Disturbers were greeted by special bands of "ushers" who "escorted" hecklers from the building.

HE DID HIS DUTY

THIS newspaper joins in heartfelt mourning the many friends and family of G. A. (Alex) Hunter who were shocked to learn of his untimely death last Saturday while on an assignment.

We wish to convey our deepest sympathies to his wife, Pearl his daughter, Audrey, and his son, Bill; his brother and his mother. This closely-knit family has been known to nearly every citizen in Prince Rupert for many years and has set an example of Christian family life always upheld by a devoted and loving father and husband.

In his capacity of managing-editor of The Daily News, Alex Hunter had very often one of the most difficult jobs any man has been called upon to perform.

He was bound to duty and never forgot it, very often foregoing many of his pleasures in order to see this newspaper produced.

His service of more than 30 years on this newspaper will leave an imprint on this city which will be remembered for generations.

His service to the community as a whole, as a member of several outstanding organizations, will likewise never die.

As a newspaperman, there was none more thorough or harder working than Alex Hunter. He died in action as surely as a soldier died for his country "while on duty."

The entire staff and management of The Daily News regrets the loss of Central British Columbia's greatest newspaperman and joins in mourning.

For MP's Pensions

Ottawa Parliamentarians Would Contribute
By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—All political parties have tentatively agreed to a contributory pension plan for members of the Commons.

The plan, to provide a life pension for anyone who has served at least eight or 10 years in parliament, will be discussed soon by Finance Minister Abbott and representatives of the political parties.

If final agreement is reached, the plan likely will be submitted for approval at this session. While it will be sponsored by the government when it is introduced, it will represent the labor of a group of private members who have worked for several years on possible pension schemes.

The program is aimed particularly at taking care of men who devote most of their life to politics and then suffer defeat when they have no business or employment to which to return.

Recently, Julian Ferguson (PC-Simcoe North) urged the government to increase the indemnities of members of the Commons. Members now receive $4000 for each session of 65 days duration and $2000 a year tax-free living allowance. In 1951, members received $10,000 because there were two sessions.

ONE SESSION
Prime Minister St. Laurent has told his supporters there will not be two sessions this year. A Liberal member said that unless work is concluded by June 30 or by July 15, at the latest, the session will simply be adjourned until the fall.

Such an adjournment would mean that members would receive only one indemnity no matter how long the session lasted.

Mr. Ferguson's request was welcomed by many members, including some Liberals. However, Liberal sources said there likely will be no increase in indemnities until after the next federal election, expected by some in the fall of 1953.

Under the proposed plan, each member would contribute a percentage of his indemnity each session. The government would match the members' contribution. To qualify for a pension, a member would have to serve in at least two parliaments. The life of a parliament is usually four years, although under statute it is elected for five years.

BASED ON TENURE
The pension of a member would vary according to his

As I See It

by Elmore Philpott

Warns re Germany

IN THE SPRING OF 1949 I travelled through western Germany with a party which included the news editor of the Voice of America radio system.

He was a friendly and unassuming fellow, about as different as one could imagine from the cartoonist's caricature of a Yankee tourist abroad. In fact, he was dressed in rather shabby looking old tweeds and when we asked him why he said:

"I'm disguised as an Englishman. If these Germans know I'm an American they double the price."

At that time the Americans were frankly afraid that the Red army was going to come crashing across the Iron Curtain. There was nothing to stop them from sweeping west to the Atlantic. In fact in officers' messes the arguments used to be whether the Russians could make the Rhine in so many days or in so many hours.

But even then my own observations and deductions led me to foresee a totally different outcome.

ON THE last day we were together I said this to my good-natured American friend:

"You Yanks are so dumb it's not even funny. You are scared stiff that the Reds are going to contributions. To get a maximum of $3000 a year, a member would have to serve for at least 17 sessions.

One of the originators of the plan said that only 84 members in the 262-seat Commons have served for two parliaments and now would qualify for such a pension. He said there is a turnover of about 100 members in the life of every parliament and out of that number only 20 would be pensionable.

He said adoption of the pension plan would eliminate many hardship cases among members, defeated or taken ill after years of service.

If the plan works successfully for the Commons, he said, a similar contributory plan may be devised for the Senate. Senators now are appointed for life. Under a pension plan, a voluntary retirement age of 75 may be fixed. A senator would have the option of holding his seat or retiring on pension when he reached that age.

come smashing west. But you are going to wake up some morning and find that exactly the opposite has happened. The Russians are going to pull their armies clean out of eastern Germany, leaving behind any kind of a German government which will give them satisfactory guarantees that never again will Germany be lined up against them."

IN THE elections in Hesse the Social Democrats have won an overwhelming victory. They campaigned on a platform in line with the Russian suggestion of a unified, re-armed Germany, but one independent of either bloc. Yet they are the most pro-western of all the parties in Germany and when I was in Lower Saxony for the key election of 1951, Kurt Schumacher, their leader, started his speech: "We stand with the west."

The fact that the whole Social Democrat movement of western Europe, and even the whole British Labor party, has now swung against the American plan to split Germany into two rival armed Germany's should surely make us all "STOP, LOOK AND LISTEN."

For in this game we would be asking for another disaster such as happened a year after Mr. Chamberlain went to Munich. Now—as then—the Russians can outbid us with the Germans.

FRANKFURT (AP)—Directors of West German radio stations said recently they are making "Deutschland Ueber Alles," the restored national anthem, their nightly sign-off music. The American-controlled radio stations in Berlin also said it would play the anthem every Sunday after broadcasting the chimes of Berlin's Free Belt.

THE MAIN POINT is that the Russians are in a position to make possible a united Germany, and the western powers are not—except by victory in a war which the west would have to start.

The Russians can come to terms with any government in the western zones, by the simple expedient of demanding only one thing—namely, that a re-armed Germany will never again line up in a hostile alliance against Russia.

We in the west cannot get co-operation from any German government in the eastern zone, for so long as they are in control of eastern Germany the Russians will tolerate no government that is not completely EDMONTON—Pipe laying on the Edmonton-Blue River section of the $82,000,000 Trans-Mountain Co. oil pipe line through the Yellowhead Pass to Burnaby, is to start by June 1, a company official said Saturday.

REJECTED PAINTING—This painting of the historic lying-in-state of King George VI in Westminster Hall following the death of the British Sovereign last February has been rejected by the Royal Academy for its summer exhibition in London. The artist, 70-year-old Frank Beresford, left, is applying final touches with the guardsman on the right serving as a model. No reason was given by the Academy's Hanging Committee for rejecting the picture. Mr. Beresford said he had deliberately imparted a luminous glow to the scene as that was how it had impressed him. He obtained the effect by mixing beeswax with his paint. (CP PHOTO)

Old Army Barracks Houses 400 Pupils

PRINCE GEORGE—A former army barracks, once unkindly termed a white elephant, has become one of Prince George's chief assets, a dormitory for about 400 students.

To the teen-agers from rural areas, the dormitory is a second home where they lead a happy, healthy existence while receiving secondary school education at the city's junior and senior high school.

The boys and girls who have lived there for varying periods during the last five years stand high in their classes, due perhaps to regular study periods.

Formerly an officers' mess, the interior corridors are painted in light creams and greens, and there is an atmosphere of cleanliness and comfort.

Students are allowed a free hand in decoration and arrangement of their own rooms, shared by three occupants. Each pays $25 a month and deposits $5 on entry to cover any "wilful breakage." Operation costs are shared by the school board and the department of education.

"Mother" of the current family is Mrs. Elizabeth Yost, R.N., matron of the dormitory since it opened. She is always ready to advise on personal problems, take part in games, assist with lessons or to administer a reprimand.

Mrs. Yost's formula boils down to common sense, persuasion and keeping young with the young people.

The girls do most of the dishwashing themselves, she said.
Each week she prepares a list assigning all jobs of cleaning, fetching, kindling and other duties among the students.

"Everybody gets a turn and assigned tasks are completed promptly and cheerfully."

A recreation room is needed, but there is little prospect at present of getting one.

"The boys and girls here," she said, "made fine progress with their lessons and learn to live with other people. They learn to tolerate one another and to be patient. That will be useful to them all their lives."

Unemployment Dwindles In Prince Rupert

Unemployment rolls in Prince Rupert are dwindling daily, according to Alex Haig manager of the local National Employment Service office.

Recent demand for men has come from Western Uranium Company near Skeena Crossing, local fishing companies and from Robertson & Robertson, contractors for the home building program here.

Mr. Haig said there had been a larger number on claim this year, but the number had been increasing each year for some time. He felt the increase was due to the influx of people to the locality. So far, he said, the demand for labor and placements had been greater than in the past.

Although no displaced persons had been brought to Prince Rupert in the past few months, Mr.
Haig said, a number of people had come to this country on their own initiative and had settled in the district. Most of them had found employment.
Skilled tradesmen, he said, were in greatest demand.

Brawn and Brains Not Strangers, Says Two-Ton

LONDON (Reuters)—"To-Ton" Tessie O'Shea, British vaudeville star, may pack a lot of beef but she's no meathead.

Tessie threw a luncheon party to know down the statement by slim actress Dorothy Dickson that stodgy bodies breed stodgy brains. Backing Tessie up were a dozen heavyweights of show business and other professions who didn't get where they are just by throwing their weight around.

Guest of honor was Sophie Tucker, "last of the red hot mamas."
Tessie, her blond hair hidden under a big black picture hat, led off.

"A fat girl can do anything
a thin girl can do," she grinned.
"We've got so much more to give," chuckled her guest.
"We like being fat," Tessie said. She weighed 250 pounds shortly before going to the United States last year for a series of television appearances, but decided that was overdoing it a bit and slimmed down to a svelte 200.

It wasn't all for laughs, though. Turning solemn for a minute, Tessie said she's serious about this weight business.
She doesn't like to see girls getting "complexes" because they can't get thin. Going back a way, she remembered she was the fattest girl in her school but won tennis and dancing honors—and she wasn't at the bottom of the class, either.

Missing from the luncheon was 200-pound Mrs. Bessie Braddock, Labor member of Parliament, who had to attend to some weighty business in the House of Commons.

hidden qualities that count.

These are things you buy on faith. And these are things you know are 100% right when you see the C.C.M. nameplate on a bicycle. That nameplate tells you so much more in terms of value than any price tag! It tells you that you always get what you pay for when you buy a C.C.M.

Compare these EXCLUSIVE C.C.M. FEATURES and see if you don't agree that a C.C.M. is your Best Buy in Bicycles!

BLACKWOOD on Bridge

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

Versatility Is a Fine Point of Play
One mark of the fine player is his ability to see the necessity for changing his original line of play. Mr. Masters saw that necessity in today's deal. He literally "made the hand over" to suit his purposes. Before reading on, see if you can make six hearts on the North-South cards, with the deuce of spades opening.

Here is the way Mr. Masters went about it. He played the four of spades from dummy at trick one and Miss Brash won with the queen and returned the jack of diamonds.

Dummy's queen of diamonds took the second trick and two rounds of trumps were cashed. Mr. Masters saw he had just 11 winners—five hearts, three top diamonds, two clubs and a diamond ruff.

It occurred to him that if Miss Brash had as many as four clubs she could be squeezed in spades and clubs. In other words, to guard those two suits, she would have to hold onto one spade and three clubs, four cards in all.

After losing the first trick, Mr. Masters could win the next nine in hearts and diamonds. That made ten tricks in all and everybody would be down to three cards.

He therefore cashed the king of diamonds, returned to his hand with a third trump lead, played the ace of diamonds, on which a small club was discarded from dummy, then ruffed his last diamond.

At this point it was clear that Miss Brash could not have as

The Circus Has Come To Town

Horses in Prince Rupert! Dozens of them!

And crowds of children bubbling over with excitement and anticipation.

A great number of miscellaneous pieces of equipment and many men are busy assembling the pieces.

It all adds up to the circus that is being operated at the McBride Street and First Avenue.

The cry "the circus has come to town" still thrills the youngsters, and not a few of the oldersters have happy memories of the thrills they had in their young days when they thrilled to the same experience.

The horses are, of course, the hobby horses of varied colors and equally varied attitudes, as they seem to be striving to outrace one another. Some with mouths agape and every muscle straining, others taking it more easily; and some still in pieces, in the process of being assembled!

Other tents have been erected but are not open to the public, yet they have their challenge to our curiosity. So also have the brightly colored scenes promising entertainment and excitement.

The circus has come to town. Operated by Crescent Shows, it is being operated under the auspices of Prince Rupert Shrine Club, for funds to help crippled children.

Presented High Awards

VANCOUVER—A former New Westminster man with a B.Sc. from the University of British Columbia, Philip L. Matheson, now transportation engineer for the Canadian National Railways in Montreal, was among 14 members of the Engineering Institute of Canada who received awards and prizes at the institute's convention banquet in Hotel Vancouver Friday.

Two other well known Canadian engineers, Frederick V. Seibert of Edmonton, and Richard L. Weldon, O.B.E., of Montreal, received the Julian C. Smith medal for "achievement in the development of Canada." This is the highest award given by the Engineering Institute.

Abel & Odowes Draw First Blood in Season Opener

Last season's champions of Prince Rupert Baseball League won the 1952 opening game yesterday afternoon from their closest rivals, Abel & Odowes in the nine-inning affair 5-3 from Gordon & Anderson in a second-last stanza rally to overcome a tie-point lead.

Whirlwinds in the dust-bowl Roosevelt Park notwithstanding, pace of the slow opener ebbed in the fourth inning with three one-base hits by the three winning batting order.

Overcomer this year, Jim Gordon started the hitting, followed by second out-

Maxim Waits To Sign With Ray Robinson

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—Joey Maxim, the thick-set light heavy-weight champion, was waiting stolidly in the offices of the New York State Athletic Commission for Sugar Ray Robinson to show up and sign the papers for their 15-round fight at Yankee Stadium June 23. He was asked if he wasn't getting weary of waiting for the pride of Harlem.

"Not me," grinned Maxim. "For this kind of money I can wait a long time. I've waited for a whole lot less. It hasn't been long since I was fighting some very tough monkeys for two-three-four thousand dollars. One period of 15 months I think I had 24 fights."

For all his scores of fights with many of the best big men in the game, the 30-year-old Clevelander shows scarcely a mark. He looks like what he is, a consummate boxer. He will have two inches in height and some 14-15 pounds in weight on Robinson, and is sublimely certain he can whale the Sugar Boy.

Robinson, when he finally arrived for the signing, said frankly that he had no real hope of knocking out his heavier opponent. An admirer said he was surprised at this "defeatist" attitude on the part of the middle-weight champ.

"It isn't defeatist," the slender Negro protested. "I swear I don't feel any different about him than about all the others. It's just that I know he can take a punch. I know that if I beat him it will be with speed, and I'm faster than he is."

Off in a corner some of the boys were wondering if it might not turn out to be a poor fight between two extremely skilful boxers, with Robinson staying on his bike all the way. They were interrupted by the mellow tones of Bob Christenberry, chairman of the commission, speaking for the talkies.

"Shake hands, boys," he said. "I know this will be not just the fight of the year, but the fight of the century."

Remember when?

Carl Hubbell pitched his first complete game for Toronto Maple Leafs 26 years ago today in the International League, shutting out Jersey City 1-0 on two hits. Hubbell went up to the New York Giants in 1928, and with his famed "screwball" was a mainstay of the Giant pitching staff until 1942 when he became head of the Giants' farm system.

Many a Twist Likely Due Big Major League Shuffle

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—The baseball race is not yet a month old, and a forecaster should not become panicky any more than a manager should, but we already have a strong feeling that some alterations are necessary in which was presented here as the four-star, exclusive and certain order of finish in the American League.

If you risked a beer on Cleveland Indians to win the flag, take it easy. You're in. They have what it takes, even with such a man as Larry Doby out with injuries. It is a blow that points that the original list appears to be slightly out of kilter, and we would like to offer an explanation.

In the first place they have been trading players all over the joint since the season opened. Second, several clubs, especially Boston Red Sox, are employing athletes who were kept carefully hidden during the spring. They're good, too. And in the third place, a few players are not performing up to the standard expected of them.

Take, first, the two swamps which have given Washington a new young outfielder of Jim Busby, Jackie Pensen and Archie Wilson, and a potential winning pitcher in Frank (Spec) Shea, whose long-lame arm appears to have mended. Let's jump the Senators up two notches to fifth place.

That makes it necessary to drop the cooled-off St. Louis Browns down to sixth and Chicago White Sox to seventh.

For the time being, at least until another revised forecast seems advisable, we'll leave the Yankee in the runner-up spot. You can't turn your back on a champ just because he gets knocked down a couple of times.

What to do with the Red Sox presents something of a problem. It is contrary to every baseball law for a club to come up with that many sterling rookies. However, it's done now and it seems expedient to shove the Bobbysox up a peg into third place.

Let's see, that leaves Detroit without a home. The Tigers are eighth at the moment. Put them fourth, but remind me to feel their pulse again in about a month.

TERRACE TOPICS

Mrs. L. Newhouser returned from Prince Rupert Wednesday evening, where her group entered the solo classes of the music festival. Members of the group were: Mylene DeKergommeaux, Tommy DeKergommeaux, Judy Spicer, Patsy McLachlan and John Gillanders. Mrs. Newhouser reports the group did very well.

Danny O'Brien last week moved a building by "cat" from the property of R. Reynolds to the Keith estate, a distance of well over a mile. The building was recently purchased by S. Kirkaldy. Danny is 12 years old.

Mrs. C. R. Sawyer of Decker Lake is visiting in Terrace at the home of her daughter, Mrs. L. Haynes.

Mr. and Mrs. Leiv Nelson, who made their home in Prince Rupert before coming to Terrace last summer, are completing a house on the Keith estate where they plan to move shortly.

At the regular meeting of the Anglican Ladies' Auxiliary, plans were completed for the tea which was held on Saturday. Main business of the meeting were plans for a picnic to be held on July 9 at Lakelse Lake.

Along the 'FRONT

Twenty-five years ago a fisherman, Alfred Pye, first set foot aboard the halibut craft Velma C, along the Canadian and Alaskan coasts, and since then has led on no other ship. Friends, when in a mellow mood, call him Apple Pie, and he thinks of it as just another little sign of popularity. The record to next match it was held by Martin Arnet who was on the Cape Beale for 20 years.

A part of old Area 3 has been closed for the regular halibut season, but will be reopened on August 2 for 17 days. This is according to the 1952 regulations.

The cost of flatfish at Prince Rupert was still uncertain last week, there being about twenty trawlers still tied up. The difference is slight. What is wanted is half a cent on soles and one cent on ling cod. Fishermen are also asking that five per cent deduction for ice and slime be reduced to two and a half. Negotiations here have been carried on in Prince Rupert between a joint committee consisting of four vessel owners and four trawl fishermen.

Jack Allen, identified since the early days with fishing and canning affairs in this district, is resuming his season's duties with B.C. Packers. Squadare, about twenty miles from here, is one of the most prominent points in the disposal of catches.

Dodge Cove will soon be busy with marine matters, for deep sea halibut responsibilities may be said to be here. Fishing date is next week. Dodge Cove, on Digby Island, convenient to the site of the former quarantine station has, ever since earliest days, been a source of fish food. And through the years, the place has been a community builder. A few hours spent there is most informative and interesting, and the people welcome chance visitors.

The whaling industry in British Columbia waters returns to work this summer at the same rate of pay as 1951. This was decided after B. C. Packers said it would be necessary to cease whaling if union leaders persisted in demands for higher pay, due to depressed world market.

The United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union had been demanding a 33 1/2 percent hike over last year's wages for boatmen, and 25 percent for processing plant employees. B.C. Packers operate five ships off Vancouver Island's west coast. Last year, the 120 men employed caught 400 whales.

It took the steamship Flying Eagle, now loading barley at Prince Rupert, eleven days to cross the Pacific from Kobe, Japan. The first few days out were rough, and later there were spells of fog, but less as the ship

Montreal Shipping Due Here

"I found more here than I expected," J. C. Yemelos told the Daily News this morning, referring to port facilities.

Managing director of Argonaut Navigation Co. Ltd., Montreal, Mr. Yemelos is here to oversee the loading of the Agathi and the Constantinos with barley for Japan.

The Agathi is due in port tomorrow, the Constantinos, May 25. Both ships were Canadian Liberty ships during the war and were built in Vancouver. They are under the Panamanian flag.

Mr. Yemelos was surprised that a port with the facilities offered here was without the services of a pilot. He felt there should be one stationed here. Although insurance companies did not insist that ships have a pilot to enter Prince Rupert harbor, he said, the Dominion Government

... billed the ship with a pilot's whether or not his services were asked.

Another thing he thought hindering the use of Prince Rupert as a port was the expense of lining a ship here compared with Vancouver $3,000 more.

Aside from those drawbacks, Mr. Yemelos said, if shipping people knew more about Prince Rupert had to offer as a port, there would be more business here.

"Many owners draw what a good port it is," he said. He will be here to see both captains and look over their plans for their owners, for whom his company is agent.

Apprentice Navigation Co. operates seven boats of their under the Canadian flag.

LONDON — A new ride called the "Rotor" which is big business at last year's festival of Britain will be in operation this summer at amusement parks in Chicago, San Francisco and Los Angeles. The "Rotor" ride involves a spinning cylinder 12 feet in diameter.
