ALL COMMONWEALTH MOURNS DEAD KING

Historic Pageantry And Simple Rites as King Goes to His Final Rest

Two Million People Line Funeral Route—Nobility And Common People Mingle

LONDON (Canadian Press)—Amid historic funeral pageantry, Britain today laid a King to rest beside his father and others of his royal line in the "Tomb of Kings" at Windsor Castle.

The grey walls of St. George's Chapel, high above the River Thames, again echoed the words—for King and commoner alike—of the simple Anglican prayer of committal: "Earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust, in sure and certain hope of resurrection to eternal life."

The sovereign's simple oak coffin was born from Westminster Hall at 9:30 a.m. to crepe hung Paddington railway station for the journey to Windsor. There, among slopes carpeted by floral wreaths, the funeral started at 2 p.m. as two minutes silence enfolded the land.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, officiated at these rites—climaxing a series held since the weary King died in his sleep of a blood clot at his Sandringham estate a week ago Wednesday.

With Dr. Fisher were the Dean of Windsor, the Archbishop of York, the Bishop of Winchester and canons of the chapel.

Europe's greatest postwar gathering of royalty brought together sovereigns of the Netherlands, Norway, Denmark, Sweden, Iraq, Luxembourg and Greece along with several others who have lost their thrones.

Two MILLIONS OF PEOPLE throngs of humbler people queued up in the chill damp night to pass by the purple-draped catafalque in Westminster Hall. The doors of the 900-year-old edifice remained open until 6 a.m.—only 3½ hours before the body of the King began its journey in regal panoply to Windsor. As they walked by ten abreast, many persons let fall single flowers and little bouquets in front of the bier.

Under grey skies and a cold northerly wind, close to two million of the dead King's grieving subjects jammed the streets of London and Windsor to pay their last respects as the coffin was carried past on a gun carriage, the same one that had carried Queen Victoria, King Edward VII and King George V to their final resting place. Naval ratings drew the gun carriage.

More than ten thousand men of the Royal Navy, Army and Air Force, posted 1½ paces apart, stood between the crowd and the procession. Two thousand extra police helped control crowds.

While Big Ben, giant clock in Westminster Palace, tolled a mournful stroke for every one of the King's fifty-six years of life, military bands played selections from Handel's "Saul."

His death of the King from coronary thrombosis ten days ago was caused by "conditions diagnosed in 1948 and bearing no relation to the disease of the lung for which re-section was carried out in September of last year," the Journal said.

The Journal, official publication of the British Medical Association, said that great shock and grief caused by the sudden death of the King should be tempered by "the knowledge of what he may have been spared."

The King died peacefully in his sleep.

The Journal did not describe the agony the monarch might have had to face in the future.

had he lived on.

VEILS OF MOURNING—Her face small and white behind the black, wide-spreading veils of mourning Queen Elizabeth is shown at the window of her automobile as it slowly followed the gun carriage bearing the body of King George during the funeral rites, when a solemn journey began from the tiny parish Church of St. Mary Magdalene and ended in the heart of London. The body of the late King rested in Westminster Hall until it was removed to Windsor today and buried.

National Mourning Observed in Canada

OTTAWA (Canadian Press)—Canada observed today, the day of the King's funeral, as a national day of mourning and most cities issued proclamations closing places of business.

Government offices, schools, banks and most commercial establishments were closed.

Most of the theatres in the country are remaining dark until 6 p.m.

Canadian Broadcasting Corporation networks went off the air after broadcasting the funeral service and the national memorial service at Ottawa. The closedown is the first of its kind since the funeral of King George V in 1936. Private radio stations were not required to close down.

St. Thomas, Ontario, halted its traffic for two minutes, starting at 11 a.m.

British Columbia, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland are observing the day of mourning as if it were a statutory holiday with all non-essential industries closed.

Most cities held civic memorial services.

Toronto held its service in Maple Leaf Gardens with a capacity of 18,000.

Whole World Mourns King

LONDON (CP)—Millions throughout the world echoed the throngs of mourners in Britain and Canada on the occasion of the funeral of King George VI.

In scores of capitals, from the scorching deserts of Africa to the wintry regions of the northern hemisphere, special memorial services were held.

Bugles sounded taps, flags flew at half staff and radio stations closed down or devoted broadcasting to the funeral ceremonies at London and Windsor.

At Washington, D.C., President and Mrs. H. S. Truman attended a special cathedral service of mourning. Other government officials were present as well as diplomatic representatives of many nations.

Australia and New Zealand observed two minutes' silence. The official day of mourning in these realms of Commonwealth will be Sunday.

South Africa had a full day of mourning similar to Canada.

Prime Minister Nehru of India led a service in the Anglican Church of the Redemption at New Delhi.

Question of US Liquor Deferred

VICTORIA (CP)—The question of the sale of United States wines and spirits in British Columbia liquor stores will not be taken up during the forthcoming session of the Legislature.

Attorney General Gordon Wismer has told the United States consul he "had not had the opportunity" to discuss the matter with the Board of Liquor Commissioners.

Prince Rupert Pays Homage at Crowded Service of Tribute

"I said to the man who stood at the gate of the year, 'Give me a light that I may tread safely into the unknown,' and he replied, 'Go out into the darkness and put your hand into the hand of God. That shall be to you better than light and safer than the known way.'"

More than 1000 Prince Rupert citizens thronged their way into the auditorium of the Civic Centre this morning to pay their last homage to the late King George VI while Britons attended his funeral in the Motherland.

Tornado Kills Four Persons

NASHVILLE—Four persons are dead and one hundred injured as a result of a tornado which swept four states yesterday.

The states were Tennessee, Alabama, Missouri and Arkansas.

The wind was so violent as to carry loaded freight cars off the tracks.

In one small town 150 houses were damaged.

Scientists to Watch Eclipse

KHARTOUM, Sudan—Astronomers and scientists are assembling here with their equipment for a total eclipse of the sun which will be visible February 25 on which day the sun for a space of three minutes will be totally obscured by the shadow of the moon. Valuable data is expected to be gathered.

The eclipse will not be visible in North America.

Wet Snow Makes Radar Limited

OTTAWA—The National Research Council admits the ineffectiveness of radar equipment when wet snow is prevalent. In navigation, the visibility of radar is seriously limited when there is wet snow. It could be almost useless in narrow waters.

Tenders Called For Fifty Low Rental Houses in City

Tenders are now being called by the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation for 50 houses at Prince Rupert under the federal, provincial, municipal low rental housing scheme. The tenders will close March 18. Plans, specifications and forms of tender are available for inspection at the office of the Chamber of Commerce in Prince Rupert.

There are three sites—Westview, Sixth Avenue and Eleventh Avenue—with 22 houses in one group, 16 in another and 12 in the third. Contractors may tender on one or more of the groups.

Calling for the tenders follows a recent visit of engineers who finally approved the sites and checked on the availability of services.

CITY ASKS REVISION The city has asked Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation engineers to check the ratio of 15 two-bedroom to 35 three-bedroom houses planned for the project.

The housing committee feels the larger units should be more evenly balanced with the smaller homes from a standpoint of requirement and of cost.

Plans submitted to the city were for two two-bedroom homes with basement; 13 two-bedroom homes without basement; six three-bedroom homes with basement, and 29 three-bedroom homes without basement.

Four houses, facing Atlin Avenue where grounds fall away too low for sewer connection, would have to be served by septic tanks.

Requiescat in Pace

WE PAY final tribute today to a great and good man who in his lofty position was personification of the highest ideals of public and private life, a monarch who conducted himself with the principles of serving rather than ruling.

As they bury King George the Good today, we think, however, beyond the personal aspect. In our mourning tribute we pay respect not only to the King as an individual, whom we do well to honor in the fullest degree, but to a tradition which we hold dear and a symbolism which binds us together. Perhaps no other custom than that of clinging to the democratic monarchy could more effectively maintain our unity.

While it is fitting that we should mourn with restraint and respect we need not lose ourselves in sorrow or impose our grief unduly upon others.

A good King is gone—long before the allotted span—but the world and we are the better for his reign and the example of this quiet, unassuming and dignified man of the highest royal rank.

He was the King of Canada and the tribute we paid him in Prince Rupert today was as sincere and as heartfelt as anywhere within the realm.

In due course, we shall salute with joy and enthusiasm a beautiful and fine young woman who we know shall exemplify the same attributes and practice the same principles as did her lamented father.

We mourn the loss but we should not be un-mindful of the gift which we had in His Majesty's life and the promise of his successor whom, even here in Canada, we have come to know and love so well.

He has been laid away among his ancestors. His sufferings are over. His record is untarnished. We can take consolation from all these facts and be glad that, while the man is gone, the great things for which he stood remain for us to honor and maintain.

The good man does live after him. History shall record much good in the reign and record of George VI.

May he rest in peace!

LETTERBOX

EDITORIALS APPROVED

Editor,
Daily News,

I too would like to say thank you, Mr. Editor, for your splendid editorial on Scripture in the schools of February 6. I do feel that we who believe the Precious Word of God to be inspired and have proved to our own soul's happiness, peace and satisfaction that "The preaching of The Cross is, to them that believe, The Power of God unto Salvation." We have been far too slack in letting the unbelievers of this day and age know in no uncertain terms that those who reject God have nothing but a blank to look forward to in this world, and never ending torment in the next. We read in the Bible: "The wicked shall be turned into hell and all nations that forget God." There is not the slightest doubt but that Canada or any other country which does not base all they say and do on and endeavor to live according to The Word of God, will sooner or later come under the Judgment of God and suffer unless they turn to Him in true repentance.

I also agree heartily with the editorial in Tuesday's paper on The Home. It is good to the last word. I would appreciate it, Mr. Editor, if you have the room to print the following Summary of The Word I found years ago and put in the front of my Bible.

THE HOLY BIBLE

The Word of God.
"This Book contains the Mind of God. The state of man, The Way of Salvation. The Doom of the sinners, and the Happiness of Believers. Its doctrines are holy. Its Precepts are binding. Its stories are True. Its decisions are Immutible. Read it to be wise. Believe it to be safe, and practice it to be Holy. It contains Light to direct you, food to support you, and comfort to cheer you. It is the traveller's map, the pilgrim's staff, the pilot's compass, the soldier's sword, and the Christian's Charter. Here Paradise is restored, Heaven opened, and the gates of hell disclosed. Christ is its Grand Object, our good its design, and the Glory of God its end. It should fill the memory, rule the heart, and guide the feet. Read it slowly, frequently, prayerfully. It is a mine of wealth, a paradise of glory, a river of pleasure. It is given you in life, will be opened at the judgment and remembered forever. It involves the highest responsibility, will reward the laborer, and condemn all who trifle with its contents."

Parliament Quiet Until King Buried

Many Important Matters Coming Up Next Week

By Alan Harvey
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (C)—The events set in train by the King's death have imposed a temporary stillness on the Houses of Parliament, leaving the rival parties frozen in stances of mutual hostility.

The King's death not only, as in Prime Minister Winston Churchill's phrase, "stilled the clatter and traffic of 20th-century life," but also forced a postponement of party strife at a time when Labor seemed set to offer stern parliamentary opposition.

With the King's funeral today, normal work in the House of Commons is not expected to be resumed until next Tuesday. The unexpected loss of parliamentary time will have the effect of telescoping into a few weeks matters that would ordinarily require longer discussion. As previously announced, the budget will be brought down March 4.

In the brief interval between next Tuesday and March 4 the Commons therefore will have to take up such unfinished business as the foreign affairs debate, which adjourned with a Labor motion of censure still on the books, and a number of government bills which have been published but not yet discussed.

One of the most controversial is the National Health Service bill, which seeks to put an annual ceiling of £400,000,000 on the country's "free" health service.

The additional pressure exerted by the abbreviation of the parliamentary time table may well intensify the controversy expected to develop within the next few weeks. Since the Conservative victory in last October's general election, Britain has experienced what amounts to a political armistice. The Conservatives, back in office after six years on the sidelines, moved cautiously at first and Labor used the same period to orient itself with the unfamiliar role of an opposition party.

LEFT TURN

Now the two contestants seem ready to renew the fray, once the proper solemnities have been observed.

A few guesses can be made about the coming conduct of the parties. The Conservative strategy seems to be to provoke as little partisan opposition as possible, at the same time not shrinking from unpopular policies. As for Labor, the trend will almost certainly be to the left.

Where Rests the Throne

IN THE tragic thirties I heard a North American intellectual blast the traditionalism of the British, which he blamed for stalling human progress:

"If Britain were to go communist tomorrow," he said, half laughing, half angry, "it would be the blinking lords and dukes who would become commissars."

I figure he was half right. For I honestly believe that even if Britain staged the most drastic and complete social revolution the British throne would still remain, secure in the hearts of the people.

The British have a deep instinct for historical continuity. They sense that the throne is the living, vital core of that feeling. No ruddy revolutionary could be dense enough not to see that it is a priceless national, human asset.

THE YEAR Laurier came to power in Canada, the first Chamberlain was colonial secretary, and strong man, in the then British government. But like many other rich Liberals of that time, Joe Chamberlain was an outspoken republican—an advocate of abolition of the monarchy!

You won't find many republicans in the British Labor party today, and I doubt that even in the minuscule British Communist party there are many genuine anti-monarchists, notwithstanding the foreign-inspired "line" in the party press.

Part of this remarkable change was due to political evolution. The Liberals, under Asquith, Lloyd George and Churchill, won Britain's last great constitutional fight around 1910. The House of Lords had vetoed the famous Lloyd George budget, which was the thin edge of what later became the welfare state. King George V was reluctant to accept the advice of his ministers, and to appoint enough new peers to override the Tory veto. But the moment the people spoke, in an election, and the principle was conceded the throne became the servant of the people, and the people were no longer subject to the throne, save only as it could hold their affections.

THE UNIQUE PLACE of the British throne today rests on the shared trials and ordeals of two world wars, and the continued process of paying for them.

Britain's most terrible test of all time was that which she faced in 1939. It was above all a moral test. The weak and wobbly government of the day did not want to stand up to Hitler, but the people felt in their bones that they must. They finally forced this government to act.

By one of those miracles of history, the most inarticulate of all British Monarchs spoke right from and for the soul of all his people when he told the world:

"And I said to the man who stood at the gate of the year: 'Give me a light that I may tread safely into the unknown.'"

"And he replied: 'Go out into the darkness and put thine hand into the Hand of God. This shall be better than the light and safer than the known way.'"

That is exactly what Britain did do. The British world kingdom stood, alone on this earth, and because it did so stand humanity came through the darkest valley-of-the-shadow that there had ever been in all history.

The British don't talk about this, but they are still paying the price. But they don't forget those who stood with them, either. They don't forget that the now-departed King and the new Queen were there, like the humblest of their fellows.

Mrs. Edward J. Mohr of Madison, Wisconsin, is a visitor in the city for a week with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Earl Becker. For the past six months Mrs. Mohr has been at Wistaria during the long illness of her mother, the late Mrs. Edward J. Mohr, who passed away recently.

though not necessarily as far as rebel leader Aneurin (Nye) Bevan and his followers would like. Such a shift may not be of great significance. Parties in opposition always tend to be tugged towards the left. During its period in office, the Labor government was always to the right of the party as a whole. In opposition, the movement to the left may merely be a natural readjustment.

There have been colorful reports of a split within the Labor ranks, of a weakening of trade-union opposition to the Bevan group and of an all-out bid by the "Bevanites" to capture the party leadership.

It is this correspondent's guess, based partly on conversations with a former Labor minister, that the reports can be largely discounted, and that Bevan is no nearer to being party leader than he was, say, three years ago.

Geoff Hill Leaves City

In announcing his departure from the city, Junior Chamber of Commerce President Geoff Hill, at a Rotary luncheon yesterday, called friendship "the priceless heritage of Prince Rupert."

Mr. Hill said he would be leaving within three weeks to take a position with Canada Life Insurance Company and would be working out of Prince George.

"I arrived here three years ago yesterday," said Mr. Hill. "I have made more friends in that time than in the preceding 23 years."

"I shall always take with me the friendship of Prince Rupert." He gave biographical account of his life, but said he would not embarrass the old men of the Rotary Club with the work of the younger men of the Jaycees." Rotarian President Fred Scadden retorted:

"You must have had too close association with the Gyros. I might say, too, that within the last few months we have presented two baby cups to our members and are thinking of competing with the Gyros in this respect."

Mr. Hill is serving his second term as Jaycees president. He said he resigned at an executive meeting last night. He plans to go to Toronto for a course sponsored by the insurance company.

Expert Male Cooks Leap Year Targets

VANCOUVER—Marriageable young women conscious this is leap year are eyeing a special extension course at the University of British Columbia. The course is producing a self-sufficient male who can whip up an appetizing meal over a hot-plate without batting an eye.

The University's home economics department started the course so that students could learn to make themselves a low-cost, nutritious meal. More than half the students are men who don't like to pay restaurant prices.

D. Charlotte Black, head of the home economics department, already visualizes a wife telephoning from her bridge game and telling hubby to get busy and whip up a good meal.

Memorial at Borden Street

A special assembly was held by the pupils and staff of Borden Street School on Thursday afternoon as a memorial to the late King George VI.

The service began with the singing of "O Canada" and the repetition of the Lord's Prayer. The choir sang "O God, Our Help in Ages Past." Then pupils of Grade Six told at some length in their own words why the service was being held and mentioned the actions of the late King that so endeared him to all his subjects. The recitation finished with the words "The King is dead" being intoned quietly.

The sound of the pipes was heard in the distance and then

Piper William Mackay playing the age-old Scottish lament, "The Flowers of the Forest." The music died away and the pupils marched slowly out of the school. Then rang out the "Long Live the Queen" and the Grade Six pupils, and the money concluded with the singing of "God Save the King." An appropriately dramatic picture of the late King was nently displayed.

Top Wrestling Show Billed For Centre

Grunts and groans will make an appearance here again this month-end when two of the world's top wrestlers stage a two-day exhibition bout at the Civic Centre.

And there'll be women wrestlers, too, says Director Jack Stirn, who recently completed arrangements for the show with Vancouver promoter Cliff Parker.

Main event next February 29 and March 1 will feature Australian heavyweight champion Jack O'Reilly against American champion Andy Tremaine. Ginger O'Hara and Kuly Marden groan together in the feature attraction as the lightweights meet in five three-minute rounds.

Preliminaries will present local members of the Civic Centre judo club.

Outstanding Sportsman

Speed Demon Voted Best in Britain

LONDON (AP)—Geoffrey Duke, 28-year-old demon of the international motorcycle speedways, has been voted Britain's outstanding sportsman of 1951, in a national ballot conducted by the Sporting Record, a London weekly.

Holder of two world's speed titles, Duke polled 61,930 votes, nearly twice as many as any previous winner of the contest. Trailing by 9,720 votes in the runner-up slot was dusky Randolph Turpin, who captured the imagination of the British public in his two championship bouts with Sugar Ray Robinson.

Reg Harris, world's professional sprint cycling champion, and winner of the award in 1949 and 1950, came third. Denis Compton, installed sportsman of the year in 1947 and 1948, Gordon Richards, champion jockey and Roger Bannister, Britain's great miller, were among others well up in the running for the 1951 award.

Duke, who finished 12th in the 1950 balloting, scored an unprecedented run of personal triumphs in native and international competition last year. His imposing list of major victories included the following: Isle of Man senior and junior championships; Ulster and Belgian senior and junior Grand Prix; Grand Prix des Nations (junior); Dutch Grand Prix (senior); and French Grand Prix (junior).

A. E. Smith left on today's plane for a business trip to Sandspit.

Railway Gives Service Plus

MONCTON, N.B.—At least one Prince Edward Island traveller is thoroughly convinced of the efficiency of modern transportation.

On his way to Sackville, New Brunswick, by car to catch a Canadian National Railway train, he stopped off at a store to make a purchase. On arrival at Sackville, he went in to the station to send a telegram and the operator asked him if he had his ticket. On searching his pockets the passenger found he had lost it.

"The conductor on your train has the ticket and will give it to you when you board," the operator told him.

The passenger was dumbfounded until the operator explained. The ticket had been found on the floor of the store where he had made his purchase and the storekeeper had turned it over to the agent. The agent had passed it on to the conductor and had wired Sackville.

"That is service plus," the relieved passenger said.

Snow Back In Prince Rupert

Prince Rupert people, who felt they had been more than generously treated in the way of snowfall during January and were glad to see the last of it, awoke to another surprise today. There was another two inches on the ground and trees and hills again had their wreathe shroud.

One inch of snow was officially recorded at the Digby Island meteorological station.

Possibility of further wet snow flurries was seen with a weather forecast that predicted westerly wind of fifteen miles an hour and also suggested scattered showers.

The weather forecast for the day predicted little change in existing conditions.

Asbestos Town of 500 in Making in Cassiar Area

Two hundred and fifty men will be heading north this spring to the McDames Creek area in the Cassiar district where they will be engaged in mill and other construction work for a new asbestos mine. A modern town of possibly 500 population is expected to be eventually established there.

Production of a high grade of asbestos will commence this fall. Two million dollars worth a year is expected to be turned out.

In the meantime, the mine workings are open stripping. Later production will be at greater depth.

The product will be trucked out to the Alaska Highway at Watson Lake and taken to Whitehorse or Carcross for shipment to Skagway over the Yukon and White Pass route and down coast by ship.

Reserve Forces Seen Important

TORONTO (AP)—Speaking before the Empire Club here yesterday, Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, Canada's chief of staff, stressed the importance of the reserve forces. Their importance was equal, he said, to that of the active forces as a deterrent to possible attack by any enemy.

BARGEES DWINDLE

LIVERPOOL, England (Reuters)—The older generation of bargees who man the barges on Britain's canals is dying off and no one is taking their place. British transport officials, faced with a shortage of recruits for work on barges, said "once it was the rule for sons to follow their fathers, but now the younger men prefer regular jobs ashore."

Turks Seek Forecasting 'Quake Aid

INSTANBUL—(Reuters)—In the aftermath of the Jan. 3 earthquake which killed 94 persons and injured 257, Turkey is calling on scientific help to find out where future quakes are likely to strike so that her people can build their homes, offices and factories some place else.

The new research is being undertaken with the help of the United Nations educational, scientific and cultural organization which has sent to Turkey 47-year-old Gaston Grenet, a French seismologist, to set up three new earthquake observation stations.

He arrived just after the Jan. 3 earthquake near Erzurum in eastern Turkey, in which thousands of people were rendered homeless and even those whose houses still stood were afraid to sleep in them, for fear of additional quakes.

In fact there was another minor quake in the same area Jan. 18. Many of the homeless are living temporarily in tents which cannot be properly heated. Grenet said in an interview he thinks it will be possible to establish scientifically the areas of Turkey where earthquakes are likely to occur, or "the most dangerous areas at any rate."

Earthquakes are frequent in Turkey. Usually they are just strong enough to make you feel "uncomfortable" as the ground rumbles beneath your feet. But every now and then there comes a slightly worse one and occasionally there is one such as the earthquake at Erzincan, also in eastern Turkey, in December, 1937, when 23,000 persons were killed.

Grenet said: "We shall install three new seismographic stations which, with the existing station at Kandilli, will provide stations at all the four corners of the land."

The data they supply will be examined in the light of worldwide records at central seismological stations at Strasbourg, France, and Pasadena, Calif.

Grenet himself helped to invent new recording apparatus which will be installed in the new stations.

Mr. Heinsite got rocked back on his heels when he started telling Mr. Abel how today's hand should be defended.

Mr. Dale pointed out a serious defect in the way Mr. Heinsite played his own cards. The entire discussion then died a sudden death.

Mr. Dale opened the jack of clubs which was taken by Mr. Abel with the ace. The queen of hearts was returned and Mr. Heinsite was in with the ace. He promptly cashed the king of hearts. Next he led the king and queen of clubs, discarding a small diamond from the board.

Then came the ace and king of diamonds, followed by a third diamond which was ruffed with dummy's seven of hearts. Thoughtlessly, Mr. Abel over-ruffed and after that Mr. Heinsite was able to ruff his last diamond in dummy. He lost one spade trick but easily made his contract.

In his usual superior fashion he pointed out that he could have been defeated if Mr. Abel had not over-ruffed dummy on third lead of diamonds. In other words, he would have been left in dummy with no way to get out short of letting Mr. Abel in with a spade. On taking that spade trick, Mr. Abel could have led the last heart off the board and prevented Mr. Heinsite from ruffing his fourth diamond.

All this was very true. But old Mr. Dale, who was tired of these lectures, came to Mr. Abel's defense.

"Why not analyze your own play first, Heinsite?" he said. "It was silly to cash your second heart at the third trick. You needed it to get back to your hand."

After winning the second trick with the ace of hearts, just cash your two top clubs, ditching a diamond from dummy. Next play the two top diamonds and ruff a diamond. If Abel over-ruffs here, there is nothing he can return which will beat you. If he doesn't, you have the king of trumps to get back to your hand to lead your last diamond and ruff it. You lose only a

Coronation Is Solemn Occasion

By NICK BARKER

LONDON (AP)—The coronation of 26-year-old Queen Elizabeth II in Westminster Abbey will be a most solemn religious ceremony as well as a triumphal state occasion.

The date for the coronation is not yet announced.

The ceremony itself is an event of strength, lasting several hours in its intricate ceremonial. Queen Elizabeth will be crowned in three sets of robes: a crown of state on entering Westminster Abbey, the coronation vestments with a gazing imperial mantle of gold and a robe of royal purple worn in the procession into the abbey.

The Archbishop of Canterbury will crown the Queen on her head, and the palms of her hands will be anointed with oil from a golden crown.

Any head anointed with oil as kings, priests, and shepherds were anointed.

Before the Queen is crowned she will take her coronation oath and her people according to their laws and customs.

At the moment of the coronation, Queen Elizabeth will be crowned. The Dean of Westminster will carry the crown which the Archbishop will place on her head.

At that instant, the entire assembly will shout: "God Save the Queen." The peers and the heralds of arms will don their coronets, trumpets will sound, and the great guns at the Tower of London will boom.

After the crowning the Archbishop pronounces a benediction, the Sovereign takes her throne, and the Archbishop delivers an exhortation.

Then princes of the blood and peers of the realm come forward to kneel before the queen, touching her crown and kissing her left cheek.

Another moment of drama follows this homage. Drums beat, trumpets sound, and the assembly shouts: "God Save the Queen. Long Live the Queen! May the Queen Live Forever."

The young Queen's final solemn moment will be at the high altar of the abbey where she will take communion. Then, amid a flash of naked swords, she will join a triumphant procession from the abbey.

At that instant, the entire assembly will shout: "God Save the Queen." The peers and the heralds of arms will don their coronets, trumpets will sound, and the great guns at the Tower of London will boom.

Raising More Food Held British Shortage Cure

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON

Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Lord Lovat of Beaulieu, one of Scotland's leading landowners and cattle-breeders, believes he has a solution for Britain's acute food-shortage problem.

Speaking in a House of Lords debate, he suggested that as a starter the people themselves should concentrate on producing more home-grown food from nearly 20,000,000 acres still to be developed in the United Kingdom.

But to get back on its agricultural feet the country primarily needs a bold, long-term development policy.

Lord Lovat, a wartime commando, who controls about 190,000 acres of farmland, mainly in Inverness-shire, aroused considerable curiosity in the chamber when he placed on the seat beside him a plate containing a pair of rowelled spurs. Later, he disclosed they had been brought along to spur the government into action, if necessary.

Too much money had already been squandered, the Scottish peer charged, on overseas developments such as the £30,000,000 West Africa peanuts scheme and a costly egg venture in Gambia. He also told of a plan to produce shark's fin soup for rich Chinese. This was a commodity, he said, that apparently was no longer popular in Communist China, but it had cost the taxpayer approximately £500,000 before operations were closed down.

All this money, he contended, could have been spent to far greater advantage by helping the United Kingdom to become more self-reliant on her agricultural resources.

CHIEF INGREDIENTS

The British people, he said, had been told it would be a comparatively easy matter to go overseas for the purpose of their meat requirements. That no longer held true. Supplies in some of the major exporting countries, like Argentina and Australia, were tightening up, while the general rise in production costs was shooting prices sky high.

"In spite of these facts," Lord Lovat continued, "there still seems to be a school of thought which considers that it might be possible to make bargains with the New World and Australasia to get beef at cheaper rates. In my view that is entirely wrong."

To redress prevailing shortages, Lord Lovat outlined a program he said he would recommend to the government as a means of implementing a long-term development policy.

The chief ingredients of his proposal: (1) Review of existing subsidies; (2) Restoration of plowing grants on hill and mar-

To Drop Co-Insurance?

VICTORIA (CP)—Removal of co-insurance from British Columbia's hospital insurance plan is one of the important recommendations of the special committee of the Legislature which has been studying the whole problem of hospital insurance during the past year, the Victoria Times reported Thursday. The committee report will be tabled in the Legislature next week.

The Times said that funds lost from co-insurance would be made by a complete overhaul of the administrative set-up designed to slash costs to the bone.

Co-insurance was imposed last year as one of the provisions to bolster up hospital insurance finances.

ginal farms; (3) Immediate survey of the country's freight rates structure and easing of charges in areas where intensified production could best be effected; (4) A program providing for winter keep of livestock; (5) Reduction of state-owned land so that the problem of production may be tackled by the farmers themselves instead of government officials.

"As a farming community we are inarticulate," Lord Lovat said. "Yet if we had only the slightest confidence, if we had over a reasonable period an assurance of guaranteed prices and some form or hope of a policy which did not change every five years with every government, we would gladly launch into a full-scale development program."
