B.C. Storm Sentinels

TWO OF CANADA'S floating weather stations lie at anchor at their home base at Esquimalt, B.C. The Stonetown and the St. Stephen, owned by the department of transport, are two of three ships which patrol Station P, an area 1,000 miles west of Vancouver in the Pacific Ocean, collecting weather data and making forecasts. They also are equipped to go to the aid of distressed ships and aircraft. The third ship is the St. Catherine. The St. Stephen is a standby vessel. (CP PHOTO)

Algoma Park Proposed For New Sports Stadium

Board May Ask For Parks Fund Transfer

Plans to develop Algoma Park into a recreational park with a stadium and a first-class playing field are being formulated by the Park Board. Discussing estimates for the year at the first regular meeting of 1953, commissioners decided to inquire into cost of developing Algoma Park and plan to visit the site next Sunday with the works superintendent. They agreed unanimously to direct attention at that site, rather than Roosevelt Park, and when costs and plans are completed may ask the city to transfer the Roosevelt Park Beautification Fund to development of Algoma. Last November the park board reversed its decision to ask the city to transfer the fund until it could be earmarked for a specific project.

2 Remanded In City Store Theft

Two of three men arrested January 6 on a charge of theft of $268 worth of garments from Sweet Sixteen pleaded guilty in police court and were remanded for sentence. They were Henry Moore and Joseph Tremblay. A third man, Leonard Raymond Hudgson, pleaded not guilty and will come up for trial again Saturday. A fourth man arrested at the same time on a charge of possessing a sawed-off 22 rifle, also pleaded guilty before Magistrate W. D. Vance and was remanded for sentence. Thomas W. Brown, QC, appeared for the Crown. The accused were not represented by counsel. Moore, Tremblay and Hudgson were arrested by RCMP less than an hour after three men were sighted running along Third Avenue with a number of women's blouses and coats.

AIRLINES SUED $100,000 IN SANDSPIT PLANE CRASH

DENVER ©—Trans-World Airlines was sued for $100,000 damages in Denver district court Friday by Mrs. Dorothy J. Roy for the death of her husband last year off the British Columbia coast. Warrant Officer Maurice L. Roy, 32, was killed in the Jan. 18 plane crash at Sandspit which took the lives of all but seven of 43 persons. He was flying on emergency furlough from his station in Japan to visit his son, born 11 days earlier here.

Cariboo MP Recalls Alcan Road Thefts

OTTAWA (CP)—George Murray (L—Cariboo) said Friday that thieving at the army camp at Petawawa, Ont., was "trifling" compared to the "plunder" on the Alaska Highway between 1942 and 1945. Mr. Murray, whose home is on the Alaska Highway at Fort St. John, told Commons that $10,000,000 worth of equipment disappeared from the construction projects on the highway. When investigation started to find where some tools had gone, the building from which they were missing "conveniently burned down" overnight. One building which included a jail was stolen. Truckloads of groceries and other articles were stolen. Carelessness caused much destruction and many deaths. The plundering was carried on under the noses of top brass in the Canadian army. It was true that Americans worked on the highway, but Canada did not surrender law enforcement to the United States. Mr. Murray said the general officer commanding the Pacific Area in 1942 and 1943 was Maj. Gen. G. R. Peakes, VC, now military spokesman for the Progressive Conservative party. Gen. Peakes interjected that the Alaska Highway did not come under Pacific Command. Mr. Murray said he was not charging Gen. Peakes with anything. But he felt Gen. Peakes should have some compassion for those now under attack because of irregularities at Petawawa.

Egyptian Premier Sole Ruler

CAIRO ©—Premier Mohammed Naguib today announced he had smashed an attempted revolution and made himself sole ruler of Egypt for the next three years. The Premier jailed 25 army officers and dissolved all political parties for three years. Naguib reported he was tired of battling corruption and would take "severe measures" necessary to clear a path for three years of one-man government. "GRAVE MENACE" In a dramatic country-wide radio broadcast, Naguib charged that political parties were a "grave menace to the country's existence." He added that some "had conspired with foreign powers and had engaged in conspiracies." He did not name any foreign powers. Later report said a conspiracy by Communist and Wafd party members aimed at laying the groundwork for a revolution in Egypt was crushed by the arrest of army officers and 15 civilians. A government spokesman said the conspirators had planned to seize power from Naguib. Those arrested included Prince Abbas Halim. He said seditionists had planned a demonstration for Jan. 23.

Hospital to Probe Possibility Of Reducing Operational Costs

A committee will be appointed by Dr. L. M. Greene, president of the Prince Rupert General Hospital board of directors, to review the institution's financial structure. This was decided at the board's regular monthly meeting last night after members heard reports from administrator Doug Stevenson, and Don Forward, a director, concerning the recent meeting of hospital administrators in Vancouver. They told members the Vancouver meeting found no solution to the problem of financing hospitals in 1953 as a result of Health Minister Eric Martin's order freezing budgets at the 1952 level. "All we know is that the minister told us to be as economical as possible," said Mr. Forward. While the minister would not commit himself, it was the belief of delegates that hospitals would receive some additional aid if it was shown they could not operate efficiently on the 1952 budget. Dr. Greene said: "We might appoint a committee to review our situation and see if our operating costs can be reduced."

"Are you the 'Quiet Man'?" That question asked of the right man will give someone in the city next week as much as $25 in cash and a special prize in the form of a gift certificate. The "mystery man" has been named secretly by Harry Black, Totem and Capitol Theatres general manager here, to promote the new motion picture "The Quiet Man" which begins a 6-day showing at the Totem Theatre Monday. Starred in the cast of the Quiet Man are John Wayne, Maureen O'Hara and Barry Fitzgerald. With an Irish background, the picture is hailed as one of the best recently produced by Hollywood. Remember! CHARGES LIBERALS

E. D. Fulton (PC-Kamloops), following Mr. Murray in continued debate on the Currie report, said he would find it difficult to make a more effective case against the government than had been presented by the member for Cariboo. Mr. Murray had disclosed that plundering had been going on for years under the Liberal government.

Pupils Donate $55 to Kinsmen Polio Campaign

"It seems everyone wants to help put our drive over the top," said Bill Bond, campaign chairman of the Kinsmen B.C. Polio Fund, this morning as he accepted a $55 donation from Principal J. S. Wilson of Borden Street School. The money, Mr. Wilson said, was contributed by the children at his school during the past week. Normally this money would go to the Junior Red Cross from the children's "self-denial" fund, but on a vote, the children directed this week's contribution to the polio fund. Leading division was that of L. J. Matte which contributed $19. And another Prince Rupert resident—Mrs. Carl Strand—this morning urged everyone to back the Kinsmen. Her 13-year-old son Robert was stricken with polio here Dec. 5, 1947. Mrs. Strand said that her boy still has to take treatments to his left arm, which is partially paralyzed. "It can happen here," she said. Mr. Bond said that up to noon today, he has received more than $200 in contributions from citizens who received appeal letters in the mails.

The WEATHERMAN Says

Most interior temperatures last night were several degrees above those of the previous night, and indications are that this trend will continue. In the far northern reaches of the province some moderation is in prospect. Mild wet weather is in store for the coast and gales are likely near the northern end of Vancouver Island today. Forecast: Gale warning continued. Rain today, cloudy and milder with showers tonight and Sunday. Wind southeast 20 increasing in the southern part near noon to 40 and shifting to southwest 20 this afternoon. Hockey Game Not Cancelled

All persons with a broom and a shovel are "invited" to attend a working bee at the Rotary tennis rink at 9:30 p.m. tonight. Park Board Chairman Pat Forman said at press time today the charity hockey game between the Elks and Gyros is still scheduled to take place at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow. The ice will be cleared tonight and flooded by the fire department ready for "the match of the century."

A Well-Done Service

IN ADVISING the government on the regulation of liquor consumption in this province, the Liquor Inquiry Commission has done British Columbians the credit of considering them intelligent beings who are entitled to use some personal discretion in their drinking habits.

This is the gratifying conclusion one can draw from the Commission's recommendations to Victoria which were announced yesterday.

Without sharing this view, others will with good reason point to cases where the reckless use of liquor has been, beyond any dispute, the sole cause of misery and neglect.

There is, however, nothing in the Commission's report which justifies alarm of any kind.

If its advice is carried out, the slummy beer parlor which calls itself a hotel must go.

It appears that B.C. may even see the introduction of the British-type "pub" which has established such a worthy name for itself through the centuries.

The truth is that if the Commission's recommendations go into effect, drinking in this province will be more carefully supervised than ever before.

The Commission has satisfactorily met the demands of the people and performed an excellent service.

UNDER OUR ROOF

By JOHN STURDY

"Daddy," our small son said to me the other day, "I wish I could grow up quick."

"Why?" I asked gently. "Because then I could play with my Christmas toys."

I hurriedly stopped the child's electric train and drew him aside. "You mustn't feel that way," I said, as I perched him on my knee.

"Oh, bother the electric train," said the small son. "I want my space gun."

"And why can't you play with your space gun?" "Because Little Augie won't let me. He says guns are a bad influence on small boys."

Well, at that, Little Augie was probably right. Little Augie, who has been carrying a gat since he was 12 or 14 (he never shot anyone—intentionally, that is), ought to know about those things.

"I don't believe in space guns, myself," I said. "But there is that lovely meccano set your uncle gave you."

"Hamish says I am your son." "What has that to do with it?" I demanded.

"Hamish says that giving anything mechanical to an offspring of yours is just plain stupid."

I bristled at that. Still, reviewing the matter, I had to admit that Hamish might be right in some respects.

As I See It

OTTAWA DIARY

By Norman M. MacLeod

The Canadian Army Journal—a publication which has been very much in the news in the last few days with a message to the Army by Lt. Gen. G. G. Simonds, Chief of the General Staff—is an official organ of the army's directorate of military training which prides itself on keeping officers of the active and reserve forces up to scratch on what every army officer should know.

The latest issue, the one which carried Lt. Gen. Simonds' exhortation to the Army, dwelt on such other topics as postwar development of anti-tank tactics, the evolution of defensive action, the strategic importance of the Middle East, the steam slingshot, leaguering in mountain warfare, and the role of the rifle as The Dominant Weapon.

Apparently included for the purpose of relief from all this heavy matter was an article by Lt. Col. J. A. Stairs of the armament development directorate. It was a readable exposition on the fun that can be had and the experience gained in reading road maps while flying.

"Those who travel by air can pass the time with interest if they take the trouble to consult a map to see what lies along the route," the article observed. "Before boarding a plane, pick up from your local garage a road map which will cover the trip. Learn how to fold the map from any tired commuter who reads a newspaper in the five o'clock crush. Do the folding while still on the ground."

The article is a valuable piece of prose on how to "pass the time with interest"—as it says—by charting the route likely to be taken by the plane, and plotting the times when the plane will pass near interesting points. It gives a detailed analysis of the problems that may be confronted in view of tail winds and and similar navigational problems of particular interest to the air force, rather than to army types.

And the article gives these helpful hints: "Long before walking out onto the tarmac, one should decide on which side of the plane one wants to sit. On a hot day with bright sunshine, the side away from the sun is cooler, easier on the eye, and permits much better ground observation."

"Most people try for a seat at the front end. Although one can see forward, the view up front is restricted by the wings and motors, and the latter are noisy. A seat at the rear can be well behind the wing and usually provides a much finer view of the ground."

Some seconds before the flight is called on the loud-speaker . . . the actual departure gate outside the building opposite the plane is opened for passengers to board. . . . The experienced traveller waits at the gate. The novice, waiting inside, will find the best seats taken."

Faithful Urged to Seek Public Office

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—Representatives of 147,000 churches have issued an unprecedented document aimed at sketching a Christian approach to the problems of our times.

The "letter to the Christian people of America," adopted by the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A., calls on churches to "sensitize the conscience of the nation."

It urges unflinching support of the United Nations, patience in solving world disputes, a hat to character assassination, a stronger religious context in education.

It asks the religious faithful to seek public office, even at personal sacrifice, condemns continuing racial discrimination and appeals for a "pioneer spirit" in fortifying Christianity.

Dr. John MacKay, president of Princeton Theological Seminary and head of a committee that drafted the message, said Christian churches as a group had never before joined in a pronouncement of such scope.

It was adopted unanimously at the general assembly of the council, which includes 30 denominations with about 35,000 members.

The message warned that "our culture is in danger of becoming pagan," and said "religion must be placed at the height of higher education." There should be a stronger "religious influence" in public schools.

Attend CHURCH SUNDAY

Saturday Sermon

By REV. CANON BASIL S. PROCKTER, St. Andrew's Cathedral

THE SON AND THE FATHER

There are some significant words of St. John 5:19. He says, the son can do nothing of himself but what he sees the father doing. . . . speaking of the Divine relationship but it also on the human plane.

All sons want to do what their father does. Every young son adores his father.

Therefore it is silly to say that your son is free to choose what he will do and what he will believe. Very largely, and for all his most formative years, he will want to do what his father is doing.

If you want your son to have wide horizons, you must have wide horizons. If all you think about is dollars and fun, it is useless to expect that he is going to be any bigger in outlook.

There are a good many fathers in Prince Rupert and elsewhere who are not giving their sons the opportunity they had as children to begin to live at all levels.

If you have deliberately decided that your son shall not have a religious life, you have accomplished your purpose if you have never prayed with him or gone to church with him. But don't be hypocritical and say that he was free to choose. He has only been free to choose within the limits of what he has seen his father do.

Canadian Soldiers Must Have Permission to Marry Japanese

OTTAWA (CP)—About half the number of Canadian servicemen in the Far East who have applied for permission to marry Japanese girls have carried out their intention.

An Army spokesman said here about 30 Canadians have asked the permission to marry Japanese girls in the last two years. Of these, 15 have married and three have brought their brides to Canada. Troops in Japan must go through the same steps leading to marriage that are followed by Canadian troops in Germany or France. They must have the permission of their commanding officer which is based on immigration, regulating calling for a clean bill of health and proof of birth.

Once permission is granted, the couple must wait a five-month period before the marriage can be performed. This is a cooling-off period to make sure the soldier isn't rushing into something he will regret later.

Brotherhood Week Held By City P-TA

To help promote better understanding and closer contact between the many nationalities which go to make up Canada, members of Conrad Street School Parent-Teacher Association decided at the regular monthly meeting to make its February gathering a celebration of "Brotherhood Week."

A special program for the occasion, prepared by Mrs. M. Reeves and Mrs. E. Bartlett, will include a program of international songs, dances and instrumental numbers, topped off with a "smorgasbord" supplied by the members.

A display will also be set up for souvenirs and curios from many lands.

A work party was chosen from among members to apply "scotch-lite" tape to the bicycles of Conrad school, beginning this morning.

IT'S A WARM, HAPPY WONDERFUL PICTURE!

the rough and tumble courting of a strong man and a red-haired lass — and the marriage broker is also the village bookie!

TOTEM PLAYING MONDAY TO SATURDAY
A FAMOUS PLAYERS THEATRE 7:00 and 9:15

REPUBLIC'S powerful romantic dramatization of the Maurice Walsh story, "The Quiet Man," filmed in Technicolor and starring John Wayne and Maureen O'Hara, is steeped in Irish tradition through its native Irish cast, but none is so rooted in the "culture" as that twinkly-eyed dean of the acting profession, Barry Fitzgerald.

Barry, appearing in the whimsical role of the marriage broker in "The Quiet Man," which opens an engagement at the Totem Theatre on Monday, never repeats a performance and in recent pictures has played a ship's cook, a tram conductor, an impetuous race track enthusiast, a grape grower, a wealthy playboy, a country doctor, a tombstone sculptor and a male nurse to a niece.

It was in 1944 that he won an Academy Award as the best supporting player of the year for his portrayal of a priest in "Going My Way."

An easy-going, stocky man with twinkling blue eyes, light brown hair and a lantern jaw, Fitzgerald was born in Dublin, Ireland, on March 10, 1888. His real name is Shields and his father was a columnist on the Dublin Evening Telegraph. He attended the Merchant Tailors' and Skerrys College, and upon graduation from Skerrys, Barry entered the Irish Civil Service. But through a casual acquaintance, he saw his first play from the wings. That was the turning point in Barry's life.

He joined the Abbey Theatre, famed as a builder of stars on the stage and screen. Beginning as an after-hours volunteer, he later became a full-time performer and adopted the name Fitzgerald for his stage appearances. As a matter of fact, his brother, Arthur Shields, also appears in "The Quiet Man."

We've had a word from Ireland that the QUIET MAN'S comin' around so make sure you drop in to ART MURRAY'S as he'll head there when he hits town.

Northern River Boatmen Appalled by Traffic As They Visit City First Time in 35 Years

CALGARY — A couple of northerners say travelling on northern rivers is easy compared with operating a pick-up truck on Calgary streets.

For Barney and Woods Streep-er of Fort Nelson, B.C., driving around Calgary was also complicated by the fact that they hadn't driven in traffic for about 35 years.

The brothers are northern river boat operators. They hadn't been in a city for 35 years when they drove about 700 miles to Edmonton and then to Calgary "on business."

Barney says Calgary "sure has changed some. The last time I was here I remember... seeing only one large building. I was on my way from Nevada to the north."

The pair operate two river boats on the Liard and Mackenzie rivers, travelling each year to Aklavik and other far northern points with supplies hauled on scows.

TOLL BRIDGE ACROSS FRASER APPROVED BY B.C. CABINET

VICTORIA — The British Columbia cabinet has approved a plan for private interests to build a toll bridge across the Fraser River 80 miles east of Vancouver. Works Minister P. A. Gagliardi said Wednesday.

Mr. Gagliardi said the bridge would replace the ferry between Rosedale and Agassiz.

Decision Held On Damage Suit

VANCOUVER — Mr. Justice Sidney Smith Tuesday reserved decision on claims in Admiralty Court totalling $600,000 arising out of a ship collision off Nanaimo, July 26.

Owners of the Greek freighter Triton, which lost two of her crew in the crash, claim $300,000 damages from Alaska Steamship Company, Seattle, owners of the cruise ship Baranoff. Alaska Steamship claims a similar amount from Triton's owners.

ADAM GRAETZ, master of the Israeli freighter Abraham Graetz, arrives in Montreal, following a report that he threatened to scuttle his ship unless his father was made minister of communications. The 24-year-old skipper said the report was a fabrication. An official of the M. Dizengoff and Company, Ltd. of New York, owners of the ship, said he believed there was some difference of opinion between Capt. Graetz and some authorities "on topics of opinion between Capt. Graetz and some authorities" on topics of maritime procedure. (CP Photo)

Cabinet Forms Company Town At Kenney Dam

VICTORIA — A new company town has been established in British Columbia.

It's the Kenney Dam industrial township and includes the big Nechako river dam in the Alcan project.

The provincial cabinet has approved its formation on the same status as a village municipality, except that it will be under the department of lands and forests instead of the municipal affairs department.

The lands and forests department will name one member of a three-man township commission, with Alcan naming the second, both for two-year terms. The two will choose a chairman.

Alcan must provide public services to provincial standards and pay provincial land and school taxes.
