Don't Waste Your Vote

V/HAT happens if I just mark down my first W choice in this election and forget about the others?

The answer to this frequently asked question is that you may help the candidate you favor least. The ballot without a second choice is a dead one if the first and only choice on it is counted out of the running.

Thus it not only fails to help that particular candidate but withholds support from any other whose policies may be generally similar.

This could be just the break needed by a third or fourth candidate who automatically commands a certain number of first votes, but whose views are so much at variance with his rivals that he would probably rank last on the other ballot if they were properly completed.

Consequently the candidate who urges voters to plump—which is to mark just one choice—really has in mind those voters who are against him more than they are against anyone else.

Plumping among his supporters cannot improve or hurt his own chances in the least. The blank spaces on their ballots will never receive any attention until their favorite has gone down to defeat in any case. Then they will mean merely that the ballots go into discard.

Thus the advocacy of plumping is simply a political trick to defeat the purpose of the alternative vote. The trick is only effective, however, when the opposition is deluded into performing it because in this particular game the performer is the loser.

A Memorable Celebration

DEFORE Coronation temperature reverts com-D pletely to normal an expression of gratitude is deserved by those who had any part in making the day here such a memorable one.

From the smallest Brownie and Cub to those at the top responsible for the overall organization there was a display of spirit which was in the finest tradition of community service.

As in all such cases, it was impossible to give the formal recognition that each deserves. There were floats in the parade for instance, which would have received prizes had it been in the power of the judges to give them, but the line must be drawn, and sometimes merit must go appreciated but unrewarded.

Yet most of us have at least an inkling of how much time and thought went into each endeavor and are grateful for the enjoyment thereby added to a wonderful celebration.

The memory will linger long.

It should, however, be readily recalled that after approximately 20 years of the rusty workings of the Liberal political machine, the people of British Columbia turned to the Social Credit League for what would have most certainly been a sound administration had it not been for their unfortunate position as a minority government in power.

The sudden rise of the completely confident new leader of your favorite party to such political heights seems merely ruse to try to make us forget the stumbling inadequacies of the past 20 years.

When on June 9 the Social Credit Party is re-elected with a substantial majority it would seem somewhat futile for your paper to continue the eternal eulogy of the Liberal Party. In the interests of your future would it not seem more expedient to give equal coverage to the three contesting parties?

RUSSIAN CHESS EXPERTS

NEW YORK (AP)-Russia's top chess players have agreed to meet an American team in a tournament here starting July 15. United States Chess Federation president Harold M. Phillips announced.

The next question, Phillips said, will be whether the Russians will get visas to come to the U.S.

Russian and U.S. teams played a 2-2 standoff in the Olympics, although the Russians came out first in the tourament to the Americans' fifth.

HERE'S HOW YOU VOTE WITH ALTERNATIVE VOTING

To vote this way is simplicity itself . . . it is just a case of using the common numerals 1-2-3-4, or as far as you want to go up to the number of candidates listed on your ballot.

Beside the name of your first choice you mark the number 1 ... then beside the name of your second choice mark 2 . . . beside the name of your third choice mark 3 ... and so on.

If you "plump", which means, if you mark your ballot for only one candidate, your plumping does not give your favourite candidate one bit of advantage more than if you mark a choice for each of the others . . . there is nothing gained, but you do deprive yourself, should your first choice be eliminated, of your privilege to further express your wishes in the continued counting, which may be necessary in order to establish which candidate enjoys an absolute majority vote.

The Provincial Elections Act provides that all ballot marking shall be done with black lead pencil. Black lead pencils are provided in all polling booths. If a voter uses ink or colored pencil, the ballot is spoiled, and will automatically be eliminated in the counting. Do not spoil your ballot . . use black lead pencil only.

Business is Moving to B.C..

The CCF aims at a new society in which co-operation for the common good becomes the watchword. The CCF program visualizes an economy which includes public, co-operative and private ownership. Privately owned industries that conform to provincial laws and co-operate for the general good will be encouraged to do their best.

> Public Ownership is necessary in natural monopolies such as the power and transportation utilities. But a provincial government is in no position to finance all the existing and potential development within its borders. The CCF therefore welcomes new capital, new ventures and expansion, but insists that the proper contribution from resource development be made available to the people of this province.

BUSINESS IS MOVING TO B.C. AND WILL CONTINUE UNDER A CCF GOVERNMENT

Don't be misled. B.C. has the natural resources which attract investors and under a CCF government investors are assured of a square deal. Look at Saskatchewan. Under a CCF government that province's financial rating on world money markets has its highest rating in history.

> Stop worrying about 'big business' and think about the greater horizons that lie ahead for YOU as an individual and as a citizen of our great province—if you vote for a CCF government on June 9th.
