edly wish for the fulfillment of those hopes, but many of us will wonder how deep the source of the apparent change of Russian viewpoint may be. Does it spring from a better understanding of the necessity for real freedom in human relations and government? Or is it a superficial change of attitude adopted as a pose to facilitate the moral and material disarmament of the opponents of Communism and thus render world domination an object more easily attained? It could be a change of heart for the better or a new tactical variety of psychological warfare.

Therefore, the western democracies are not likely to take any precipitate action to dissipate the strength behind the Atlantic pact, nor the moral strength, the economic strength, nor the military strength.

not as yet been favorably evaluated or determined. The record in this respect is not impressive. Their really peaceful intent has yet to be established. The possession of armed might, some may say, has led to war in the past but this has happened only when that armed might has been preponderant and available to one side only, the aggressor side. A true democracy cannot be an aggressor, the people would not permit it. It, therefore, appears that for the present, we, fof the west, must trust only in God, keep our powder dry, and have plenty of it.

A British Laborite On Socialism

"Until 1945 I shared with my colleagues in the British Labor Party an enticing dream of the Brave New World which Socialism would bring, a fairer and fuller life for all.

"We have now been in power almost four years. We have socialized a large sector of our industrial life and subjected what is left to national planning. I have spent years discoursing on the defects of capitalism. I do not withdraw those criticisms. But we have seen the two systems at work side by side. And the man who would still argue that Socialism is the means of ridding our society of the defects of capitalism is blind. Socialism just does not work. We must find some other means of dealing with the imperfections of the private-enterprise system-we dare not abandon it. From Reader's Digest, May, 1949.

In war and peace-for eight years British Columbia has prospered in the hands of a Coalition of the Liberal and Conservative parties. Your Coalition government embodies the best policies of both parties and their representatives. It has been the best government in British Columbia's entire history!

Greater British Columbia development than ever before has been achieved - social services, public works, education, public power, municipal help and other programmes of an outstanding nature are in effect. Your Coalition government stands on its record of achievement and promise. It offers itself for re-election so that it may continue its sound administration of British Columbia's affairs.

Here are the principal features of the Coalition record:

alhere WEARCOUNTS

C .- thus bringing another section of the province into land communication with the coast.

EDUCATION-British Columbia now has the most advanced educational policy in Canada—its school teachers receive the highest average salaries. Vast improvements to school buildings and equipment have been made—half the cost of new schools is paid for by the government-school books are provided free up to the 6th grade and rental for nominal amounts up to grade 12.

PUBLIC POWER-Electric power from Government plants is supplied in 20 districts from Duncan, V.I. to Dawson Creek, Peace River. Power development at Campbell River not only serves the people of that district but has assured the establishment of new industries such as pulp and paper plants at Alberni, Nanaimo and elsewhere.

SOCIAL SERVICES-British Columbia is the most progressive province in social welfare-old age pensions are the highest in Canada. British Columbia was the first to augment federal old age pensions.

TRADE & INDUSTRY-British Columbia is Canada's third largest industrial province!
