Alcan Big Concern

AN IDEA of the scope of the Aluminum Company's operations may be drawn from its most recent annual report. Excerpts follow:

"During 1948, the subsidiary and associated companies of the Aluminum Co. of Canada Limited conducted operations in mining, smelting and semi-fabricating in some 23 countries of the world. They marketed their products in more than 80 countries, virtually in every country of the world, except Soviet Russia. Primary aluminum shipments from Canada were consigned to 37 countries.

"Despite the high level of activity in 1948, the supply of aluminum was not sufficient to meet the strong world demand which was called forth by a combination of factors. One was the continuing shortage of competing materials, another the high level of construction, and the third (of fundamental importance) the widespread popularity and acceptance of aluminum, by virtue of its natural advantages in a greater variety of uses."

THEO COLLART

PRINCE RUPERT mourns the loss of another of its good pioneer citizens in the passing in his native Belgium in the town where he was born of J. J. T. (better known as "Theo") Collart.

He is another of those enthusiastic pioneers who came here forty odd years ago and put their means, their confidence and their energy into the building up of the community. Today their ranks are rapidly thinning just as the vision they saw of the great future of this city and district is commencing to be realized.

It is but the irony of history that the pioneers, who do much like Mr. Collart and so many others have done, should pass on before they are able to reap the reward and satisfaction of realizing the things for which they worked and strived—to see the culmination of their confidence and their beliefs.

Like many others, Theo Collart, in his own way, helped conscientiously and effectively in the building up of the city in which he spent the past years of his life. He will be missed by many friends, particularly those of the "good old days." He was a good soldier and a good citizen. Sympathy is extended to his son, Robert, and other relatives.

HATTER'S NIGHTMARE—The stove-pipe at the left is perched on the head of Calgary's Mayor James C. Watson, to go with the bright yellow cutaway and trousers presented to him by Toronto's delegation to the Calgary Stampede. The old-time carnival outfit was a swap for the cowboy suit and stetson sported by Toronto Mayor Hiram E. McCallum, right, which he received from the western city when its Stampeders came to Toronto last fall to take the Dominion football title. (C. P. Phoo)

LETTERBOX

HOW ABOUT FLAGS?

Editor Daily News:
I see correspondents in Vancouver papers are protesting at the lack of flag unfurling on such occasions as Dominion Day. It seems to me similar protests might be in order in Prince Rupert. All the flags I could see on Dominion Day here were those on the Court House grounds, the Post Office and City Hall. How about the other organizations that profess such loyalty and talk so much about good citizenship? What do our tourists think of us on a national holiday with flags broken out all over their ships but few, if any, in this loyal city.

Here is a letter in the Vancouver Province which I think is very applicable to Prince Rupert:

"I have been waiting to see if someone better qualified than myself, would deliver the deserved condemnatory broadside against our fair city for its appearance on Dominion Day.

"Perhaps only a retired Imperial Army general could deliver a fitting blast.

"Where were the flags?" "From casual observation I should say that the proportion of flagpoles without flags to those with was four to one.

"If our civic-spirited city feels that loyalty and patriotism are just a couple of funny dead words, surely, when Canada was being praised and remembered in many parts of the world on July 1, self-respect should compel it to pretend some enthusiasm for membership in that same Canada." E. K. STEELE.

Joe Slaggard Still Catching Big Ones

Joe Slaggard, No. 1 yodeler, can catch as well as tell the big ones. He has not lost his piscatorial touch. He demonstrated the fact yesterday when he visited Prudhomme Lake with a number of his Moose friends. Joe boasted one of the best fish of the day, a fine twelve-inch cutthroat.

Central British Columbia is drawing large scale attention. Important interests and prospective settlers are looking this way. Far reaching plans are maturing. But the great silence

Ray Reflects . . . and Reminisces

It is probable local old timers living in Vancouver and Victoria exceed the number still located here. Reasons are natural enough. Many, as age came on, returned to where they originally came from. Some moved south for family considerations. Others felt the urge to know larger city life. How satisfactory the change might be is another story. History is only being repeated. Every big town on the coast has always had two sets of citizens—the originals and those who became the real builders.

There is something about the Calgary Stampede that makes a fellow wish, assuming he's never been there, he had. Last week, a multitude of shouting, sweating westerners gloried in enjoying themselves. It was the greatest attendance in the history of Calgary's favorite annual blow-out. Well, perhaps next year!

Juneau people, seeing whales having their breakfast hour frolic the other morning, became deeply concerned if not excited. The sight was most unusual as well as entertaining. Townsite engineers at Prince Rupert back in 1908 and '09, in letters home mentioned seeing whales playing around in the harbor. The novel news was featured. It was in this way many first heard of such a place as Prince Rupert.

in the Groundhog zone remains unbroken. Yet there was a time when its widening fame as a source of high grade coal was indeed a fact. There are residents of Rupert today, who never even heard of it. How often do you see the words "Groundhog" in print, hear them in conversation or over the air?

There is said to be not less than a hundred miles of Ground Hog coal fields not so far from where this is being written. The location, roughly described is just north of the most northerly point on the C.N.R. or north of the Terrace-Hazelton region. Years ago Lord Rhondda, British coal baron, became interested. For a while the situation looked like the approach of action on a major scale. But Rhondda died, and since then there were times when it almost seemed the Groundhog had also succumbed. Northern and Central British Columbia continue to challenge enterprise and endeavor as never before. Coal has always been in demand and always will. But so far as any reference to it is concerned, Groundhog might just as well not exist. Yet it's there and just as good as it was in 1910.

Just because a man bores from within, observes a student of the times, it does not follow he is a Communist. He may be Dad telling the family anecdotes they have heard ten thousand times before.

Edward Lipsett arrived in the city on the Camosun last evening from Vancouver. He is here for a few days on business.

C. H. Sawle who, accompanied by Mrs. Sawle, spent a few days in the city recently, expects to motor to Fort St. James, in the Stuart Lake country before long.

Mrs. J. Cross and two children, who have been visiting here with Mrs. Cross' parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Skattebol, will sail by the Camosun tomorrow afternoon on their return to Bella Bella.

Mrs. R. L. McIntosh is sailing tomorrow afternoon on the Camosun for Nanaimo where she will pay a visit with Mr.
and Mrs. C. V. Evtit, formerly of this city. In a few weeks they will be driving back to Prince Rupert together.

Sunday saw fine midsummer
weather and the idea of a change to out of town people, must have made its appeal to plenty for the streets were practically deserted most of the day.
There were numerous boats coming and going, and no lack of picnic parties and trips to the salt lakes.

MILLER BAY NURSE WEDS

An Australian nurse, who recently became a member of the staff of Miller Bay Hospital here,
was the bride of a Queen Charlotte man at a ceremony which took place a few days ago in Vancouver.

The ceremony was performed
in the chapel of St. Philip's
Church when Miss Betty Joan
Sheridan Plowman, eldest daughter of A. S. Plowman and the late Mrs. Plowman of Sydney,
Australia, was united to John
William (Jock) Campbell, only
son of Mr. and Mrs. William G.
Campbell of McBride. Rev. H. G.
Greig officiated.

The bride's frock was of Elizabeth blue with pink accessories and a corsage of white orchids. Her only attendant was Miss Leona Lockhart, R.N.,
also of Miller Bay. C. H. Larsen was groomsmen.

Later a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. H.
Larsen, 2875 McGill Street, where a toast to the bride was proposed by Glen Cowan.

The couple left for Calgary.

SPIRITUAL MATURITY

Seen By Presbyterian Pastor
As One of World's Needs

In crisis of war there had been some retention of social vision and spiritual insight but unfortunately, there appears to have been a regression in the post-war period but, nevertheless, there were signs of turning of the tide today, said Rev.
G. E. Sendall, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, in his morning sermon yesterday. He called for a more steadfast attitude in practice of the principles of right and advocated a more militant church. His subject "Maturity," Mr. Sendall felt that the tendency today was to stress physical and intellectual maturity instead of moral and spiritual maturity. He deplored a tendency to worship the god of Mammon. Why should countries of the world be starving while others had plenty and declined supply because of monetary considerations? Did the world have to have a depression to bring it to its senses?
Mr. Sendall saw one hopeful sign of changing attitude in the fact that the best-selling novels today were those with religious factors.

The ceremony was performed
in the chapel of St. Philip's
Church when Miss Betty Joan
Sheridan Plowman, eldest daughter of A. S. Plowman and the
late Mrs. Plowman of Sydney,
Australia, was united to John
William (Jock) Campbell, only
son of Mr. and Mrs. William G.
Campbell of McBride. Rev. H. G.
Greig officiated.

who is going to Montreal to take a church. The change will be effective the latter part of this month.

Lindsay and Morgan Stars of Baseball Fixture

Winning 5 to 3 over Commercial, Savoys maintained their league supremacy on Sunday in a game that starred Jack Lindsay and featured double plays, extra base hits and strike-outs.

Lindsay, for the day at least, demonstrated that he is out of his class in this league when he hit two triples and a double in four times at bat, in the meantime he was striking out no less than sixteen of the opposition hitters. He allowed only three hits.

However the Commercial made good use of their three hits in the third inning. McKinnon, who walked, scored on Guthrie's triple. Vanetta sacrificed Guthrie home. Then Cornwall singled and scored on Windle's triple.

That made three runs that kept the Commercial on the win side of the score column until the eighth when Savoys' power exploded. Two were out when the damage happened—fast. Pavlikis singled, Lindsay doubled and Morgan hit a long drive that bounced through the fence for a home run. All this on six pitched balls!

These three runs added to the two picked up in the first and fourth made the final score Savoy 5, Commercial 3.

Lindsay allowed the potential tying runs on base in the Commercial half of the inning when he hit Cornwall with a pitched ball and erred on Windle's hit, but struck out Ewart to end the threat.

Four double plays added sparkle to the game when the teams matched twin-kills in the first and seventh innings.

Sport Shots

The horrors of war are not as remote as they might seem. Friday night, for instance, Tarzan Potvin and Jack (The Cat) McLaughlin rendered each other excruciatingly before 400 paying guests in the first of the Civic Centre's summer series of wrestling bouts.

The jungle methods of Messrs. Potvin and McLaughlin had adaptations suitable to an atomic era at least as far as 390 pounds of bone and muscle will allow. Each of the principals weighed 195 pounds. While Potvin and McLaughlin were not being kept in separate cages enroute north on Friday's plane, they were very definitely disciplined by the stewardesses on two legs of the flight. At the first sign of a sneer, the girls gently admonished both McLaughlin and Potvin to look out the window and think of something pleasant instead of projecting hate at the opponent across the aisle.

Bobby Scharff, an experienced city fighter, met his Waterloo Friday night against Richard Morgan of Kitwanga. Scharff, who has shown good form in the past, and Joe Ward, who has been training him, found he was not the prime answer to the up-country threat.

Morgan has been cutting a swath of terror in the south. The 21-year-old lad has recently won fights at Port Alberni and Victoria and was in good shape to meet Scharff, who is said to be the best of Prince Rupert's younger fighters.

Other fighters in the preliminaries had completed a session of training which has resulted in a good list of talent to Friday night's car and augurs well for the future.

"Something to do with theft," said Constable Turner, who had not taken time to get all the facts. It was Constable Redhead's case.

The cruise had just begun again when a call came through to go to a beer parlor. There, they found the disturbance over. A waiter had just put out an Indian who had tried to take on a little refreshment.

A disturbance report from Coy Bay was telephoned to the police office and relayed to the van which was then at Seventh Street. The call was made by a man from a neighbor's home, just after the owner of the telephone had gone to bed. Interested he decided to get up and see what was doing. He got on the scene three minutes after the police.

The call did not amount to much. Merely a woman taking her husband to task—highly vocally—for drinking too much. The neighbor had believed someone was being killed.

A BIG HELP
The calls kept coming in—none of them particularly big, but all of them adding to enforcement of orderliness in the city and to the labors of those whose job it is to keep things in line. And in that way, the radio is turning out to be a big help.

Installed last week by Wilfred Conlan, Victoria, chief radio supervisor, B.C. Police, the frequency modulation set is of a type standard in all radio cars in the force. In the south, literally dozens of cars are connected to the same circuit. Indeed, it is not until a large number of cars are operating on such a circuit that the greatest relative efficiency is achieved. But the fact that at present it is only a two-way hook-up here does not mean that its installation has not been a forward step.

"If we had had that radio hook-up when the 'prowler' was around here a couple of years ago, we would have caught him in short order," Sgt. Potterton said. "It was poor communications that beat us on that."

As an investment in safety, its cost is not high. Cost of installation was borne by the city, but maintenance will be charged to the police force, so that under the present contract between the force and the city, at least, the community will not have to pay a great deal extra.

Said one bystander as he watched the police van pull up to a disturbance within minutes after it started: "Boy those fellows can sure get here in a hurry."

The answer lies in four small metal boxes, two in the police office and two in the van, in which science and technical skill have allied themselves on the side of law and order.

Cold Storage and Airport Visited

One of the most interesting and educational outings of the Fun Club took place on Friday when the members visited the cold storage plant at Seal Cove. All the operations of the plant were explained to the visitors who viewed the fish in every stage from the water's edge until glazed and stored. After the low inside temperatures of the plant, the warm outdoor air was appreciated. A hike around the airport terminated when the Vancouver plane arrived much to everyone's interest.

Whale Industry Falling Off—Salmon Pack Is Lower

The sale of whale oil in British Columbia may be seriously affected by the large surplus of vegetable oils in North America states Robert Walker of the British Columbia Packers Ltd. There has already been a large drop in the price of whale oil and, while it is not the intention to suspend whaling, the outlook at present is not encouraging. While there is still a good overseas market, the situation is complicated by dollar shortages.

Union steamer Camosun, Capt. John Boden, arrived in port at 8:30 last evening from Vancouver and waypoints, sailing at midnight for Port Simpson, Alice Arm and Stewart whence she will return here tomorrow morning to sail south at 1:30 p.m. The vessel had on board a good-sized list of passengers including a considerable number of tourists.

With eleven carloads of Alaska fish for transshipment East over Canadian National Railways, Alaska Steamship Co.'s refrigerator ship Palisana was in port the most of Saturday. The vessel arrived from the north at 8:20 a.m., sailing at 7:10 p.m. for Seattle.

Another week-end visitor in port was the hydrographic survey steamer William J. Stewart which came in for supplies from the Banks Island area, where she is at present operating. The vessel arrived late Saturday afternoon and sailed last night on her return to sea. In command of the Stewart is Capt. George Billard while the chief hydrographer is R. B. Young. The Stewart is carrying a personnel of about 68 at present including several young University students signed on for the summer.

Pacific coast salmon pack up to the week ending July 9 was 45,087 cases, the smallest for a comparable period since the 1946 season, according to the weekly production bulletin issued by Chief Supervisor of Fisheries A. J. Whitmore. More than half the pack to date—26,641 cases—was sockeye, of which 17,294 came from the Skeena and Naas districts. Coho pack for the period was 13,143 cases, while 2,084 cases of bluebacks, 1,313 cases of springs were also produced. Coho pack in the Skeena and Naas area was 6,357 cases. Total pack in the Skeena and Naas districts, all varieties included, was 25,887 cases.

Pictures of Bert Robson and Malcolm Woods appear in the current Canadian National Magazine. The caption in part, reads as follows: "S.S. HAPPY DAYS AT LAKELSE

Prince Rupert Girl Guides, accompanied by Mrs. R. I. Thompson and Miss H. L. Silversides, returned home from camp on last Thursday evening's train.

The eleven Rupert Guides joined with fifteen Terrace Guides to spend the past ten days camping at the Kinsmen's Kiddie Kamp at Lakelse. For the most part the weather was very warm, a fact which enabled the girls to enjoy activities on the camp site as well as farther afield such as hiking and boating. Although there were certain camp duties to be done, each day saw its quota of fun—a row across the lake and luncheon on the other side—a trip to the Fisheries traps and then a dip in Robert Gordon's refreshing hot baths—a walk to the hot springs, a dip in the mud baths and even a face pack—a masquerade and a weiner roast.

FIRST FLOOR PLAN

SECOND FLOOR PLAN

FAMILY HOUSE—This house is planned especially for a young family. The architect designed it with a second storey which, if completed, would provide two additional bedrooms and a washroom. There are two bedrooms on the first floor, a bathroom, and a kitchen adjacent to the dining space. The living-dining room is bright and airy with its large front window. The slight suggestion of a porch over the front entrance and window eliminates any like appearance. The area of the house for estimating purposes is 1,255 square feet.
