Boy Scout Week

THIS is Boy Scout Week in Prince Rupert. We are glad to pay our word of tribute to this splendid movement which is flourishing these days and doing such a good work not only in this city but the world over.

Going more than forty years now, Scouting has long been playing a part in building character, good citizenship and all around usefulness among boys. It is the largest organization of its kind engaged in this kind of activity.

Something of the importance of the work in Prince Rupert may be realized by consideration of the fact that 250 boys are now enrolled here which is a very substantial proportion of our population of boys.

Now the boys have a major project in view for 1952—the building of a $1500 cabin at Grassy Bay as a headquarters for their outdoor activities.

Political Tempest

THEY play politics not only in Victoria and Ottawa but this week we see them hitting it hot and heavy at august Westminster in London.

The Socialists accuse Mr. Churchill of double-talk, saying one thing at home in regard to the Korean war and intimating something else when he calls on the Americans at Washington.

Mr. Churchill criticizes the Laborites for having made an atom bomb and not telling Parliament about it. Apparently, it was a well-guarded secret, too, for even Mr. Churchill did not find out about it until he got into office.

But like our own politics there is a good deal of eyewash about the British brand.

Britons, in their politics, and Canadians too, possibly in a lesser degree, have the ability to quarrel, and sometimes it seems very bitterly, among themselves but, when it comes to the crisis, they stand together back to back.

These tempests in the teapot may have their usefulness. They keep people interested in public affairs and keep governments on their toes.

World Population Jumps By 75,000 Per Day, U.N. Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—The world's peoples are multiplying at the fastest rate in all history.

Latest United Nations world census figures indicate about 75,000 more people show up every morning at breakfast tables around the world. That means there are about 75,000 more births than deaths each day.

The UN population yearbook estimates about 2,400,000,000 people now live on the earth.

There's a net increase of about 8,000,000 people a year. If this expansion continues at its present rate the world will be three times as crowded with people in 100 years, experts estimate.

Some population authorities assume man has lived on earth about 100,000 years and estimate his numbers increased only to about 200,000,000 or 300,000,000 by the time of Christ.

In the 1650 years after Christ the population just about doubled, from less than 300,000,000 to possibly 550,000,000, the calculations indicate. This was at the dawn of "modern times," about the year 1650.

But in the 300 years since

As I See It

The Sham Shift Vote

B.C. IS to have a provincial election, which is all to the good. But it is all to the bad that it is to be under the absurd and costly system in vogue in Alberta.

This transferable vote system is not to be blamed on the present Social Credit government of Alberta for it was in vogue there long before that party came in.

I call it a sham shift vote system, for there is no evidence whatsoever to prove that you get any more fair or democratic result under the Transferable Vote than you do under the old familiar system where you mark an X after the name of the candidate you want to win.

In fact, an analysis of the results in Alberta's provincial elections clearly shows that they come out substantially the same as do the federal elections in that province.

ONE MIGHT wonder why the Liberals are going to apply this one piece of legislation, while all the other pending and much more necessary and urgent business is to go by the boards.

O well, some people have to learn the hard way, I figure that one election under the sham shift vote will be all that we will ever have in B.C.

There is no greater fallacy than the theory that all Liberal voters will give their first choices to their own candidates, and their second choices to the Conservatives; and all Tories will likewise mark their Number 2 choices for the Grats.

The main rivalry in this election will be between the Liberals and Conservatives. Hence I figure that a great many Liberals and Tories will give their second choices to the CCF or Social Credit.

When the election is over everybody will wonder why we were such dumb clucks as to spend all the extra money for nothing.

I SEE THAT the Liberals have blossomed forth in the B.C. Legislature wearing the traditional red roses. Makes me think of the ditty I saw in a prairie mimeograph sheet a few months ago.

Is there a man with soul so dead Who never has been called a Red?

The one and only time I saw the famous Laurier in parliament he was wearing a flaming scarlet tie. I was a kid in the artillery in Ottawa in those March 1915 days. But Laurier disappointed me when I went up to parliament hoping for fireworks. He went to sleep at his desk. His hair was white as wool, with a sun tan bald space between sideburns.

Even when I worked on Quebec

VICTORIA REPORT

Changing Political Stripes—Members Aren't What They Used To Be

VICTORIA. The way members of the Legislature have changed their political stripes in less than three years leaves one astonished by the vagaries of politics—or is that the way to put it?

In June of 1949 the people voted for 39 Coalitionists, 7 C.C.F.'ers, one Independent, one Labor—for a total of 48.

Now look at the Legislature; there are 23 Liberals; three straight Coalitionists; 11 Conservatives; eight C.C.F.'ers; an Independent (not the same Independent); a Social Creditor; one Labor—a total of 48.

The first flip-flop came about through quiet, modest James Mowat of Alberni. He's so quiet and so modest that practically nobody pays any attention to him. Yet he started the style.

Let's look back a bit. In the 1949 general election there was some strange sort of skullduggery up Alberni way. Mr. Mowat who had been the Coalition MLA for Alberni, lost out in the Coalition nominating convention. His friends told him to run as Independent. He did. He won. So that means the people of Alberni, in electing Jim Mowat an Independent, were voting against the Coalition Government.

Yet, less than a year later, Mr. Mowat was back in the Coalition field. All those who had voted for him because they were agin' the government, suddenly found themselves government supporters.

Take W.A.C. Bennett and Mrs. Rolston. They were elected as Coalitionists, with a Conservative tinge, of course. Yet last session they left the Coalition, which meant, too, that they left the Conservatives. Now Mr. Bennett is a Social Creditor, Mrs. Rolston says she's an Independent, but you can see she's flirting, and very coyly, too, with Social Credit.

The 11 Coalitionists who were really truly deep down inside Conservative have suddenly become Coalition, proud Conserva-newspapers, in the early twenties they still called the Liberals the Rouges, or Reds, and the Tories, Blues.

In Laurier's early years the church in Quebec was solidly Tory. The parish priests did not take active part in politics, usually, beyond making such non-partizan remarks as this: Heaven is Blue, but Hell is Red.

READING the accounts of the recent civic election in a Montreal suburb, I ask myself, what has Moscow got that we haven't got?

Le Devoir for February 2 devotes its whole front page to the disgraceful events in Ville St. Mitchell. This place has recently come under fierce criticism as a centre of wide open gambling houses, and gangster protected vice.

But the Mayor and his stalwarts "won" the election by a 381 vote margin. Gangsters simply kidnapped and detained the entire opposition election "machine" of fifty workers. These were held in jail until the polls closed—not allowed to communicate with anybody outside—not even their lawyers.

Sure I said Montreal—not Moscow, or Chicago.

ray... Reflects and Reminisces

Surveys are being made away to the north and not so far from the borders of British Columbia and Alaska. Eventual discovery of oil, of course, is the prime hope, if not full-blown expectation. Why is it, some times, distance and not proximity, lend enchantment to the view? To date, western oil strikes have been convenient to or near settled areas. One need only think of Calgary, or Edmonton, or Fort St. John as well as other handy districts.

REAL NEIGHBORLY

From the book of memory, it is worth recalling that, as long ago as 1912, what has been called the largest seepage of oil ever found in British Columbia was reported by surveyors for Gore & McGregor of Victoria. The latter firm subdivided the Naas Valley in 1912. The discovery was in the Cranberry River region where it flows into the Naas. This, of course, made anything in the way of a potential strike, exceedingly easy of access. Perhaps too easy. That seems the trouble, sometimes, it is not sufficiently remote, or too hard to get at.

A new commercial building to cost well beyond $100,000 is to go up on Third Avenue. Could Arthur Little be alive today (the peddled peanuts down on the waterfront) he would munch one, and exclaim, "Well by Judas!"

BE IT EVER SO HUMBLE

In the face of Alcan development, Ootsa Lake ranchers of course must move, yet flooding should, and no doubt will mean substantial compensation before there is final settlement. What of the sentimental angle? When one has lived part of a lifetime in one neighborhood in a region like Central B.C. it's a wrench, to leave and stay away for keeps. It has been home.

Part of future training in the British Army will include the gradual development of a feeling of friendliness for serpents. For this purpose, snakes are already being brought to camps in England. We already perceive Montgomery and Alexander in full and swift retreat.

ALWAYS ACTION

Every life has its interesting side. But, first of all, the party concerned must be prepared to say something. Many a man—or woman—can tell a lot and some do. For example, not long ago, there was that colorful story in the News, descriptive of Crocker and the Klondike, written and pictured by Larry Stanwood. And this reminds us of another trail blazer, Harold Payne is a Victorian, and he's eighty. Cecil Clark, the complexion the electorate approved less than three years ago. No wonder the electorate is baffled by the strange goings-on in this capital in recent weeks. No wonder the electorate is sometimes given to say, in effect: "These politicians—they're

So, looking over the political air of our complex of the House today, one sees it vastly changed from with us."

May Ask Parliament to Vote $7,000,000 Under Culture Plan

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer
OTTAWA (CP)—A vast scheme for the creation of national scholarships and bursaries for some 10,000 university students is under active consideration by Prime Minister St. Laurent.

Planning has developed so well that the prime minister, keenly interested in implementing recommendations of the Massey Commission on arts, may ask parliament at the next session opening February 28 for $7,000,000 to get the scholarship plan rolling.
In addition, it has been definitely decided that he will seek another $7,000,000 to continue in the next fiscal year the federal-aid-to-university scheme launched a year ago.

The university-aid program still has many kinks. There has been some question whether the method of fund distribution on the basis of provincial population is the best feasible system.
Argument continues as to what type of institute of higher learning should be eligible for federal aid to ward off financial crises threatening universities. In Quebec, for example, there was no easy agreement and Finance Minister Abbott and Provincial Treasurer Onesime Gagnon had to head up a special commission to judge what institutions would become eligible in that province.

A MAJOR RECOMMENDATION
Launching of the scholarship scheme was one of the major recommendations of the 500-page report by Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, Governor-General-Designate of Canada, and four other commissioners. The report, considered by the government as its cultural guide to promote national unity through cultural development of the country, was placed before parliament last year after a two-year investigation of Canada's cultural achievements.
It envisioned:
1. A total of 100 annual "Canada" scholarships of $1,000 each, tenable for four years, granted to students showing outstanding ability and exceptional promise. When the program was in full swing, 400 Canadian students would be able to attend university free.
2. A total of 250 "national" scholarships, valued at $500 each, awarded annually and tenable for four years. These would

At lunch time the most popular choice is a sandwich. Each day it's fun to vary the filling and the bread. Olive sandwich filling of cottage cheese, ready-chopped ripe olives and pimento spread on thin slices of rye bread is a favorite. It's especially good for the coming Lenten days.
¾ cup creamed cottage cheese
½ cup chopped ripe olives
2 tablespoons chopped pim- ento
3 tablespoons mayonnaise
Salt
½ teaspoon prepared horse- radish
1½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Combine ingredients and blend well. Use as filling for sand- wiches. Makes about 1½ cups filling.

Elks Enter Finals By Heavy Win Over Millers

Elks 68, CCC300 50
Fraser & Payne 63, Merchants 21

Finalists in the senior league championship play-off were decided last night as Elks trounced Columbiad for an 18-point defeat in their second game. The one-sided event saw life only in the quarter. Aggregate score of the two-game series is 75 for Elks.

At the third game Elks relaxed while the Millers drove ahead to 10 points in less than 10 minutes and George Mitchell and George ...

Mathews led the way for Elks with 24 points made in 18 attempts. Don Scherk followed with 19, 12 of which he made in the second quarter.

It was apparent that Elks' strategy was trying out a new play which has been practised by the Challengers. The Millers were completely helpless against the fast passing Elks.

Fact is, the Millers were not ready to throw in the towel at the end of the first quarter. Elks led 38-16.

Elks were at a considerable advantage playing without their usual back line. Coach Dan Haugan went off the field in the third quarter to see his men stripped.

Personal fouls were not on each team. Stan Green kept the Millers blowing the whistle. Green, a visiting referee, called them during a clean game.

CCC out of the running. Elks and Mansons were to begin their three-game championship series on Saturday.

At the end of the first game Elks led 38-16.

Red Wings Winners in New Venue

BOSTON 4—Detroit's top place Red Wings defeated Boston Bruins 4 to 3 Tuesday night in the first National Hockey League game played at the Arena here in twenty-four years.

Gordie Howe's second goal of the game, his thirty-seventh of the season, clinched matters with less than two minutes remaining.

The site of the game was switched after a severed brine pipe put the Boston Gardens ice-making plant out of commission.

The Red Wings gained a 2 to 0 lead during the first period on goals by Alex Delvecchio and Ted Lindsay.

The crowd of 4,049 was the smallest the Bruins had attracted in more than twenty-four years before they moved from the Arena to the more spacious Garden.

Britons Rely Upon Philip

Counting on Him
To Handle Tough Job

By COLIN FROST

LONDON (AP)—A blond young athlete with a ready smile is settling down to the toughest job Britain has to offer. And the British people, although unsure what the job entails, are certain he'll make the grade.

The man is Philip, 30-year-old Duke of Edinburgh. The job is Prince Consort to a reigning Queen.

Philip as yet has no legal status beyond that of an ordinary husband. His role in state affairs must be largely unofficial. Even his title has prompted speculation.

Only his wife, Queen Elizabeth II, can decide Philip's share in her great burden.

British commentators trying to forecast Philip's role have brought out the history books to see how Queen Victoria shared her job with Prince Albert. But history hasn't helped much.

Both Philip and Albert were foreign-born. Albert was a German and Philip a Greek. The similarity ends there.

Albert came to Britain a stranger, misunderstood and misunderstood. He hardly spoke the language. Much of the country misunderstood him.

Only after his death did Britons realize that Albert's wisdom in state councils had spurred the Victorian age to prosperity, only then did they call him Albert the Good.

Philip came to his new job well-known and well-liked by the British people. He has the right background—a British upbringing, a first-class record in the Royal Navy, a love of sport and a sense of humor that Albert lacked.

Newsreels and the press have made his smile familiar throughout the Commonwealth. His share in Elizabeth's Canadian tour last year brought new warmth—and strength—to royalty's part in holding together the scattered British peoples.

Philip shines in the less formal royal tasks and the good-natured chit-chat accompanying the endless hand-shaking when Elizabeth is on parade. Newspaper readers here who followed the Canadian tour were amused by his lighter encounters.

He is a good dancer. He can discard royal protocol when he thinks necessary.

Philip's public life now that his wife is queen is likely to follow the pattern of the last few years. He will still be the good-humored shadow, ready to lend a quick hand when the queenly course gets tricky.

Behind the scenes Philip is likely to run the royal household and estates for his wife. If he does, palace sources say, he will probably shake up the costly routine of court life, little changed since Albert gave it a going over more than a century ago.

The aim will be to save money.

Iran Eyeing Kuwait Oil In Dispute

By JOHN SCALI

WASHINGTON (AP)—The fabulous piece of desert-bound real estate called the Kuwait has moved into the Middle East oil picture as possibly Britain's trump card in its bitter dispute with Iran.

There are signs that Iran's Prime Minister, Mohammed Mossadegh, realizes this and is getting increasingly jittery over his prospect of victory.

Ever since Iran nationalized Britain's $1,000,000,000 oil properties, production in the Kuwait has been going up and up. This desert sheikdom, an Arabian port at the mouth of the Persian Gulf, is turning out 640,000 barrels of oil daily, replacing nearly half of Iran's output.

Added to stepped-up production in Saudi Arabia, Iraq and the western hemisphere, the rich flow of oil from Kuwait has enabled the west to get by since last summer when oil stopped moving from Iran.

Mossadegh is faced with the bleak prospect that oil production in the Kuwait and Saudi Arabia can be boosted even more in the next few months, if necessary. In the meantime, his government, without British oil royalties to count on, is heading straight for bankruptcy within the next six months unless something is done.

Some British and American oil experts think Mossadegh already has killed the goose that laid Iran's golden egg. Even if he were to reach a settlement with Britain tomorrow, they believe the west would continue to rely more heavily on trouble-free areas like Saudi Arabia, the Kuwait and Iraq in the Middle East rather than Iran.

Further, there are indications that the Sheik of Kuwait and King Abdullah of Saudi Arabia would in effect insist that their stepped-up oil production be kept at the same level. These governments could argue cogently, some officials believe, that they helped out in a pinch and should not be tossed aside when things ease up.

Regardless of developments, Kuwait appears to have a golden future. A new agreement with the British-American Oil Company which operates the fields there assures it of a 50-50 division of profits.

This is expected to amount to $150,000,000 in royalties alone during this year. Not bad for a desert waste inhabited by some 100,000 Arabs.

So much money is pouring into the sheikdom that Britain has sent half a dozen specialists there to figure out how the old Sheik can spend it. The 1,950 square mile area he rules not only stands to be the richest in the Middle East but perhaps the world. Statisticians estimate per capita income in the Kuwait this year, when added to the money earned by inhabitants working for the oil company, will average about $2,000 annually.

Commercial Air Ace Returning

One of the commonwealth's commercial air aces, W. S. (Bill) May, formerly Senior Captain and Officer-in-Charge of Training with British Overseas Airways Corporation, has accepted the appointment of Chief Pilot with Queen Charlotte Airlines.

W. S. (BILL) MAY
Chief Pilot

Captain May, who recently retired from the famed BOAC after sixteen years' service, started his flying career as a bush pilot in Winnipeg in 1931. Joining Imperial Airways in London five years later he was engaged in flying their European Service between the capitals of Belgium, France, Germany, Austria, Hungary and Switzerland. With the opening of the Empire routes in 1937, he captained airliners which flew routes between such colorful centres as Alexandria, Singapore, and Durban, and across the Middle East, central Asia, India and the east coast of Africa.

After the outbreak of war Captain May was transferred to Montreal for the operation of Liberator Aircraft on the return ferry service across the Atlantic, which he has crossed a near-record number of times, 260 in all.

During his sixteen years with BOAC (in the course of flying over 2 million miles), Captain May hung up some records which still stand. Included in these is the highest freight load ever carried across the Atlantic—24,000 lbs. gross. His experience in emergency flight operations ranges from command of the Air Service from Eastern Canada to Winnipeg during the disastrous 1950 flood, to special trips to Abadan, Iran, to evacuate women and children during the oil crisis last year.

Terrace Church Plays Enjoyed

TERRACE—Plays presented by Y.P.A. of the United Church were well received with good attendance both Friday and Saturday evening.

In the "Bracelet of Doom," three men were killed by the clasp on a bracelet of mystic superstition, after which the man behind the poison on the valuable bracelet also met his "doom" at the hands of the law. Those taking part were Melisa Panasuick, Ivy Gillespie, Colleen Sites, Robin McCall, Flora Melvin, Aaron Haaland, Allan Atural, and Gail McCall.

"The Perfect Gentleman," a delightful comedy of a youthful crush on a chemistry teacher, and how smoothly these youthful crushes can flow from chemistry, to poetry, to art, was a comedy that was really amusing. Those taking part were Karen L. Strange, Carl Philip, Selma Farkvam, Avis Mould, Tom Richardson.

In "Dora the Beautiful Dishwasher," the long lost child was the surprise element, complete with "pursuing female" and fortune hunter. It all came out straight when Dora "cleaned up." Those taking part were Bertha Andam, Gerald Toop, Sheila Kill, Allan Atural, Carole Dale, Joan Dale.

There was good co-operation among the cast and good acting. Proceeds from the two night's performance, said Rev. P. H. Mallet, will go for interior decorating of the church.

Master of ceremonies Friday evening was George McAdams, and Saturday evening, Harry Philip.

"Oh! Susanna" Thrill Film

Exciting battles between Sioux Indians, United States cavalrymen and gold-mad invaders of the Black Hills of Dakota provide thrilling action in "Oh Susanna," feature picture for this Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the Capitol Theatre.

One of the top members of the cast is Canadian-born Rod Cameron who plays the part of a cavalry captain who has a bitter feud with Forrest Tucker, his commanding officer. Both of them have their romantic sights on Adrian Booth, singer in a gambling house. Chill Willis is a rugged cavalry sergeant.

In defiance of a treaty with the Sioux, increasing numbers of opportunists are attempting to move into the Black Hills country in search of gold. Cameron has things well in hand until the commanding officer leads the garrison into a massacre. Then there is a desperate defence of the post but surrender is inevitable. The Indians, however, know that the captain has endeavored to enforce the treaty and he and the remainder of his party are permitted to leave in safety.

Following the massacre of General Custer and his cavalry, Chief Sitting Bull and his Sioux warriors spent years in refuge in Canada.
