

Fish Draw Highest Prices

Highest price of the year was paid on the Halibut exchange this morning to the Joan W II which landed 47,000 fish from the coast.

Altogether only three ships reported in and the average price was more than 25 cents a pound.

The Joan W II received 25.2 cents a pound for 30,000 pounds, 20 cents for heavies and 14 cents for chickens. The purchase was purchased by Pacific Fisheries Limited.

Only other Canadian boat in was the Aleutian Queen with 100 pounds. She received 25.1, 20, 14 from B.C. Packers.

An American boat, the Seabird, sold 40,000 pounds to Royal. She received 25.1, 20 and 16 cents for the 3,000 pounds of chicken.

One boat docked Saturday, the Margaret I, with 30,000 pounds. She received 22, 18, 15 from Royal.

2,000 Lumber Workers Paralyzed; Evacuate Camps

VANCOUVER.—A strike by 32,000 members of the International Woodworkers of America at midnight Saturday has paralyzed British Columbia's lumber mills and sawmills.

Workers from dozens of camps throughout the province already are streaming into Vancouver.

The strike—first since the province's entire economy.

BC's major industry, valued at $325,000,000 last year, is being indirectly, it is estimated, for nearly 55 cents of the dollar earned in the province.

Canuck Troops May Quit Kojé By Mid-July

OTTAWA.—Canadian troops may be withdrawn from Kojé by mid-July, it was learned today.

A. E. L. Cohen, Pembroke, Ont., commander of "Baker" Company, Royal Canadian Regiment, on guard duty at the big United Nations prisoner of war camp, said British Defence Minister Lord Alexander mentioned the target date for Canadians' withdrawal to officers of the R.C.R. yesterday during an inspection trip through their camp.

Meanwhile, the United States Eighth Army plans an extensive work-and-play program for the Communist prisoners of war once the prisoners recognize Allied authority completely.

Brig.-Gen. Boatner, Kojé commander, hopes to start the program soon after he has finished splitting the present large, unruly compounds into small units.

Dispersal operations probably will be completed within a week. Lord Alexander inspected the POW stockades today. He toured the island in a jeep driven by Boatner.

Alexander was accompanied by Gen. Van Fleet, U.S. Eighth Army commander, and a party of leading military and diplomatic figures.

Claxton's Son Drowns In Lake

SEPT ILES, Que. — David Claxton, 22-year-old son of Defence Minister Claxton, drowned Saturday in Guys River near the Ungava iron ore shipping centre at Knob Lake.

A report reaching here said he apparently slipped while wading in the swift river and was carried into deep water by the current. His body was not recovered immediately.

Doukhobors May Have Set Mill Fire

BRILLIANT, B.C. (CP)—RCMP here are investigating the possibility that Sons of Freedom Doukhobor terrorists started a fire which caused $50,000 damage Sunday when it destroyed a planing mill and stacked lumber.

The Terrace camp, established about 18 months ago, was producing between seven and eight million board feet a day. The logs are sent by train from Terrace to the huge Cellulose plant on Watson Island.

It is reported that about 40 carloads of logs were completed Friday at Terrace ready for shipment to Prince Rupert.

Loggers from Khutzmateen camp are being brought to Prince Rupert on a company boat. A number reported to the Unemployment Insurance office here shortly after arrival this morning.

Canadian Pacific Airlines officials said special plans have been filed to Hardy Bay and Sandspit, on the Queen Charlotte Islands, all week-end to take loggers to Vancouver.

Queen Charlotte Airlines has had no request for additional planes. Their flight leaves here for Vancouver tomorrow.

Because of the situation a number of loggers have expressed the intention of going by train and car to Vancouver.

One logger who arrived here Sunday from Terrace said he was taking five other men with him in his car trip south.

Columbia Cellulose officials would make no comment on the work stoppage, other than say they will pay the men.

Board Athabaskan Korean Stoicism Touches Canuck Tars

Editor's Note: Bill Boss, Canadian Press staff writer, spent 10 days in the Canadian destroyer Athabaskan in Korean waters.

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SEA, ABOARD HMCS ATHABASKAN — A small junk was alongside, the second to do so within two hours.

It was a sick call—a patient being taken to the doctor on the big Canadian warship.

In answer to the first junk the ship's medical officer, Surg.-Lieut. C. A. West of Mimico, Ont., went ashore with a medical officer packed with supplies.

West spent more than an hour there looking into aches and pains in a clinic improvised on the beach, leaving the supplies behind when he returned. They would keep the island healthy until the next visit.

"Funny they didn't bring this man to me when I was there," he mused as, from the junk, a woman was helped to climb the ladder let down over the Athabaskan's side.

BAFFLING SYMPTOMS

Taken into the ship's sick bay, her symptoms baffled the "Doc."

She could have had any of a number of troubles. He spotted glandular tuberculosis, but that wasn't causing the severe abdominal pains of which she was complaining.

Then through painful questioning he discovered that her husband had kicked her in the stomach the night before when he returned home drunk, and that blood probably was flooding the abdominal cavity. It would have to heal itself.

West treats more sick Koreans than he does Canadians. His major concern with his Canadians is to keep them well. The Koreans know that they can ask help from any of the Canadian destroyers whose doctors are unflinching of their time.

"They always ask for medicine," West says, "and we always give them as much as we can because I figure it is the best way of cementing friendships."

"These people are so grateful for anything we can do for them."

West's is one attitude toward the Koreans. The ship's complement caught something of it last winter when Athabaskan evacuated 48 North Korean wounded off the island of Taewhado.

A TOUGH JOB

The Koreans were suffering from wounds more than two days old, shrapnel and burns. Seven were so dangerously ill that West began operating immediately. He was still working on the last in the captain's cabin, hours later, when the ship reached Inchon. There the wounded were sent ashore to a civilian hospital.

The stoicism of those Koreans, and of the others West had treated, was not lost on the crew. Said one: "After seeing all those people we were carrying out hurts around by ourselves for a long time. It was quite a while before Doc had any business from us."

Since then Korean junks regularly come out from the islands or the mainland coast to intercept Athabaskan's path and ask for medical help. West always goes if the captain says the timetable permits.

Such meetings are the Canadians' only associations with Koreans, apart from the crews of the four R.O.K. navy vessels regularly working with them.

They tie up alongside Athabaskan almost daily, and the crews exchange visits.

Athabaskaners have had only one shore visit to Korea in the while they've been here—three hours each at Inchon.

Their ignorance of Korea is monumental. They have never seen the Canadian armed services' handbook on Korea, and the two or three copies that are aboard have remained in officers' cabins.

Rupert Fishermen Vote Down Union Proposal; Ask Last Year's Prices

The majority of Prince Rupert fishermen do not want to strike—but neither do they want to accept the latest offer by the fishing companies of this year's fish prices.

Of 325 fishermen, 184 Saturday afternoon here voted against the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union proposal to either get the asking fish price or go on strike June 22.

But all unanimously endorsed a motion they would accept last year's prices on all species.

Union's latest demand is for sockeye 26 cents; coho 18, pinks 10 and summer chums 7½ as against the company offer of sockeye 25, coho 13, pinks 7½ and chums 5½.

Last year's prices were a cent down on sockeye and half a cent down on pinks from the present union demand.

T. E. Parkin, UFAWU local secretary, said today he believed that the fishermen would "unanimously" along the coast agree to last year's prices.

Main reason, said Mr. Parkin, why fishermen outvoted the union proposal here is because most of the fishermen voting were natives.

"These people depend for their livelihood on the spring run of sockeye on the Skeena and Naas rivers. Deadline for the strike vote falls on the same day as opening of these rivers for fishing. If they don't fish at the opening of the season, they lose a lot."

"But, they are only 10 percent of the total fishermen in the union," Mr. Parkin indicated that the total vote count along the coast would be in majority in favor of the union proposal.

Mr. Parkin said the union also "strongly criticized" the companies' recent statement that fishermen were not given the chance to vote on the latest price offer.

"As everyone can see, we voted on that offer Saturday. We did not have to call a special vote—

CCC Loggers Strike—Head For Big City

Hundreds of loggers in northern British Columbia's camps are receiving pay cheques today and heading for Vancouver as the two camps operated by Columbia Cellulose Company—one at Terrace, the other at Khutzmateen, 60 miles north of Prince Rupert—closed at midnight Saturday.

There are no pickets around the camps.

An estimated 200 men were employed at the Terrace camp and 100 at Khutzmateen.

A company official left during the week-end for Terrace to pay the men there and loggers from the other camp are streaming into Prince Rupert by boat to get their cheques.

A Canadian Pacific Airlines official said all flights to Vancouver are heavily booked and an extra plane has been requested to transport the loggers south.

While officials at Columbia Cellulose would make no comment on the effect of the strike, it was learned operations can continue for several weeks before a log-shortage would be noted.

The Terrace camp, established about 18 months ago, was producing between seven and eight million board feet a day. The logs are sent by train from Terrace to the huge Cellulose plant on Watson Island.

Hunt's Inlet Ballot Return Not In Yet

One polling station is still to be heard from in Prince Rupert electoral district, Returning Officer A. Bruce Brown said this morning.

The ballot box from Hunt's Inlet, tiny village of about three dozen people on Porcher Island, has not arrived here. There is no telephone connection and Mr. Brown believes the box will come by mail.

Count from 26 of 27 polls reported sent George Hills, CCF candidate, into a 238-point lead over Jack McRae, Liberal seeking re-election. Art Murray, Social Credit, was third, and Tom Christie, Progressive Conservative, last.

Winch Elected; Turner, Five SC Also Win

VANCOUVER (CP)—CCF Leader Harold Winch was declared elected in Vancouver East today as results continued to dribble in from last Thursday's general election.

Arthur Turner, Winch's running-mate in the riding, also was elected. Both had clear majorities on the first count under the alternative voting system.

Election of five Social Credit candidates and one CCF candidate was indicated earlier.

Winch was the first party leader assured a seat in the new Legislature. Liberal Premier Byron Johnson had only a three-vote lead over the CCF candidate in New Westminster at completion of the first count while Progressive Conservative leader Herbert Anscomb was trailing Liberal Archie Gibbs in Oak Bay by more than 1000 votes.

Forty of the 48 seats will not be decided until the count of second-choice ballots July 3. Results from the first count in these 48 seats show no candidate could win on the first count.

Fraser Flood Danger Over

CHILLIWACK — Flood danger in British Columbia's Fraser Valley is over for another year.

Water resources officials here said Saturday the muddy Fraser has begun its gradual decline to a normal run-off. This year's spring run-off, they said, was "ideal."

Conditions appeared right for a flood in early May but cloudy, cool weather over the Fraser's upper reaches retarded snow melting and kept the level steady.

The river held above 16 feet for three weeks, but only once surged close to the 18-foot official flood point, May 24, when the level read 17.93 feet.

The 1952 freshet has paralleled last year's with a slow climb through May to a 17-foot peak, and a slow decline in June.

Russian Jets Down Swedish Plane On Air Rescue Mission

Seven-Man Crew Rescued At Sea

STOCKHOLM.—An unarmed Swedish military plane was shot down today by two Russian MIG-15 fighters but its seven-man crew was rescued later at sea by a German merchant ship, the Swedish Air Force command announced.

Two of the crew were reported wounded. The men said they had been attacked seven times by the Russians.

The plane, a slow-flying Catalina rescue craft, had been searching a Swedish Air Force transport missing since Friday with eight men aboard. It is feared this plane, too, has been downed by Russians, reported to be holding vast air-sea manoeuvres off the Soviet Baltic coast.

Sweden made a strong protest to Russia over shooting down the plane in the Baltic about 60 miles off the Estonian coast. It was received in the Swedish foreign office by Soviet Ambassador Constantin Rodionov.

Angry Swedes gathered outside the Soviet embassy jeered at Rodionov and spit into the embassy compound.

News that the airmen had been rescued spread joy through Stockholm. A previous report said empty life rafts were found about 95 miles off the coast, in the area where the Catalina was attacked. This caused the air force to say it believed the seven men aboard were lost.

Rain, Cold Doesn't Stop Swimmers

Four hardy little souls went swimming in the pool at McClymont Park on Sunday.

The rain didn't bother the children as they romped about in the pool, operated each year by the Civic Centre for the Parks Board.

A Parks Board member was on the scene early Sunday when the water began filling the tank and later in the evening he supervised the draining.

If the weather keeps warm the Parks Board hopes to have the pool open daily. A swimming instructor is on duty at all times.

The Study of Freedom

"SOCIAL cancer" is the affliction facing the world today, says a New York publishing firm which has recently issued a pamphlet entitled "The Study of Freedom."

The cell of this social affliction is belief in the use of power—force—as a means of directing the activities of individuals within our society.

The pamphlet, published by the Foundation of Economic Education, gives the apparent causes for this social cancer. Many individuals have either lost a belief in their own capacity to care for themselves...

"Whether one cause or the other, or a combination of both, this rapidly growing resort to coercion as a means to achieve economic progress within society is accompanied by a corresponding and diminishing faith in the ability of free men to satisfy their needs and aspirations."

We must have a revival of faith in free men, who as persons individually, or voluntarily getting together, can achieve creative performance.

The present "something for nothing" philosophy is a path which leads to a dead-end—of a controlled and enslaved people.

Cards Stacked on Ike THE NEXT month may well mark a great turning point for the western world.

If Taft beats Eisenhower for the Republican nomination we may soon be plunged into the greatest crisis of modern times. For election of Taft as President would severely strain the western alliance, maybe to the breaking point.

Let nobody delude himself about what has happened since Ike returned to the U.S.A. He has lost ground to Taft on several scores. The selection of General MacArthur to make the "keynote speech" at the republican convention is a deadly threat to Ike's cause.

There is no more powerful, emotional speaker in the U.S. today than MacArthur. The occasion will give him a made-to-order chance to put the skids under Eisenhower.

Ike may yet come through. Maybe, like the famous U.S. naval hero Paul Jones, he "has not yet begun to fight." My point is that he will fight an uphill battle till the convention. For his return to the U.S.A. has not so far resulted in that great wave of pro-Eisenhower feeling that has to come if he is to be swept in over the opposition of the well-oiled Taft machine.

EISENHOWER seems to me to have weakened his own cause by suggesting a drastic cut in U.S. military expenditures. This may or may not be a good thing in itself. The point is that until Ike gave up his job as NATO commander he, like everybody else at the top level, was shouting loudly for full speed ahead on the arms drive.

Of course, Ike has not yet had time to find his feet in the strange political arena.

EVEN IF TAFT wins the Republican nomination he can be soundly beaten in the election itself. I think Truman, Stevenson or even Kefauver could beat Taft. Mr. Justice Douglas could, too.

True, President Truman has said he will not run again. But this decision might well be changed if it became clear that the Taft machine had not only steam-rolled Ike but threatened to flatten out the whole Truman-Acheson world program.

Above all, if MacArthur were the man who actually put the sword to Ike, in the grand manner of course, Truman might jump back into the fight with both fists swinging.

NO REPUBLICAN can carry the U.S.A. unless he gets a big slice of the New Deal, liberal, labor and progressive vote. Eisenhower could do so, so could Warren. But Taft—no, no, a thousand times no.

As to Kefauver, up here in Canada people underestimate him because of the coonskin cap stunt. It's a stage prop, like Churchill's cigar. Those who do so do not know that he

The Perfect Daily Paper

By R. J. DEACHMAN

It was half past five in the afternoon, two business men were sauntering along ahead of me. "I don't like the modern daily paper," said one of them. "Neither do I said the other."

I wanted to ask a few questions but they were perfect strangers, so I left them behind still moulding a couple of daily papers into the form they would like them to be. They will have their troubles. There are many people who read the daily papers and want a pretty steep dose of world news. The newspaper might have eight pages instead of 40 but it might cost more. The advertising pages are not wasted. These function to bring buyer and seller together. It's a cheap way of shopping. We have become accustomed to do our shopping through the daily papers, it saves a lot of time.

Some men—not all of them, read the society columns. They have a right to do so if they want to spend their time that was held up to scorn by an opponent as a "peck who should be wearing a coonskin cap." Kefauver did exactly what the British did when the Kaiser called the B.E.F. the "contemptible little army." To be one of the "Old Contemptibles" became the highest British honor. They made the smear the badge of honor.

FROM Canada's point of view the danger of a Taft victory is obvious. He stands for the traditional high-tariff Republicanism which would slam shut the gates on Canadian products. He also stands for weakening of NATO on one hand, but backing Chiang Kai-shek to invade the Chinese mainland on the other. No one knows what the effect of such a policy would be in Europe. But even an intelligent child could see it is just another name for world war in the Far East. That's probably what MacArthur always wanted.

Welcome Party Held For Newly Ordained Priest

More than 150 persons last night attended a "welcome" party to Rev. Lawrence Turgeon, who was ordained a priest here June 8.

Father Turgeon, first person ever to be ordained to the priesthood in Prince Rupert, is leaving by plane on Wednesday for a vacation. He will visit in Victoria and Portland and later go to Toronto where he will perform the ceremony for his brother's wedding on July 5.

His mother, Mrs. M. A. Turgeon, will leave by boat on Thursday for Vancouver and fly from there to her home in Toronto.

The newly-ordained priest will return to the Vicariate of Prince Rupert after his vacation. At the reception in Annunciation Church hall last night, many of Father Turgeon's former schoolmates were in attendance.

Pack Says Farewell To Cubmaster

Boys in the Second Prince Rupert Wolf Cub Pack turned the tables on Cubmaster Leonard Sykes at a farewell gathering on Friday.

The boys, under the direction of assistant cubmaster Arthur Williamson, showed their leader, who is leaving shortly to reside in Calgary, how much they had learned and then all watched as they tried to catch him "off balance" in going through his tests to see if he could qualify for his Second Star.

The Cub pack has now adjourned until September. Highlight of the evening was the presentation to Mr. Sykes of the Canadian Boy Scout Association's Long Service Medal for his 10 years in scouting.

The medal was presented by F. E. Anfield, Prince Rupert District Scout Commissioner. During the program, six senior Wolf Cubs underwent a ceremony passing them on to the Second Prince Rupert Boy Scout Troop, and were accepted into the scouts by assistant scoutmaster Magnus Eyoifson.

The new Scouts are: Bob Irvine, Philip Thom, Arvid Hardine, Robin Cameron, Danny Pick and Frank Stewart. Randy Baldwin was presented with his First Star and second year service stars were presented to Brian Thom and Teddy Holden.

Timely RECIPES

Our "Prune Breakfast Bread" is a delicious quick bread that we oftentimes serve for a light dessert during warm weather. Chopped prunes in the batter give it a moist, fruity flavor, and the sweet spiced nut topping makes a delicious baked-on frosting. It's good warm or cold so there's no need to worry about left overs.

Prune Breakfast Bread Batter: 3/4 cup cooked prunes, 1 egg, 1/2 cup milk, 1/4 cup granulated sugar, 1/4 cup melted butter or margarine, 1 3/4 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder, 3/4 teaspoon salt. Topping: 2 tablespoons cream, 1/3 cup granulated sugar, 1/4 cup chopped walnuts, 1/4 teaspoon cloves. Batter: Cut prunes from pits into small pieces. Beat egg and add milk, sugar, butter and prunes. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Stir into first mixture. Pour into greased 8-inch square pan. Spread topping over batter. Bake in hot oven (400° F.) 25 to 30 minutes. Topping: Combine all ingredients. Serves 5 to 6.

MAY GET MILLIONS—Anton Turta, 79-year-old Leduc, Alta., farmer, may become a millionaire because of a court decision involving oil rights on his farm in the heart of the rich Leduc oil fields. Through an error in 1908 by an obscure clerk in a land titles office, Turta has been made the owner of mineral rights on his 160-acre farm. The rights have been valued at $5,000,000. Turta's reaction to the news was a philosophical: "It's too late for the money to do any good."

Muzzy Finds Signals Give Away Secrets

To get the full benefit of signals, you have to know when to use them as well as how to use them. Mr. Muzzy has gone in for signals in a big way lately. He knows that the play of an unnecessarily high card of a suit suggests that partner lead that suit. But that's only part of the story.

Here's what happened in today's deal. Mr. Muzzy's opening lead was the jack of clubs and dummy's ace won the first trick. Mr. Dale then cashed three rounds of trumps. Mr. Muzzy followed suit once in trumps and then signalled violently in spades, playing the nine and deuce in that order. Mr. Dale smiled when he got this information that the spade finesse would lose. He was thereby guided into another line of play which had, at least, a 50-50 chance of success.

Now, everything depended on the diamond suit. If the jack could be set up, dummy's losing club could be discarded on it. One way to do this was to cash the king and ace of diamonds and ruff a third round on the board, hoping the queen would drop. A second method, and the one Mr. Dale selected, was to lead a diamond to the king, return a diamond and finesse the jack.

When the jack held, Mr. Dale led the ace and off went dummy's six of clubs. Only a spade trick had to be conceded to the defenders.

When the hand was over Mr. Champion shook his head in exasperation. "How innocent can you get, Muzzy?" he snapped.

Yanks Move in Fast To Fasten League Grip

By The Canadian Press

NEW YORK.—Fast-moving New York Yankees, winners in 13 of 15 games this month, defeated Cleveland Indians twice Sunday, 8-2 and 4-3, to strengthen their grip on first place in the American League.

Boston Red Sox divided a doubleheader with Chicago White Sox, dropping the opener 7-2, but capturing the nightcap 3-2. The split, along with Cleveland's double setback, gave the Sox a one-game edge over Indians in second place, 1½ games back of the Yankees. Chicago is fourth, 4½ games off the pace. Brooklyn's National League lead was shaved to 3½ games as Cincinnati 2-3, Brooklyn 6-4.

first doubleheader of the season, 6-3 and 7-6 in 11 innings over Philadelphia Athletics. Detroit Tigers divided a pair with Washington Senators, winning the opener 6-3 but dropping the nightcap 4-2.

THE ROUND-UP

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK—Phil Cavarretta and his Chicago Cubs appear determined to set the profession of writing baseball experting back as far as it may never make a full recovery.

lection is that he said this: "Well, the only thing I know for sure is that we are going to do a lot of running—at lot of running. We're going to be in shape. What we need is a player or two who can knock the ball out to the fence. Ron Northey's coming back after a year and maybe he will help us."

Where did you pick them to finish eighth? Our best recollection is that we did, too, though it might have been seventh, on account of Pittsburgh.

"I can't say right now who's going to play anywhere, except maybe Ransom Jackson at third and Roy Smalley at short. I'll probably play about 125 games at first if my sciatica doesn't act up. Of course, we need pitching and a catcher who can throw down to second."

We recall clearly driving over to Mesa, Ariz., where Cavarretta and his undistinguished crew were hiding out last spring.

The league standing however, is rather a curious one. Battery have the best goal average yet they are at the bottom. CYO have the worst goal average yet they are at the top. Battery had to forfeit two games through their inability to field a team, the players being unable to get off work. Altogether, future games promise to be very keenly contested, and the standard of play is higher than it has been for some years.

We asked Phil how things were with the club and the best recollection is that he said this:

"That was about the extent of the conversation, and we are willing to leave it to any fair-minded reader whether Cavarretta said anything which might have placed a man on his guard. It is no more than to say that the future home run hero needed to work off some snot."

Some might profess now to see deep significance in Phil's insistence that his Athletics were going to run themselves into shape. Frankly, we still feel he was just looking for something to say. Most managers are in favor of good physical condition. We also feel fairly certain that when Phil said he needed a distance slugger he didn't have any real idea that Sauer, a monumental bust for four seasons, was suddenly going to threaten the big league runs-batted-in record. Or that Paul Minner and Bob Rush were right on the threshold of pitching greatness, just waiting to be pushed.

CYO Tops League Standing

Friday night's match between CYO and the Battery was a splendidly contested match and the win puts the CYO at the top of the league standing with all three teams having still one game each to play in the competition.

GOING TO OLYMPICS—Evelyn Morris of Toronto, chosen to represent Canada in a synchronized swimming exhibition at the summer Olympic games in Helsinki, will lose six weeks' salary because of the trip. An employee in the Toronto Board of Education's accounting department, she was granted leave of absence to attend the games by the Board's Finance committee. Board lawyer Hillis Osborne said the board had no legal right to pay part of the swimmer's salary during her leave of absence. (CP PHOTO)

Swimmers To Cross Channel

DOVER, England (Reuters)—The annual onslaught on the English Channels threatens to get off to an early start this year. Aspiring swimmers already are in training for their chance to conquer the 22-mile stretch of water separating England and France.

Nearly 450 attempts have been made and the number of swimmers who have succeeded in recent years has dimmed some of the glamor of the feat.

In 1950 the London Daily Mail saved the situation by turning the spotlight on channel racing instead of solo crossings. Its a race offered a £1000 prize.

This year the Daily Mail announced that the race will not be held, figuring that the Helsinki Olympic Games would dampen interest.

GOOD SEASON
Nevertheless, burly Sam Rockett, czar of the channel trainers and coach of a Folkestone swimming pool, expects a good season. He already has two channel aspirants in training.

Florence Chadwick, 32, of San Diego, Cal., stenographer, also is expected to arrive soon. Miss Chadwick is the only woman to have swum the channel in each direction. Last month she announced she is considering an attempt to swim both ways non-stop.

An aspirant needs from $700 to $3000 to make an attempt. Major expenses are a two-month hotel bill, a tug to accompany a swimmer. If a professional trainer is hired, the bill may go up another $1000.

British Oarsmen Expect To Win At Helsinki

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON.—British oarsmen are already counting on their countrymen winning at least two rowing titles at the Olympic Games regatta in Helsinki this summer.

They realize the competition will be tougher than ever, especially from the United States, but encouraged by recent performances the experts are predicting that Britain stands a good chance of taking the eight-oared event as well as the single sculls.

So far the selection committee of the British Amateur Rowing Association has come up with only one definite Olympic nomination. That honor goes to sculling champion Tony Fox, 22-year-old Cambridge medical student and holder of the oarsmen's "Triple Crown."

Winner of the Diamond Sculls at Henley last year, the London Cup at the Metropolitan regatta and the amateur championship of the Thames, Fox has been acclaimed as Britain's greatest rowing discovery in years. Although the selectors are fully aware of his ability, they have reserved the right to call on him to compete in a trial race on June 27.

The eight-oared entry, however, is a different proposition. It definitely won't be the stylish and powerful combination that stroked Oxford to victory in the University boat race this spring but likely an all-Cambridge crew, representing London's famed Leander Club. The reason for this is Oxford's inability to keep its eight together for the Olympic test.

Given the assignment of picking an eight capable of ending an unbroken sequence of American triumphs since 1920, is the great Australian oarsman, Brian Lloyd.

He was responsible for moulding the Cambridge crew which last year won the University boat race by 12 lengths, overwhelmed the best eights in Europe and later beat the pick of the university crews in United States.

Meanwhile, ox is concentrating on working himself gradually into peak shape for defence of his Diamonds title at Henley next month. He had expected to meet his chief opposition from Toronto's Jack Guest, Jr., but the Canadian, hindered by a spine ailment, was not among the challengers when entries officially closed.

Last year Guest was eliminated in the opening draw of the Diamonds by the European champion, Eric Larsen, of Denmark. The time of 8 minutes, 10 seconds for the straight course of one mile, 550 yards, was the second fastest in the history of the event.

Korean Political Troubles Started Before Invasion

By WILLIAM JORDEN

PUSAN, Korea (AP)—Korea's disturbing political crisis—a struggle between the executive and legislative branches—may determine whether constitutional government will survive in this Asiatic nation, sponsored by the United Nations.

POPULAR CHOICE

The 77-year-old Rhee, one of the few Korean leaders known in every village and hamlet of the mountainous republic, had said he is not seeking re-election. But it appears almost certain he would be the popular choice of the people if they could vote.

Allied forces have fought two years to prevent the Communists from snuffing out South Korea's freedom. Because of that stake, Allied officials intervened in the crisis and urged President Syngman Rhee and the national assembly to abide by democratic processes.

Observers neutral to the Korean political scene said Rhee's actions were aimed clearly at getting by intimidation which he could not gain by legislative action.

The constitution of this four-year-old republic provides for election of the president by the assembly. Rhee was roundly beaten, 143 to 19, last month on amendments which would have provided popular election of the president and establishment of a two-house congress instead of the present unicameral assembly.

The assembly was elected May 29, 1950. Rhee's supporters won only 22 or 210 seats. The Korean Red invasion of the republic June 25, 1950, showed their differences into the background and they were all but forgotten.

Rhee countered with a declaration of martial law for most of South Korea, including the provisional capital of Pusan. Eleven assemblymen were jailed on vague, informal charges. A 12th was arrested on charges of slaying a South Korean army officer.

When it became clear Allied forces were not going to be thrown off the peninsula the political disputes arose again.

The assembly demanded that Rhee lift martial law and permit the body to proceed with plans for electing a president before June 23, as provided in the constitution. Rhee ignored the demands.

Shipyards In Good Position

LAUZON, Que. (CP)—Transport Minister Chevrier said today the position of Canadian shipyards "could hardly be more favorable" than at present.

In a speech prepared for delivery at the launching of the Transport Department ice-breaker D'Iberville—largest ever built in North America and second largest in the world—Mr. Chevrier said:

"The heads of the shipbuilding industry have the satisfaction of seeing their shipyards operate at full capacity.

"Since 1949, the government placed with Canadian shipyards orders for $200,000,000 which will insure full employment beyond 1954."

The 19 main shipyards in the country now employ 17,600 men. Mr. Chevrier also spoke of two 28,000-ton tankers being built by the Davie Shipbuilding Company—builders of the ice-breaker—at a cost of $14,000,000 for Andros Shipping Ltd., Montreal.

The tankers will be the largest ocean-going ships ever built in Canada, and Mr. Chevrier said construction was made possible by the replacement plan established by the Canadian Maritime Commission. This plan provides that shipowners may not sell their vessels abroad without depositing the sale price in an escrow fund which is then used for building new ships in Canadian yards.

KOREAN POLITICAL

OPINION AROUSED

In April Suh Min Ho, assemblyman and Rhee critic, was attending a party at an inn. An uninvited army captain appeared and was killed in a gun duel with Suh.

While the case was being investigated, the assembly voted Suh's release on grounds he acted in self-defence.

The constitution provides that no assemblyman can be arrested unless he is caught while committing a crime.

The South Korean army was irritated by the incident. Public opinion was aroused.

May 25 President Rhee imposed martial law and the first act of the authorities was to rearrest Suh. He now is being tried in a military court.

Rhee followed up the Suh incident with the seizure of 11 other members of the assembly. They are charged with accepting bribes and conspiring against the government. Charges of a "Communist plot" have been levelled against some of them.

PURE INVENTION

Outside of the circle of devoted Rhee followers, the charges against the assemblymen are almost universally discounted as pure invention with an obvious purpose.

Critics point out:

1. Almost any assemblyman whose legal income is $6 or $7 a month could be found to have accepted money from dubious sources.

2. This "plot," supposedly of long-standing, was exposed only weeks before the presidential election.

3. Martial law was used, indicating an apparent reluctance to submit the case to normal legal channels.

4. Only strong opponents of President Rhee were involved.

5. These developments, if true, might well threaten the security of the government and of the entire UN effort in Korea, yet President Rhee never informed UN military authorities who were vitally concerned.

Privately, even staunch supporters admit that Rhee has thrown the Korean constitution into discard, whether for personal power motives or not. He has by-passed the law and set himself up as the sole interpreter of what is best for Korea. His opponents, however much they may be motivated by similar political considerations, stand for strict adherence to the republic's constitution.

Why We Didn't Have A Friday 13th Story

(The following letter was written by Eric Sanderson to John F. Magor, publisher of the Daily News, who was injured at Kemana last May 10 and is recuperating in hospital at Vancouver. Because of its content, we thought our readers would enjoy it.—Ed.)

Dear Boss:

You asked me to write a feature story about Friday the 13th and I didn't get around to it.

But I don't think I would have been able to write the story and that's why I'm writing you this letter.

I'm not sure whether everybody was trying to be nice to me or get rid of me, but a lot of queer things happened on Friday the 13th.

First of all, when I got through work about 2 a.m. from Thursday's election, a friend wanted to buy me a drink. Now he must have known that I was tired and I had a hard time saying "no thank you."

But, you know Boss, that was just the start of a busy Friday the 13th.

I hardly arrived at work (a little late, but awake) when the telephone rang and one of the candidates wanted to tell me that I could quote him as saying anything I wanted because he'd lost the election anyway.

I thought that was very nice of him and thanked him very much, but I'm wondering now if a "trap" was being laid for me because shortly after that another friend came into the office and after greeting me with a smile said: "I guess you'll be leaving soon, eh?"

Then another candidate came into the office with two friends. He wanted me to say he was elected and really confuse the public. He didn't say he'd cut my throat or anything like that, but one of his friends suggested that I go for an airplane ride with him in the afternoon.

I managed to forget that situation until another candidate came in to ask me what I was writing. Then he suggested I go for a car ride to Terrace with him. I think he meant when I was through work, but...

You know what the road is like between here and Terrace? Furthermore, there must be a lot of bridges to cross and stuff.

I got out of it by saying I had to attend a council meeting. Fortunately, he's not on the council and he didn't know there wasn't a council meeting.

Everything went along fine last of the four men who were until lunch time, when I met the candidates in Thursday's election.

This candidate wanted to know what I said about him and why. And, he had two friends with him. I knew them all, but after by earlier experiences I wasn't sure what these fellows were watching me for... so I told him I was rushing to meet a boat and that the paper would be on the street shortly and I'd give him one.

Later I took the candidate his paper. He was so glad he offered to take me out to supper.

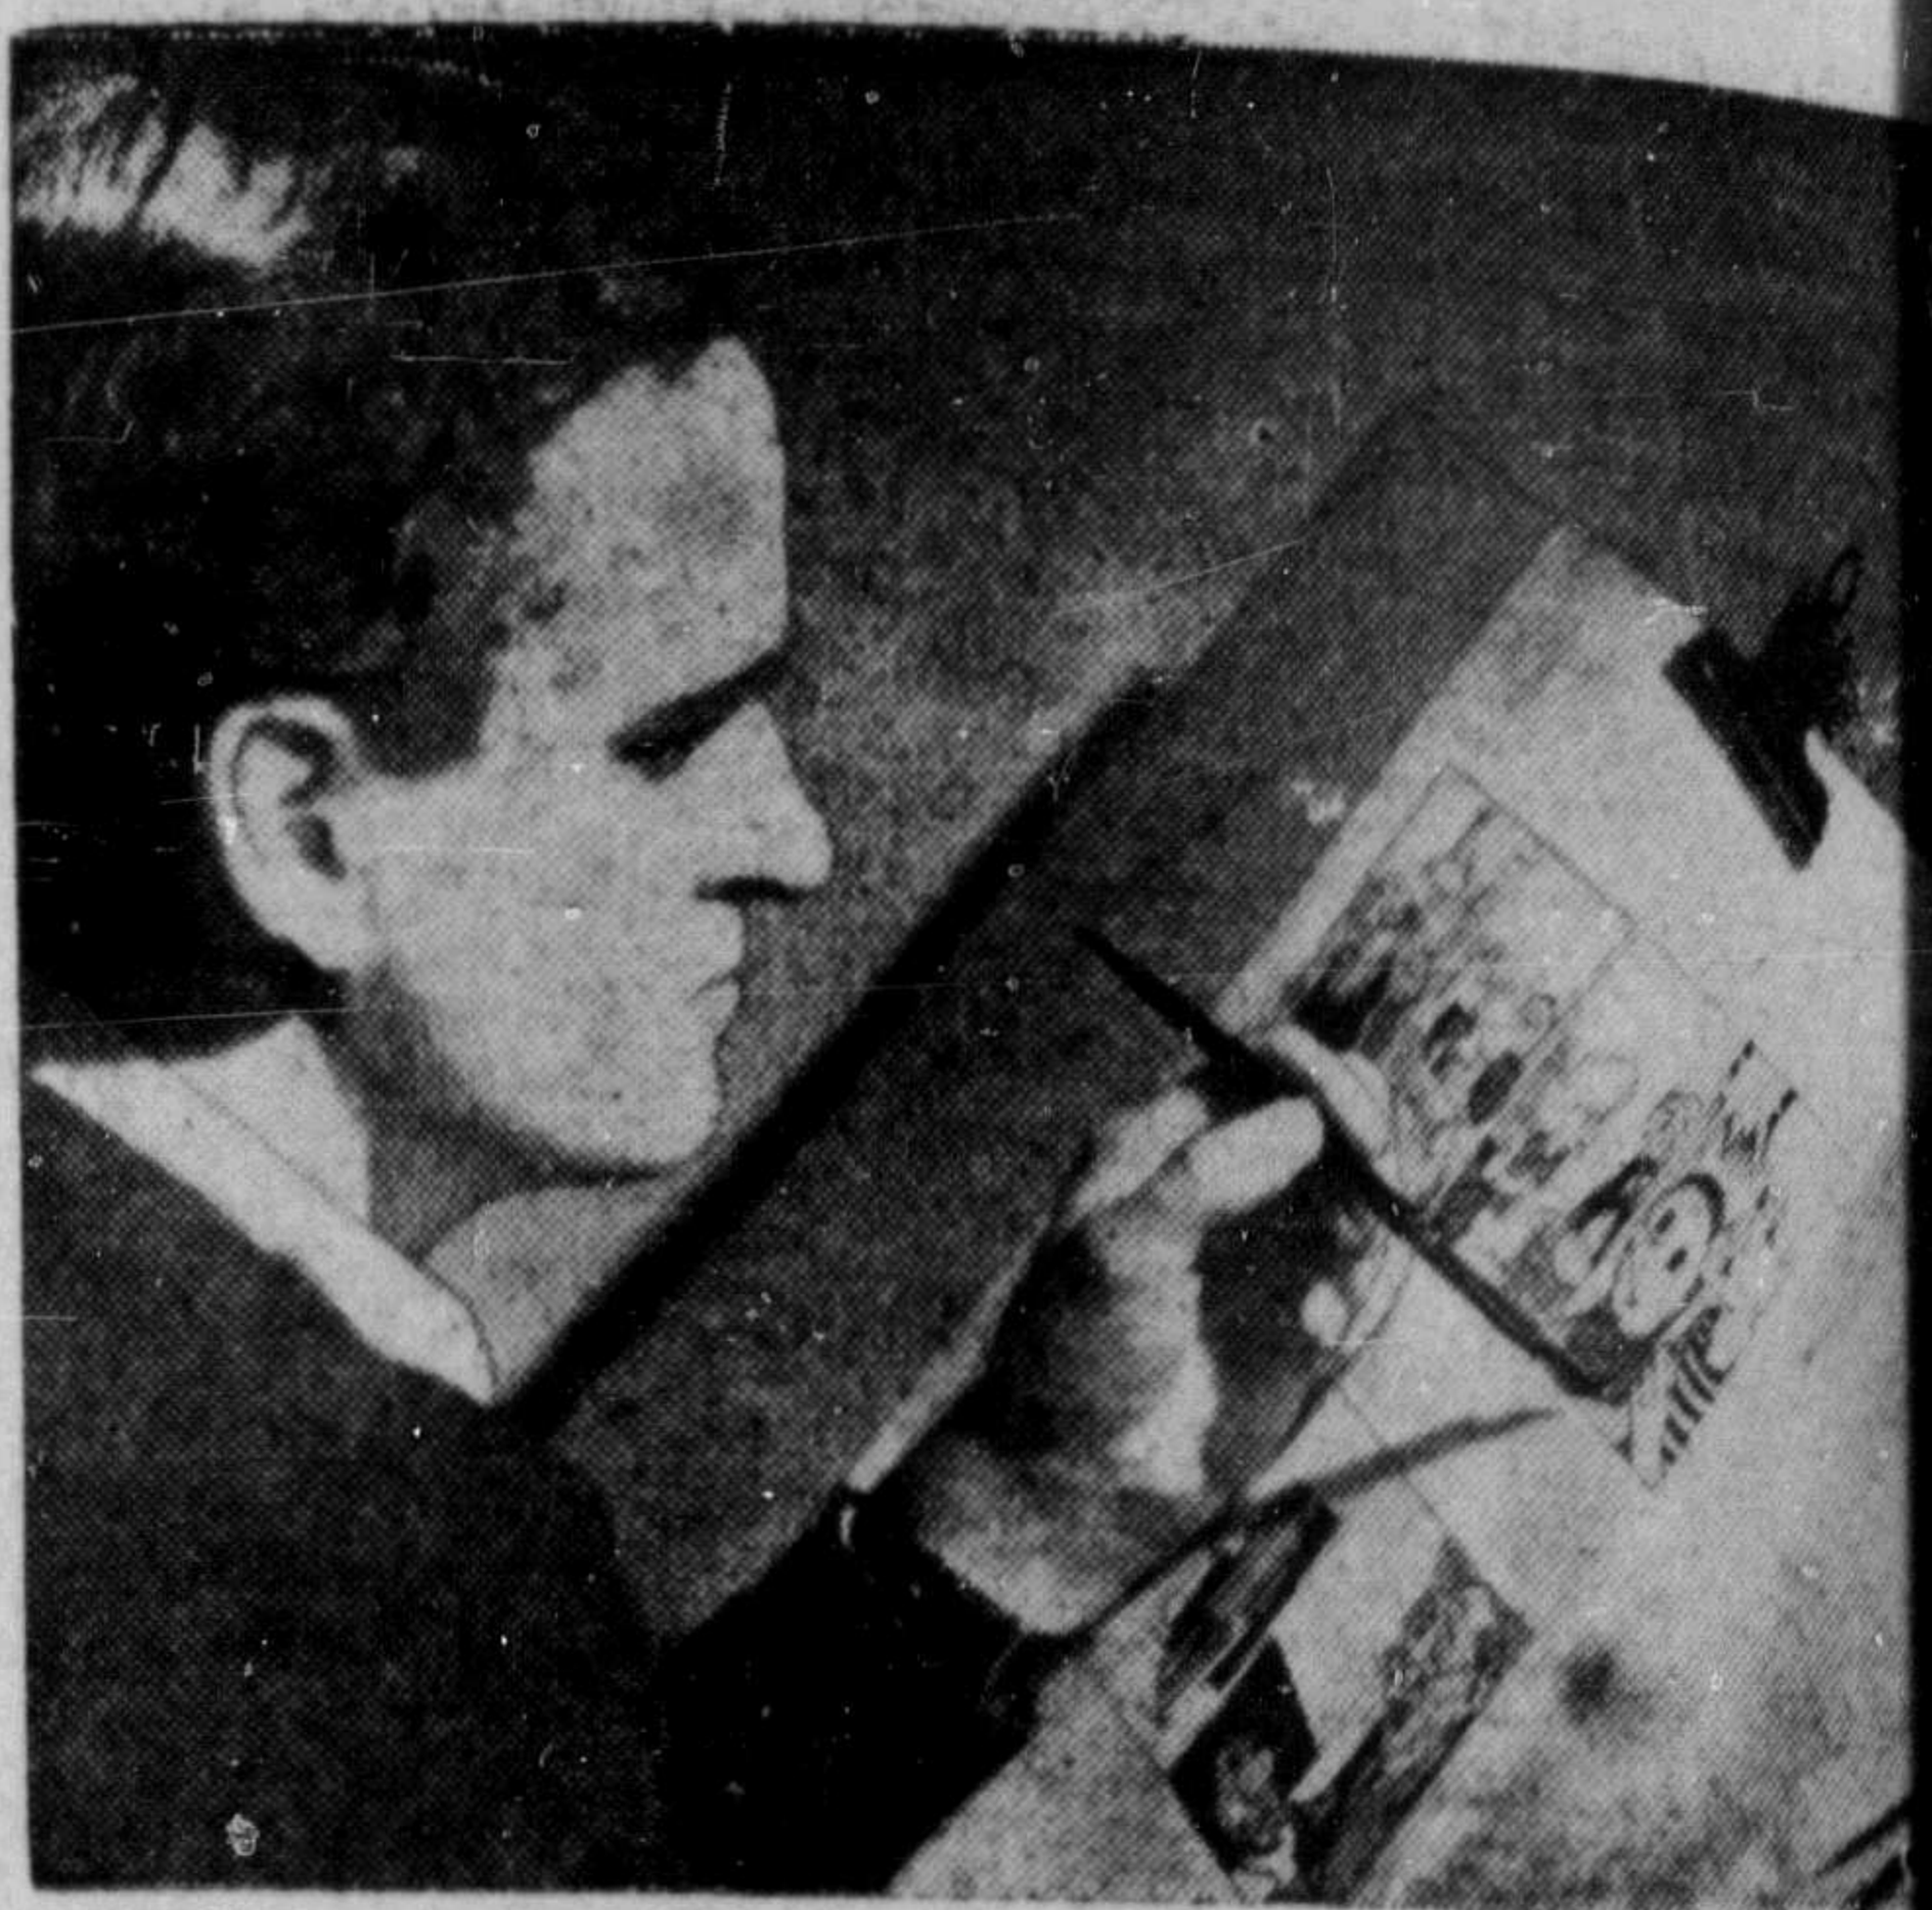

Being in such a frenzy, I had to tell him also about "the council meeting."

By this time I decided I'd come home and write a letter to you. On the way I just missed getting hit by a piece of lumber one of those workmen was swinging over a fence at Woolworth's new store, tripped and scuffed my shoes in front of Jerry's barber shop, met George Hills, Jack McRae and Doc Orme on the sidewalk, waved to Art Murray in his limousine and got back to the office just in time to wish the boys a pleasant evening after another day's work.

You can see how frustrated I was, boss, so I didn't leave home all evening.

Hope you're not mad at me for not writing a feature story on Friday but I'll be sure to do one the next time it's Friday the 13th.

Your faithful servant,

POPULAR CARTOONIST in London is Vancouver-born Wally Fawkes, shown at work in his studio producing "Flook," the most unorthodox comic strip in the world.

Linguistic Hybrid Medium For Clever London Artist

(By MURIEL NARRAWAY)

Canadian Press Staff Writer LONDON — Vancouver-born Wally Fawkes had to be talked into doing what is probably the world's most unorthodox comic strip, but he's gradually getting used to it.

Tall, jazz-loving Wally wanted to create "something serious." Instead, he started drawing a strip based on the adventures of Rufus, a shock-haired, round-eyed boy, and his ubiquitous companion Flook, a fur-coated cross between a short-trunked elephant and a honey bear.

The strip takes a lot of getting used to, most people find, but in the end its special qualities, whatever they are, usually conquer the reader. Started in 1949 in the Daily Mail, the strip now is syndicated in North America, where it is available to 11 Canadian newspapers and about 20 American publications.

"Flook is something unique in cartoons," said a Daily Mail executive. "At first we weren't entirely happy about him but suddenly he became famous."

MANY LANGUAGES Flook speaks seven languages and has magic properties, being able to change himself at short notice into anything from a hot-water bottle to the Eiffel Tower. In one of his latest adventures

Flook saved the day by using nose as a substitute for the yonic torch after the original was extinguished.

The freckle-faced 38-year-old Fawkes says Flook originally was "merely a bit of fun," started as a circle for a "sort of grew."

Fawkes insists there's "nothing deep" behind the strip. "It's merely a satire on everyday life and ordinary people sort of showing up how stupid some of today's situations can be," says Fawkes, who uses the pen name "Trog." Original aimed at the adult mind, the cartoon now has many young followers who are quick to note any lack of continuity in its fantastic situations.

After present Olympic adventures, Rufus and Flook are scheduled for a satire on British trade. This won't have any particular bias. "I prefer keeping the strip non-political," Trog says.

Born in Canada, Fawkes came to England at an early age and settled in South London with his Canadian father and English mother. His life now can be said into three parts—life at the office with Flook and Rufus, night in a West End jazz club playing the clarinet and family life in his Kensington studio flat with his English wife Sandra and 10-month-old Johanna.

Sees Cornish Home After Forty Years

PENRYN, Cornwall, Eng. (CP)—Grannie Olive Richards, back in her old hometown after 40 years, sits by the fire in the parlor and one by one meets for the first time her 10 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Richards, 68, is making her first visit to her birthplace in this Cornish seaport since she left in 1912 for Canada, broken-hearted by her husband's death.

In the 40 intervening years in Toronto, Grannie worked day and night to bring up her son Bert, who was killed in the Aug. 19, 1942 raid on Dieppe, and saved for the return journey to Penryn.

She cleaned houses by day and sewed and mended by night. When her daughter Hilda, left behind in Penryn, began sending photographs of Mrs. Richards' grandchildren, Grannie took on extra cleaning at night and gave up her visits to the movies.

Mrs. Richards arrived here June 3. She was greeted at the station by her daughter and her son-in-law, wearing white carnations for identity purposes.

Now frail, grey-haired Mrs. Richards sits by the parlor fire, meeting her "children," and postponing a decision on whether to return to Toronto or stay here.
