BUCKINGHAM PALACE, chief residence of British sovereigns, is in the heart of London. It dates to 1703 when it was built by the Duke of Buckingham. George III bought it in 1761 and it reconstructed in classic style between 1825 and 1836, and has been added to since. In 1837 it was considerably altered by Queen Victoria. This aerial view shows some of the 43 acres surrounding the castle and Regent Park in the background.

City Celebration Begins With Most Colorful Parade in History

Thousands of Prince Rupert and hundreds of visitors yesterday despite threatening rain joined in the Coronation Day celebration, the most colorful parade in the city's history.

Granting a special favor, the mayor relented a misty day just before parade time 10 a.m. and the 10-block line of marching and floats completed its tour of the city without incident.

Winning floats were followed by the Port Edward Japanese national scene with a band of Japanese cherry blossom and costumed boys and the most outstanding float of the parade, it was said, taken 30 women 10 hours to complete the decorations, featuring of which were the cherry blossoms.

SALMON

Industrial floats shared the $300 in prizes were Groceries, second prize; and Workers, third prize. National and institutional floats were headed by the Kinsmen, second, and Legion Auxiliary.

Decorated car award was won by the LOBA; the novelty car for its "Barber Shop" and the Sons of Norway won the award for being original.

BY CROWNED

entire day's program, began with the crowning of the Kinsmen's May Queen at 11 a.m. and concluded with a fireworks display and three floats, "went off with a bang," said F. E. Anfield, chairman of the coronation committee chair-

I want to pay tribute to the chairman and sub-chairman and their committees who were responsible for this wonderful show.

think we can safely say we had the biggest celebration in this city's history and it was successful only because of the wonderful co-operation of everyone," Mr. Anfield said.

Worship Mayor Harold read the Coronation Oath and pledged the loyalty to Queen Elizabeth II on the Court House square.

was supplied by three bands—the Greenville and the local native bands and the band—who marched with the parade and later fell in line with the other uniformed groups on the Court House square, and the Rotary Mixed choir.

TWO CORONATION BABIES BORN IN HOSPITAL HERE

Two babies were born in Prince Rupert General Hospital yesterday—Coronation Day—for a memorable start in life.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. John Moore of Kincolith at 7:55 p.m., and a son, at 1 p.m., to Mr. and Mrs. William Stephens of Greenville.

New Zealander Reaches Top Of Towering Mount Everest

KATMANDU, Nepal—Britain's 13 climbers, relaxing on conquered Mount Everest, solemnly drank a loyal toast to the Queen Tuesday while the world outside hailed their feat as a symbol of a new Elizabethan age.

Waiting for them here is a message from the Queen herself, congratulating their "great achievement" in reaching the summit of the 29,002-foot peak.

The Queen's message read: "Please convey to Colonel Hunt and all members of the British Expedition my warmest congratulations on the great achievement in reaching the summit of Mount Everest. Signed Elizabeth R."

News that E. P. Hillary, 34, New Zealand beekeeper, and famed Sherpa guide Bhutia Tensing, 39, had reached the top of the world four days ago was flashed to London through diplomatic radio channels to reach the Queen before her Coronation.

Death Claims General Thacker

VICTORIA—Maj.-Gen. Herbert C. Thacker, 82, former Canadian chief of staff, died here Tuesday.

General Thacker retired as chief of staff in 1929.

Chamber To Probe Elevator

Present storage facilities of the government grain elevator here will be investigated by the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce, and, if found inadequate, a recommendation will be made for new construction.

Chamber president Orme Stuart at Monday night's meeting asked the grain committee headed by Don Ritchie to continue the investigation and return a report to the executive.

Mr. Ritchie suggested that certain delays in loading would be caused by lack of storage facilities. Present capacity is rated at 1,250,000 bushels.

Mr. Ritchie said that other physical facilities at the elevator were "very good," the only delay coming during a few hours when exceptional high tides—over 17 feet—are experienced.

The elevator provides 1,000 feet of dockage, allowing two freighters to dock at once for simultaneous loading. Depth of the water at low tide is 45 feet. With three belts operating, 48,000 tons can be loaded in an eight-hour period, said Mr. Ritchie, manager of a stevedoring company.

Meanwhile, the Prince Rupert elevator is headed for a record shipping year.

SHIPMENTS UP

To date, more than 5,500,000 bushels of barley and wheat have been shipped this year which included nine cargoes of barley and a delight of wheat, seven of the latter having been loaded here last month. This compares with about 8,000,000 bushels shipped all last year.

Since shipping commenced some 16,000,000 bushels have entered and left the elevator.

Outside the Chamber of Commerce, shipping officials consider present rate of shipping will continue for some time.

"There is more grain on the prairies than ever before and all ports of export will be taxed to capacity," one official forecasted.

Until little more than a year ago, when shipping from this elevator was resumed after a 20-year lapse, Prince Rupert was considered as an "emergency" port only. Since then, 37 deep-sea ships have entered harbor here.

Effect of this added shipping business has been considerable, providing a boost to waterfront business generally when activity in the fishing industry was at its lowest ebb for years.

THE QUEEN smiles as she poses for a profile study in the Green Drawing Room of Buckingham Palace. The diamond diadem, which is of great age, was reset for Queen Victoria.

'I Thank You All From a Full Heart'

LONDON—Queen Elizabeth, in a speech broadcast to the Commonwealth and Empire after her Coronation yesterday, said:

"When I spoke to you last at Christmas, I asked you whatever your religion to pray for me on the day of my Coronation—to pray God would give me wisdom and strength to carry out the promises I should then be making.

"Throughout this memorable day I have been uplifted and sustained by the knowledge of your prayers and thoughts were with me.

"I have been aware all the time that my people, spread far and wide throughout every continent and ocean in the world, were united to support me in the task to which I have now been dedicated with such solemnity.

"Many thousands of you came to London from all parts of the Commonwealth and Empire to join in the ceremony, but I have been conscious too of the millions of others who have shared in it by means of wireless or television in their homes. All of you, near and far, have been united in one purpose. It is hard for me to find words in which to tell you of the strength which this knowledge has given me.

"The ceremonies you have seen today are ancient and some of their origins are veiled in mists of the past, but their spirit and their meaning shine through the ages, never more brightly than now.

"I have in sincerity pledged myself to your service as so many of you are pledged to mine. Throughout all my life and with all my heart I shall strive to be worthy of your trust.

"In this resolve I have my husband to support me. He shares all my ideals and all my affection for you.

"Although my experience is short and the tasks so new, I have in my parents and grandparents an example I can follow with certainty and confidence.

"There is also this: I have behind me not only the splendid traditions and annals of more than a thousand years but the living strength and majesty of the Commonwealth and Empire of societies old and new, of lands and races different in history and origins but all by God's will united in spirit and mind.

"Therefore, I am sure that this, my coronation, is not a symbol of a power and a splen-

Millions Cheer Royal Procession

Queen Mother Weeps Silently While Watching Ceremony

LONDON.—Elizabeth II, a picture of majestic serenity, received the crown of St. Edward and ascended the throne of her ancestors in Westminster Abbey, then rode in triumph yesterday through the rain-drenched streets of London to the cheers of millions.

Signal for a galvanic surge of feeling among the Queen's 600,000 subjects was the crowning shortly after midday. Amid taut silence in the ancient Abbey came the ritual moment the world had waited for.

Elizabeth, beautiful, regal and outwardly serene, was seated in King Edward's throne. Her robe for that part of the ritual was of gold cloth. A soft yellow light encircled the throne and bathed her cheeks in gold.

Most Rev. Geoffrey Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury and Primate of All England, raised his arms high and placed the seven-pound crown on his sovereign's brow.

Three tense seconds ticked away—then in one of the great moments of the complex 24-hour ceremony, the hush was broken.

Peers and peeresses put on their coronets and caps of estate in a flurry of movement, the congregation joyously shouted "God Save the Queen," guns sounded from afar, bells chimed and trumpets blared.

As the Abbey rang to shouts of the 7,500 who witnessed the ceremony, a mighty roar went up from more than 1,000,000 persons in the streets outside.

Millions Watch on Television

Millions more watched on television in Britain and on the continent, and sounds were carried around the world by radio.

It was the crowning moment of a day of demonstrations that sometimes touched on hysteria, a day in which crowds estimated at 3,000,000 lined the 5 1/2-mile Coronation route, undaunted by soaking rain, cheering the royal procession from the Abbey to Buckingham Palace, watching Canadian and British jets fly overhead, and then tearing off the emotional lid with fireworks, barbecues and midnight celebrations.

There were 7,000 casualties amount the throngs along the route, many of whom had been waiting for more than 48 hours.

In the Abbey for the high points of the ceremony—the anointing, crowning and enthronement—was four-year-old Prince Charles, who watched the spectacle with wondering eyes.

Bubbling Charles was on his best behavior. Only once did his grandmother, Queen Mother Elizabeth, have to caution him about sucking his thumb.

The Queen Mother wept silently as she watched the ceremony, and perhaps recalled the day in 1937 when she participated in another crowning with her husband, the late George VI.

Margaret Pensive Throughout

Princess Margaret was pensive throughout. She prayed for "Lillibet" and, like her mother, wept quietly toward the end of the ceremony.

This Coronation, amid dusky brown old stones of the Abbey, was all the pageantry of 1,000 years of history unrolled with the efficiency of 20th century planning.

It was one of the few in the annals of monarchy to go from start to finish without a single hitch, fumble or stuttered word. Elizabeth herself was perfect in performance. She was beautiful and serious and, above all, confident in everything she did from the moment she set foot on the blue processional carpet of the Abbey till the time when 2 1/2 hours later, she left with the crown on her head.

Toward the end of the ceremony, she appeared tired and near tears, but when the grand procession back to the Palace began she was smiling radiantly.

Later, in a broadcast, she thanked millions of her subjects around the world for prayers she said they gave her on this day and she said:

Declaration of Our Hopes

"This, my coronation, is not the symbol of a power and splendour that are gone but a declaration of our hopes for the future."

She pledged herself to strive always to be worthy of the trust placed in her.

Nearly 12 hours before her broadcast, the Queen left Buckingham Palace and rode in the ancient gold coach of kings with the Duke of Edinburgh.

She smiled and waved continually to excited throngs along the route, a mile and a half to the Abbey. If she were nervous, she gave no sign of it.

Elderly Man Hurt in Fire

An early morning fire today destroyed a shack on Ninth Avenue West, sent an elderly man to hospital with burns and made a second man homeless.

In Prince Rupert General Hospital in "satisfactory" condition is 68-year-old Hunka Wasye, apparently sleeping when fire of unknown origin broke out in his two-room cabin.

Fire Chief Earl Becker said the blaze all but erased the cabin, leaving a few walls standing. The fire was out of control when firemen answered the call at 2 a.m.

Ore Refining Plant Planned In Northern B.C.

TORONTO (CP)—Plans to carry ore from all over the world for refining in northern British Columbia and southern Yukon were outlined today at the annual meeting of Ventures Limited, holding and development company.

A company spokesman said plans call for completion of the first stage of a multi-million-dollar power development in 1955.

Quebec Metallurgical Industries Limited, in which Ventures holds a 13.1 per cent interest, will run the project. Five survey parties are hunting for an appropriate power site.

Eddie Garner Lands 38-lb. Spring Salmon

Heaviest fish so far entered in the Rupert Rod & Gun Club salmon derby is a 38-pounder weighed in Sunday by Eddie Garner.

Garner hooked onto the lively Spring near Squadaree, fishing along the Tree Knobs rocks. It took an hour and 20 minutes to land the fish, says Garner, who was fishing from the Ross A. skippered by Jimmy Ross.

Garner's entry is the only fish weighed in this week, the fifth week of the derby.

That Was It

IT WAS a day of ceremony, emotion and symbolism so strong that possibly never again in the lives of most of us will its equal be experienced.

It was a day of magnificence, expression and purpose. As the tremendous drama progressed, the effect was overwhelming even to the remote radio listeners whose imagination had to supply the splendor that others beheld.

It was a day of friendship and, more deeply, of devotion. Those who heard the clear voice of the Queen could not help but love her. Gentle, earnest and brave, it carried a message of hope and dedication—pray for me and I will serve you. Those who heard it were moved to do as she asked and, in the remarkable way of humans, felt closer to each other for so doing.

It was a day, above all, of pride. The shining pageantry shed a little glisten on everyone. We were proud not only of the Queen and the Commonwealth, but of Canada, Prince Rupert and the citizens of Prince Rupert. There was pride in the step of those who marched yesterday and in the expression of those who watched. The pride was richly earned because Prince Rupert did well.

Queen Elizabeth has never been here, but she was with us yesterday and we with her. She was surely as proud as we were.

That was it, we say, but that was not all. Although the pageantry is gone, the meaning remains. She is a Queen, and best of all, she is our Queen. In her high and lofty position that still brings her so close to me, may God bless her.

LETTERBOX

Editor,
The Daily News:
Did you see the parade yesterday? I did. The leading float swung around the corner. I stopped agape. I rubbed my eyes. I looked again. There she was: "Old Glory" fluttering in the breeze. But there is another flag, lower, almost tucked under a sailor's arm, at rest under the protection of the bravely flying Stars and Stripes. Surely it cannot be. It is. The white ensign of the British Navy, of the Canadian Navy. Surely I have missed something. I looked ahead. Perhaps somewhere far in advance was the Red Ensign of Canada, or even the Union Jack! Nothing—

Then a horrid thought struck me. Perhaps those warships in the harbor were not friendly ships. Perhaps the country had been taken over. No. Those were Canadian Naval Ratings and they were still armed.

I thought of all the school children who yesterday in each school had celebrated the crowning of Elizabeth II. Had heard about the development of the British Commonwealth of Nations, and had listened to talks of the history of the flag. How would they reconcile all they heard then with what they see now. Fortunately most of them were in the parade far behind and did not see.

And then it struck me—of course—Courtesy! And I marvelled at the magnificence of the courtesy of a people who would allow the flag of a foreign country to lead and dominate the parade celebrating the crowning of their own sovereign. I wondered also about the courtesy of the people in London. What flag lead the parade there? The Tricolour of France? The Eagles of Germany? or the Hammer and Sickle of Russia? or did the simple people of Britain think that, as this was their day and their queen and their country, they might, without any discourtesy, fly at the head of their parade the Union Jack.

Oh well. Perhaps these things do not matter. Weren't the floats lovely.

A. M. HURST.

Death Classed 'Homicide'

VANCOUVER (CP)—The death of a 43-year-old woman in a skid-road hotel here May 22 was classified as "homicide" by a coroner's jury.

The jury found the woman, Miss May Dryborough, died in the hotel after receiving head and jaw injuries at the hands of a person or persons unknown. Police have announced no progress in their investigations.

Man on Wobbly Ladder

KELOWNA: Here in the apple capital of Canada they know all about falls from ladders.

Right now this Okanagan valley is watching with fascinated interest a man on a wobbly ladder which his own helpers are pulling from under him.

A long look-and-listen trip throughout the interior of B.C. convinces me that the Social Credit government is going to suffer heavy losses at the polls.

Also—due entirely to the intricacies of the switch vote system—Mr. Bennett himself could lose his own seat on the second and third counts. He must win first count, or not win at all.

BOTH the CCF and the Liberals are certain to make gains in the interior of B.C. at the expense of the Socreds.

At least three of the Social Credit cabinet ministers who sat for interior ridings appear to be going down to sure defeat. If it turns out to be a Laing-slide, five could go down this time.

To sum up, of the seven seats the Socreds now hold in the interior, only two now appear as good bets for the Socreds. Moreover, the increasingly precarious position of the Socreds in the interior checks with information from other parties of the province.

This crumbling in the interior should be considered in relation to the fundamental Social Credit strategy in this campaign. The Rolston Formula threw Vancouver and suburbs to the wolves in the hope that Socred gains up-country would more than offset the Vancouver Socred losses.

As things look now the chances for most Socred cabinet ministers from the interior is no better than those of Hon. Eric Martin, Socred cabinet minister who "forgave" a million dollars worth of unpaid taxes, at the expense of those who had paid.

THE GREATEST politician that Canada ever developed was old Sir John A. Macdonald who often spoke truth in jests. "You never can tell how a horse race or an election will come out."

This campaign has another week to go. As the Social Credit losses in recent weeks have been mostly due to their own blunders on off-again-on-again milk de-control, hospital tax dodgers, and above all by unfairly blaming Art Laing for Mr. Bennett's self-made Doukhobor fiasco. The Socreds might rally in the final week.

But here is how it looks to me: Even if the Socreds did make a strong last-week comeback, we could only get another stalemate with the three main parties getting about fifteen seats each.

If the recent steady swing continues to Laing, the Liberals could emerge with 26 to 30 seats. This would give us good stable government in B.C., which is probably what most folks want.

Bass Spawning

TO THE VOTERS OF BRITISH COLUMBIA:

FORESTRY POLICY

Small and medium sized operators are being rapidly squeezed out of existence. Returns to the people of this province from forest exploitation are far too small. Mergers are rapidly placing the entire forest industry into a few hands.

The CCF maintains that the people of British Columbia are entitled to a larger share of the wealth derived from the exploitation of timber resources. The small operator must be assured better opportunities and returns. More attention must be given to conservation and reforestation. A high level of year-round employment and income must be maintained.

Let no one tell you anything different. The CCF program has a place for the private operator and private initiative. For a government that will look after the interests of the people, vote CCF on June 9th.

CCF Provincial Campaign Committee.

POLITICAL ROUNDUP

... by J. K. Nesbitt

VICTORIA.—On the eve of this confused election, a look at the leaders of the four major B.C. parties is interesting. Political party leaders, on the eve of an election, are important people. One of them will be the Premier, another the Leader of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition.

Let's take them alphabetically, so no one can say we're playing favorites at so touchy a time as a few days before a general election.

Arnold Webster of the CCF, 54, is a native of Vancouver, a Vancouver high school principal. He has been active in the CCF since its inception in 1933. He's a man not easily discouraged—a "never-say-die" man. Four times he has tried for a seat in the House of Commons—in 1935, 1940, 1945, 1949. Always he was beaten. Most men would have been discouraged after the second try. But never Arnold Webster. He was preparing to run for the fifth time in the coming federal election when what to him was a higher call came—the leadership of the CCF in B.C. to succeed Harold Winch.

Deane Finlayson of the Conservatives, 33, born in Vancouver, a real estate and insurance man of Nanaimo. He made his first political foray when he was 16. Gerry McGeer was making a speech at Kitsilano High. Finlayson and his pals asked the mayor questions—in other words they heckled His Worship. Mr. McGeer stood to for a time, then called the police to eject Finlayson and his cronies.

"I thought I was a socialist then," says Finlayson today. "Anyway—perhaps Gerry was right—I guess we were a pretty brassy crew."

Finlayson did his best during the election campaign to tell the public that the Conservative party is no longer composed only of rich, retired people. He shocked the old guard by taking up collections at public meetings. He's a giant of a man—six foot three, and more than 200 pounds. He's the candidate in Oak Bay. He desperately wants to get Oak Bay back into the Tory fold. Last year Conservative leader Anscomb lost it to Liberal P. A. Gibbs.

In Oak Bay of course, Finlayson has been called, by his political enemies, a carpet-bagger, because his real home is in Nanaimo.

Arthur Laing of the Liberals, 49, born in Vancouver, MP for Vancouver South since 1949. Twice, years ago, he tried for a seat in the B.C. Legislature, in Delta riding, was beaten by the CCF.

In 1947 he was selected president of the B.C. Liberal Association, the same day Byron Johnson was chosen the party leader, to be sworn in a few days later as Premier of B.C.

Laing was a foe of coalition. Johnson was pledged to it. Naturally enough, there was soon friction between these two. In 1949 Johnson had Laing purged from the presidency, but there was no personal bitterness between them.

Resigning from the House of Commons to run the Liberal campaign in B.C., Laing made heavy personal sacrifice, is taking a big gamble. A political party leader, once defeated, finds it difficult to stage any kind of come-back. Laing knows it's a "do-or-die" affair with him. He was literally drafted by the Liberals, because they felt he's the only man who can pull the party up by the bootstraps and make it a potent force again.

W. A. C. Bennett of Social Credit, 52, native of New Brunswick, has already had a spectacular political career. Once a very pillar of the Conservative party, Mr. Bennett was first elected for South Okanagan in 1941. That was the year Coalition of Liberals and Conservatives came about, because the CCF was so strong. Mr. Bennett found himself a coalitionist. He was re-elected a coalitionist in 1945, and the next year contested the Conservative leadership with Herbert Anscomb. Anscomb won.

In 1948 Bennett resigned his B.C. seat to contest the Yale federal by-election. He lost to the CCF. At that point he had nothing. There were those who said he was through. The next

Reflects and Reminisces

If the most of us are not feeling more or less exhausted today, we should be.

Yesterday in the British Isles was, of course, only Chapter I. There's a lot more coming. Many thousands of naval vessels, including ships from Canada, will be looking their smartest. Incidentally, there will be 300 naval aircraft. And countless functions most of the summer.

When a woman says her husband is a good conversationalist she means that he's an interested listener.

THINK OF IT

Yes, it must be admitted the Coronation was missed, but think of the hardships had there been no screen or cushioned seat to fall back on.

Girls were maybe harder to kiss back in grandpa's day, but the kissing wasn't so dangerous. You never heard of a parlor sofa swerving off the pavement into a tree.

JOE'S VOYAGE

Chief Joe Mathias of Vancouver made it after all. He alighted from a plane, in London, on Monday with tribal gifts for the queen and a feeling of great gratification. Joe had thought it would be his fate to suffer disappointment, because of financial stress, but he managed to avoid this. And so, we're glad.

The man who always asks "What do you know?" wouldn't be interested if you told him—Brandon sun.

Here's wagering that cafes in London made money yesterday. At least a million healthy persons had to be fed by one firm of caterers alone. Another company, planning on a basis of a million customers, wrapped sandwiches in cellophane and put them in cold storage. A sidewalk organization was ready with 500,000 soft drinks and 500,000 ice cream bars. A coronation by the way, is a first class appetizer.

A synonym is a word you use when you can't spell the other one.

President Eisenhower, in candidly disagreeing with Senator Taft over the question of Korea truce negotiations, should the latter fall, says the United States should "go it alone." He must have borrowed that from Canada who is prepared to be without any company on that St. Lawrence adventure.

OTTAWA DIARY

By Norman M. MacLeod

Every now and then Parliament Hill residents find themselves overtaken by a speculative mood. And in such intervals one of their favorite subjects of contemplation is to wonder how anyone could be busier than Defence Minister Brooke Claxton?

Over the past ten days or so they have discovered the answer. It has been furnished by no other individual than Acting Prime Minister Brooke Claxton. As Defence Minister, Honorable Brooke is accustomed to putting in a minimum of about 16 hours of hard work every day. But that isn't the whole of the story. He's a tense individual given to frequently wakeful nights. So it's no rarity for him to put in two or three hours extra in pyjamas and dressing gown during a sleepless interlude between midnight and dawn.

Not since the late Colonel Layton Ralston—also a Minister of National Defence—has the Capital seen such a prodigy for industry. Curiously enough, Claxton appears to thrive under his driving regime. Physically he gives the impression of being always in top form.

As Acting Prime Minister Claxton doesn't put in any longer hours at his desk. That wouldn't be practical. He already strains to the limit the endurance of the office staff that must always be on duty to maintain the flow of material across the desk of a Cabinet Minister when he is working.

But if he doesn't lengthen his hours in his office, Honorable Brooke manages by some feat of intense concentration to quicken his normally fast tempo of activity. Defence Department matters are speeded up almost imperceptibly. Documents are read just a little faster. An assembly line atmosphere of rapid but sure accomplishment is created throughout the efficient organization of the Minister's office.

The result is that time miraculously is made to handle trans-Atlantic telephone calls, to keep in touch with the delicate Washington situation of the present time, to keep informed on international developments in France and the Middle East—and to intervene even in such a minor humanitarian domestic detail as clemency for a condemned murderer suspected of being insane.

It's an impressively complete performance. But perhaps the most outstanding feature is a complete modesty with which it is carried out. Claxton really has a sense of humor. And his sense of sportsmanship prevents him from taking any advantage of his present post of standing for the P.M. So it's all done in the ordinary course of the Claxton sense of duty—without benefit of limelight fanfare of any kind.

THE BANKS SERVING YOUR COMMUNITY

Churchill hails Coronation

By The Canadian Press

LONDON. — Prime Minister Churchill hailed Coronation Day as "a day of the greatest importance in our history." He said he lived to see and with the youngest will remember all their lives.

He introduced the Queen's coronation speech Tuesday saying it is my duty and my honor to you to its culmination. "I have heard the prime minister of the Empire and the monarch pay their moving tributes on behalf of the states and races for which they speak."

At the summit of our history, the world community, is the day when we respect because of our Queen and whom we respect because she is herself. "Magnificent and noble are words that we use to all in courtly language. Tonight they have a meaning in them, because we know they are true about the figure whom Providence has brought to us, and tonight to us in time when the future is hard, the future is hard."

It is our dearest hope that Queen shall be happy, and that she will be as glorious as her subjects can help her make it.

We pray to have rulers who will have nations who come to each other, and have people who thrive and prosper from fear.

May God grant us these things.

Folding Door Permits
Installation of Closet

By ELENORE LESTER
Short of storage space in your home?
How about building a new closet?

It can be done more easily than you think. A folding door, which may be hung from an overhead track, gives you the opportunity to put a new closet in any room you wish.

The doors, which are available in most lumber and building supply companies, may be installed by an average handy man in about half an hour. The only tools needed are a saw, screwdriver, drill and hammer. A combination of shelves, drawers or rods may be installed inside the closet afterward.

The doors are made of vertical strips of smooth, flat basswood, less than an inch wide. The strips are woven together with extra-strong seine twine to form a wood fabric, with distinctive, interesting texture that harmonizes with almost any decorative scheme.

The folding door saves the space ordinarily wasted to allow

CANADIAN SERVICEMEN in the United Kingdom were kept busy with rehearsals at their training depot at Pirbright camp near London, getting ready for their part of the Coronation parade. ## Tradition Revived With First Ball At Rideau Hall in Almost 40 Years

OTTAWA (CP) — A tradition came to life again here yesterday when the first state ball in almost 40 years was held at Government House to mark the Coronation.

The governor-general revived this social ceremony of bygone days to climax the Coronation day celebrations in the capital. About 700 Ottawa residents were invited to dine and dance at Rideau Hall.

Origins of this formal social function are obscure. So also are records of previous state balls. However, six and possibly seven similar balls were given by previous governors-general to celebrate special events. The last is believed to have been in June, 1914, given by the Duke of Connaught.

State balls are strictly formal affairs with guests invited on the basis of a table of precedence beginning with the governor-general and listing the prime minister, cabinet ministers, lieutenant-governors, senior churchmen, judges, members of Parliament, senators, senior officers of the armed forces, and top government officials.

However, this ball varied the procedure. Many of those who would ordinarily be invited were in England for the Coronation. Accommodation is limited at Rideau Hall so only Ottawa residents were invited.

About two-thirds of the 700-odd guests were included in the table of precedence. The other guests were prominent Ottawans in business, social and church life.

Motorboat Runs Over Youth Standing in Parking Lot

BRISTOL, Pa. (AP) — Somebody yelled "watch out" and Richard Straffe, 20, turned around to see a motor-boat bearing down on him.

Straffe—who was standing in the middle of a parking lot—tried to jump out of the way, but the motor-boat pinned him against a car.

After treatment at hospital the bewildered youth was told the circumstances of the weird accident. The boat was on a trailer pulled by a truck. The trailer broke away and crashed into a car, jarring loose the boat which skidded off the carrier towards Straffe.

Liberal Offers To Build 12-Mile Road for $2Million

A Liberal candidate's offer to build the unfinished Squamish road for $2,000,000 was snapped up today by Works Minister Gagliardi.

Gordon Gibson, the Liberal standard bearer for Mackenzie riding, told a Squamish election meeting that $2,000,000 was plenty to build 18 miles of scenic highway between Horseshoe Bay and Britannia Beach. He said that the Social Credit government had estimated the cost at $3,000,000.

At Kamloops, Mr. Gagliardi said: "If Mr. Gibson can promise to deliver us that strip of road for $2,000,000, I promise to find the money. But I know he can't do it."

Mr. Gibson, a logging operator and contractor, told the meeting he had cruised the whole coastline in a small boat.

"I found that the average cost would be no more than $25,000 per mile, with the highest stretch

$50,000 a mile. "I challenge Mr. Gagliardi, as works minister, to award me the contract at $2,000,000 and I will build a Howe Sound road," he said.

Mr. Gagliardi said the cost for putting the road to Britannia the "hard way" has been estimated by his engineers at $7,000,000. It involves building 12 bridges.

Women Urged To Spend Less Money on Gadgets

SASKATOON (CP) — Until Canadian women become more concerned with what they put in their refrigerators, there will be little chance of national economic stability.

Mrs. H. E. Vautelet, national French vice-president of the Canadian Association of Consumers, says housewives should spend more money on necessities and less on gadgets if they want to lower the high cost of living.

Mrs. Vautelet told the Saskatchewan branch of the association that in 1948 Canadians spent more money on jewelry than on education, and had doubled their consumption of hard liquors.

She said Canadians seemed more willing to hand their money to manufacturers for gadgets than to the farmers for food. "We are damaging our own economic system and are becoming a continual challenge to the 'have-nots' by this automatic mode of living," she said. Mrs. Vautelet stressed that women did 80 per cent of the nation's buying. Women actually governed the country, but they were "piloting a ship without knowing where it was going."

She added that it was high time the buyers in Canada took their places at the council table along with the producers, for the health of Canada depended on consumers and representatives of labor, industry and trade working together as a team.

Native Couple Exchange Vows At Cathedral

First June wedding at the St. Andrew's Cathedral united in marriage Monday afternoon, Evangeline Gosnell of Canyon City and Hubert Doolan of Kincolith.

Rev. Canon Basil Prockter officiated.

The bride was attended by her sister Mrs. Morris Nyce. Both wore gowns of floor-length white nylon net. Full net train of the bride was held in place by a pearl tiara and she carried a bouquet of red and white carnations.

Her train bearers were little Violet Gosnell and Vesta Nyce.

Best man was Mr. R. S. Woods of Prince Rupert.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eli Gosnell, and groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Doolan.

Six groomsmen and six bridesmaids were other attendants. They were: Robert Stevens, Hubert Stevens, Morris Nyce, Sonny Doolan, Joe Gosnell and Arthur Moore, and Bertha, Marie and Gertie Doolan, Elizabeth Stewart, Grace Clayton and Sarah Azak.

Organ music was supplied by Mr. Peter Lien.

Number of friends attended the ceremony. A reception was held in a downtown restaurant. The couple will make their future home in Kincolith.

Hospitalized Persons to Vote June 9

VICTORIA (CP) — Travelling polling booths will be used in B.C.'s hospitals on election day.

The provincial cabinet has passed on order-in-council approving the new system which earlier was okayed by leaders of all other political parties.

The new law permits deputy returning officers, and candidates' representatives, to circulate through hospital wards with a polling booth to enable bed-ridden patients to cast ballots.

Probe Planned Into Hiring U.S. Workers

By The Canadian Press

VANCOUVER.—British Columbia's labor minister says his department is planning a complete investigation into the question of Americans on construction project payrolls in this province.

Labor Minister Ivar Wick told a labor rally at Honey that "there is a possibility that great hardship may have been placed on workers of B.C. because of the importation of American labor."

He suggested that perhaps U.S. citizens find it too easy to get permission to work in Canada and said:

"I propose at the earliest possible moment to discuss all aspects of the importation of U.S. workers on big construction jobs in B.C. with federal immigration officials at Ottawa."

His announcement of an investigation of complaints "pertaining to the importation of American labor" followed an earlier speech in which he charged there had been cases of U.S. contractors discriminating against Canadian workers.

Mr. Wick mentioned Canadian Bechtel Limited, in charge of construction of a $92,000,000 Trans-Mountain Pipeline project.

Later, D. L. Roberts, vice-president of Canadian Bechtel, denied his company is discriminating against Canadian workers in any way.

Dust, Noise, Vibration, Smoke Fumes, Ordinary Thirst, Make Workers Tired

By GARVEN HUDGINS

NEW YORK (AP)—Tired on the job? Maybe it's your boss, but scientists don't think so.

Armed with thermometers and stop watches, they've been doing some on-the-job sleuthing for the causes of fatigue. So far, the prime suspects are dust, noise, vibration, smoke fumes and plain ordinary thirst.

Not a boss in the lot.

These workaday bogeys were exposed by physiologists who stood by workers through entire shifts recording pulse rates and temperatures after exertion. Closely they watched the rate at which pulse and temperature returned to "resting levels" after a stretch of work.

If pulse and temperature regain this level too slowly, the psychologist knows the worker is over-taxing himself. He's on the border of fatigue. His efficiency is on the downgrade.

The aim of the tests, says Dr. Lucien Brouha, of Dupont's Haskell Laboratory of Industrial Toxicology, is to organize work in industrial plants so reactions at the end of a shift are the same or only slightly higher than at the start.

"The tests," he adds, "make it possible to evaluate and classify industrial jobs according to fatigue potential."

Once this is established, employers can select workers on the basis of their physical fitness for a given job.

In so-called "hot industries," where workers perspire profusely, Dr. Brouha found men who ran "fevers" of 100 degrees and higher on the job.

Increased consumption of water banished the fevers and helped workers avoid crippling fatigue.

Physiologists have dealt body heat and humidity, where possible, and working out a schedule of regular rest periods.

You can get tired, however, just holding your balance. Those aching muscles may not produce mechanical work, but they get a workout holding you up.

SPORTS ROUND-UP

NEW YORK (AP)—Back in 1949 the manager of Brooklyn Dodgers, Burt Shotton, gazed admiringly at the bulgy, brown-skinned athlete pulling off his uniform across the locker room at Ebbets Field and observed: "He's a natural catcher; he'll be another Bill Dickey some day."

Those who were within earshot of the oldtimer glanced questioning at one another. Was Burt beginning to show his "ears"? After all, that was only Roy Campanella's first full season with the Dodgers, and he wasn't hitting better than around .250 at the time. To mention him in the same breath with Dickey, he of the 314 lifetime average, seemed premature, to say the least.

Four seasons later Shotton is entitled to look up from his fishing down in Florida and take an extra deep bow. Campanella hit the big show too late in life—he's going on 32 now—to threaten Dickey's exploits over a long span, but who will say that the squat, implish backstop is not, as of now, every bit the equal of the famed Yankee before him? Or of Gabby Hartnett, probably the greatest National League catcher, whose record of 37 home runs in a season Campanella appears certain to surpass?

This is not, by the way, the first time the man from Philadelphia has gone on a home run spree that had the baseball world goggle-eyed. Two years ago he smashed 15 during a mad stretch of 25 games in July and August, a little better even than his current pace. He went on to collect 33 for the season and to be crowned the league's most valuable player.

During his previous ramage, as now, Campy could offer no ready explanation of his ability to murder any kind of pitching. "All I know," he said, "is that the ball looks as big as a grapefruit and I have a feeling when I go up there I'm going to knock it out of the park." He says it is a wonderful feeling to have.

President Walter O'Malley of the Dodgers has promised him a coaching job on one condition, that he keeps his weight where it now is. He would be the first Negro coach in organized baseball.

"I think he would make a fine teacher," O'Malley says, "and I believe that the color angle is a thing of the past in baseball."

Greatest Gasoline Development in 31 Years!

Up to 15% more power

Up to 150% more spark plug life

*TCP*, a Shell-discovered additive, now blended into Shell Premium Gasoline, puts an end to the greatest cause of power loss.*

Strange as it may seem, the majority of cars on the road today are not putting out their full horsepower.

Perhaps you may have noticed that your power "falls off" especially when accelerating, climbing a hill, or driving on the open highway.

The reason is that deposits are constantly accumulating on the spark plugs and in the combustion chambers. They actually "short-circuit" your spark plugs and cause pre-ignition of the fuel mixture, especially when you want extra power and "step on it" hard!

To overcome this condition, Shell Research discovered TCP—a remarkable fuel additive which has the property of counteracting the power-wasting of these deposits.

As a result, Shell Premium Gasoline with

TCP gives you up to 15% more power, up to 150% more spark plug life, plus an increase in gasoline mileage.

Shell Premium with TCP is the most significant development in gasoline since the introduction of tetraethyl lead in 1922.

New and old engines benefit

If you have a new car, particularly one with a high compression engine, Shell Premium with TCP is essential if you want it to keep on delivering its original power for the normal life of the spark plugs. But high compression, or not, Shell Premium with TCP keeps it working like new.

Owners of older cars also benefit. Even if your car has gone thirty thousand miles or even more, your engine can get back much of its original power by the use of Shell Premium with TCP.

Shell Premium with TCP quick to act

So rapidly does Shell Premium with TCP counteract the deposit on spark plugs and in combustion chambers, that you'll feel your engine's had a tune-up before you've finished the second tankful. You enjoy that new car pep again.

Now in Canada—but only at your Shell Dealer's

TCP was originally developed by Shell Research for aviation fuels and until now has been largely restricted to military aircraft.

Today, Shell Premium with TCP is available in this area, but only at Shell Service Stations.

Memorial Service For Bomber Crew

COMOX—Memorial service was held here yesterday for the crew of the RCAF Lancaster which crashed on a mountain near North Bend, Oregon last Tuesday.

It was reported that the 10 men aboard the bomber apparently were killed outright.

The bodies were taken out by a bulldozer had cleared a path. An RCAF investigating party reached the wreckage Monday.

Bodies of the victims were found 600 yards away from the point of crash. Other bodies and the wreckage was thrown over the edge by force of the impact.

Once again the great need for a readily available fishing guide is evidenced. Last week-end two visitors from the U.S. went to much trouble to locate people who could start them towards getting a taste of our local fishing, eventually they reached the Yacht Club and obtained use of a boat and outboard motor, and only through the generosity of Chris Larsen did they succeed in finding suitable tackle.

Precisely the same thing was undergone by two later arrivals, at least they had the thrill of taking one of our salmon (a sixteen pounder), but once more Chris kindly lent his tackle. All these stories plus embellishments will surely go back south, and while kindness shown will gain Rupertans credit for gentility, it is possible that some enterprising persons resident elsewhere will jump into a wide open opportunity to their financial gain; why not keep this chance within our own bailiwick?

Frequently these touring anglers have only a few hours while the boat is in dock, so it is necessary for a well equipped guide to stand by for telephone calls; he need have no fear for the amplitude of his remuneration.

PLENTY OF DOLLIES

Junior fishermen in particular are taking plenty of Dollies around town, good catches are being made at Fairview, Cow Bay, any of the packing-plants where fish offal is being discarded, and the reliable Yacht Club is also producing. Two good halibut taken by sports fishermen from the small banks near Pig Island, these fell for jigs composed of white feathers, an ounce of lead and a 7/0 hook, this jigged a foot up from the bottom. "Catechism" Garner in from Triple Island with a whopping 38 lb. spring, and the Derby entrants are all fired up to do better. Alf Large almost worthy to enter an even higher prize.

fession now that he can take most any neophyte out for a short run and tie said neophyte up to a spring salmon. The higher profession? After all these doctors certainly heal people's bodies, but a good guide gets you FISH!

There is a clever exponent of a little used system to be seen often at Fairview, one Bill Greening. He fishes by strip-casting exclusively, and most of his tackle is hard-made.

Not nearly enough attention is given to this excellent method of angling, and many of us might gain by studying him awhile. Look for an outdoor type in the mid-thirties and get him talking, he has fished many waters and is good to know.

Country reports tell of cutthroats and rainbows avidly taking wet flies in Seeley Lake, which is right on the highway a few miles this side of Hazelton; do not fail to fish the deep hole, right across from the pier at the west end of the lake, and fish DEEP for the big ones.

In Government Lake and Irrigation Lake, both west of Houston and one on either side of the road, cutthroats from 12 to 16 inches are hitting most any small dark colored fly; steelheads are at Price Creek where it joins the Skeena near Kitwanga; and dollies running strongly in Fiddler Creek near Dorreen.

Remember to visit Forest Service, Game Warden or Police for your campfire permit; this is important.

Seals showing up in the Skeena, your seal nose is worth money and will signify the end of another predator against your fish; get your firearms licence first and watch your bullet backstop.

To those who are feeling discouraged in losing tackle while deep-casting in fast waters, stay with it; this not too easy accomplishment is well worth while when conquered, the first touch of the moving sinker on bottom will come to you after much practice, and you will gradually learn to balance the retrieving speed with lure depth and water current drag; the whole idea is to draw one's lure close by the noses of fish resting in the relatively current-free lower depths, instead of continually allowing the lure to pass overhead where it will be ignored or unseen. Even with salmon and steelhead making the upstream spawning run there remains considerable of the feeding instinct, and the obvious reflex is to strike at a lure which invades the range of vision.

FLORIDA BEACHES are usually attractive places but they are even more so when visitors like Shirley Myers, of Charlotte, N.C., decorate them. And that's a mighty good-looking sun bonnet she's wearing.

HERE'S WHY . . .

It is economical — in installation — uses only one length of pipe inside casing . . . in operation — because it uses smaller motor, needs less power to operate . . . in maintenance — no rods or shafts to replace; no valves to repair; no lubrication trouble because both pump and motor are water cooled and water lubricated!

Has many advantages — never needs priming — 100% quiet; owner can install or remove with simple shop tools; service pipes may be cut in below frost line; tank and electric controls may be set over well or away from it.

Performance proved in thousands of installations.

City All-Stars Down U.S. Navy Baseball Team 9-1

Visiting U.S. Navy baseball club managed to squeeze in one run in the seventh and last inning yesterday afternoon to keep from a shutout as city all-stars scored nine times.

Several hundred fans attended the Coronation Day exhibition game, but the visitors could offer little competition to Prince Rupert's better class ball players.

Sparkplug of the "Marines" was their catcher, Johnny Redick who got one of the three Navy hits and scored their only run. In holding the visitors down to three singles, Rupert pitcher

Freddy Christensen struck out nine batters and walked two.

U.S. Navy pitcher Lewars was in trouble all the time, giving up nine hits and seven walks. Marines committed seven fielding errors but came up with the only double-play in the game, this in the third inning after Rupert's Bill Gunn scored an in-the-park home run.

A sudden shower threatened to halt the game halfway but the sun shone freely a few minutes later and spectators who had hurried to shelter of their cars, returned.

A feature attraction was the 60-piece Greenville Concert Band which played under the leadership of Fred McKay.

Next regular ball game takes place Thursday evening.

Trapshooters To Defend Cup Tonight

Columbia Cellulose trap-shooting team will defend its three-time won Rupert Radio challenge trophy tonight when two other teams will make another bid for the championship.

The shoot takes place at 7 p.m. at the rifle range. Teams competing are Fashion Footwear, Rupert Radio and CCs.

The competition is expected to be exciting and aggressive since the trophy holders have bested both other teams in two of their previous bids for victory.

Spectators are invited.

Bruce Brown Briefs

British Columbia stands today at a crossroads. Three alternatives face this Province. We can continue as we have been for the past year, providing Canada with a three-ring circus, making British Columbia a laughing stock and our children a byword; or we can adopt a form of state socialism and do whatever possible to frighten away the people who would like to invest their money in building up industry and payrolls in B.C. OR we can elect a Liberal Government, put B.C. back on the rails, and continue with that era of expansion and prosperity which has been building up ever since V-J day.

If we want to adopt the third of these alternatives—and of course we do, we will . . .

DAGWOOD, YOU'LL HAVE TO PUNISH ALEXANDER—HE WAS CARELESS AND DISOBEDIENT

HOW ABOUT NOT GIVING HIM HIS ALLOWANCE THIS WEEK?

THAT WON'T WORK—HE'S ALREADY COLLECTED HIS ALLOWANCE FOR THREE WEEKS IN ADVANCE

I'M TOO YOUNG TO GO TO JAIL

LET'S SEND HIM UP TO HIS ROOM WITHOUT SUPPER

THAT'S NO GOOD—HE'S DIETING ANYWAY AND HE HAS BOOKS AND MAGAZINES UP THERE TO READ

THERE MUST BE SOME WAY TO DISCIPLINE A BOY HIS AGE

IT'S A FATHER'S DUTY

IF YOU'D TELL ME JUST WHAT HE DID I COULD MAKE THE PUNISHMENT FIT THE CRIME

POLITICAL ROUNDUP

year he was again elected to the B.C. House for South Okanagan. That summer the rift between him and Mr. Anscomb widened to such an extent that a Conservative convention was called. Anscomb resigned the leadership, ran for it again, against Bennett. Anscomb won. That did not discourage Bennett.

He thereafter became an open enemy of leader Anscomb and the Coalition government. At the 1950 session of the Legislature he took the history-making course of bolting the government ranks, and crossed the floor of the House to sit as an independent, where he continued his attacks against the government.

Mr. Bennett joined Social Credit only a short time before the election. He was not the leader in the test last June. Rev. E. G. Hansell, M.P., was imported to run the campaign. It was not until mid-July, when it seemed Social Credit would have more seats than any other party, that Mr. Bennett was chosen leader. On Aug. 1 last he was sworn into office as B.C.'s 25th premier.

Fate of Missing British Diplomats Still Mystery to Western World

LONDON (AP)—On the night of May 25, 1951, two men sauntered aboard the excursion steamer "Falaise" at Southampton. The next morning they stepped ashore at St. Malo, France, got into a taxi and drove 60 miles to the railway station at Rennes.

They stepped out of the taxi into oblivion, so far as the Western world is concerned.

The two men were British diplomats Guy Burgess, 40 and Donald MacLean, 38. Now, two years later, they are still being sought by Western Europe's best cloak-and-dagger talent as the central figures in one of the world's most spectacular vanishing acts.

Authoritative sources refuse to admit that Burgess and MacLean have slipped behind the Iron Curtain. But the trail is cooling fast and they admit it. One official source said: "Of course, any clue that turns up will be vigorously investigated, but the trail is pretty cold and it's getting colder."

On the other hand, Britons find it hard to believe that two diplomats could drop out of sight so completely despite hot pursuit by police and undercover agents from every country in Western Europe. At one time, Burgess and MacLean were being hunted by 15,000 intelligence men and police.

The alternative, it is widely believed, is that Burgess and MacLean went behind the Iron Curtain.

But neither the Soviet Union nor any of her satellites has ever admitted this.

Burgess and MacLean were foreign office experts on United States affairs and MacLean at one time sat on the American-Canadian-British wartime committee which handled political aspects of the atom bomb.

Many speculations have been advanced as to their fate.

British officials breathe easier as time passes. Although the two men were experts on foreign policies when they vanished, events are rapidly cutting their value to a foreign power by out-dating their knowledge. No documents were missing when Burgess and MacLean disappeared.

Alberta Makes $56,660,000 From Oil Wells

EDMONTON (CP)—Government revenue from Alberta's oil and natural gas industries for the fiscal year ended last March 31 is authoritatively reported to have totalled $56,660,000.

This is a staggering 6,300-percent increase over revenue received in 1947, the year Imperial Oil's first gusher at Leduc triggered Canada's greatest oil rush.

These figures are reported by Carl O. Nickle of Calgary, leading western oil expert, who sets total revenue from the oil and gas industries since Leduc at $188,992,707—a far cry from that first boom year when $898,537 trickled into government coffers.

Largest source of revenue has been "cash bonuses" paid by oil companies for the right to explore or develop Crown reserves and for certain other types of government-owned oil or gas rights.

These bonuses brought in about $25,660,000 in the last fiscal year—approximately one-fifth of the last provincial budget—for an over-all total of about $101,586,389 since 1947.

Royalties from oil and gas rights contributed $13,500,000 last year for a grand total of $36,678,221 in this department.

Mr. Nickle says that royalties are expected to increase substantially during the current year from enlarging markets. The trans-mountain oil pipeline to Vancouver will be completed and work on a proposed gas line to the West Coast is awaiting a go-ahead.

At March 31 the Alberta government had outstanding 52,896,996 acres held by companies under petroleum and natural gas leases—highest total in Alberta history and a 1,500-percent increase in the last six years.

CORONATION PRAYER

CANTERBURY, Eng. (Reuters)—Most Rev. Geoffrey Fisher, archbishop of Canterbury, issued three prayers for the Coronation and recommended them to all who witness, or hear or see the ceremony on television.

1—"O Lord God of whom cometh all goodness and grace, let the love of all of us who witness our Queen's Coronation or who hear the service or see it from afar, surround her and uphold her, that in full assurance of the free loyalty and affection of the people committed to her care she may be Thine anointing be established in Thy strength and enriched with all things needful for her ministry among us, through Jesus Christ Our Lord."

2—"Almighty God who dost raise up races and nations to fulfill Thy purposes, we pray Thee to bind together in a common faith and duty the people of this land and of the British Commonwealth of nations that taught by Thy truth and inspired by Thy love they may be strong to further Thy holy will, through Jesus Christ Our Lord."

3—"O Lord Jesus Thou hast created me and redeemed me and has brought me unto that which now I am. Thou knowest what Thou knowest what Thou wouldst do with me according to Thy will and have mercy. —Amen."

The archbishop said that at the Coronation the Queen is called "to stand before us all and to stand for us all in her own person expressing the whole virtue of our people's history and tradition."

He said that at her Coronation she "comes to commit herself before us all to God, acknowledging her dependence and upon God for true health and power, seeking through the church in her anointing and communion that God will consecrate her for the work and ministry of her life among us."

"Her self-dedication to God must be matched by ours. We must sincerely seek for our own daily lives and relations with others the strength of God as she does."

"The Queen pledges herself to God that by His grace she may be faithful and true to us. We pledge ourselves to God that we by His grace may be faithful and true to the Queen, our fellows, to the nation in every good and honorable cause."

"That is our loyalty."

★ SCREEN FLASHES ★

TORONTO (CP)—Pierre Lefevre, invited to Canada to judge Canadian drama, will remain here to participate in it.

Best-known to Canadians as the adjudicator of the Dominion Drama Festival finals in Victoria last April, the French-born actor from Britain will be one of the two directors of the Straw Hat Players, directing a Canadian cast in plays this summer for audiences in the Muskoka resort region of Ontario.

Lefevre, who is still a French citizen, was called up for the French Army in 1940 and when France fell he escaped to the Spanish border, later joining the Polish Army. He sailed with them to England where he became a BBC correspondent, and later marched into Paris with the Free French forces.

ON ENGLISH STAGE

His theatrical career started professionally at London's famous Old Vic.

Mr. Lefevre says most of his stage career has been spent in playing the classics. When the Old Vic started up again following the war, and started its theatre centre school, Lefevre was assistant to the director of the school.

Shortly afterwards he came to Canada for the first time as regional adjudicator for the drama festival.

Since then he has appeared in "The Life of Four Colonels" in London, done film work, which included the soon-to-be released Martin Luther film made in Germany, and worked in television.

BIG CATCH

VANCOUVER (CP)—Skipper Olaf Bjorge collected a new haul by being the first to land a catch of halibut this season. His boat Tanza brought 64,000 pounds of halibut from the fishing grounds off SK Island.

Bank Robber Gets $50,000

SEATTLE (CP)—A pistol-wielding bandit toured a suburban bank with the manager last Friday while a bank official collected greenbacks from three teller gates, then herded 16 persons into a back room and escaped with an estimated $50,000. The holdup occurred at the Lynnwood branch of the National Bank of Everett, 10 miles north of Seattle.

Nearly 10,000 picked up were in the Coronation procession from Westminster Abbey.

Why I am your LIBERAL Candidate

Because I am convinced that the Liberal Party has a sound platform, a sincere and experienced leader, and is the only group of candidates capable of bringing the necessary high standards of ability and experience to your government in Victoria. I am proud to be associated with the other 47 candidates chosen to represent the Liberal Party.

WHILE ALL are experienced in their individual fields, here are some representative Liberal candidates:

- LES GILMORE, DELTA (Internationally prominent in AGRICULTURAL CIRCLES): "As one of 7 agriculturists among the Liberal candidates, I join them in assuming good representation for B.C. Farmers."
- NANCY HODGES, VICTORIA (Long-experienced in representing the WOMEN'S VIEWPOINT in Legislature): "The women of this Province deserve responsible government and I, with the other three Liberal women candidates, intend to see that we get it!"
- MAJ. GEN. VICTOR ODLUM, VANCOUVER-BURRARD (Outstanding soldier, statesman, Canadian Ambassador, with world-wide experience in INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS AND COMMERCE): "I accepted nomination only after assuring myself of the sincerity and integrity of Arthur Laing and his aims. I pledge myself to support them."
- MAYOR F. H. JACKSON, NEW WESTMINSTER (24 years' association with MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT, member of Typographical Union): "With 18 of my fellow Liberal candidates being experienced in municipal governments, among them 3 Mayors, 3 Reeves, 7 Aldermen, 3 School Trustees—I feel that we are truly representative of the people, and can best serve their needs, in Legislature."
- W. T. STRAITH, Q.C., VICTORIA (16 CONSECUTIVE YEARS OF SERVICE AS M.L.A., with further background in municipal affairs): "Now, more than ever before, the people of this Province need experience in the Legislature. The 11 other Liberal candidates who with myself have legislative experience can provide this."

"Good Legislators are essential to Good Government! This revitalized Liberal Party has been fortunate in attracting, as candidates, men and women of exceptionally high calibre.

"I urge you to compare the ability and experience of the Liberal candidates with all others in the field before you cast your vote on June 9th. It is only ability which can guarantee stability."
