United Nations Start "Final" Assault In Korea

General MacArthur's Last Drive to War to Close

General Douglas MacArthur, a new United Nations offensive launched in the frozen northwest Korea described as the final big push to defeat the Koreans and drive the Chinese Communists across their border. "If successful," said a MacArthur spokesman, "it should end the war and bring peace and unity to Korea." The offensive came after a prolonged lull and a day during which there were rumors of the possibility of a negotiated peace.

A 100,000-man United Nations army drove forward on a broad front today in the all-out offensive to end the Korean war before Christmas.

General MacArthur said that new Communist armies have joined an estimated 100,000 North Korean and Chinese Red troops.

MacArthur flew to the front to supervise the drive toward the Yalu River border of Manchuria. Later he flew over enemy lines and then returned to Tokyo.

The advance appeared to be meeting with little opposition so far on the 80-mile front with the United Nations forces thrusting steadily forward.

Meantime a United Nations pincer to the northeast also moved steadily forward.

The fate of 1000 United Nations prisoners, in the face of the new assault, is uncertain.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis
Temperatures rose above freezing this morning in all southern and western sections of the province as a strong flow of warm Pacific air swept across the province into southern Alberta. Cold Arctic air is continuing to pile up over the Yukon where the temperatures as low as fifty-seven below were reported this morning. This mass of cold air is moving southward along the east side of the Rockies and is expected to push into the Cariboo and Prince George areas tonight. The cold air is not expected to move further south than the Cariboo as another Pacific storm developing off the coast of California this morning should force the cold air back across the continental divide.

"JUNIOR CITIZENS" CAMPAIGN— High School Pupils Elect Mayor And Aldermen at Lively Contest

Emulating all the punch of a lively civic election, 411 Booth-Memorial Junior-Senior High School students voted for their mayor and "city council" yesterday. The election was preliminary to Future Citizens Day, sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

"Mayor" Gordon Graham, 17-year-old son of Inspector and Mrs. Graham, will head the eight student "aldermen" in running the city on "Junior Citizen's Day," December 12.

- Prince Rupert's new "city council" with votes received are:
- (Mayor) Gordon Graham, 155.
 - (Aldermen):
 - Victor Brain, 223
 - Nancy Hill, 200
 - Shari Ingalls, 218
 - Rena Ingram, 274
 - Ross Ingram, 214
 - Jerry Procter, 180
 - Margaret Strachan, 193
 - Leona Webster, 280.
- Other candidates and votes were:
- For mayor: Peter Harvey, 75; Luella MacDonald, 52; William Toderas, 86.
 - Gloria Irving, Ronald Fenes, Ron Krykvjill, Pat Littler, Marla Mark, Aivin McKay and Isabelle Taylor also ran for aldermen.

While ballots were being counted, President of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, Jeff Hill, and two members of the Jaycee executive, Syd Gonick and S. G. Furk, visited the returning office in the high school.

Inspector of Schools, G. Graham, described "Future Citizen Day" as "a novel idea as well as an interesting diversion. It gives the students an opportunity to see municipal government," the inspector said.

"We have just let the students go ahead themselves," said John Henry, a senior grade High School teacher who believed the "Citizen's Day" was a good experience for the students.

Counting ballots until six p.m. were the students' returning officers, Evelyn Smith and Janet Rackow, with the help of the appointed "city clerk," Iona Hardy.

"Without the help of Mrs. E. Farmer, our school secretary, nothing could have been done," said Miss Hardy modestly, discounting the work the students had done.

Vice-Principal R. H. Davidson said that the faculty had left the responsibility of the election with the student body.

"It is experience for them that is useful first of all because the students will have to write letters of application to the elected junior council and applying for jobs under the city council gives the students serious thoughts as to future work," explained Mr. Davidson.

"Citizen's Day also has a direct application to school work in that the public speaking they have to do will be used in the regular school curriculum," said the vice-principal.

"There was plenty of mud-slinging just like the adult campaigns," pointed out the "City Clerk," Iona Hardy, working at the ballot table, who explained that only the candidates for

Aorangi Subsidy Is Reconsidered

VANCOUVER — Hon. Lionel Chevier, minister of transport, said here that the federal government was reconsidering the subsidy to the Canadian-Australian liner Aorangi operating between here and Australia and New Zealand which was recently suspended.

The platforms of the four mayoralty candidates, including one girl, were as follows:

Gordon Graham, in his one-point campaign, addressed that he didn't believe promises would be kept. Instead he stressed that what the school needed was a representative who would honestly try to do his best for the wishes of the student body.

William Toderas called for a sidewalk to be constructed on Seventh Avenue side of Hays Cove Circle from Eighth Avenue to the bridge; city mail delivery; stricter traffic regulations with traffic lights and parking meter installations; establishing of Eleventh Avenue arterial highway; road improvements; sewage disposal; improvement of parks; support of low-rental housing and better tourist accommodation. Candidate Toderas felt that the Seventh Avenue traffic, which passes three schools, was so serious that the Eleventh Avenue arterial highway should be repaired.

Luella MacDonald said: "Council work isn't really more serious than looking after the home, but women should be able to take their place along side the men." "Never underestimate the power of women" was her campaign theme.

Peter Harvey would avoid sinking under silly details. He endorsed the city manager plan. Candidate Harvey told Candidate Toderas, who opposed the plan, that the high salary needed for the manager would be gained in city savings.

"The chief returning officer, Miss Hardy, said that there was a lack of response for candidates for council positions, many of the students wanting the more exciting positions of acting as "fire chief" or "radio announcer," instead of sitting in an aldermanic chair on "Citizen's Day."

One of the 15 candidates for aldermen, Rena Ingram, said that she believed the senior council was right with regard to tag days.

"The students should earn their money for the school activities by selling Christmas cards, having hot dog and coke stands or dances," said Candidate Ingram.

Another aldermanic candidate, Leona Webster, said that she agreed to run for elections because she wanted to know what aldermen do. Her views were that if things were taken one by one more progress would be made.

A junior high school voter, David Owens, thought William Toderas had good reasons concerning the coverage of sewers.

Railway Wreck Being Probed

Full Scale Investigation Of Long Island Disaster Ordered By Governor

NEW YORK — Governor Thomas Dewey last night ordered a full scale state investigation into the Long Island Railway train collision of Wednesday evening in which seventy-seven lives were lost.

Not only will the technical aspects of the collision itself be probed with a view to determining the exact cause and fixing the responsibility but the management will be investigated.

Governor Dewey said that preliminary evidence indicated a "human failure" was the cause of the Thanksgiving eve wreck. He showed that the express which said that a commission's findings plowed into the rear of a braked stalled train had passed through one warning signal and one stop signal at full speed between 60 and 65 miles per hour.

The acting mayor of New York City described the disaster as a "crime."

Services of some employees have been cancelled since the disaster. The railway is still paying damages arising out of loss of life, involving more than a score of deaths about a year ago.

It was proposed yesterday that all Long Island trains should cut their speed to 25 miles an hour, but this was deemed impracticable.

Naval Squadron Is Coming Home

HALIFAX — The special squadron of the Royal Canadian Navy that has been visiting in Europe will arrive back November 20. The vessels are the aircraft carrier Magnificent and destroyers Huron and Micmac. They will be in Bermuda Saturday.

Railwaymen Suspended

Pending Investigation Of Crash of Passenger and Trooper in Mountains Tuesday

EDMONTON — Pending investigation, two Canadian National Railway workers have been automatically suspended following the collision of trains at Canoe River in the Rocky Mountains on Tuesday morning, it was announced last night by a railway spokesman. Names were not disclosed. Twenty were killed in the crash of the Montreal train No. 2 and a troop train heading for Vancouver and Fort Lewis, Washington.

Bodies of three more soldiers were taken from the wreckage yesterday, leaving one still missing. The possibility of this one having not been on the train but absent without leave is now being considered.

Military services for two of the dead soldiers were held here yesterday. Bodies of the thirteen others are being sent to their home towns.

Police and transport department officials today were gathering evidence for a formal inquiry into the wreck while the search continued for the last of the twenty persons believed killed.

The inquiry will open December 11 in Edmonton.

Six of the wreck survivors, "dangerously ill" in Edmonton hospitals, are holding their own, officials said today.

Sioux Returning From Korea Soon

ESQUIMALT — H.M.C.S. destroyer Sioux, which has been on service in the Korean war, is returning to Esquimalt base in January and will be replaced by one of the destroyers from the East coast. The Athabaskan and Cayuga are to return from Korea in March.

Six Indians Are Burned to Death

FORT ST. JOHN, B.C. — Six Indians are known dead and one is missing and presumed dead after being trapped in late September bush and timber fires which swept over the northwest, officials concluded yesterday as they reported their investigations. The dead are members of two nomadic Indian families about 200 miles north of Fort St. John.

Officers of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, coroner and Indian superintendent went north to conduct the investigations.

Nervous Tension

CONTROLLED relaxation is suggested for housewives who find themselves snapping at their husbands for no apparent reason or rebelling under the strain of managing an unruly household, also for men who come home weary and irritable after the problems of the day.

A three-year research project into the problem of "nervous tension" conducted by a national fitness and sports information and coaching service in Toronto has come up with a solution to these problems. "Controlled relaxation is a simple thing to learn," it is said. "And many doctors now agree that it's one of the best ways to ease tension, the basic cause of nervous disorders."

Tension is what makes one irritable after a day's work. It keeps you awake at night, tired during the day and flustered when sudden crises arise.

A few simple exercises, it is suggested, will teach one the secret of controlled relaxation.

The basic problem is to recognize tension. This can be done by means of the "T and R" drill, or "tense and relax." It's done this way:

Lie down on a bed or the floor. Take each muscle group, such as neck, arm, thigh, foot, and deliberately tense it for a few moments. Then exhale with a deep sigh, relaxing completely. Study the way this feels for a few moments, then repeat five or six times. Then tense and relax the whole body at once half a dozen times.

After performing this drill two or three times a day for a few weeks, one should be able to recognize tension whenever it hits one during the day and take steps to control it.

The importance of learning to relax is underlined by statements of several leading doctors who have warned that the increasing pressure of modern life will create nervous disorders in every person in North America within 10 years unless steps are taken to combat it.

"OUR CENTURY"

"OUR CENTURY" (Romuald Bourque) is a book by a Canadian who challenges the right of government and bigots to interfere with the private lives of individuals.

Known to hundreds of thousands of Canadians who have heard him speak on his favorite themes—faith in Canada and tolerance—Romuald Bourque began his career as a newsboy. Today, a successful businessman, he is mayor of the prosperous city of Outremont. His success he attributes largely to his being a citizen of a nation enjoying its greatest period of expansion. Even greater, he claims, will be Canada's growth during the latter half of this century. Yet, he claims, "Canada today is not a great nation. It is a potentially great nation. It has the makings, but it has not yet even started the job."

"The Canada in which we believe," Mayor Bourque warns, "for which we have such dreams, is being captured by those who would impose upon this young virile nation a policy of hesitancy, ego and fear"

Writing in terms of personal experience, the author confesses: "I've been poor and hungry, and I've worked hard and long hours to get a few dollars to buy an overcoat to keep me warm. Nobody died and left me a fortune. I worked for my money, starting as a newsboy in Ottawa and going through a printing plant as an apprentice and, finally, as a printer. I didn't take my money and go to shows or baseball games. I had to put every penny of it to work and I had to work harder with every penny I earned."

Boldly, Mayor Bourque lashes out at such divisive elements as those who stir up race hatred in Canada and set English-speaking against French-speaking Canadians, Christian against Jew. Testifying to the effectiveness of the author's crusade, three clergymen—a Roman Catholic, a Protestant and a Jew—have contributed prefaces to "Our Century."

Himself a completely unhyphenated Canadian, Mayor Bourque has done much from the lecture program to interpret Jean Baptiste to John Jones. In "Our Century," he reminds the English-Canadian of goodwill that "when you're looking for this French-Canadian to rub shoulders with, remember you don't have to penetrate the heart of rural Quebec seeking a man whittling wood while his wife hooks a rug. You'll find him in the banks of Montreal, in engineering offices, in business, and in doctors' and dentists' offices. And you'll find him in politics."

A refreshingly courageous book, "Our Century" will hearten all Canadians who spurn the growing ambition of bureaucrat and fanatic to restrict freedom.

As I See It

By ELMORE PHILPOTT THUNDERBIRD PLAY

DUNCAN, B.C.—The first performance of the Cowichan Indians' musical drama, Tzinquaw, is all set to go.

Last night I saw a dress rehearsal of the legend-song-and dance combination. I feel sure that the play will become a landmark in the cultural comeback of the original North American people.

The premiere performance highlights the opening of the Cowichan High School, a truly superb building which is certainly as fine as any such structure in Canada. There are many presidents of ancient seats of learning in Europe, and America, who would turn almost green with envy could they see the layout here.

I WILL NOT TREAD ON THE private preserves of the music and drama writers for a size up of the technical merits of the play. But if I were running the publicity campaign for Tzinquaw I would certainly try to prepare the public for the particular kind of merit that this drama has.

It is very definitely NOT Hollywood style, nor is it in the tradition of the European opera. In fact, it seems to me a mistake to call it either good opera or an operetta.

More precisely, it is a good, authentic native North Indian musical drama, which has both the strength and weakness of that drama, according to our standards.

The theme of the play is excellent by any measure. The dancing by the male group is as good as the best. I sat through the rehearsal with Rhys Williams and his wife, Lucia. The latter has written movie scenarios not only in Hollywood but also in Mexico and Russia. She told me that the group dancing by the young men, using dried deer's hooves for anklet-produced sound effects is as good as the best in any country.

By professional western standards the rest of the performance is primitive. But if people know that in advance, and expect to see what this play is an authentic native art resurrection—they will surely not be disappointed.

THE STORY OF THE PLAY

The Killer Whale has ravaged the fishing grounds of the Cowichans. Their own best efforts fall to deal with the menace. They get help from friendly alliances and almost seem able to overcome their enemy—but without full success.

Then finally they listen to the advice of the Thinker and appeal to the Heavenly power, Thunderbird, for help. Thunderbird, or Tzinquaw, descends and destroys the Killer Whale, restoring peace and plenty to the people.

When I read the script of this play, a few months ago, I felt that the story was an elegy of the struggle between the White Man (Killer Whale) and the original American, miscast by us, the Indian.

But when I saw the drama I changed my mind. It is a much bigger (and less mean) story than that. It might be man's

SANTA IN TIME—Three-year-old Gary Turnbull of Winnipeg, suffering from cirrhosis of the liver, had his Christmas party Nov. 13 because doctors said he hadn't long to live. "Come back next year to see me," Gary shouted to Santa, who came along with a pile of gifts for a party arranged by a suburban East Kildonan service club. Two days later Gary died. (CP PHOTO) struggle against war itself. On the earthly level we see the struggle between the Boastful One and the Thinker. On the spiritual level we see the super-struggle between the powers of good and evil.

LONDON—After nearly two years British post office chess players have won a four-board correspondence match against Portugal. Now they're starting an eight-board match with Belgium.

TZINQUAW SEEMS TO ME A very creditable first edition of what can be made into a really excellent musical drama. It is another sign of the times that the Indian is making a "comeback" in so many different ways.

Ray Reflects and Reminisces

Canadian money at Camp Lewis is subject to five per cent discount. One realizes there is a Korean war on but let it be known at once there is prompt and generous compensation.

What is regarded as one of Canada's finest hotels was the scene of tragedy last weekend in Ottawa. A Toronto social leader and independently wealthy is charged with having bludgeoned her husband, an official of the Ontario government, with a whisky bottle. Marks on the bottle and her fingerprints matched.

How much, today, the world is or is not divided is largely speculative. But no one denies there is a Communism—millions who feel they are the "have-nots" and, therefore, victims of an economic and political grievance they never cease nursing. Right here is the danger in the Ottawa case where a life was lost. Communists will say that the affair represents riches and authority devoted to crime, squander and waste. It may seem an extreme statement but it's a weapon placed in Communism's hand.

News of the finding of two men in a snowbank near Houston first came over the air from Vancouver. They had perished from carbon monoxide fumes.

The radio described Houston as a place 600 miles north of Vancouver. It could have given a more accurate report by saying 300 miles east of Prince Rupert on the Canadian National Railway. But that would never do.

Suppose you can be reasonably certain of ice skating at Prince Rupert every six weeks in the run of a winter. The season could easily be longer. Then, brother, it's not breaking anybody to enlarge and improve annually. That way comes permanency, and the grin that goes with "Why didn't we think of it before?"

Founded in Lethbridge 45 years ago, a weekly has ceased publishing. And here is where we wager that in 1905 the betting was that in 1950 Lethbridge would have a population of around 75,000. As for the little weekly, it became a stately daily with most of the population esteemed subscribers.

LODE Bazaar Fine Affair

Bill Scuby's Fur Show Attractive Feature

Major feature of the fifteenth anniversary bazaar yesterday of Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire, was Bill Scuby's fur fashion show, a thrilling exposition of what the current season has to offer in the way of smart and practical fur attire. Six charming models—Mrs. Archie Wudel, Mrs. G. E. Moore, Mrs. R. A. Ritchie, Mrs. Duncan McRae, Mrs. Fred Hemsworth and Miss Lorraine Youngman—with sophisticated poise entered the wintry wooded setting of the stage to display stunning creations in the latest cuts and designs. Ramp and stairway were softly carpeted in blue.

Collars, neat and soft, sleeves with smartly designed cuffs, backs rippled and amply full went to demonstrate that this year's fur coats fill most adequately the demands of both style and practicality.

Mrs. L. M. Greene was a competent and discriminating commentator. Mrs. J. S. Black played piano music appropriate to the occasion and well cued. Wardrobe was in capable hands of Mrs. J. J. Little.

Interest centred in the raffle of a muskrat jacket which was won by Miss Barbara Teng.

There is no claimant yet of a door prize. No. 40 was the lucky number and the holder can claim a squirrel set neck piece.

The medals and the wardrobe items were as follows:

Mrs. Wudel—grey Russian squirrel coat.
Mrs. Moore—black Hudson seal coat, full length.
Mrs. Ritchie—muskrat back coat, dark Labrador shade.

Miss Faure Is 81 Years Old

Reaching 81 years old today, Miss Jeanne Faure, Prince Rupert landscape artist, will celebrate quietly at home. Relatives will bring their best wishes to birthday dinner at Mr. and Mrs. H. E. E. Faure's, 111 Eighth Avenue East, this evening.

"I have no patience with young people of 70 who think they are old," exclaimed Miss Faure on the eve of her birthday to her nephew's wife, Mrs. H. E. E. Faure.

The artist was born in Doesburg, Holland.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	Dbl.	All pass
		4S	5D

None of the books will tell you that the East hand should be opened with four spades. It's too strong. You may miss a slam. For example, if partner has as little as the ace of hearts and the king of diamonds there is at least a play for six-odd.

Now old Mr. Dale who held the East cards knows this as well as anyone. He also knew something about this hand that none of the books could ever know. He knew that Miss Lucy Brash sitting on his left, simply hates to be shut out of the bidding.

To Mr. Dale, the chance of his side making a slam didn't seem too good after his partner passed.

ed. He weighed this chance against the chance that Miss Brash would get out on a limb, and decided the latter possibility offered the better prospect for a big profit.

Miss Brash had a pretty good hand with a six-card suit. She wasn't going to be talked out of anything. No sir! She was right in there with a breezy five-diamond bid, found her partner with an ace and a queen—and still went down 500 points.

Mr. Masters opened the seven of spades which Mr. Dale won with the king of spades and Miss Brash ruffed low. She led the king of diamonds and Mr. Dale won and laid down the ace of spades.

Miss Brash trumped with the ten of diamonds and cashed the queen of diamonds. She then played the ace of clubs and another club. Mr. Masters winning with the king and Mr. Dale discarding the nine of hearts. Mr. Masters returned the deuce of hearts which was ducked in dummy and Mr. Dale won with the king. The jack of diamonds was good for the third undertrick and a very satisfying result indeed.

Mr. Dale did not point out that good defense would have defeated his four spade bid. That was nice of him. It was also practical. "Why educate your opponents?" I've often heard him say "They're hard enough to beat as it is."

that this may be the lucky week. They're not discouraged by people like Sir Alan Herbert, who as an independent member of parliament campaigned loud and long against pools. Said Sir Alan: "In pools, the promoter risks nothing at all except his overhead. He does not say he will give you 60-1; he says he may give you sixpence, six thousand pounds or six million pounds. It depends how many other mugs come in, and how much he takes out of the pool."

Religious associations campaign against pools on moral grounds and because the promoters' accounts are not audited. But the prospect of generous prize money, plus the average Briton's genuine interest in soccer, keeps the pools alive. The system is simple. Each week the promoters distribute lists of Saturday soccer matches, and the customer, using the symbols 1-2-X, for win, loss or draw, tries to forecast results.

Most popular forms are the "penny points," based on 14 forecasts requiring considerable clerical energy, and the "treble chance," calling for eight correctly presided draws. Those who participate hope to be as lucky as the record prize winner, 50-year-old Mrs. Evelyn Knowlson, who recently collected £104,990 ($314,970) or Burma veteran Thomas Wood, whose £94,335 cheque left him (he said) feeling cool as a cucumber.

The Mr. and Mrs. Moneybags who win aren't always happy. Disagreement over who should get the biggest share made bitter enemies of two married couples who had been neighbors and close friends. Others are hounded by hard-luck letters. One pool company warns winners that there are a lot of sharks and sharpers ready to help spend the money. But success is rare.

Elected Governor In First Attempt

By ARTHUR BYSTROM MADISON, Wis. (AP)—Seven years ago, while serving as a Naval intelligence officer in the Pacific, Walter J. Kohler, jr., decided that if he ever got back he would devote more time to public life.

In his first bid for public office, Republican Kohler was elected governor of Wisconsin. On Jan. 1 he will succeed Gov. Oscar Rennebohm, also a Republican, who did not run for re-election.

When Kohler is inaugurated he will be the second son of a former governor to take over the chief executive's post. His father, the late Walter J. Kohler, served as governor of Wisconsin in 1929-30.

The other father and son team was the late Robert M. La Follette and his son Philip.

Walter Kohler, sr., was beaten in two other tries for office after his election on his first bid. He lost to Phillip La Follette in 1930 and to the late Albert Schmiedeman, a Democrat, in 1932.

Young Kohler was born in Sheboygan, Wis., and graduated from Yale University before turning to work in the big Kohler Company at Kohler, Wis., a suburb of Sheboygan. The firm manufactures plumbing equipment and was founded by Kohler's grandfather.

He worked in various jobs at the Kohler plant before entering the service in 1942, coming out with the rank of Lieutenant Commander after active duty on an airplane carrier.

In 1947 Kohler left the Kohler firm to become president of the Vollrath Co., of Sheboygan, a firm that manufactures enamelled and steel kitchen utensils and hospital supplies. The firm was started by a brother of his grandmother.

Kohler has been married twice. His first wife was Celeste McVoy Holden. They were married in 1932 and divorced in 1946. They have two children. His second wife is Charlotte McAleer of Philadelphia. They were married in 1948. They have no children.

1752 Treaty Basis Of Natives' Appeal

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP)—An elderly Micmac Indian is appealing his conviction for hunting deer illegally on the basis of a 198-year-old treaty.

His wife, Mrs. Margaret Phillips, is using the case in an effort to champion the cause of Indian rights.

Sentence against Phillips was adjourned to allow clarification of the law.

Mrs. Phillips produced a copy of a treaty, signed by the governor, which says, in part: "It is agreed that the said tribe of Indians shall not be hindered from, but have free liberty of hunting and fishing as usual."

Tried To Halt Speeding Train

JASPER—William Tyndall of Blue River was falling a tree near the scene of the railway collision on Tuesday when he heard the whistling of two trains. Feeling there was something wrong he rushed from the woods, and tried to signal the Montreal train, but the engineer only smiled and waved back, probably thinking it was only a salutation. A few minutes later the crash occurred.

CHIROPRACTIC FOR HEALTH

CONSTIPATION

It has often been said that North Americans are the most constipated people on earth, and the millions of dollars worth of laxatives sold each year would seem to prove it.

Many cases of constipation are actually created by the habit of giving youngsters a daily or weekly laxative, for the reason that, since these laxatives cause the bowels to react independently, no demand is placed on the natural ability of the body to perform this function. The Colon becomes lazy and will not function unless forced to by artificial means.

In true constipation, the colon is incapable of moving the waste matter to the rectum, a condition which certainly must have a cause. The function of the colon is controlled by the nervous system, therefore it is obvious to the Chiropractor that these nerves must be totally or partially blocked, due to a vertebral misalignment. He locates the misalignment, corrects it, and restores the normal flow of impulses over the nerves. The colon, in most cases, has then no alternative but to perform its proper function, and normal bowel movements will follow.

British Columbia Teachers' Federation Official Pays Visit

Arriving by Canadian Pacific Air Lines yesterday, Stanley Evans, assistant general secretary of the British Columbia Teachers' Federation, spoke to members of the Prince Rupert District Teachers' Association at the Civic Centre last night. He reported on the federation's provincial activities.

Despite the publicity given to salary matters by the lower mainland press, one of the main objectives of the federation is higher academic qualifications and professional certification for its members, Mr. Evans said.

"With respect to under-certification," he maintained, "the situation in the Prince Rupert district is the worst in the province." This is regrettable, he said, in view of the increased number of graduates from teacher-training institutions and attendance at summer schools in recent years.

Mr. Evans stoutly defended the BCTF pension plan, declaring it to be superior to those of Alberta and Ontario. Although larger pensions are paid by those provinces on superannuation, the BCTF plan has the added advantage of disability pensions.

Mr. Evans left by Queen Charlotte Airlines this morning for Masset for a meeting with teachers there today and for a meeting with the Queen Charlotte Islands School Board at Port Clements on Saturday.

Silver Standard Mine Profitable

Handling ore averaging $92.21 per ton, Silver Standard Mines Ltd. in the third quarter of 1950 realized operating profit of $238,091.

This compared with operating profit for the preceding three months of $183,408 on ore grading $79.71 per ton. Ore mined was slightly higher at 7756 tons in the third quarter compared with 7460 tons in the second quarter. In the third quarter 2278 tons was sorted as waste so that recovery was won from 6478 tons. In the second quarter 2206 tons was eliminated by sorting, leaving 5254 tons for milling.

Gross value of production in the third quarter was $493,030 compared with $406,686 in the second quarter. Net returns to the company were $339,833 against $268,592. Operating profit before depreciation was $238,091, after $101,742 production costs before provision for writeoffs. In the second quarter operating profit of $183,408 was after $82,898 production cost.

In the third quarter approximately 55 per cent of the gross value was in lead, zinc and cadmium and the balance in silver with some gold. The gross price for silver for the period was 79.83 cents per ounce of which the net price to the company, after deductions, was 74.73 cents. For lead the gross price was 16.10 cents per pound and net to the company was 12.20 cents. For zinc the gross price for 17.71 cents per pound and net 10.98 cents. The gross price for cadmium was $2.45 per pound and net $1.40. For its gold content the company received $34.10 per ounce from gross price of $38.11. Cost per ton milled was $18.57 compared with $15.78 in the preceding period. Cost per ton mined was $13.12 against $11.11. Non-recurring items accounted in part for increased cost and increase in exploration and development was also a factor. R. W. Wilson, managing director, says also that broken ore reserves were increased by 3000 tons, bringing broken ore at September 30, 1950, to 7000 tons.
