Not So Friendly

IN A FEATURED article on its waterfront page, which cannot by any means be said to be particularly friendly to Prince Rupert, the Vancouver Sun makes at least a couple of statements which might warrant some refuting.

The statement that "Rupert's maritime feelings for Vancouver today are not exactly on the brotherly love basis" may be dismissed without much comment for those who are in a position to know are aware that the interests of both ports who are working for the development of the coast and the province as a whole were never on more cordial and co-operative terms than they are today.

But the Sun's comment to which particular exception may be taken is the remark attributed to "Vancouver ship men" that nothing can be done about the matter of changing the international load line to bring Prince Rupert on equal terms with Vancouver "unless Prince Rupert can change the climate." Of course, the writer of the article does not know that the question of weather never did enter much into the load line situation, on this coast at least, and, if it did, Vancouver certainly would have no claim to favorable consideration.

The item may have been only meant to be facetious. Certainly it is not factual. It certainly was not friendly or necessary.

Fortunately, it is practically assured that amendment of the load line to bring Prince Rupert on the same terms as Vancouver will be made when the next convention is held in London this spring. It already has the blessing of the Department of Transport and the Canadian National Railways which the Vancouver Sun probably does not know.

IN THE SPOTLIGHT

I AD PRINCE RUPERT been called on to pay for the publicity received during the past few months, raising of the money would have been next to impossible. It was the kind of publicity where half a page or a specified number of inches or how many insertions did not matter. This was different. When something becomes controversial or is reproduced or debated or mailed away with a hit of salty comment, people are ant to look and listen a bit more intently. That is why this city up north is much more in the public eye these days.

Aluminum makes good hair curlers and hotel fronts. It is light. It is strong. It cannot rust.

This is why more than six hundred Canadian companies are making useful and beautiful things of this versatile metal.

Aluminum products range all the way from artificial limbs to railway cars, from muzzles for lobster's claws to bridges, from toys to aircraft. Aluminum is versatile because it is so light, so durable and so economical.

VERSATILE ... and UNIVERSAL

Every country in the world is today buying Canadian Aluminum produced at Arvida, Canada, home of the largest Aluminum smelter in the world. The "Alcan" ingot has become a major factor in world trade — and a valuable source of the foreign exchange which Canada needs to cover her own buying abroad.

under the terms of the National Housing Act, 1944. The kitchen fixtures are planned on the single wall or straight line basis, except for the position of the electric range which is at the rear of the kitchen. All the rooms have large windows providing adequate light and ventilation. The bathroom is on the first floor, a feature which is gaining popularity with Canadian home-owners. Complete privacy is afforded since access from the second-floor bedrooms to the bathroom is by means of the stair

First in a new series of popular Canadian house plans, this "N.H.A.

Design-of-the-Month" is a 11/2-storey type in which the functional planning has allowed for variation of use to suit individual requirements. Comprising five standard rooms and bathroom, the plan pro-

Financial assistance in building

The photograph illustrates one type of construction for this design, brick veneer walls with wood siding on the gable ends. The owner made one change from the standard plan, substituting a group of three windows in the front elevation for the two windows shown in the sketch. While this particular house is brick veneer, the working drawings are designed so that construction may be solid brick, block or wood frame with stucco, siding or shingle finish. This permits selection of an exterior finish to suit the individual. Depending on the type of finish, the exterior dimensions are approximately 26 feet by 26 feet. For estimating costs, the floor area may be considered to be 1170 square feet. Complete construction drawings for this plan, known as Design No. 5024, are available from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation
