Immediate Action Needed

N 10W that the city has a yardstick by which to I measure the relative advantages and disadvantages of the two alternatives facing it for obtaining power, it is to be hoped that some immediate progress will be made towards solving this contentious issue.

In examining these alternatives, consulting electrical engineer M. A. Thomas has given what appears to be an eminently fair evaluation of both. He discourages the fanning of old fires by assessing the record of the Northern B.C. Power Co. in this

"I have not been able to discover any instance where they have not been able and willing to supply electrical service to any potential customer, of any eategory, provided the customer was willing to pay the prevailing rates, and otherwise meet the requirements of service, which were in effect at the time."

With attention thus focussed entirely on the present and future, this recommendation emerges with particular emphasis: "Because of the many uncertain factors regarding Kitimat power, I would definitely recommend that the city avoid making any agreement for a term of the order of 20 years, as suggested by the Northern B.C. Power Co."

Since indications are that the level of rates would be much the same under either the private company or the power commission, the question of which party can make the best provisions for our expanding requirements becomes the overriding consideration. While possibly there are sources to which we can look besides Kitimat, it is difficult to turn away from the attractions of the project there. So great is the promise of its surplus energy there that supply from this source might well settle Prince Rupert's power problem for all time.

Mr. Thomas leaves no doubt about his choice of the party best equipped to provide the tie-up. Having pointed to the probability of the power commission linking Terrace to Kitimat, he remarks: "In my opinion it is quite possible that they would therefore be in a position to bring this power to Prince Rupert at an earlier date than would be feasible for the Northern B.C. Power Co."

There is another factor which puts the power commission in a favorable light. Municipalities it serves are grouped into districts where the costs of power generation and transmission are pooled. This makes possible the establishment of stabilized rate structures which remain more or less unaffected by the amount of energy consumed.

Against these factors must be listed two pertinent considerations. One is that, under the stipulations of the Electric Power Act, the power commission must be invited to establish a power district in the area before it will make a report on its proposals. The other is that, once the city opened the door to the commission, it would sacrifice its bargaining rights concerning power. Only by the lengthy course of an appeal to the Lieutenant Governor-in-Council could it get a hearing for any disagreements it may

That, in brief, is the case now before the city. Over the council's deliberations looms the picture of a growing city whose power needs are certain to be multiplied within the next several years. Rates, bargaining rights, and everything else notwithstanding, the party which offers the greatest promise of meeting these needs is the party with which we should do business.

THE Arizona Daily Star has replied to my column titled O God O Arizona-which is reprinted.

On March 14 the Tucson paper said:

"When the Star compares the present-day contribution Canadian manpower of one half of one per cent of Canada's population in active military service Mr. Philpott scolds that Canada did its share in World War and World War II. Nowhere does he state the facts about Canada's military manpower."

LET US ignore the error in the Arizona Star's latest article. Actually, we have 101,000 men under arms, ready for service in any part of the world, and not 75,000 as the Tucson editor says.

Due to war costs. Canada is bearing a heavier and not a lighter tax load than is the U.S.A. As our Conservative leader. George Drew, showed in parliament on March 9, "in the case of actual taxes paid per capita we are substantially above those being paid in the United States, the United Kingdom, France and Australia.

"The gross national product of the United States for 1952 was $346,300 million. The gross national product of Canada in the same year, 1952, was $22. 984 million. The budget now before the Congress of the United States calls for expenditure of $68,700 million. The budget now before the House calls for expenditures of $4,817 million. The budget now before the Congress of U.S. represents 19.84 per cent of the gross national product of that country, while the budget before this House represents 20.96 per cent of the gross na tional product last year of this

CANADIANS do not think it is our place to tell our American cousins that they should chip in more financially to bring their taxes up to our lanadian level. On the other hand, Canadians do not think it is any of Uncle Sam's business whether we have (as we do) 101,000 men in uniform or the 175,000 the Tucson paper says we should

Up here we still believe in the good old principle of "No Taxation Without Representation. We do not mind doing our full share in Korea or elsewhere provided that we have full and equal representation on the allied councils which decide or any particular expedition. But did we have even one Canadian in the truce tents, in the months before things went from bad to worse in Korea? No.

OUR OWN Senate and Commons have both passed resolutions urging steps to explore setting up one mighty Atlantic Union in which Americans, Canadians, Britons and others in NATO would have equal military duties, equal rights and equal taxes for defense.
