suddenly on Sunday in Victoria where he had made his home for the past ten years. Many old friends here will learn with regret of his passing.

Mr. Davies was born in South Wales 63 years ago and came to Prince Rupert in 1911 after having been located in Victoria and Nanaimo. He was a member of the Masonic Lodge and took a leading part in choral activities.

Mr. Davies remarried since leaving Prince Rupert and is survived by his widow. Two daughter here are Mrs. David Owens and Mrs. J. G. Alexander. The latter left by plane for Victoria on Monday.
