All Aboard

By G. E. MORTIMORE

Unbutton your collars, men. A clergyman in Miami, Fla. thinks the necktie is going out of fashion.

According to a recent news story, Dr. Harman's research shows that ties change every 50 years.

As it happens, Dr. Harman is a collector of ties. He has cravats once owned by a number of celebrities, including Tom Mix and Harry Truman.

Other critics will claim that he shows a sourgrapes attitude toward an item of dress which (I suppose) he is not allowed to wear.

However, I will not hear such evil talk about a man of the cloth, spread as it must be by the vested interests.

Speaking as one whose windpipe has been too long imprisoned in a noose of pesky fabrics, I will be happy to bid the necktie farewell and bon voyage to the garbage pail.

Coats shield a man from the weather. No one will deny, I hope, that pants are useful. But what good did a tie ever do? It doesn't keep you warm.

Some people may object that there is a place for things which are purely ornamental. Of course there is. But there is no place for them on me.

Colored pictures of bucking horses, bathing beauties and pheasants winging into the sunset have appeared on some neckties.

Dr. Harman put up two alternatives: a different kind of necktie, or no necktie.

But the tie is one mark of a well-dressed man," reactionaries will say. So were the ruffie and the wig and, earlier still, the bearskin cloak.

Judge Says Press Should Curb Own Offenders Against Decency

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP)—The judge who barred reporters from the Jelke vice trial holds that it is up to the press itself to "police the offenders" against journalistic canons of decency and responsibility.

Judge Francis L. Valente of New York City's general sessions court Monday night cautioned the New York State Society of Newspaper Editors that "our history is studied with instances where unbridled excess has brought legal and legislative restraints."

The judge did not refer directly to the trial of Minot F. Mickey Jelke. During portions of that proceeding, he kept reporters out of his courtroom on the ground that publication of the testimony was likely to impair public morals.

Valente cited one of the canons of journalism adopted in 1923 by the American Society of Newspaper Editors, stating that "a newspaper that supplies incentives to base conduct such as are to be found in details of crime and vice cannot escape being convicted of insincerity while professing a high purpose."

Soviet Satellites All Out of Step In Regard to Zhdanov Anniversary

LONDON (Reuters)—A five-year-old Kremlin death mystery took an odd turn Monday night when all the satellites were out of step with Moscow in commemorating the event.

Five years ago Andrei Alexandrovich Zhdanov died suddenly in Moscow at the age of 54 and apparently at the height of his power.

Zhdanov was then reckoned No. 2 to Stalin. He was Russia's culture chief, the founder of the Cominform, and an apostle of militant expansionist communism.

A medical bulletin signed by several Kremlin doctors said he died from heart disease.

With his death, Georgi Malenkov, Zvyacheslav Molotov and Lavrenti P. Beria all moved one up—one nearer the succession to Stalin.

In January this year a group of Russian doctors, mostly Jewish, were publicly accused of having hastened Zhdanov's death by faulty diagnosis and treatment.

One of the miseries of life, comments the Montreal Gazette, is to be overworked, but underworking may become an evil also. The biggest labor body in Canada, the Trades and Labor Congress, will press for a 30-hour week and endeavor to have this enforced by law.

If the working week is to be cut down to 30 hours, and if payment is to be kept as high as it was for the 40-hour week, or even higher, what will the consequence be? Is there not a danger that the reaction from overwork is swinging to the opposite extreme?

The War Cry

IT IS often thought that the principal duty of the Salvation Army is to watch out for the lost and strayed, give them a bowl of soup and clean clothes, say a prayer and send them on their way refreshed.

Admittedly that is part of it, but there is something else which makes the Army considerably more than a welfare bureau with religious overtones. The difference was brought out at the annual native congress which ended here yesterday.

As Field Secretary Gilbert Best told the meeting, all Salvationists are sworn to follow their "Articles of War," which means making active personal use of their Christian teachings in the combat of existence.

It is a dedicated form of life which most would hesitate to enter. Yet anyone who attended the congress just past could feel only envy. Here obviously was a people who had found a fellowship and purpose that few ever realize.

With no sense of self-righteousness but only a desire to help, the Salvationists are taking these qualities into the dark areas of the world where they do most of their work. Under such a light as theirs the shadows are bound to be less.

Driver, Be Careful

THE trend towards more long weekends, such as Labor Day, is responsible for an alarming increase in traffic deaths and injuries, say officials of the All Canada Insurance Federation.

An estimated 70 deaths and hundreds of injuries are expected this coming Labor Day weekend in Canada unless above-average precautions are taken.

When a holiday falls on a weekend motorists tend to drive further and faster into unfamiliar territory, say safety experts. The confusion of hastily planned trips and long hours of driving brings on fatigue which is responsible for large numbers of traffic accidents.

Mechanical failures, bad roads, and poor driving conditions cause only a small percentage of all traffic accidents, according to these experts. Ninety-nine out of 100 accidents are caused by carelessness, and therefore could be avoided.

Officials of the All Canada Insurance Federation, which represents more than 200 fire, automobile and casualty insurance companies, recommend some safety measures for weekend drivers:

- 1. Plan trips carefully. Long distances are tiring, and should be left until summer holidays. 2. Have car checked before leaving. 3. Never load too many people into car. 4. Remember that speeding, drinking while driving, driving on wrong side of the road, and ignoring rights of way of other motorists are the factors responsible for 70 per cent of all traffic accidents. 5. Never drive with glaring headlights or fogged windows.

"Dead" Veteran Faces Problem Of New Family

GALENA PARK, Tex. (AP)—Pte. Walter B. Dixon, whose sister has two death certificates for him—one signed by former President Truman—faced a dilemma today.

Back from the dead in the continuing prisoner-of-war exchanges at Panmunjom, the 23-year-old Galena Park soldier was reported killed in action, May 18, 1951.

Today, his 23-year-old wife, Mrs. Agnes Dixon of Lagrange, N.C., has a one-year-old son by her second husband, Pte. William S. Sasser of Lagrange. The boy was born seven months after her second marriage was annulled.

The sister, Mrs. Lorean Storey of Galena Park, said Monday night, "I feel sure Walter knows that Agnes married again, but I don't know if he is aware that she had a child."

"I've told him everything in many letters," the sister continued. "But I don't know if he got the letters. He has never mentioned the child to me in any of his letters. He did say he would do whatever Agnes wanted to do."

Mrs. Dixon, in Lagrange, refused to talk Monday night to Atlanta, Ga., newspaper men who reached her by telephone. Mrs. Storey said her sister-in-law revealed no plans to her in a letter she had from North Carolina last week.

"But she did say she was very anxious to see Walter," the sister said.

Mrs. Storey said Agnes legally cannot divorce Dixon until he returns to the United States. The couple were together but five days after their April 5, 1950, marriage. Mrs. Storey said, when he was ordered to the west coast and about a month later shipped to Korea.

Reported killed in action about a year later, it was not until late in 1951 that the Communists released his name as a war prisoner.

Two death certificates, one signed by Truman, the other from the State of Missouri, are among a pile of mementoes and clippings Mrs. Storey has on the case.

By Norman M. MacLeod

One of the most interesting speculations in connection with the new Cabinet which Prime Minister St. Laurent is devising down at his summer home in St. Patrick's is the rumor of the retirement of Health and Welfare Minister Paul Martin.

It is well known to his friends that Hon. Mr. Martin has considered retirement from public life more than once during the recent past. The report now current in well-informed Liberal circles is that he has made up his mind finally, and that his separation from the Cabinet will come in the course of the changes which the Prime Minister will announce next week.

If he leaves public life Hon. Mr. Martin will be appointed to high judicial office. The Supreme Court of Ontario is the post most generally mentioned.

Politically, all the rival aspirants to succeed Prime Minister St. Laurent, when and if he lays down the mantle of Liberal Leader, will breathe a lot more freely with Hon. Paul out of the picture. The strong support that he uncovered in the 1948 convention is still remembered very vividly in the Cabinet here. While it wasn't expected that he would again be a contender, there was no absolute certainty on the point. All interested persons will feel a great deal safer, at any rate, with him on the sidelines.

Just how close Hon. Paul came to capturing the Liberal crown back in 1948 probably will never be known. He made a pre-convention appeal to young Liberals which received an enthusiastic coast-to-coast response. Every train arriving in the Capital brought its quota of Martin delegates. His home county of Essex even sent a special train.

Interest in Stole General As Canadians Ponder Fabrics

Canadian women aren't too much concerned about the "ups and downs" of fashion this fall. A Canadian Press survey of the fall shows indicates they are pre-occupied with fabrics.

"Three-dimensional" type fabrics are popular for coats. Combinations of jersey with other materials and tweeds are much in evidence for daytime wear. Heavy autumn cottons are making a hit in a number of western cities.

As for color, black will be the top choice in Nova Scotia, Quebec, Montreal and Edmonton. The rest of the west, and Toronto, incline towards an ever-increasing range of browns—changing from the deep brown and bronze shades to the cinnamon and champagnes.

STOLES ARE POPULAR

Interest in the stole seems country-wide, and the suit with a stole will appear in a number of large centres.

Fur stoles tend to the triangular, putting them closer to the cape classification—a lot easier to handle.

The blonde fur coat retains its popularity and the short-haired pelts, such as beaver and shearwater racoon, will be much in evidence. The nylon "furs" are being eyed, too.

Incidentally some fashion authorities report Paris frequently looking fondly over her shoulder

New Hats Fail To Match Coat Styles For Warmth

LONDON—The latest winter coat styles here and in Paris ensure warmth on the coldest days, but the opposite is true of the hats designed to go with them.

Heavy fur-lined coats with cavalier collars stretching from ear tips to shoulder call for tiny hats perched on the hairline with Edwardian piquancy.

The hat may be of fur to match a fur tippet covering the shoulders of a warm fall suit—but it just isn't smart if it's big enough to be called a head covering.

Hats of felt, fur, satin, velvet and feathers are called tricorne, turbans, cloches, pillboxes and bouffants, but any resemblance to the styles as we know them is coincidental. For the smart and sophisticated, this year's winter hat is a half-hat or a quarter-hat.

SAME BUT SMALLER

Styles are not tremendously new or different. Any hat in your wardrobe would, no doubt, be a smash hit—if compressed to just half its present size.

In Paris, for instance, the plain French beret is still a favorite, but half the size of the last two seasons. This number tilts down one cheek with an elusive, gamine chic only French women seem to achieve.

A smart hat, suited to many and likely to sell at low cost, is

Victorian Enjoys Work In Ethiopia

VICTORIA—Allen Vincent-Barwood, who teaches school in Ethiopia and likes it, is visiting Victoria during the summer vacation period with his wife and their 20-month-old son Scott.

A native of Nelson, B.C., he has been teaching at the Halle classique first secondary school near Addis Ababa since 1950 and will soon return for another three years.

Vincent-Barwood, 32, has a degree in fine arts and Mrs. Vincent-Barwood in science. He teaches industrial arts at a boarding school for Ethiopian boys from all parts of the country and all types of homes.

"There are about 200 of them and although they aren't any faster students than Canadians, they are the most diligent I have ever seen," he says. "They slip into the school at four and five in the morning during examination times to study. You just can't keep them away."

Ethiopia has no real national language and much business is conducted in either French or English. All school subjects are taught in English, so the boys have to study extra hard.

"One of the amazing things about the Ethiopians is that they speak French without an accent," said Mrs. Vincent-Barwood.

THREE ATTRACTIVE young ballet dancers are shown in costume for one of the production numbers of the Canadian National Exhibition's grandstand show now running in Toronto until Sept. 12. People who appreciate fine cars are turning to Monarch.

"... I'm sold on Monarch's effort-saving power features!"

"It seems to me an engineer should know what he's talking about when it comes to sizing up a car. So, the other day when I was talking building plans with George MacDonald I told him I was in the market for a new car and asked him what he thought. He said he drove a Monarch—because he recognized really fine engineering when he saw it. Well, that's how I come to be driving a Monarch now. At a little extra cost I was able to get power steering, power brakes, power seat and automatic transmission. And believe me, I'm sold on Monarch's effort-saving power features! And the power you get from Monarch's V-3 engine you have to feel for yourself before you can believe how smooth and lively it is. Of course, this is the best looking car I've ever driven—but I don't need to tell you that. The admiring glances it gets from everyone who sees it tell that story better than any words."

"Ike" Excels As Both Cook And Angler

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—It's hard to tell, watching President Eisenhower, whether he gets a bigger kick out of catching trout or cooking them over an open fire on the bank of the creek.

But one thing is certain. He sure looked happy doing both on a day off recently.

He displayed as much skill at the frying pan as he did with the casting rod.

Those trout only an hour out of the stream, were delicious!

The president drove about 50 miles southwest of Denver, his vacation headquarters, to the ranch of an old friend, Bal F. Swan, about 7,000 feet high in the Colorado Rockies.

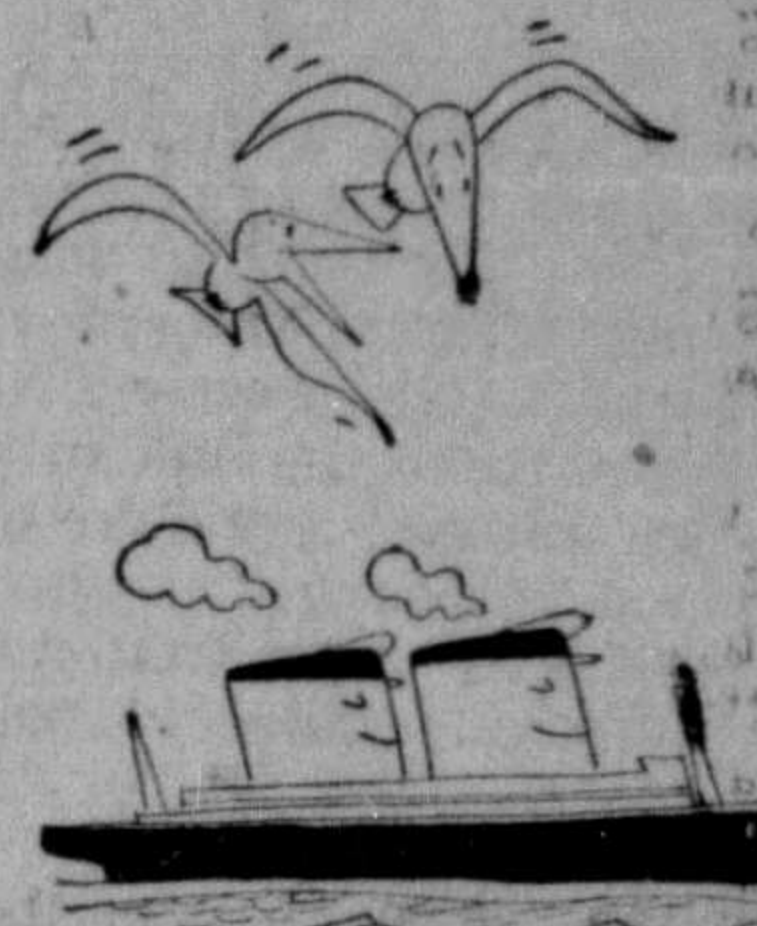

Within 30 minutes after he arrived, Eisenhower had pulled on his waders, a brown jacket, clapped a western-style blue hat on his head and was fishing, the north fork of the South Platte river.

landed his first trout, a rainbow, in about eight minutes. His luck continued good for the first hour. He and Aksel Nielsen, Denver business man and also a long-time friend, caught more than a dozen between them—rainbows, brooks and browns—in short order.

Then they took time out for lunch.

Three reporters representing the Press Associations looked on with mouths watering. They stopped watering a few minutes later when the president invited them to "come and get it."

Eisenhower cooked for the party before sitting down on an overturned bushel basket to lunch himself.

Made of aluminum, they are assembled with 65,000 aluminum rivets. Reputed to be the safest vessel ever built, the liner contains more aluminum than any other single structure on land or sea. This light, strong, fire-and-weather-resistant metal is used for lifeboats and bulkheads, decks and elevator doors and a hundred other items.

In naval vessels, too—such as the fourteen minesweepers now being built for the Canadian Navy—aluminum is being used more extensively than ever before. American Company of Canada, Ltd. (London).

Tale of Mountie on Trial Written by Ex-Policeman

OTTAWA (CP)—An honest-to-goodness Canadian Mountie decided one day that he should write an honest-to-goodness book about life in the service.

That was seven years ago, shortly after Sgt. Oscar Olson's horse had dumped him roughly to the ground. Today, fully recovered from an injury received at the time, he is the proud author of a 300-page novel.

The book, soon to be published in Canada and the United States, is entitled "Mountie on Trial." That wasn't the original title. Sgt. Olson first decided to call it "White Snow" but his American publishers thought it should have a name with more punch; one more appealing to the movie-makers.

BIG FRAME-UP

"Mountie on Trial" is the story of a constable who was framed into the penitentiary by his unfaithful wife and her lover. The rascals planted stolen bonds in his desk drawer. These were discovered by the Mountie's superintendent, and up the river he went for several years.

Test Pilot Escapes Crash

TANGMERE, Eng. (Reuters)—Crack British test pilot Neville Duke crash-landed his super-sonic jet fighter on one wheel here today soon after taking off in an attempt to break the world speed record set in July by an American.

Duke was forced to make an emergency landing because the undercarriage of his red, swept-wing Hawker Hunter did not retract properly. The plane was slightly damaged but he stepped from the cockpit unhurt.

Meat of the minke whale is sold as "Arctic steak" for human consumption and is also used for mink and fox food.

Released from prison, the Mountie decided to "get his man," or, rather, his wife's man. The chase led through some of the wildest country in the great northwest, country in which Sgt. Olson himself served many long months.

It took Sgt. Olson seven years to complete his novel, rewriting it eight times. He says the actual research for it, however, took 24 years—the 24 years he has been in the RCMP.

"To find out what my 'Mountie on Trial' really had been up against when he served his penitentiary term," Sgt. Olson said, "I went through St. Vincent de Paul near Montreal and made a study of life as men-in-cage live it."

REAL ATMOSPHERE

Taking pains to create authentic atmosphere for his fanciful plot, the sergeant even took the weather into consideration. When it rained outside, he wrote those portions of the books in which the weather matched; when there was a blizzard, he wrote of days and nights of searching in the white snows of the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

"That way," he says, "it gave me more of the feel of the characters as I went along. The ring of real life came more truly when the weather outside was the same as that required in the book's various episodes."

"Mountie on Trial," which has been "cleared" by RCMP headquarters, is to be published both in regular book form and for the popular "pocket book" editions.

Sgt. Olson was born on a Saskatchewan homestead 46 years ago. He joined the RCMP at the age of 22 and, in succeeding years, served in many parts of Canada. His present duties are with the force's headquarters in Ottawa.

And how does the Mountie like life as an author? Fine, he says. In fact, so well that he already has begun work on his next novel, an Indian tale of Western Canada.

Britain Intends to Keep Jet Airliner Advantage

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sir Miles Thomas, head of the British Overseas Airways Corp., today prophesied daily round trip flights between New York and London for 1960—without an intermediate stop on either side.

Sir Miles said Britain has a lead of four or five years over the rest of the world in commercial jet airplanes, and we're going to do our best to keep it that way." He said this advantage exists both in regular jet and turboprops, in which a propeller is driven by a gas jet turbine.

He said he looks for adaptation of "remarkable new bombers" now under development in Britain as 110-seat commercial jet aircraft with a range of more than 3,000 miles and a speed of more than 550 miles an hour.

ACROSS IN 5 1/2 HOURS
He said such planes by 1960 might be flying the Atlantic in 5 1/2 hours.

Force six-jet B47 bomber already has flown from Maine to England in 5 1/2 hours.

Sir Miles, in a copyrighted interview with the magazine U.S. News and World Report, characterized as "completely silly" recent British complaints at U.S. failure to approve the British Comet jet-liner.

Speaking of failure of the U.S. Civil Aeronautics Administration to certify the projected Comet III, due for production in 1956, the British industrialist said:

"Some of our British newspapers have asked for an airworthiness certificate for a Comet which exists only thus far in the paper stage.

"I do not even any British certification of this model as yet. To criticize the U.S. for not approving an airplane which throws unnecessary grit into Anglo-American relations."

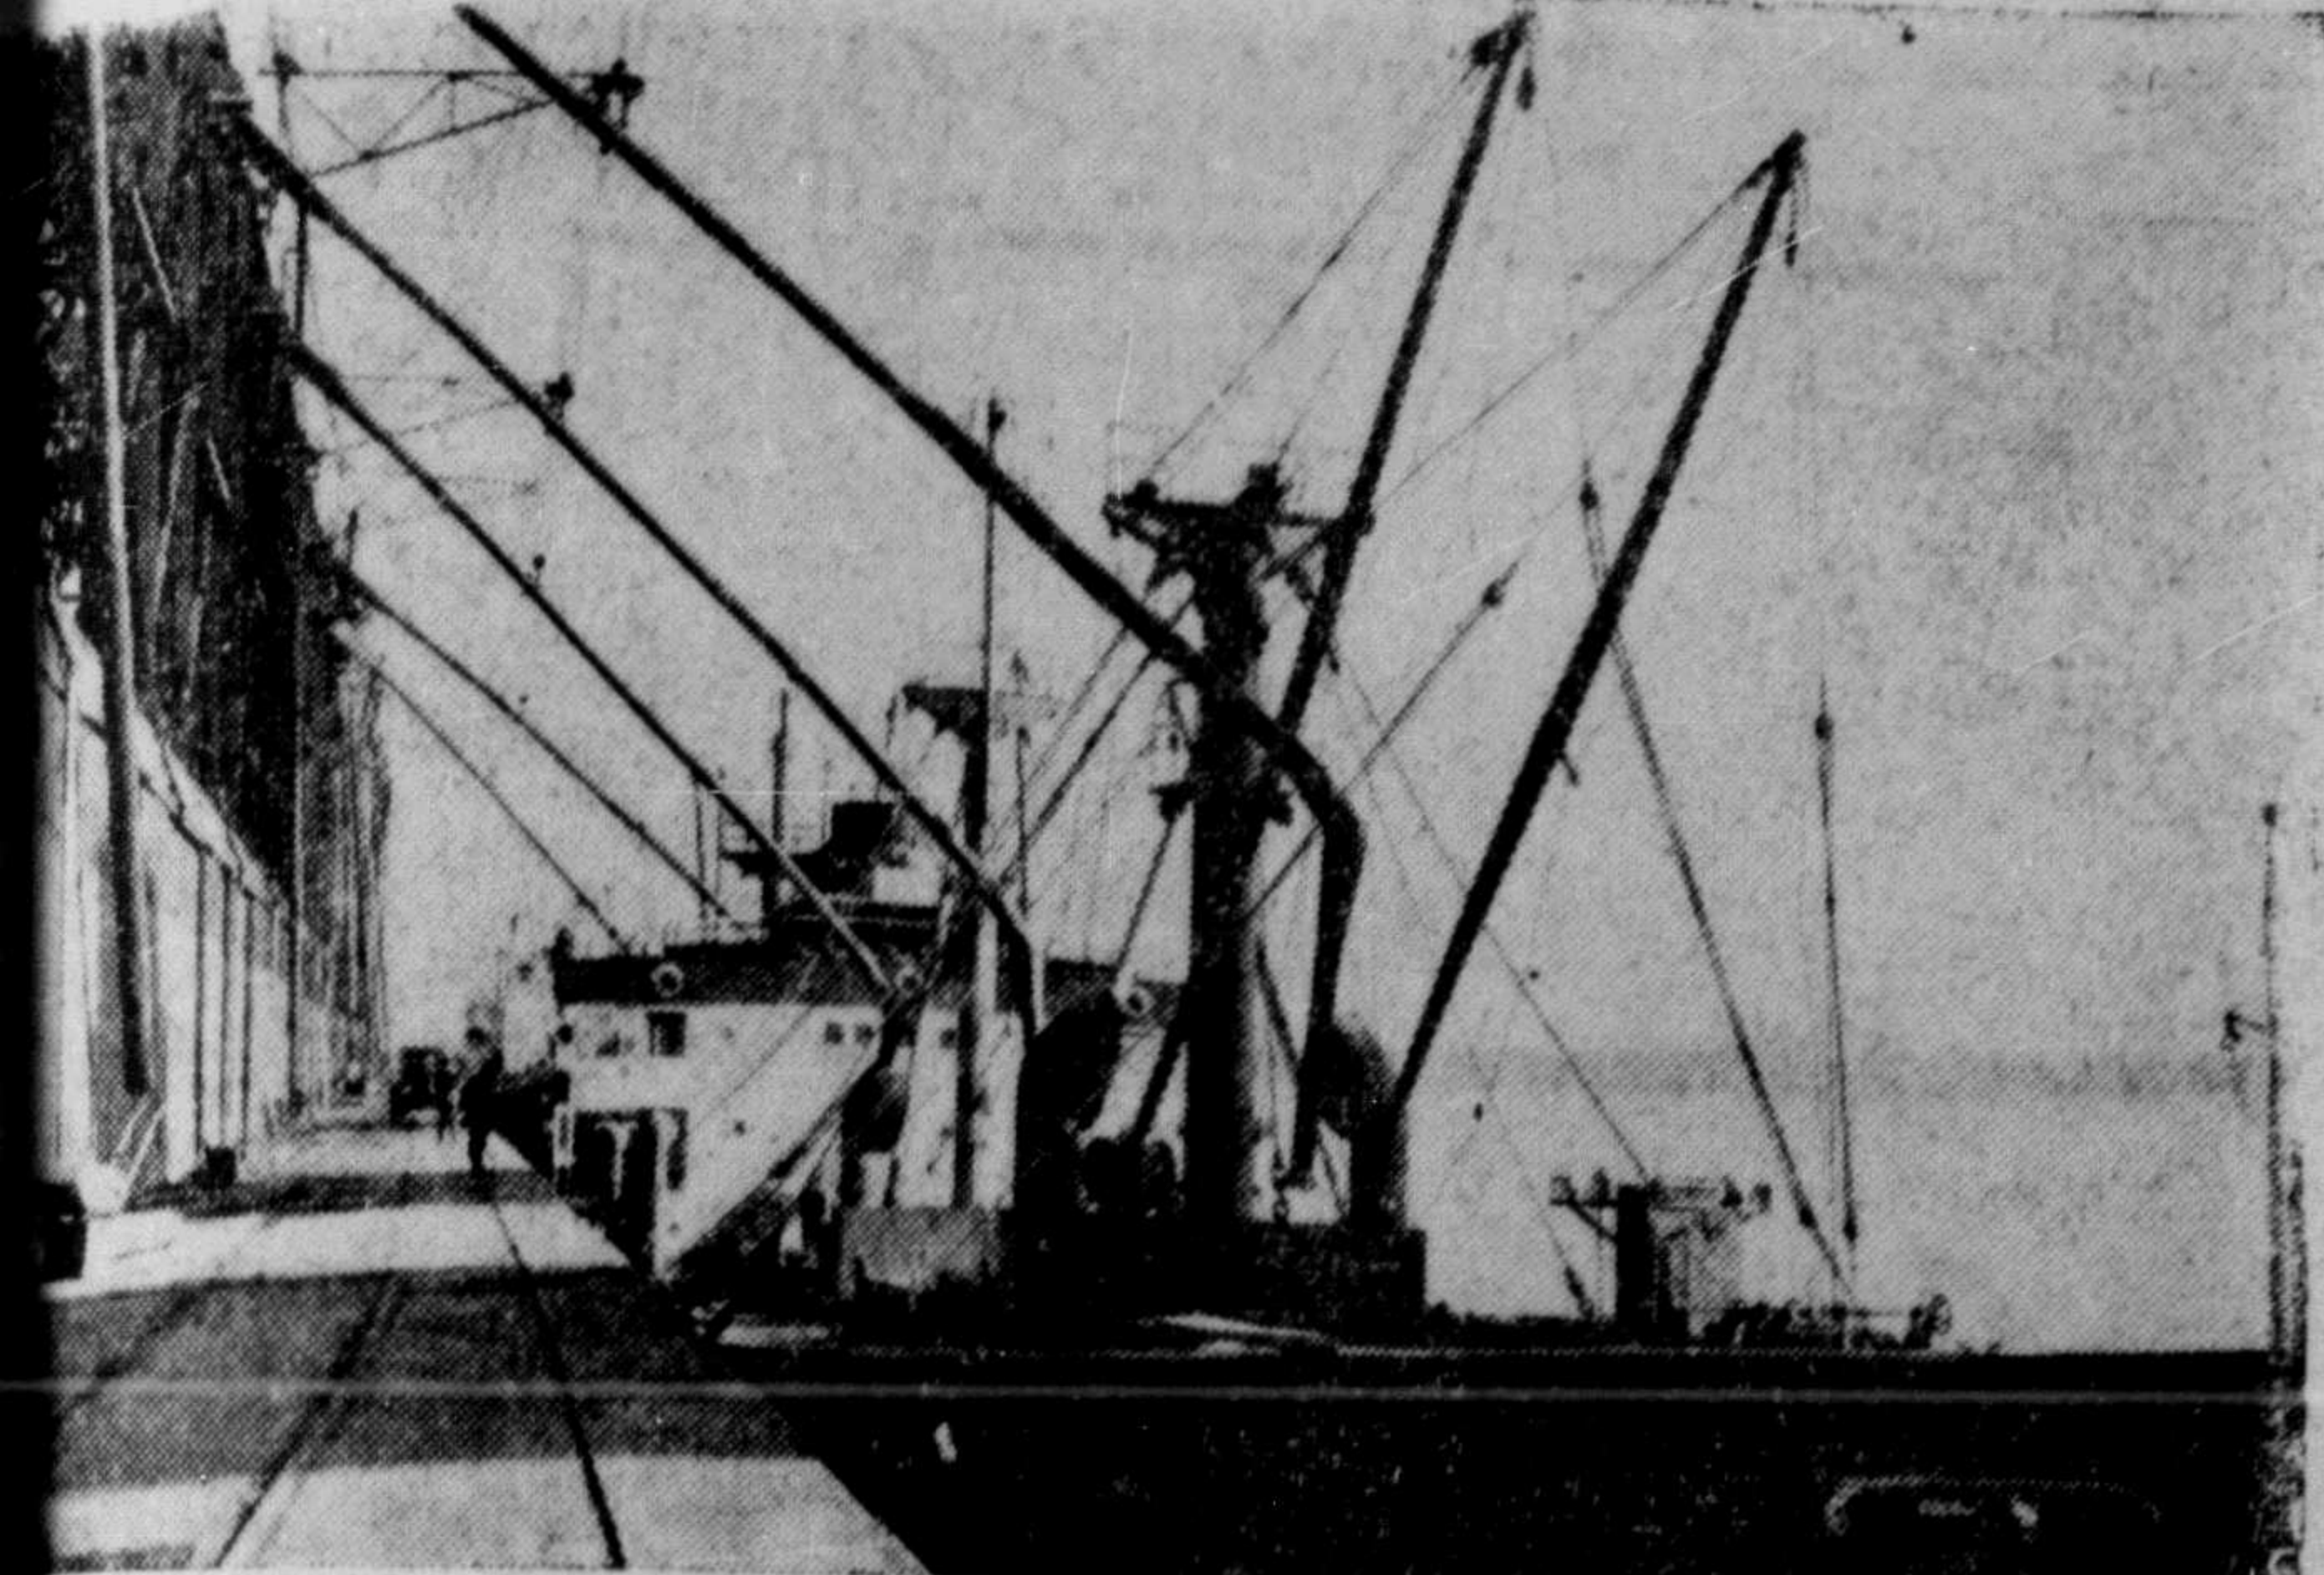

BOAC has been using the 36-passenger Comet I in regular service since May, 1952, and now has seven in operation. The 44-passenger Comet II, costing $1,000,000, will be introduced on the South Atlantic run to Brazil, and also to New York, in 1953, Sir Miles said.

$1000,000 In Paintings At Exhibition

TORONTO (CP)—More than $1,000,000 worth of original oil paintings are on show in one wing alone at the Canadian National Exhibition art gallery this year.

Many of the paintings in the collection, which has as its theme British Kings and Queens were lent by Burlington House, London. Some have been lent by British art lovers and others come from Government House in Ottawa.

One painting—Holbein's King Henry VIII—is insured for $250,000 and probably has a market value of about $500,000. This massive study of bluff King Henry is more than 300 years old. It was acquired in the 16th century by the fourth Duke of Rutland and was lent to the exhibition by the present duke. Like many other British art treasures it was hidden in Welsh caves for safety during the Second World War.

The collection catches something of the splendor of British royalty. Part of it is a grouping of the six Queens of England. The picture of Queen Elizabeth II is the work of John Gilroy and was flown out from Edinburgh.

There is an Edward Halliday picture of the Duke of Edinburgh and a wistful study of Princess Margaret by Henry Carr. An unfinished study of the queen mother has been lent to the exhibition by the artist, Gerald Kelly.

The Queen herself has lent her picture to the collection—described as "the Prince of Wales, later King Edward VII, sailing Toronto in 1850." It is believed to depict a scene at some part of the grounds now known as Exhibition Park.

In 1951-52 Canada exported 719,139 mink pelts worth $12,352,657.

NEED CANADIAN WHEAT

Wheat board officials said they do not believe good European crops will cut into Canadian exports to any great degree. "We will still need our wheat and even if they hold off for a while, they will have to buy it," said W. C. McNamara, assistant chief commissioner of the board in Winnipeg.

He said sales and loadings of Canadian wheat are about normal for this time of year. European crops "won't alter the picture very much."

J. B. Lawrie, European manager of the board, said he has "every confidence that markets will be found for large quantities of Canadian wheat." However, "it will take time."

"The marketing of the large 1953 grain crop will present some difficulties but with the co-operation of all concerned, a good job can be done during the present crop year."

Tailors' Journal Chides Churchill

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Churchill got a lecture today for turning up at a recent cabinet meeting wearing a formally cut black jacket with a pair of baggy grey slacks.

The Tailor and Cutter, trade journal of the British men's tailoring business, said sartorial units were shocked when they saw the pictures in the papers.

It described as "unorthodox" his "marrying of what happened to be a lightweight pair of trousers with a single-breasted, link-buttoned, jacket of very formal cut."

"Indeed," the journal added scornfully, "the pockets, pointed lapels and link button gave the appearance of being related to the dinner jacket family."

Market For Wheat Likely Despite World Wide Surplus

JOHN E. BIRD
OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian grain officials predict that Canada will export large quantities of wheat this year despite a world-wide surplus.

Wheat board officials and trade department men in Ottawa say they are likely to forecast wheat exports to foreign customers for this year's record.

Wheat grain producers have a lean year depends on the selling.

CARRYOVER
Wheat is bursting at the seams with grain, mainly wheat, from the last crop harvested July 31. Bumper crops have been estimated for 1953.

The wheat crop totalled 362,700,000 bushels, a record. The carryover of wheat is expected to be 603,000,000 bushels, second highest in history.

The carryover of wheat is stored on farms and in country elevators. The elevators remain plugged until they can be moved into export markets in large quantities.

Wheat board officials say three successive bumper crops caused the storage problem. They express opinion that sales will pick up in the fall, thus relieving the congestion.

SALES UP
The 1952-53 crop year, for sale of wheat and coarse grains, barley, rye and oats, totalled 502,000,000 bushels, a gain of 77,000 bushels over the previous year. Wheat exports rose to 385,000,000 bushels from 365,000,000 bushels the previous year.

Under the International Wheat Agreement, of this the United Kingdom purchased some 1,000,000 bushels. Top price for the agreement was $1.83 per bushel.

Minister Howe, in a speech at St. Andrews, N.B., said he expects Britain to buy more wheat than her usual 100,000,000 bushels in the crop year ending July 31.

International Wheat Agreement was renewed this year. The United Kingdom decided to purchase 1,000,000 bushels. The agreement was determined at a meeting of the International Wheat Agreement in October.

Wheat sales to the United Kingdom will be at IWA prices, $1.85 and $2.05. He said the "could not fall below IWA price, but did BACKYARD FISHING in the Dominican Republic fetched this 250-pound sea bass near Ciudad Trujillo, capital of the Dominican Republic. The fish was caught on a hooked line that floated 125 yards off shore from a native's backyard dock. Recently another 320-pounder was caught from a row boat off shore near Palangue, 40 miles east of Ciudad Trujillo. Huge sea bass are common in waters surrounding this West Indies country.

Better Rather Than Longer Life May Become Medical Science Aim

MONTREAL (CP)—Canada's deputy minister of health has suggested the doctor of tomorrow will be more concerned with helping his patients to live a better life than with finding ways to enable them to live longer.

During the five-day session the physiologists, who specialized in finding out what goes on inside animals and human beings, will attend symposia by top men in their field.

G. D. N. Cameron, speaking Monday night at the opening of the 19th International Physiological Congress, said the time is approaching when medical science will have to reassess its chief function.

At Monday night's opening meeting, Dr. Edgar Douglas Adrian of Cambridge University, president of the congress' permanent committee, told delegates the general assembly will decide Wednesday whether he and six other members of the committee will lose their jobs this week.

"The struggle through history has been to lengthen life," the deputy minister said. "But perhaps it is time that the emphasis is put rather on better life."

The assembly, meeting in private, will consider whether to found a new international body, the International Union of Physiological Sciences, to take over organizing of the congress from the committee and co-ordinate and supervise research.

Mr. Cameron, welcoming the delegates on behalf of the Canadian government, said holding the convention in Montreal is "a tribute to Canadian medical science."

The convention is being attended by some 2,000 delegates from 42 countries, including Poland and Soviet Russia. Among scientists present are Dr. Charles H. Best of Toronto, co-discoverer of insulin with the late Sir Frederick Banting and president of the congress; Sir Charles H. Best of London, chief of Britain's wartime cabinet's advisers; and Dr. C. M. Bykov of Leningrad, regarded as the leader of Russia's

Fire Brigade Has Deadline Of 45 Seconds

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal's fire department has a 45-second deadline to meet every time a fire alarm is turned in.

In less than a minute after receiving a report of a fire, the department's "nerve centre" has warned the nearest station or stations and the reels are on the way.

The city's fire-fighting efficiency depends on a rapid-fire sending and receiving service, utilizing what is claimed to be the fastest telephone transmission hook-up in Canada. Known as the "conference call," it makes possible a direct five-second connection from headquarters on mid-town Park Avenue to the department's 46 stations.

If an urgent message has to be relayed to district stations, the dispatcher plugs in a special conference call circuit and within seconds all stations are standing by.

TRIPLE CHECK
When one of the more than 1,800 street boxes rings in, it signals the centre's staff to go into action. Each call is triple-checked—all with the 45-second limit.

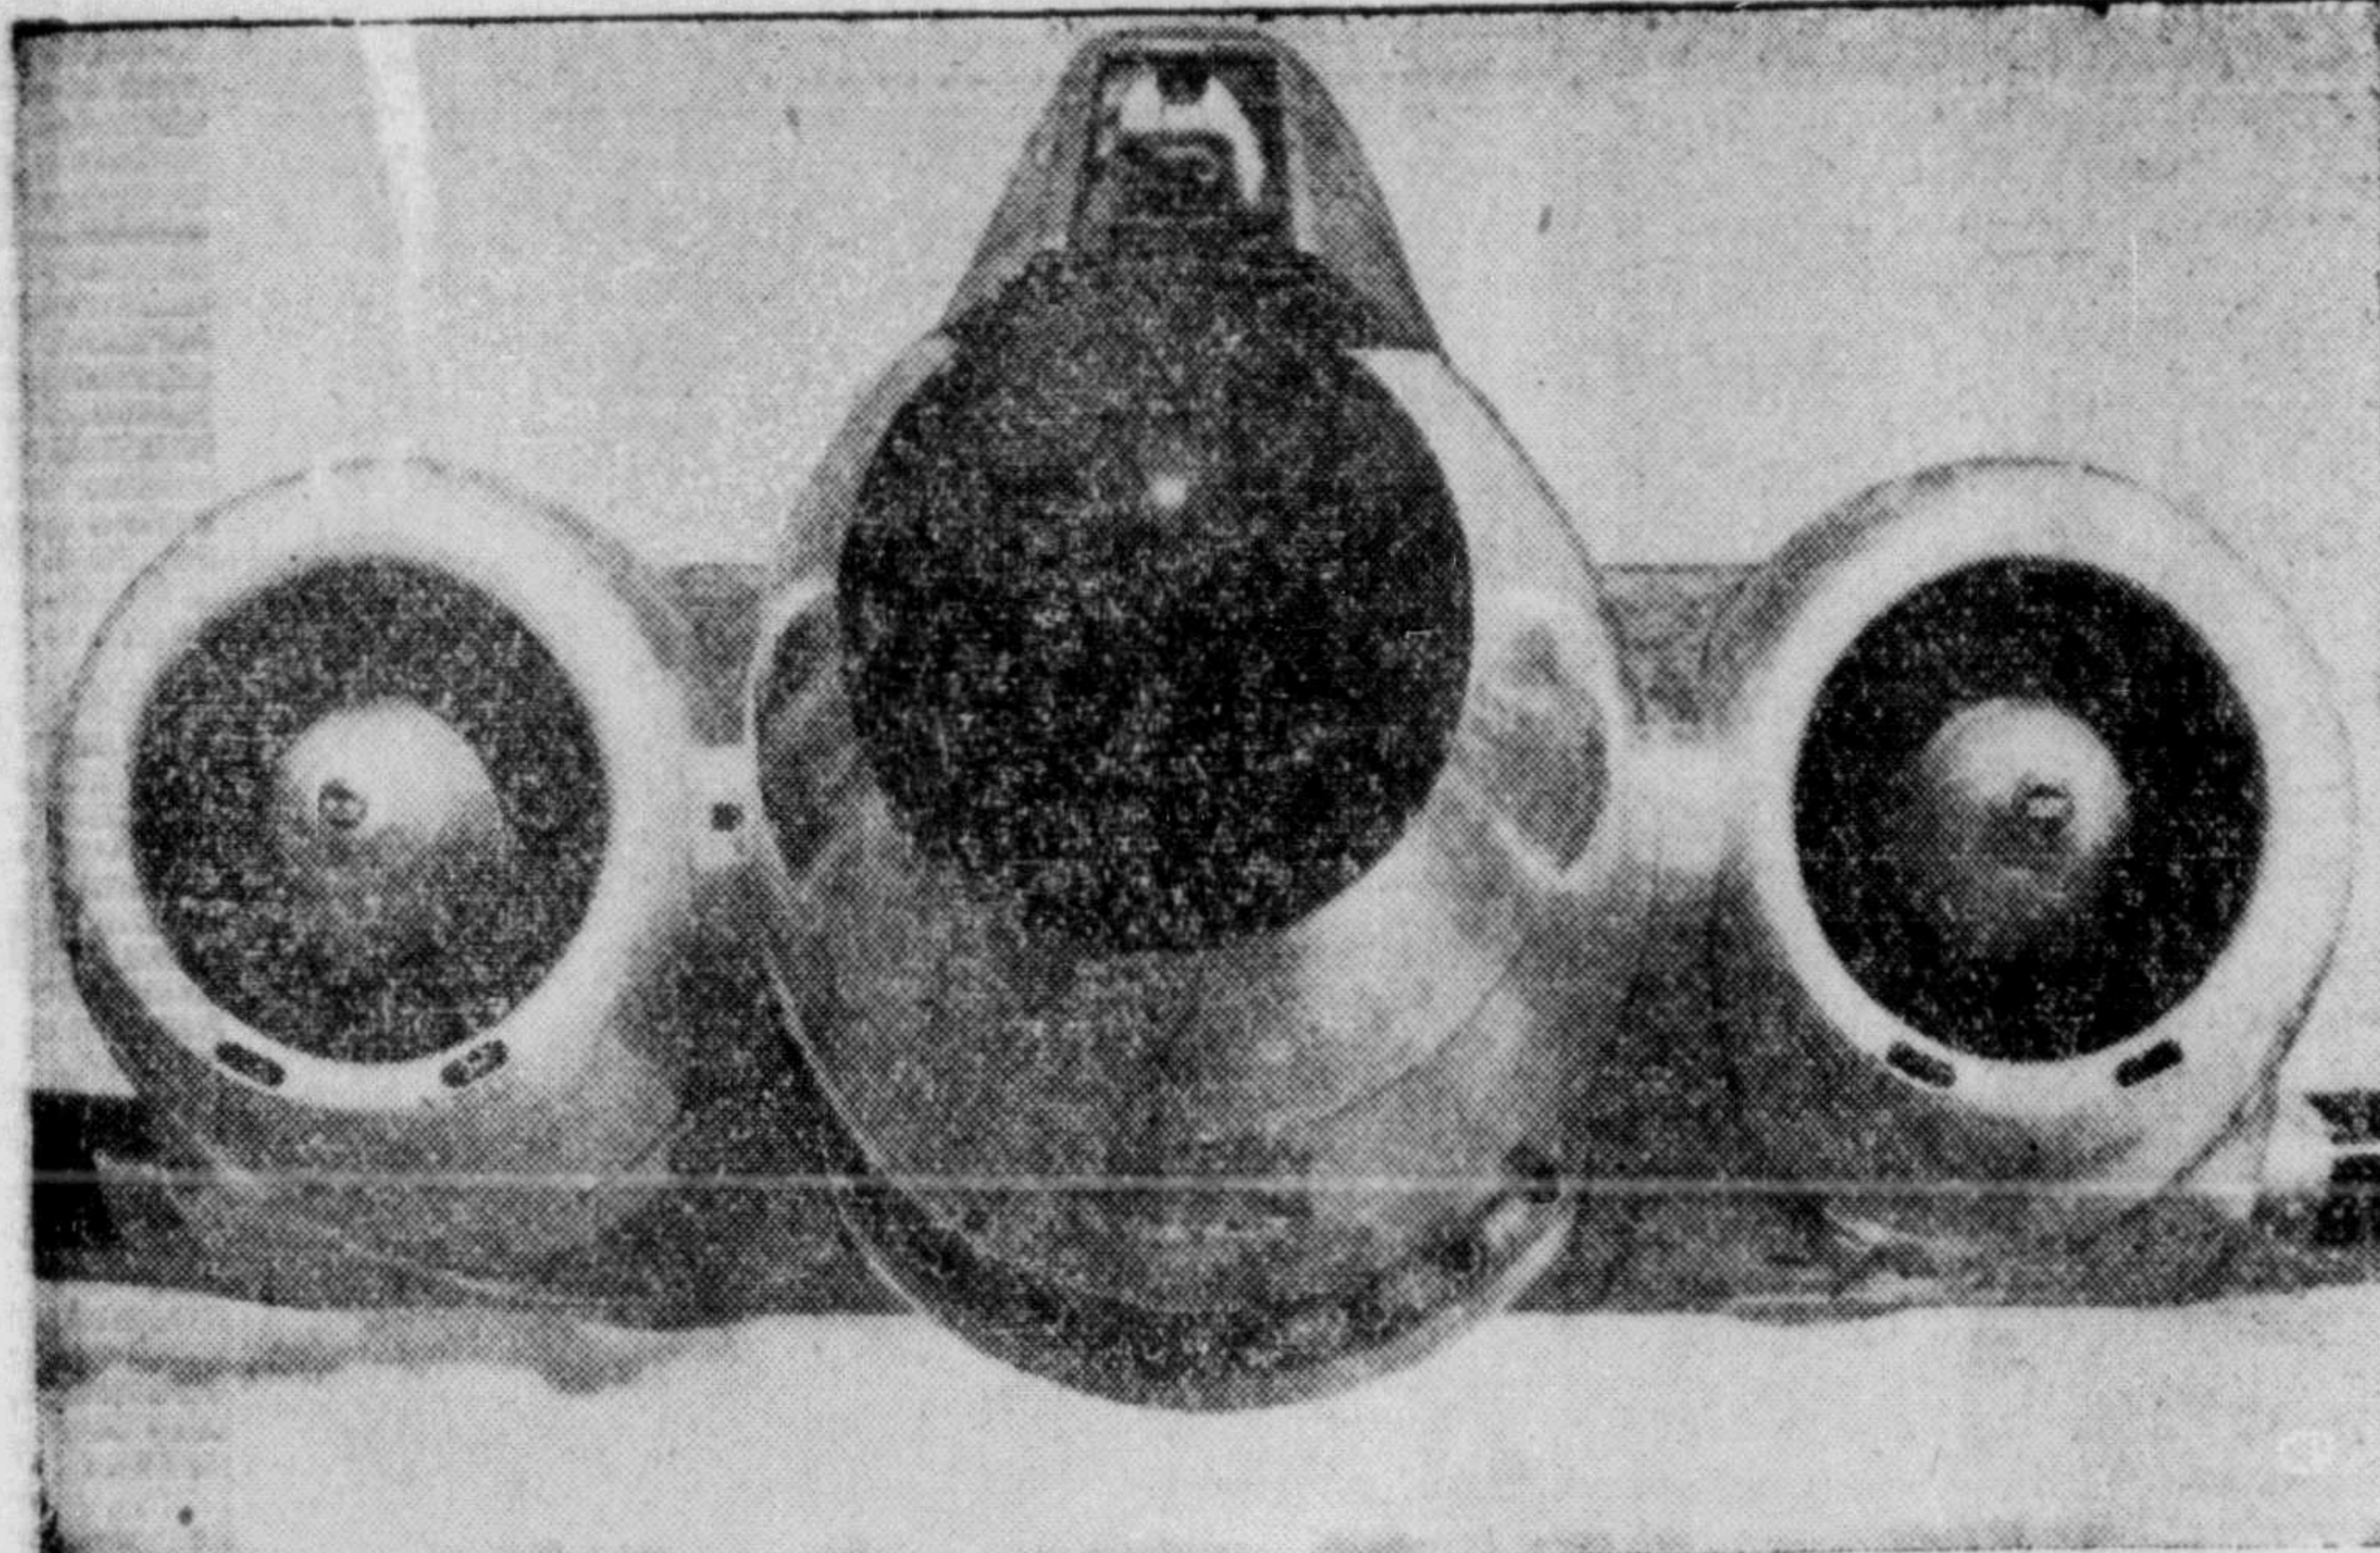

The alarm box number is automatically punched on a roll of paper and the time the call is received is recorded automatically. An operator immediately checks a list of fire alarm boxes to pinpoint the fire. At the same time, he checks the intersection nearest the alarm box on a primary register.

His final check is on an oversize map of Montreal which shows him the fire station nearest the scene. The dispatcher rings the station and fire-fighting equipment rolls out of the station house—all within three-quarters of a minute.

All telephone calls to the main switchboard are recorded—in case the person calling gets excited and hangs up before the switchboard operator can ask him to repeat his message.

Last year more than 5,500 calls were received through the centre's switchboard.

Quesnel River System Now Restored As Major Sockeye Spawning Stream

VANCOUVER (CP)—As a result of years of research and conservation methods, the Quesnel river system in central British Columbia has been restored as a major sockeye salmon spawning stream, says H. R. MacMillan, recently back from an inspection of the area.

Mr. MacMillan, a member of the international salmon fisheries commission, paid tribute to the work of commission scientists and referred to their achievement as a "modern miracle."

He says the Horsefly river now is alive with many thousands of spawning sockeye in an area that a few years ago was practically written off for future salmon production.

Up to 1909 the Quesnel system was a major sockeye spawning grounds for the Fraser river and that year more than 4,000,000 spawning fish were counted.

In the next cycle, 1913, because of placer mining in the Quesnel and a big slide at Hell's Gate, the run was virtually nonexistent. Now the total run is well on its way back to the 1909 figure.

Results of an experiment conducted by scientists at Horsefly lake hatchery were impressive. Small fingerlings raised there were flown to another tributary stream and released. When these marked fingerlings returned to spawn and die four years later, they disregarded the stream where they had been planted and continued to the hatchery where they were born.

"They even tried to fight their way up the water-pipes into the hatchery."

Fish are dressed as soon as possible after being caught, rinsed and placed in the sea-water tank. During the experiment an equal amount of fish from each tank was iced and stored in the refrigerated hold.

When the first lot was landed, the plump, wholesome fresh-looking appearance of the spring fish from the sea water tank could scarcely be distinguished from freshly-caught fish. The skin was without bruises, which often are present when ice is used.

Fish that had been stored in refrigerated sea water 19 days were preferred by 96 per cent of the tasters.

Mine Reopening At Glace Bay

GLACE BAY, N.S. (CP)—Operations will resume this week at Dominion Coal Company's 1-B colliery here, officials announced Monday.

By Saturday the company expects to have rehired about 225 of the 1,100 men employed at the colliery when it closed two months ago for mechanization.

Officials said further rehiring will depend largely on the showing of the first section to be reopened.

The company said the mine was losing money before the closure.

Blind Couple Learn to Run Half Section Stock Farm

READLYN, Sask. (CP)—Blind Emil Strand and his sister Lena who have only seven per cent of normal vision, own a half-section stock farm near here which they run without outside help.

"I find many examples of courageous enterprise on the part of those without sight but one of the most outstanding is the story which is being lived by Emil and Lena Strand," says R. V. Rudolph, field and social worker for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind in southern Saskatchewan.

Cattle, chief source of income on the Strand farm, are fed, milked and cared for by Emil. The day Mr. Rudolph visited him, Emil proudly showed off a new plank floor he was laying in the barn.

"When he finished the floor he had built himself," the CNIB official said. "Their neatness would have done credit to any artisan who had all his faculties."

A bell on the neck of one of the cows leads Emil to the herd in the 200-acre pasture. Rover, a collie, assists him in stabling the cattle.

Emil uses a team of horses to clean the stable and haul feed and seed grain. He told Mr. Rudolph he had never broken off a gate post while driving his team and wagon.

Neighbors tell of the time Emil was unable to get a hired man to run his binder during the harvest. Emil finally got a young boy to drive the tractor and, with a rope from the tractor operator to his wrist, he rode the binder himself and cut his crop. His sense of balance told him when it was necessary to tilt the platform of the binder, and a tug on the rope told him when to dump the bundle carrier.

After the crop was cut, Emil stooked it himself. Neighbors said the rows of stooked grain were straighter than those in the next field which had been stooked by a sighted man.

Mr. Abel Must Learn To Play Aggressively

After bidding his hand to the hilt, if not a little beyond, Mr. Abel was faced with a problem which often bests declarer—the problem of which suit to work on first.

The deuce of clubs was led and he won with the king over Mr. Meek's queen. Now, Mr. Abel never plays his best when Mr. Champion is his partner. He knows he can expect a storm of criticism if he makes the slightest error and that makes him nervous.

At a no trump contract, it is usually best to start working on your longest suit first because it offers the most potential tricks. Sometimes, however, you don't have time to develop your longest suit—as in today's hand.

Mr. Abel saw that he could win four diamonds, the club already in, and four spades if the spade suit broke 3-2. The odds are very much in favor of the spades breaking 3-2, but of course that wasn't the whole story in this case.

Scientists To Ponder U.K. Athletics

LIVERPOOL (Reuters)—A new branch of science will be under scrutiny when British scientists gather here for their annual party this month—the science of sport.

Lectures by the country's No. 1 mile runner, a professional rugby player and leading trainers of soccer players, greyhounds and racehorses are on the docket of the British Association for the Advancement of Science.

Sports enthusiasts say it is about time the scientists took a hand in raising athletic standards. They remember only too well the high hopes Britain took into last year's Olympic games—to emerge with only two first-place medals in hundreds of events.

Noting the part played by doctors and technicians in getting a British expedition to the top of Mount Everest, sports writers hope the professors can do something to raise Britain's flagging athletic prestige.

To acquaint them with the subject, there'll be Roger Bannister, who recently ran the world's third-fastest mile and is a medical student to boot. He'll lecture on "the control of breathing during exercise."

Then Johnnie Lynas, trainer of the championship Blackpool soccer club, will discourse on keeping soccer players in trim. Geoffrey Dyson, chief coach of the Amateur Athletic Association, will outline the scientific aspects of distance running.

Locker room experts hope that by the end of the eight-day confab the scientists will be all set to turn their attention to the main sporting problems of the day.

ACTRESS NEVA PATTERSON models the latest gem in diamond galaxy: a $15,000 cocktail ring called the "H-Bomb." While scientists may dispute its physical powers, the sparkle is enough to pop the eyes. The ring is composed of 14 diamonds around the edge. At the touch of a tiny lever, the centre petals burst open (insert) revealing a four-carat diamond nestled in the centre. The ring was designed by J. R. W. and Sons.

Chilled Sea Water For Fish More Beneficial Than Ice

VANCOUVER (CP)—Use of chilled sea water in place of ice to transport fish has produced favorable results here.

Pacific Fisheries Experimental Station officials say the new method may prove of major importance to the fishing industry. Scientists installed special tanks in Captain Ellis Morney's commmercial troller Kath-El, designed to store freshly-caught fish at a temperature of 30 degrees F. in sea water chilled by a condensing unit.

These compartments replace the conventional fish-pans. The new system can be installed in wooden fishing craft without insulating the hull. It also eliminates carrying and handling of ice, reducing operating and labor costs.

Fish are dressed as soon as possible after being caught, rinsed and placed in the sea-water tank. During the experiment an equal amount of fish from each tank was iced and stored in the refrigerated hold.

When the first lot was landed, the plump, wholesome fresh-looking appearance of the spring fish from the sea water tank could scarcely be distinguished from freshly-caught fish. The skin was without bruises, which often are present when ice is used.

He is petty officer, first class, in the St. Catharines corps, and will report to the college early in September. His application was approved by the Navy League of Canada and he will receive uniform, board and schooling for two years under the scholarship.

Police Arrest 17 Juveniles

VANCOUVER (CP)—Seventeen teen-agers have been arrested by city police after a week-end wave of juvenile disorder.

Two 17-year-olds were charged with assaulting two young girls. They were arrested after the girls, one with her dress torn, fled for safety to a house. The owner called police and the youths were picked up nearby.

A 17-year-old girl was arrested in connection with a pick-pocket case at the Pacific National Exhibition.

Fourteen other youths were taken into custody for offences that included one case of alleged sexual immorality.

THE WINDY CITY picked 19-year-old Carol Segemark as its representative in the Miss America Pageant in Atlantic City next month. Carol stands 5 feet 6 1/2 inches tall, weighs 120 pounds, and has a 34 bust and 24 waist as well as blue-green eyes. Her talent is singing.
