Operation Sweetbriar

THE SWEETBRIAR military training exercise, in which a supposed invasion of Alaska from the Arctic was repulsed, has ended. Approximately 6,000 troops, Canadian and United States, took part. The Minister of Defence, and other officials from Ottawa, as well as dignitaries from Washington, witnessed part of the struggle. All, from the most obscure fighter to outstanding leaders feel that future Arctic warfare will need every bit of what has been learned. There is, yet, much more to be studied and mastered. Experiences along the Alaska Highway have been bitter. The Princess Patricia Canadian Light Infantry of Calgary never felt cold to equal what they experienced there. Some broke down with fatigue over the wheels of their cars. They coughed with nausea, after travelling three days and nights with almost a minimum of sleep and food. Arctic fighting calls for brawn, and nerves as hard as the mountain peaks which rear above the long, long Alaska highway. Snowmobiles were cold. "We had to press our hands and boots," writes a correspondent, "close to the small heater behind the driver's seat to get them warm. We used the heater later to warm pork and beans and hamburger." Dawn does not break, in the Arctic. It filters slowly across the mountains. The light unveils a terrain that is frightening in its desolation. The Canadian Army had a taste of what another way may be like and what they will have to take if it ever comes.

LESLIE ROBERTS WRITES

IN THE CURRENT issue of Saturday Evening Post the well-known Canadian writer, Leslie Roberts, who visited Prince Rupert for several days recently, turns the spotlight on the city of Montreal. In a feature article of the "Cities of America" series, the author discloses what he calls "the phenomenon of Canada's largest city." Montreal is described as "a community which stoutly refuses to fit into any accepted urban pattern," and has been called anything from "happy-go-lucky and sinful" to "disorganized and relaxed." In a further description of Montreal's so-called sin, Roberts claims that it is as dull as in most places in the British Isles, dispelling previous reports which called Montreal a wide-open town in respect to gambling, gin and girls. "Montreal is a marriage of North America's past and present," says Leslie Roberts. The essence of its charm is that it is an area in which the edifices of modern commerce, such as the Bank of Montreal building, look across the historic Place d'Armes into the ancient Notre Dame cathedral. Its many historic sites such as the Chateau de Ramezay and the Seminary of St. Sulpice, likewise are superimposed on modern office buildings. Montreal's ardent nationalism on the part of its French Canadian inhabitants is explained by the Post author as "unrealistic." "The French Canadians' urge to throw off Anglo-Canadian control has been parlayed into a political career by His Worship Mayor Camillien Houde, who envisages himself as the voice of French Canada and poses as the champion of French Canadian liberation, despite the lack of any real oppression." The Post article, which is the 80th of a series of articles on American cities, will be followed up subsequently, the publisher states, by similar articles on two additional Canadian cities, and later on Prince Rupert is to receive attention for it was to get first hand information that Mr. Roberts came here.

SATURDAY SERMON

A selection from the writings of Paul E. Scherer, chosen by Canon Prockter for a Lenten Theme

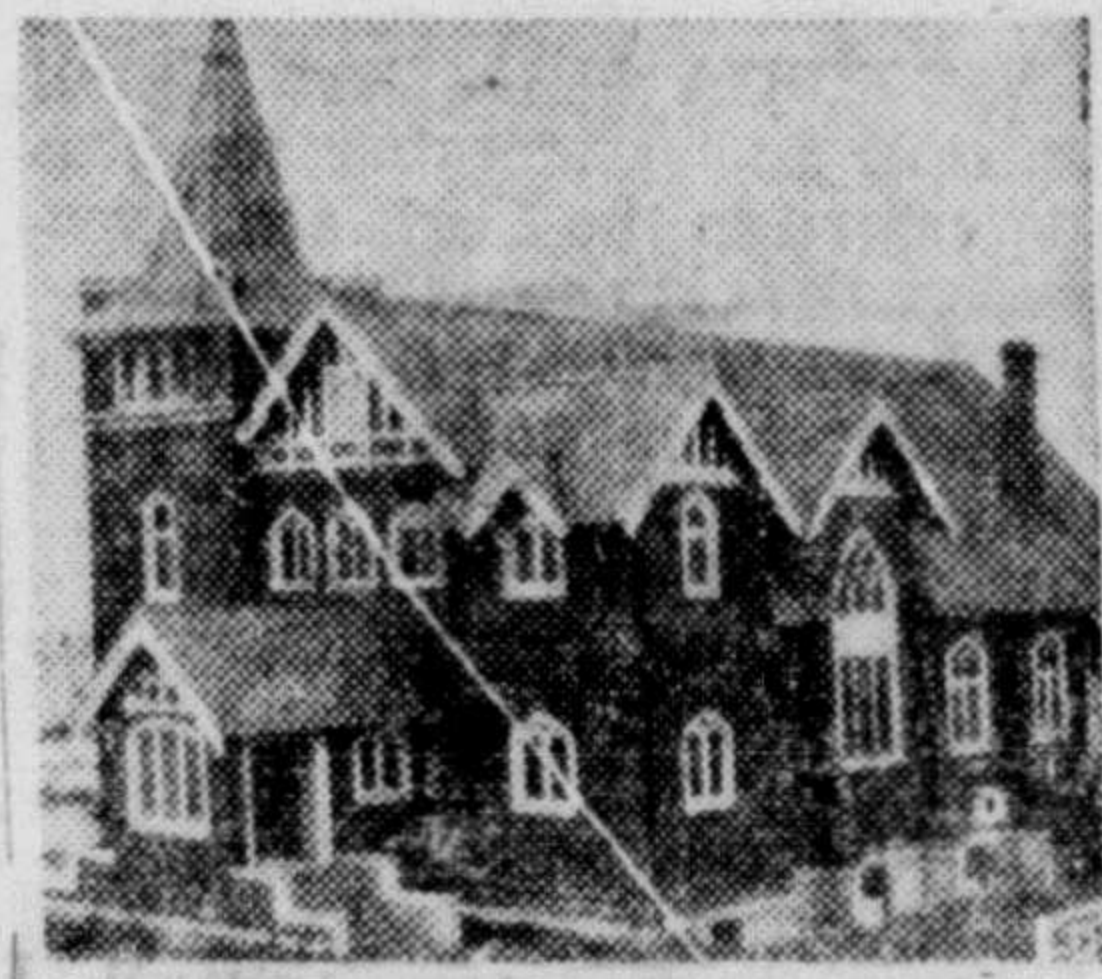

Hereunto Were Ye Called

Whatever else Christianity is for, it is not intended primarily to make life easier! I'm eternally afraid of that notion. I'm afraid of it because the first thing that occurs to us when we begin to talk about religion is how glorious it is to be assured of God's love. What light comes from Him to shine on the darkest path! What power is ours for the asking! And it's true. It's all true. It bolsters us up when we fail. Of course it does! It keeps us confident of our own worth under Heaven. It gives us courage when Death comes. But there's so much more than to sit in the sun and bask on that beach! More in life than this smoothing of fur, this padding of cells! More than this surplus of sugar coated plums that, some of us look for, straight from the pantries of the sky! We are tremendously surprised now and then when religion doesn't work out that way and there are those who are ready to chuck it out! But it doesn't. There's that other half of it we clean forgot. The half that's supposed to take hold of ugly situations, as God took hold of chaos, and made something of them. The creative half. And that's painful. Here is the second thing we need to say. It calls for some kind of suffering. You may have to give up something to build the Kingdom of God in your home or at the office. Really you do. Maybe pride. Maybe success. Something. It's not easy. You can't do it and avoid putting yourself out. This high and holy will that you're committed to isn't aiming at your peace of mind. That will be aiming at the redemption of human life, and the redemption of human life is a bitter job. Get in line with it and see. Go to Calvary and look around. And when your eyes are full of it, whisper this as Peter did: "Hereunto were ye called." In Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress" is the story of Mr. Pliable.

He starts out with Christian from the City of Destruction. You remember how Christian began to run and when his wife and children called him to come back, stuck his fingers in his ears and kept on running, crying out all the while: "Life, Life, Eternal Life!" We've got to be at least willing to leave what we love. Maybe you think it isn't a pretty picture. But neither is Christ's picture pretty. "If any man comes to me and hate not his father and mother and wife and children and brothers and sisters and his own life also, he cannot be my disciple." We've got to be willing at least! But the point is that Mr. Pliable, who left at the same time, ran out of his enthusiasm! He too headed at high speed for the Celestial City. But there was a swamp in the way, the Slough of Despond. And he got his feet wet. The mud made hard going. So he turned back. The City of Destruction was good enough for him after that. It was at least a place where you had every modern convenience. You see what the story

ABRAHAM—A pictorial study by Guy Rowe, illustrator of the new book "In Our Image" by Houston Harte, a series of stories from the Bible. "And the Lord appeared to Abram, and said unto him, I am the Almighty God; walk before me, and be thou perfect. And I will make my covenant between me and thee, and will multiply thee exceedingly. Neither shall thy name any more be called Abram, but thy name shall be Abraham; for a father of many nations have I made thee."

means. It means that if ever you and I do take out that way after this quality of life called Eternal we'll find things getting harder before they ever will be better! It's the will of God—first. With the sweat of Creation on it. And the Blood of the Cross on it. Then God's peace. That's religion. It's a storm in a golden frame!

100 Women At Day of Prayer

There was a record attendance of 100 women at the World Day of Prayer Service at Salvation Army Citadel Friday afternoon. The order of service observed both here and elsewhere had been especially prepared by the founder of a Christian Girl's School in Japan who is herself a Japanese Christian.

The theme was "Faith For Our Time" and the hymns sung, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," "Fight the Good Fight" and "The Day Thou Gavest".

The text of Mrs. G. R. S. Blackaby's address was "Thou Will Keep Him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on Thee". Emphasis was on the evangelising of children and upon the general theme of prayer.

A solo song by Mrs. Anfield was entitled "The Silent Voice" by Carlo Roma. She was accompanied by Mrs. W. D. Smith who was pianist for all the music at the service.

The leader was Mrs. W. C. Poulton and she was assisted in the saying of the prayers by women representing all the churches of the city.

Moose Committee Has Card Party

Women of the Moose membership committee met at the home of Mrs. J. H. Jefferies, Fourth Avenue East, and, after a business session, cards were enjoyed. The prize-winners were Mrs. R. B. Skinner and Mrs. M. Hadland. Those present were Mrs. Harold Muncey, senior regent, Mrs. H. Twred, Mrs. Bert Bellamy, Mrs. R. B. Skinner, Mrs. M. Hadland, Mrs. C. H. Immigrants Learn Fast

Language Consultant Says Teaching System Uniform

WINNIPEG, Ont. — Teaching English to immigrants is anything but a routine business. "Sometimes you can hardly keep up with them," says Florence Gaynor of Ottawa.

Miss Gaynor was in Winnipeg recently to pass on the latest methods of instruction to teachers who are leading 1,100 immigrants through the mazes of the English language.

She is a member of the Canadian Citizenship Council and is a consultant on immigrant education to the federal government.

Her services are made available to any department of education or any volunteer organization providing instruction for immigrants.

One of the Citizenship Council's most important achievements to date has been a considerable amount of uniformity in teaching methods across the Dominion, Miss Gaynor says.

"An immigrant can start his classes in Halifax, then be moved to Winnipeg and carry them on there with practically no disruption," she said.

One set of textbooks is used almost exclusively across Canada, developed from a series that originated in Massachusetts.

"Because most of the immigrants are adults, not children, and have had a wide variety of experiences, we find the discussion method of teaching most effective," she said.

One of the teacher's main difficulties is remembering to restrict her own teaching vocabulary to words and sentences the class has learned previously.

A two-year scheme for immigrant education has been worked out by the council and accepted by most Canadian provinces. It calls for one year of language study and one year of citizenship training.

The consultant's own experience with teaching English was with Mennonite colonies in southwestern Saskatchewan. She is on leave to the Citizenship Council from the adult education department of Saskatchewan.

Hitler Would Have Blown Up Vatican

MUNICH—Adolph Hitler ordered the Vatican to be bombed when Italy surrendered in 1943. Dr. Rudolph Rahn, last ambassador to Italy, told a tribunal here. He said the order was not carried out because he flew to Berlin and talked Nazi leaders out of it. Hitler, he said, had called the Vatican "a nesting place for Allied spies. In the winter of 1944 Hitler again ordered the Vatican destroyed but the plan was once more foiled.

Modern Etiquette

Q. If a wedding is to be a very quiet home affair and only members of the immediate families attend. Would it be proper to send wedding announcements. A. Yes. Announcements are proper, regardless of how simple and quiet the wedding may be. Announcements, of course, do not carry a gift obligation.

Q. When serving beverages at a table, should they be served from the left side or the right side of a guest?

A. Beverages should be served at the right, all other dishes at the left.

Q. May a christening be held at home?

A. Yes, unless your church rules require it to be held in a sacred edifice.

THIS PEKE SPEAKS

Veterinary surgeons are baffled by this two-toned pekinese, "Blackie Boy," whose speech faculty is the talk of the village of Ceres, Scotland. Witnesses and at least one veterinary attest to Blackie's gift of gab. His vocabulary, they say, includes such words as "hello," "yum yum" for sugar, and "no, no, no" when visitors to the Beattie home start to leave. The dog is owned by David Beattie, who says Blackie is also very obliging on the telephone. Once, at a dog show, Blackie "acknowledged" orally a greeting from one of the judges, which caused a woman exhibitor to keel over in a dead faint.

Billiards In Third Round

The English billiards handicap tournament at the Canadian Legion has progressed well into the third round and it has to be completed during the first week in March.

Closest game played in the tournament was that in the second between Bert Morgan, runner up in the first handicap tournament, who with a handicap of 10 points, played J. Nicoll (-5) and won by a single point 150-149.

In the third round J. Campbell (-30) playing Alan Marshall (plus 25) won easily in spite of his heavy handicap, with a score of 150-109.

P. J. Petersen (plus 35) had a tight game with W. H. (Mike) Fudger (plus 25), winning out with a score of 150 to 139.

J. Brenner, playing Vic Duncan on even terms, (both with a handicap of 30 points) and R. Murray also playing his opponent, G. J. Davies on even terms, (both receiving 15 points) won easily with scores of 150 to 95 and 150 to 102 respectively.

One game in the first round, Moran vs Comadina, still remains to be played, and will have to take place this week-end or be forfeited, as it is holding up play in the tournament.

Interesting Art Meeting

This week the Art club had what they considered a very successful evening. The model, whose identity Miss Faure was keeping secret, turned out to be Miss Faure herself dressed in the costume of a Dutch farmer's wife. Wearing bright colors and a large apron, she sat bending over some potatoes she was peeling, her wooden shoes resting on a footstool and her Dutch cap concealing most of her face.

Most of the pupils drew her from a side view which was easiest, several using pastels mixed with charcoal to make an effective drawing.

After a time the model retired and drawings on display were discussed including Jimmy Baldwin's effective pots and pans. Mrs. Green's views of the harbor in oils, European studies by Mr. Baltz, as well as many local views and still life studies by various members.

There followed a very interesting talk on prehistoric art by Miss Faure. It included a vivid description of a trip through the caves in Europe where the prehistoric man lived and where the drawings are found, the materials, colors and implements used by them and illustrated by Miss Faure's excellent sketches of their tools and drawings of animals that lived in those times.

Canvassing For Red Cross Soon

With the commencement of the annual Red Cross campaign for funds next week, canvassers will start their house-to-house calls as well as their solicitation at offices and places of business.

Campaign Manager Stan Saville has assigned canvassers to date as follows:

Business Section—George Cook, Alf Worthington, E. D. Forward.

The program for the March meeting was arranged. This will include a competition in the setting up of still life subjects. One will be arranged by Mrs. G. D. Mead, another by Mrs. N. E. Arnold and Mrs. Basil Prockter, and one by Mrs. Green and Mrs. Harvey. Members will draw whichever one they prefer. After the drawing period Miss Faure will give a talk on different types of architecture.

What pleased the Art Club members at the last gathering was the fact that six people began to draw who had never tried it before, while next time at least as many more who watched the others are coming prepared to try to draw.

Tea was served by Mrs. Priest and Mrs. Nelson, after which everyone gathered their pictures off the walls, and their Dutch woman drawing done that night, and took them proudly home.

M. H. Wightman and R. A. Morley.
Fraser Street—Mrs. M. Spring, Westview—Mrs. Carlo Hansen, Mrs. S. J. Anderson and Mrs. H. J. Marchant.
Canadian National Railways—internal canvass.
Canvassers to other areas will be assigned later.

Mission Boat Port Visitor

Visitor in port is the United Church mission boat Thomas Crosby with Rev. A. R. H. McColl, missionary in charge, and Engineer John Moore, brought in yesterday after one of its periodical cruises along the coast from its base at Ocean Falls, calls having been made on the way at Kitimaat, Hartley Bay and other points. The Northern Cross will be returning at the first of the week. Tomorrow morning Mr. McColl will officiate in First United Church here at the baptism of the infant daughter of the pastor of the church, Rev. L. G. Sieber, and Mrs. Sieber, who will be named Margaret Ruth. In the evening Mr. Sieber will be the preacher in First United.

Herring Fishing Ends—Yacht Club Annual—Vandalism and Thievery
Herring seining in the central and northern sub-districts ceased in the middle of the week as quotas of 40,000 tons were reached. In the central sub-district, all seining operations stopped at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday while in the northern sub-district, operations halted at 7:10 a.m. Thursday. This season has seen many difficulties. First, inclement weather forced seiners, packers to return to ports. This was during the extreme cold spell. Shortly after, power curtailment was enforced and city herring buyers here were forced to pass up tons of the fish because of the lack of power. It is believed Port Edward was the heaviest loser.

Last week, due to the power curtailment, the quota in the northern sub-district was extended from 30,000 to 40,000 tons. This brought a ray of light into the life of the herring fisherman and buyers alike. Nelson Brothers reported yesterday that total tonnage of herring brought in to their plant during the week amounted to between 600 and 700 tons. About ten boats tied up at the dock, including eight seiners. The Prince Rupert Fishermen's Co-operative, since the season began, have taken for bait, 360 tons in nine trips. The last vessel with a load of the tiny fish, arrived Thursday of last week with 40 tons. It was Capt. Tommy Dalzell's "Azurite".

Northern Fishermen's Co-operative reported yesterday, total tonnage brought in was approximately 250 tons, while Canadian Fish and Cold Storage, in eleven boat loads, took in 460 tons to date.

During the week, approximately 6,000 tons of herring was seined in the central sub-district while in the northern sub-district, seiners netted about 3,500 tons. Eight seiners operated in the northern and 12 in the southern sub-districts.

New president of the Prince Rupert Rowing and Yacht Club is T. H. Wilford, succeeding A. P. "Tony" Crawley as a result of elections held at an annual meeting of the organization in the Civic Centre early in the week.

Other elections were: Vice-president—W. J. Scott, Secretary—Dr. R. G. Large, Directors—Dr. A. W. Large, W. A. McBroon, A. Bruce Brown, A. F. Crawley.

Necessary repairs to the floats were discussed. A few of the vessels have been repaired through the winter months but severe weather conditions have hampered the repairing of others.

Motorship Sidney, Capt. O. Hendricksen, arrived in port Friday with three enloads of frozen halibut for transit by rail to U.S. points. The vessel returned the same day to Kelchikan.

With a rather light list of passengers but considerable freight cargo, Union steamer Chilcotin, Capt. Harry McLean, arrived in port at 1:15 yesterday afternoon from Vancouver, Westview, Namu and Buteedale, sailing at 11 p.m. for south Queen Charlotte Island points—whence she will return here tomorrow afternoon to sail at 11 p.m. on her return south.

VANDALISM
An act of vandalism or sabotage which might easily endanger lives, to say nothing of property, is reported by N. A. Beketov district marine agent. Department of Transport, who is appealing to law-abiding citizens who might co-operate in apprehending the perpetrator. The department, Mr. Beketov explains, maintains a lighted beacon in-ever remembered in Lynn Canal was experienced by Captain G. O. Hughes, skipper of the C.P.R. ss. Princess Norah recently, when he was obliged to turn back to Juneau after having passed Sentinel Island on the way to Skagway. Weather was bitter cold, ice kept freezing thicker and the gale was something tough to try and face. "I've seen it pretty strong in Lynn Canal," remarked Capt. Hughes, "but nothing like that one. There were times it was necessary to reduce speed. When speed was cut, hardly any headway was made. During the height of the storm, the heavy seas threatened a deckload of automobiles and trucks. Nothing, however was lost. Another danger was the rapid forming of ice. It froze six inches but, as soon as it was possible, the seaman started chopping it free from the rigging and decks.

The Department of the Interior will focus study and research of the pink salmon industry of Southeastern Alaska next summer. After this is sufficiently advanced another species, using the same concentration technique, will be taken up. Two new field operations are planned in the pink salmon exploration. One is a large scale tagging program in the ocean fishery and a course of marking salmon by clipping their fins as they come down the streams.

Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Barclay, who have been on a trip to England, returned to the city by yesterday afternoon's plane.

Ray Reflects and Reminisces

Since 1914, the British Isles have stood off the Kaiser and the Nazis, bombs, brick-bats and what have you secret weapons and poison gas, queue and flu, monotonous rations and wide variety of scarcities including money. If the people over there do not know what they want, by this time, speaking politically, they never will.

The Seattle Post-Intelligencer takes a rap at what it calls "another instance of unwarranted and stupid officiousness by armed service brass" in the loss of the B-36. It's like that sometimes. Newspapers and news agencies which try to get the facts from the higher up feel a chilly air.

Prince Rupert felt a live concern in the British election, inquiries coming over the telephone Thursday even before polling commenced. By early evening indications were showing Labor with a substantial lead, and this grew stronger with the passing hours. Yet even so early in the counting of millions, it was easy to sense that this time, Mr. Bull was again very much in earnest, no matter how it went.

George Washington's birthday anniversary was observed this week. The occasion reminds one of the visitors to a mental hospital, who asked an inmate his name.

"George Washington"
"But the last time I was here you were Abraham Lincoln."
"That," said the man sadly "was by my first wife."

Churchill, in a campaign speech, said he was seventy-five, and suggested that was getting along to be active in politics. Yet, Gladstone was eighty, and going strong as a public man.

There will be daylight saving time again this summer, in British Columbia, from April to September. It must be admitted most of the people live in Vancouver, but it does not follow most of them think anywhere near alike. If they did they would probably object what is going into effect within another month.

On Inspection

Bring back again the happy days Of Caesar, Brutus, Hector, They bought and sold, they lived and died With never an Inspector.

In cave-man days, to get a wife Upon the bean you cracked her They dragged her home but now adays Both see an Inspector.

In Eden's Garden, Mother Eve With a few leaves by-jected her The fruit they ate, would now await Till passed by an Inspector.

In other days, out in the park We loved our girl and necked her Today you try it in your car And quick comes an Inspector.

We send our little girl to school To teach her and correct her, But all the day it seems that they Examine and inspect her.

They fix her eyes, her teeth, her nose, Until they've almost wrecked her, You'd be surprised the things that she Must show to some Inspector.

The little hen once laid the eggs And Nature did expect her, But, now each step upon nest to nest Is checked by an Inspector.

Her coop, her rooster, everything With which they can connect Her

The farmer, dealer, grocer, all are bossed by some Inspector.

The cow must not give up her milk For beef you can't dissect her

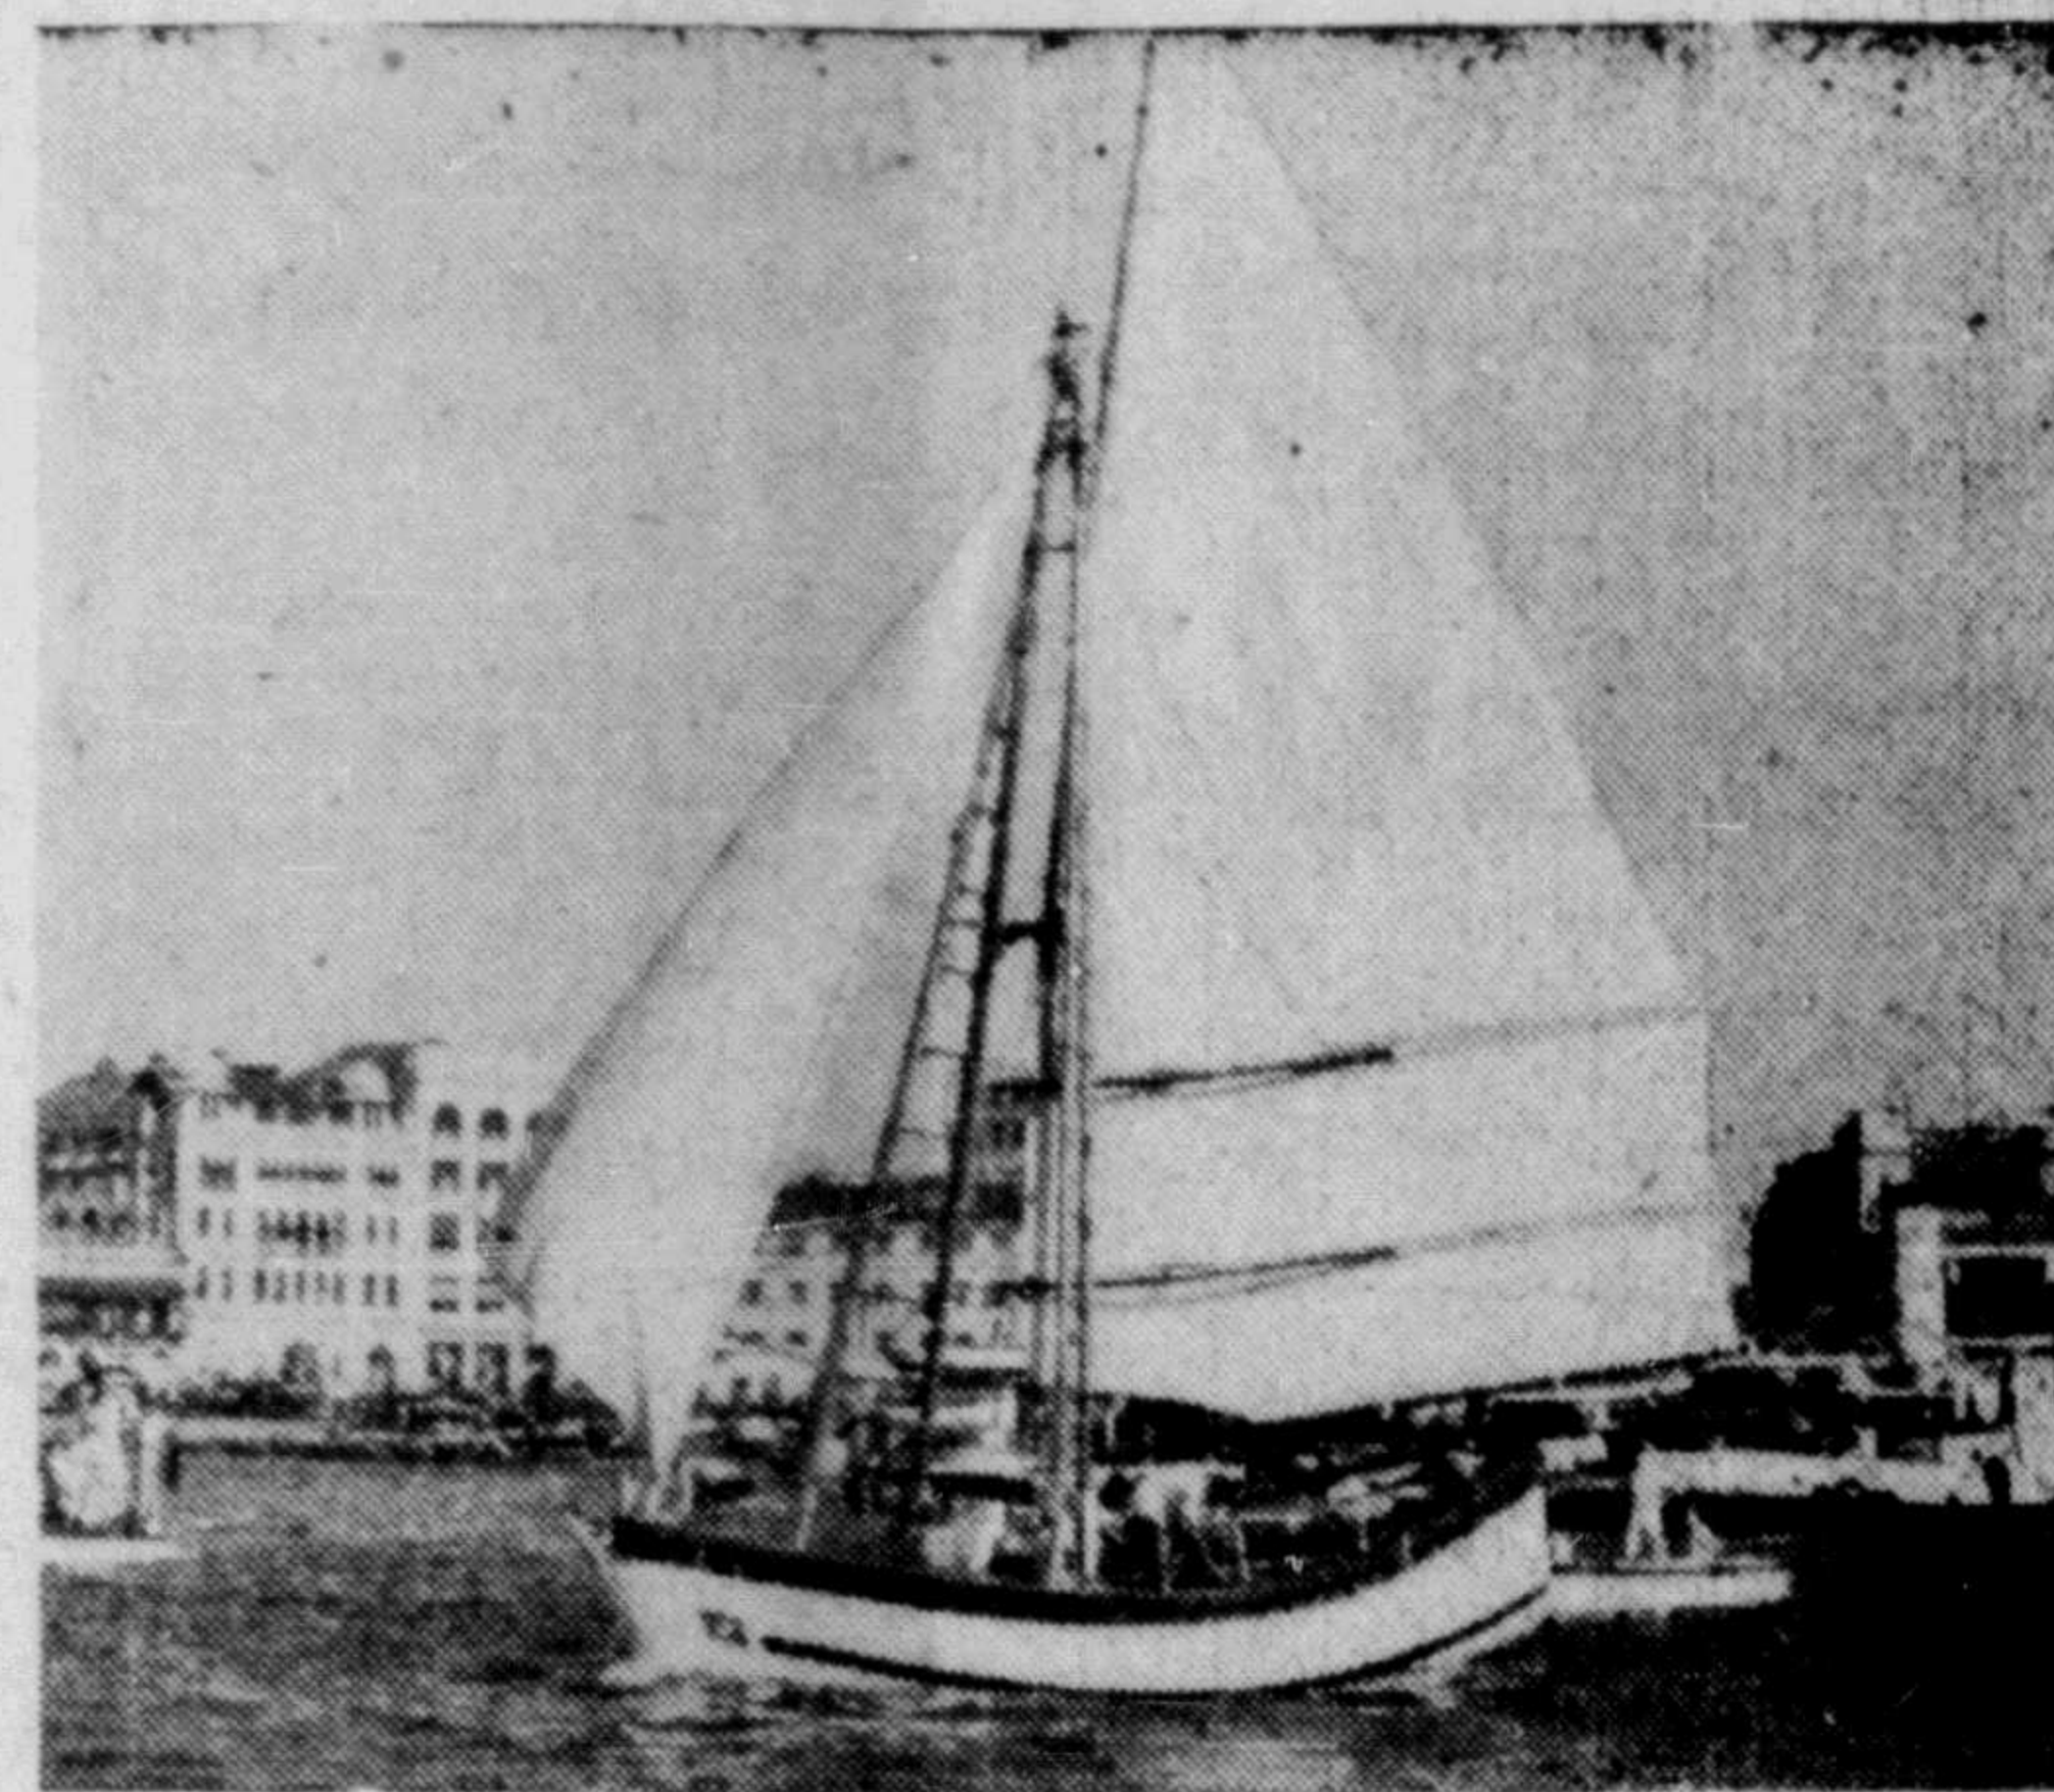

She is lovely Iona Hardy of Eleven I who received a wrist watch from George Cook, who, in presenting the watch, congratulated the winner in her victory. He indicated his willingness to make a similar presentation next year. Other Queen contestants were Joyce Farrington, Clara Varfeldt, Madeline Youngman, Lenora Faught and Gerd Lien.

The old plow mare didn't care The flies and mosquitoes packed her She knew the furrows would be straight The plow was an Inspector.

When all is ended and old Nick Has got each malefactor We hone in each hot spot in Hell There sizzles an Inspector.

Stewart Mines Are Shipping

STEWART — In the mining game the Silbak Premier is continuing to get out a good grade of ore and is now shipping regularly. At Phillips continues to report that the high grade is still holding up at his property on Tide Lake. The last shipment he made was shipped in a box about two feet square and he expects to net about three thousand from it.

AT START OF 15,000-MILE VOYAGE—Four British navy men and a Chinese cook "are sailing to England from Singapore in this strange, hybrid craft described as a "dhowjunk." The ship is the "Boleh" (which means "can do" in Malay) and is registered as a 10-tonner, 40 feet overall with a nine-horsepower auxiliary engine.

Iona Hardy Is School Queen

High School Formal Draws Many to Naval Drill Hall

Last night at the Naval Drill hall a crowd of formally attired teen-agers paid belated respect to St. Valentine at the twice-postponed High School dance.

In the course of the evening the winner of the Bo-Me-Hi Queen contest was announced. She is lovely Iona Hardy of Eleven I who received a wrist watch from George Cook, who, in presenting the watch, congratulated the winner in her victory. He indicated his willingness to make a similar presentation next year. Other Queen contestants were Joyce Farrington, Clara Varfeldt, Madeline Youngman, Lenora Faught and Gerd Lien.

Combining benevolence with pleasure, the Senior Council conducted the raffling of a beautiful leatherwork photograph album. Proceeds will go to the young tuberculosis patient who made the prize. The winner, picked by Miss Hardy, was Mrs. A. Bendiksen, 642—8th East.

Refreshments, which were prepared by the school Home Economics classes, were served on small tables scattered about the attractively decorated hall. Clara Varfeldt was in charge of refreshments. Janet Rakow and Gerry Proक्टर were in charge of decorating and program, with Arnold Olson officiating at the door. Music was by Mrs. Nora Thompson on the piano.

"Look For The Silver Lining," technicolor musical picturization of the career of Marilyn Miller, one of Broadway's greatest stars, is the week-end feature at the Capitol Theatre and it's a colorful and tuneful show.

Starring June Haver in the Miller role, the film also includes a Broadway dancing star, Ray Bolger, who portrays Jack Donaghy, Marilyn's dancing partner in "Sunny" and another of the greatest musical comedy stars of the period 20 to 25 years ago. The story tells of Marilyn's arrival at an early age to join her parents and sisters who are on the vaudeville circuit. She becomes the fifth member of a team and it is not long before she is starring in a Broadway musical comedy. From that point on, singing and dancing to the music of the great composers, Irving Berlin, Sigmund Romberg, George Gerswin and Vincent Youmans, Marilyn Miller's starring hits sound like a reprise of the greatest, "Sally," "Sunny," "Smiles," "As Thousands Cheer" and others—productions by the great impresarios. June Haver closely resembles the famous star in the star role.
