Berlin City Hall Is Seized By Communists

Recruiting In Britain

LONDON (CP)—Great Britain, faced with a post-war recruiting slump in an uncertain peace era, is launching a campaign this autumn to strengthen her defences.

Under the slogan "Spare Time for Britain," the public will, in the next few months come under a barrage of recruiting speeches, posters, advertisements and films.

The main purpose will be to raise a volunteer element of the Territorial (Reserve) Army to 150,000 by next Spring. This will mean trebling the present strength.

ANTI-AIRCRAFT PRACTICE—Part of the reservist's sea-training includes operation and firing of anti-aircraft guns and small weapons carried on board escort ships of the R.C.N. Each member of the training group gets an opportunity to use all these weapons and tests his accuracy on signal rockets in flight and on surface objects. Shown above is a naval reserve man seated in the cockpit of a twin-Oerlikon mounting, while one of the ship's officers lends advice and a helping hand.

Protest Made by Western Powers Following Riots

Russian Police Arrest Constabulary of British As Situation Deteriorates In German Capital

LONDON (CP)—A British diplomatic source said today that the western powers are planning a joint protest to Russia over continuing Communist-led riots in Berlin following yesterday's storming of the City Hall by Communists during a session of the city assembly which was broken up. The protest is inquiring why it is impossible for Russia to maintain order in its own occupation zone.

The protest may go to either Marshal Vassily D. Sokolovsky, Russia's military governor in Germany, or to the Soviet government in Moscow.

The military commands of the western powers held a special meeting to consider yesterday's riots in which Russian zone German police arrested western German zonal policemen in the City Hall after the Communists took over the building.

A diplomatic source said the Communist-inspired riots appeared to be "part of general Russian strategy to force the western powers out of Berlin."

The city assembly surrendered the City Hall to rioters and left the Soviet sector, seeking safety in the British sector.

Berlin reports said today that a heavy cordon of Russian-backed German police, sprinkled with Soviet military police, has isolated the City Hall. Twenty-seven western Berlin police were hidden in the Hall early today after Soviet sector police last night invaded the American office and dragged off nineteen western German police in handcuffs and chains.

It was reported today that Russia was planning special air manoeuvres over Berlin which, it was assumed, might be directed against the Allied air lift.

Canada at the Moral Crossroads

Better Way of Life Is Needed

COMMISSIONER BAUGH OF SALVATION ARMY MAKES STRONG PLEA HERE—BRIG. J. T. GILLINGHAM FAREWELLED

There is no room for complacency or cheap optimism as moral and religious conditions in Canada today are considered, it was suggested by Commissioner Charles Baugh, territorial commander of the Salvation Army for Canada, Newfoundland and Bermuda, in addressing a public meeting at the local Citadel Sunday afternoon in the course of the annual divisional congress here which was in progress during the week-end.

Laborites Back CCF

British Columbia Federation Gives Support in Provincial Election

VANCOUVER, (CP)—The British Columbia Federation of Labor will support the C.C.F. in the next provincial election, it was decided at the annual convention here. Support for the C.C.F. came after the Federation adopted resolutions criticizing the British Columbia government's labor code.

The convention, held during the holiday week-end, instructed incoming officers to call a conference for political action of all labor to support the C.C.F. by financial, moral and all other resources.

Dealing with the labor situation, a resolution was passed warning that British Columbia is now faced with grave and dangerous unrest in labor and that government action is tending to make unions state-controlled organizations.

In the election of officers, reported communist control of the Federation was broken with the unseating of three top executives.

The only senior officebearer to be returned was President Daniel O'Brien who won with a 68 to 64 majority over Dan Radford, C.C.L. organizer.

Harold Pritchett, prominent member of the Labor-Progressive Party, was defeated by one vote for secretary-treasurer, a post he had held for the past five years. He was, however, re-elected a member of the executive council.

To Consider Union Revolt

OTTAWA, (CP)—President Percy Bengough of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada has summoned the Congress executive to meet here September 10 to deal with the revolt of some Congress union officers over the T.L.C.'s policy toward union communism.

Bengough said the executive would be called to decide "whether disciplinary action of some kind is now required to protect the Congress from autocratic methods."

It is understood that Bengough had particular reference to the action of Frank Hall, railway union chief, in prompting this week's merger of the Seafarers' International Union (A.F. of L.) and J. A. (Pat) Sullivan's Canadian Lake Seamen's Union.

Bengough said that Hall and his associates had deviated from Congress policy and suggested the possibility of disciplinary action.

The Commissioner presented a report of progress on the Army which had been founded 83 years ago in England when hanging over the land was a great pall of neglect and ignorance beneath which poverty, vice, drunkenness and crime brewed and festered. Incidental to a burst of industrial reform and religious revival in England was the birth of the Salvation Army with its salutary effects. Now the Army was working in more countries and colonies than the 83 years of its life. It was 66 years since the "peaceful invasion" of Canada by the Salvation Army. bowled knees to Baal than to Jesus of the Sermon on the Mount. Progress in social awareness and social service there was, but was not the country accepting the gifts of the Lord and rejecting the Giver?

Commissioner Baugh, whose subject was "Canada at the Crossroads," saw two roads ahead—one that might lead to economic prosperity, influence among the nations of the world with the good life although none could guarantee that the road would actually lead to those things; the other narrower, less attractive and less popular road, the path of Christian faith and duty, which he held was the more likely to lead to those things worth having in this world and the next. It was for the people of Canada to choose which road they would follow. God had mourned over Jerusalem in her killing of the prophets. God forbid that there should be a similar lament over Canada!

"Christian friends," the Commissioner charged, "must be up and doing. Let today be a true link between the good that is gone and the good that is to be."

MORE IMPORTANT THAN POLITICS

There were things much more important than politics, declared Commissioner Baugh, who expressed pride, however, that men of all political views and ideas could and did find mutual ground upon a Salvation Army platform—unity in loyalty to God and the Saviour, loyalty to the principles and methods of the Salvation Army and acceptance of the law of the land as long as spiritual loyalties and rights of citizens were held inviolate.

This Would Be Big City If Alaskans Had Their Way, Says Governor's Aide

George Sundborg, Juneau Territorial Executive, Deplores Inability to Use it—Talks of Many Subjects

Looking out over Prince Rupert's harbor, railway yards and waterfront installations including the great warehouse and dock extensions which the American Army built during the war, George Sundborg, executive assistant to the Governor of Alaska, who was here from Juneau over the week-end, reflected: "How this port would be utilized in serving Alaska if it was only United States controlled! This would be a big city. What a pity that arrangements cannot be made to take advantage of a physical situation which could be of such mutual benefit to you of this port and us in the territory. If only things could be worked out between governments as they can be man to man!"

"The Governor and Alaska and his staff have been attempting for a good while to promote closer relationship between Alaska and Central British Columbia," Mr. Sundborg stated in an interview with the Daily News. "We are strongly of the belief that the whole north country can best progress and prosper as it uses all the resources naturally available to it including transportation facilities such as those Prince Rupert offers. We well know the special significance of the port of Prince Rupert to southeastern Alaska and, like the most of people in that area have been seeking to obtain a change in federal laws, including the Jones Act, to permit of a rational use of the port of Prince Rupert as a route of supply to the territory."

Mr. Sundborg referred to the especial pleasure with which the people of Juneau with Governor Gruening down were anticipating the forthcoming visit of citizens of Prince Rupert and Central British Columbia to Juneau with the convention of the Associated Boards of Trade of Central British Columbia.

Mr. Sundborg, mentioning the matter of the Haines Cut-off, stated that the United States government had been trying to have the road kept open throughout the year, something that it was felt was physically feasible but in connection with which Canadian co-operation was necessary since so much of the cut-off passed through Canadian territory. "We are appreciative," said Mr. Sundborg "of the problems which your federal and provincial governments must have in maintaining roads over long distances but we do hope that some arrangement can be made between our national and territorial governments on the one hand and the Canadian and British Columbia governments on the other to keep this road open and maintain uninterrupted the only

Labor's Showdown

COMMUNISM within the trade unions appears to be heading for a showdown which is making itself apparent not only as between employers and workers but in the way of division amid the ranks of the workers themselves. It is reaching a point where the business and economy of the country may suffer seriously but possibly the most unfortunate part of the whole thing may easily be the unhappy effect upon workers and families from the unemployment which threatens to be brought about.

Co-incidental with the movement on the part of some union elements to purge themselves of the communist influence is the growing disposition of at least some of the operators and employers to refuse to deal with communist-tinged or communist-led unions. There is this aspect of the new waterfront workers' dispute in the United States. In this part of the country the communist-influenced miners' union led workers to a position where an entire large mining operation closed up completely, throwing 200-odd men, many of them with families, into unemployment. Now there is very definite possibility that the large scale timber operators of this coast may close down their workings rather than deal further with the communist element which leads the International Woodworkers of America. Not only the dupes of the communists but many honest and hard working men will be out of work, bringing in many cases suffering and discomfort to the women and children of their families. Likewise, trouble and idleness may come to the factionally-torn seamen.

It is regrettable that the housecleaning of the unions should be so hurtful to the welfare of the country economically, socially and industrially. To the average observer it all seems so unnecessary. Undoubtedly, some of the operators are concerned over the disruption of their business and the ill-effects of the situation to country and public. Few of them, of course, have to worry about facing personal discomfort even if their operations cease. They are in a secure position to wait for the culmination which most undoubtedly will be to their final benefit. On the other hand, the communist leaders, who by their actions are beginning to make clear their principal motive of disrupting business and industry and perpetuating the industrial strife which keeps their well paid jobs going, are, of course, happy. It makes no difference to them how many of their followers or their wives and families suffer.

It is too bad indeed that so many of the good workers continue to be blindly deluded and that they may have to taste the bitter medicine which they have contributed themselves to brewing before they see the light. There is one ray of hope for them, however, and that is that among them are emerging certain leaders who realize where things are drifting and are endeavouring to turn the tide. That the dikes are not being raised too late is the hope of those who have the welfare of industry, the workers of this country and trades unionism itself really at heart.

BERLIN CRISIS

THE BERLIN CRISIS drags on as word is awaited of an agreement for the lifting by the Russians of the blockade on land transport on the basis of acceptance of the Soviet zone mark as the currency of the whole city under four-power control instead of the arbitrary Soviet currency without such control.

Meanwhile the serious rioting in the City hall at Berlin yesterday, the third such unpleasantness by the Soviet, does not make the promise of a settlement any more reassuring.

The same technique which has been employed by the Russians throughout the crisis goes on but the mere fact that the crisis has lasted so long is a healthy indication of the effectiveness and determination of western power resistance.

By creation of chaos, the Soviets have endeavoured to force a western withdrawal but such a withdrawal seems more remote now in spite of all the Soviet process of sabotage and usurpation.

Berlin has been the year's chief objective in the general campaign against the non-Communist world, a campaign which, though persistent makes such slow progress that we may take some courage from that very fact of slowness itself.

RETENTION OF LIBERTY

Special Speaker is Heard at Kingdom Hall

The Kingdom Hall on Sixth Avenue East was well filled Sunday afternoon when an address "Fight For Freedom" was delivered by A. H. Melin, representative of the Watch Tower Society. The discourse, which occupied about half an hour, went at some length into different stages of world history. Today was a time when it was all too plain that far reaching plans and efforts were being made to again restrict the liberties of people, to regiment, to control and to regulate—in short, to bend people to the will of others. Yet there was a time such a condition did not exist, and this was before there were denials of the teachings of Christ. The word of God, the message of the Scriptures, could always be depended on to uphold freedom. When one forsakes Christ, it was only placing one's self in bondage, and remaining there. Mr. Melin, at some length, went into the subject of the Bill of Rights, explaining what it is and what it stood for. A petition was now being presented asking for the enactment of a Bill of Rights enforceable by the courts in order to stop the spread of the abridgement of individual freedoms.

The meeting was presided over by David Hadland, who also played violin selections, with Mrs. Hadland playing piano accompaniment.

BASEBALL SERIES IS RAINED OUT

Hoping to take part in a season-concluding inter-town baseball series, a Smithers ball team came down from the interior during the Labor Day week-end but all it got was the rain. Rain on Sunday and Monday afternoons made it impossible to play either day. The team, which had arrived Sunday afternoon, left yesterday afternoon on its homeward way.

MOOSE HALL BLOCK SOLD

Alex MacKenzie Acquires Third Avenue Property

The well known Third Avenue building known for years as the Moose Hall, the second floor of which during the war was occupied by the Y.M.C.A. and the ground floor until recently by Elio Furniture, has been sold by the owners, Edward, Chester and Olga Clapp to Alexander MacKenzie of MacKenzie Furniture Ltd. The sale was negotiated through the office of R. E. Mortimer, Second Avenue.

Mr. MacKenzie plans to move the furniture business from the present location to the newly acquired site.

means of access between Central Alaska and the Inside Passage."

Mr. Sundborg referred to the importance of the Haines Cut-off from the standpoint of security as well as economic value.

ALASKA NEEDS HAINES CUT-OFF

The interior of Alaska is growing rapidly, the Alaskan official continued, and it should not be left dependent entirely upon the railway out of Seward and Anchorage. Other roads to the interior of Alaska such as the Richardson Highway from Valdez to Fairbanks were closed seven months of the year and there was little that could be done about this in view of the heavy snows and "glaciating." Even the railroad was sometimes closed for days or weeks at a time during the winter and it was not uncommon in winter that aircraft cannot land at Fairbanks owing to fog conditions.

"The Haines Cut-off certainly looks to us like the best possibility" but there remained the complication of almost 100 miles of it being through Canadian territory.

STATEHOOD DEFERRED AT LEAST TWO YEARS

Discussing the possibilities of Alaskan Statehood, Mr. Sundborg said that the people of Alaska had expressed their desire for statehood but the prospect of its early granting was none too encouraging at this time. However, the campaign would be renewed at the next session of Congress convening early in January following the national election. At least two years would probably be required before enactment could be completed.

"Alaskans certainly feel the need of Prince Rupert in providing transportation service required in the development of the territory," observed Mr. Sundborg.

Seemingly unnecessary regulations which restricted use of aircraft in travel between Alaska and Prince Rupert continued to annoy the people of Alaska, said the gubernatorial assistant.

Mr. Sundborg told of the fine weather which southeastern Alaska had been enjoying all this summer. All-time good weather records had been set in the north while the Puget Sound area and the Pacific Northwest had been having "a year without summer."

IN THE NAVY—The modern "ship" of the Royal Canadian Navy (Reserve) is a far cry from the old single room facilities afforded by the R.C.N.V.R. divisions of pre-war days. Gone are the days when training equipment consisted largely of a Manual of Seamanship and a good deal of imagination and spirit. Today, however, naval reservists carry out their training in modern training centres in 20 cities across the dominion, all provided with valuable gunnery, radar, torpedo and wireless equipment. To supplement his training at the naval division, the naval reservist takes to the sea for an annual two-week cruise each summer, or for longer if he wishes. Indicative of the attraction of this type of technical training is the fact that large numbers of both officers and men this summer measured their time afloat in months rather than weeks. The naval division affords recreational facilities and encourages sports and get-togethers to further the spirit of teamwork and precision among its officers and men. In the photo two reservists engage in a friendly bout while their shipmates cheer them on. In the background is the tail assembly of an aircraft, a recent addition to most of the naval divisions in keeping with the air-mindedness of the R.C.N.

SHIPS and WATERFRONT

C.P.R. steamer Princess Louise, Capt. Peter Leslie, with 211 passengers, bound for Alaska, called Monday morning from 10 to 11:30 a.m. There was considerable heavy freight to discharge. Weather could have been better but the tourists were quick to see what was doing in town.

Four ships of the Alaska Steamship Co., all loaded with canned salmon from Alaska, have been tied up in Puget Sound, due to the C.I.O. strike.

The yacht Novia Del Mar, owned by the Scripps-Howard newspaper chain is now on her way south from Juneau. The present trip from San Diego to Alaska, is the longest made this year. Between Northern B.C. and Vancouver she may use her sails.

For the first time since before the war, the Canadian-Australasian liner Aorangi, newly overhauled and changed in many respects will arrive in Victoria and Vancouver this week from Sydney. The Canadian-Australasian service will resume within the next few weeks. All accommodation on the first voyage is reported taken up.

CAR WRECK IN EAST END

Some residents in the 900-block East Sixth Avenue were abruptly awakened, Johnny Flewin and Jerry McIntyre were shaken up and William Bacon has a damaged truck following a car accident at 1 o'clock Sunday morning.

Apparently Flewin and McIntyre were returning from the east end of the city after taking some friends home when the truck left the street as it came down the Sixth Avenue hill. The vehicle careened from the pavement and ended up on the lawn in front of a house at 936 Sixth Avenue East.

Neither Flewin, who is understood to have been driving at the time of the accident, or McIntyre suffered more than minor injuries.

C.N.R. Vessel Breaks Tailshaft and Withdrawn Suddenly from Service

While nearing Vancouver on her regular southbound voyage from Prince Rupert and Ketchikan, C. N. R. steamer Prince Rupert, Capt. William Eccles, broke her tailshaft and dropped her propeller with the result that she has had to be withdrawn from service to enter drydock and her sailing this week has been cancelled. Next week the run will be taken over by the new steamer Prince George which is completing her schedule of Alaska tourist voyages this week and will be here tomorrow evening southbound.

Whether or not the accident and sudden withdrawal of the Prince Rupert from service a week ahead of time will affect the decision as to where the vessel is to receive an extensive overhaul is yet to be ascertained. It had been hoped locally that the work would be done at the company's own yard here in Prince Rupert.

On The Side

... by H. S.

Could a sportsman be prosecuted for shooting a horned doe during hunting season? We'll leave that question for the legal boys but 28 years ago there was a man living at the head of Kelp Pass on Porcher Island who showed Earl Becker the head and horns of a deer which the man claimed had belonged to a doe. The hunter said he had never heard of such a thing before. Earl, who was a mere boy at the time, had never heard anything like it and hasn't since but this particular set of horns were different than those worn by bucks of the coast area during hunting season, according to Earl.

Assistant Fire Chief Becker who has travelled considerably in this area of the coast discovered something strange while he was on the Queen Charlottes this summer. Late one evening he was chopping wood back of his tent and was surprised to see a circle of chips glowing in the gloom after he finished his job. Investigation showed the chips were from the big moss covered log he was using for a chopping block. He cleared most of the log but only in one other spot did he find glowing wood but he did find some small alder roots that were affected the same way.

Earl gathered the curious looking chips and placed them on his suitcase where they shed enough light for him to see the time on his small watch. When he left the Islands he carried some of the wood with him and during the trip over on the Comox he showed the oddity to a group of tourists but by that time the wood had lost its seemingly magic light.

How deep can a diving duck dive? Bill Dunn, who with his sons Fred and Robert, spent his holidays trolling near the northwest tip of Stephens Island, caught one of these little sea fowl on a hook that was down three fathoms.

A string of blue grass beads is a prized possession of Mrs. V. Parsons. According to Dr. Leechman of the National Museum, Ottawa, the beads were used in barter with the natives by early Russian traders on this coast and as a collector's piece they have historic value. Mrs. Parsons doesn't intend to part with the beads; they were given to her as a present by Gertie Shannon a native of the Queen Charlotte Islands, who received them from her grandmother. The beads, cut from glass tubes, have apparently been ground by hand as the facets are irregular.

TOTEM GOLF TOURNAMENT

JASPER—Turning a sub par card of 70, J. Edgar Green, of the Broadmoor Golf Club, Seattle, captured the medal in the qualifying round of the Nineteenth annual Totem Pole Golf Championship which opened at this beautiful mountain course yesterday. The tournament was given the official blessing of Hon. J. E. Bowen, Lieutenant Governor of Alberta, when he drove the first ball and, following this, 180 golfers from all parts of Canada and the United States were on their own.

Green, playing Jasper for the first time, went out in 35, one under par and returned in par figures for his 70, which is one of the lowest scores ever registered for the qualifying round.

There was a tie for runner-up in the men's qualifying round when Carl Haymond, Tacoma, winner of the Totem Pole in 1946, and Norman Wilkinson, Vancouver, both turned in cards of 73.

In the ladies' qualifying round, Mrs. J. H. Todd, of Victoria, who is the defending champion, turned in a brilliant one over par 78 to capture the medal. Mrs. Todd was one under par at the turn but ran into trouble on two short holes to come home two over.

The international team match was won by the Washington team, made up of Carl Haymond, 73; Dr. Shoemaker, Seattle, 82; Frank Dunn, Seattle, 88 and J. Edgar Green, 70; for a total of 313. Second place went to Vancouver with N. Wilkinson 73, H. Butler 78, Mat Berry 78 and Bob Cleat 87; for a total of 316.

The Medical Profession Trophy ended in a tie with Dr. J.

Going Steady... with 2 Ton Bites

EVER try to get past a big excavation job without stopping to watch? Fascinating, isn't it? Look at Tom Power in the cab of the giant power shovel which devours earth in two-ton bites. Tom's a skilled operator, worth every cent of the $60.80 he earns each week.

HE couldn't make that much on a pick-and-shovel gang. He'd be paid less for each hour's work because he'd accomplish less. However hard he worked with a pick, Tom alone would never be able to save enough to buy that power shovel, to increase his earning power and his wages.

BUYING equipment and tools... often many thousands of dollars worth per man... is the job of a company which can raise capital. Machinery and tools get the job done more quickly at lower cost and enable Tom and his fellow employees to earn more... because they produce more.

TOM'S power shovel and higher wages are the result of a free system in which men have the incentive to seek better ways of increasing production at lower cost. This system, we believe, offers the greatest rewards, the highest standards of living, the best job-security and freedom of opportunity.
