THE CANADIAN NAVY'S aircraft carrier Magnificent rolls through rough seas as she crosses the Atlantic after taking part in a seven-week cruise and the Spithead Coronation naval review. Arrival in Halifax of the Coronation squadron, accompanied by the Australian carrier Sydney, brought the heaviest concentration of naval strength in Canadian history.

The field of candidates for the Aug. 10 Dominion election reached 624 today, it was shown in an unofficial compilation by the Canadian Press. The indications are that the final total will top the 1949 figure of 588 and may surpass the record of 654, set in 1945.

Official nominations close Monday, July 13, in 21 constituencies which cover large, thinly-populated areas. The closing date is Monday, July 27, in the other 242.

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Out for an early-morning cooling stroll the man observed a strange-looking vehicle prowling along the curb of his residential street.

He drew into the shadows to watch the mysterious goings-on and find out whether anything sinister was afoot. Just then the city forestry crew turned on full power of its spray wagon which is making the rounds of the city to treat curbside elm trees.

The observer, squarely in the target area, is likely to be safe from Dutch elm disease for some time.

Shoot Down
23 MG's

By The Associated Press
SEOUL.—The U.S. Air Force reported today that not one U.S. Sabre jet was shot down this week in aerial combat which cost the Reds 23 MiG jets destroyed, one probably destroyed, and two damaged in the air over Korea.

Six Allied aircraft were downed by Red groundfire and one B-26 bomber was lost to other causes, probably engine failure.

Beginning at midnight, Allied shells ripped into Communist positions and continued at intervals all through the day.

South Korean troops who lost Lookout Mountain on the east central front Friday made no new attempts to retake the hill. The 3rd RoK Division has been fighting for a week to drive Chinese Reds off the mountain.

Rain and heavy clouds grounded most warplanes, but eight B-29 bombers dropped loads on Red artillery positions south of Pyongyang on the central front and near Kumsong.

At Sniper Ridge on the central front, the Chinese suffered about 100 casualties in a five-hour probing attack against Allied positions. UN defenders threw back the assault with machine guns and grenades, the 8th Army said.

A Communist battalion hit briefly on the east side of Finger Ridge, then withdrew. An Allied patrol west of Finger Ridge fell back after briefly engaging an enemy company.

VOLUNTEER LUMBER, AID
GIVEN NEW LITTLE LEAGUE

A preliminary game in the scheduled Little League baseball season planned in Prince Rupert got underway this afternoon, when the Section 2 Wildcats met the Conrad Street Sockeyes at Roosevelt Park.

Later this afternoon present players and those boys aged 8 to 13 years wishing to play will be registering at the Civic Centre between 3 and 5 p.m.

The opening game of the Little League series is scheduled for 7 p.m. Wednesday at Algoma Park. Work on the park begins this weekend when volunteers will start getting the ground in shape and erect a backstop. Lumber for the backstop has been arranged by mill manager W. C. R. Jones of Columbia Cellulose. Northwest Construction Company carpenters have volunteered to construct the backstop. It is expected the ground will be graded and levelled by the Parks Board before Wednesday.

Socreds Win
2 More Seats

VANCOUVER g—Social Credit won two more seats, Vancouver Centre and Nelson-Creston, Friday night as returns trickled in from the count of alternative choices in the June 9 provincial election.

With a total of 23, Premier W. A. C. Bennett's Social Crediters need only two more seats, a virtual certainty, to form a working majority.

The party is leading in six of the seven seats still in doubt and the CCF leads in one.

Meanwhile, the premier returned from a Toronto party conference.

Flashing a wide victory smile he declared, "If it hadn't been for the opposition of many political writers, our victory would have been greater."

Counting continued of June 9 election ballots in the undecided Vancouver seats—which won't be decided until next week—and the riding of Delta.

Latest standing showed: Social Credit 23; CCF 13; Labor 1; Liberals 3; and Progressive Conservatives 1. CCF leads in one seat.

Rhee-Robertson Meet Again
To Try to Reach Agreement

SEOUL (AP)—Truce emissary Walter Robertson hinted today that he and President Syngman Rhee may have found a way around the deadlock which has stalemated efforts to win South Korean support of an armistice. Robertson conferred for an hour and 25 minutes with Rhee and told newspaper men as he emerged that "I had a discussion which I feel will be helpful in reaching a satisfactory solution."

He declined to elaborate, but said he planned to see the South Korean president again. This was his eighth conference with Rhee.

South Korea's foreign minister Pyun Yung Tai told reporters Rhee has not modified his demand for a 90-day time limit on a post-armistice political conference. If unification of Korea is not achieved in 90 days, Rhee insists, the U.S. must agree to resume the war.

Robertson has rejected Rhee's demand, a high UN source said, and the resulting stalemate has threatened to wreck the talks.

Robertson, Eisenhower's envoy, talked for a few seconds with newspaper men outside Rhee's hilltop mansion before he drove away. He declined to say whether an agreement was near.

However, his statement stirred immediate speculation that his expected early departure for Washington would be delayed while he explored a possible new solution to the crisis.

Foreign Minister Pyun attended today's session. And while he insisted that Rhee has not softened his demands, he added:

"The very fact that we are still continuing the discussions proves that the talks are not hopeless."

Pyun is Rhee's closest adviser and is a bitter opponent of a truce on terms negotiated at Panmunjom. He has called repeatedly for a march to the Yalu River to unify Korea.

Self-Confessed User Of Heroin
Sentenced To 18 Months In Jail

Plea For Longer Sentence Refused
By DICK AYRES
A drama of drugs and heroin addicts was climaxed in city police court yesterday afternoon when a self-confessed user of heroin asked to be sent to the B.C. Penitentiary for two years instead of the 18 months in Oakalla prison farm to which he had been sentenced a few moments before.

George Paine, Jr., 27, of Prince Rupert, told Police Magistrate W. D. Vance he would prefer to go to the penitentiary for the longer period "because a program of rehabilitation for drug addicts had been instigated there whereas at Oakalla there was nothing."

Paine, who had pleaded guilty to possession of drugs and also to a breaking and entering charge had been sentenced to six months in prison, plus a fine of $200 or in default an extra three months' imprisonment. On the second count he had been sentenced to 12 months in jail, to run consecutively with the previous sentence.

He made his request after the conclusion of the trial.

This morning, after considering Paine's request, Magistrate Vance said there was nothing he could do. Paine, he said, should have made his plea before passage of the second sentence. He would have to serve the 18 months in Oakalla.

Paine, charged jointly with Rex Recheck of Tulsequah, with possession of drugs, pleaded guilty to the charge yesterday morning before Magistrate Vance and was remanded for sentence until the afternoon.

Recheck pleaded not guilty and was tried at the afternoon court sitting.

Other Man Also Gets Six Months

Despite pleas by both Recheck and Paine, who were not represented by counsel, that Recheck, a former convicted drug addict, had not taken "a fix" on the late afternoon of June 24, Magistrate Vance found Recheck guilty and sentenced him to six months in prison, plus a fine of $200 or in default an additional three months.

Prior to taking up observation the witness said, he had found hidden behind the wash basin in the bathroom an eyedropper, a burned spoon and a hyperdermic needle. They had been wrapped in toilet tissue, he said and after examining them he had returned them to the hiding place.

Between 4 and 5 p.m. on June 24 he and Const. Harrison had seen two men enter the bathroom together. He identified the men as the accused—Rex Recheck and George Paine, who had pleaded guilty in the morning court sitting. Paine was absent from Recheck's trial at request of the prosecution.

Police Took Turns Watching Men

Const. Jensen said that he and Const. Harrison took turns peering through a keyhole of the bathroom which they had unplugged earlier in the afternoon. During his observation he said he saw Recheck there with Paine, saw an arm fill the eyedropper with water. He returned to the room opposite and Const. Harrison watched for a minute or two.

When the two men left the bathroom Const. Jensen said that he and his fellow policeman accosted the pair and returned with them to the bathroom. There they seized the injection paraphernalia from behind the wash basin and they examined the arms of both men.

Const. Jensen said arms of both men showed signs of recent injections. He said he had seen similar marks of injection by drug addicts nearly every day of his six years on the narcotics squad.

The eyedropper, spoon and needle were sealed in an envelope and taken to Vancouver where they were tested by H. I. Edwards, Dominion government analyst.

The report, produced in court and shown to Recheck, stated that the equipment contained a small amount of heroin.

The two accused, when arrested, were in a relaxed state, such as is common to drug addicts when under the influence of heroin, said Const. Jensen. A search of Paine's room revealed nothing, he told the court.

Const. Harrison told the court that during the time he was See SELF-CONFESSED—Page 4

Times Says U.S. May Ship
Surplus Food to East Germany

NEW YORK (CP)—The New York Times in a dispatch from Bonn today said United States government agencies in Washington and Bonn are considering a plan to ship huge quantities of surplus foodstuffs to East Germany.

The government-owned surplus includes butter, wheat, meat, dried beans and other foodstuffs.

At the same time they would seek to improve Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's chance of winning the forthcoming West German elections by associating him directly or indirectly with the move to alleviate the critical food shortage in East Germany.

The authors hope that the plan would not only embarrass the Soviet authorities but also would contribute further to undermining their control.

The foodstuffs would be distributed through religious organizations in East Germany but it was not yet clear whether these organizations had been approached and their consent obtained. Whether the plan sponsors were convinced that Russian authorities would permit the U.S. to ship food for purpose of psychological warfare against Soviet control and domination also was not clear.

Backers of the plan pointed out that if the Russians refused to permit the shipments they would stand accused of willfully starving the East Germans for political reasons.

Support the Youngsters

RESIDENTS of Prince Rupert have before them this year and in the years to come a golden opportunity to do something that will benefit themselves, the city and their own children. This chance comes once in a lifetime and should not be ignored.

On Thursday night an unofficial Little League baseball association was formed. Next year an official group will go into action and be affiliated with the international group that is doing so much for boys and youths in larger Canadian centres and throughout the United States.

Properly organized Little League baseball is a form of insurance. It ensures that Junior learns to play a game he wants to play. He is taught how to play it properly and, because of the age restrictions, eight years to 12 years, he uses bats, balls and playing field two-thirds the size of adult equipment. He is coached, cautioned, encouraged and also insured against accidents which will happen in the best regulated sports. He gains a terrific pride in his team which will be properly outfitted in regulation baseball uniforms. He will learn sportsmanship and at an early age learn to conduct himself as a true man to take the good with the bad, to respect rules, the necessity of taking orders and the value of carrying them out. All the time he will be taking part in a highly competitive sport which will bring out the best in him. If his best is not good enough then he will realize that it is only fitting that someone else take his place. He will appreciate that in all sport there has to be a winner and a loser.

In the meantime, like any boy he will want the support of his parents. He will want to see them at the games. He will want them to be at the games to yell encouragement to his pals and to give him that extra ounce of spirit needed when the chips are down.

That is where the residents of Prince Rupert come in. Whether you are a parent or not, you can readily see that here is an opportunity for you to do something for the younger generation that was never done for you. Maybe in former days you played for a sponsor in a league. Maybe you were good, but where did you go when you outgrew your mates? You remained and played with them or you grew too old and quit.

Here the youngsters will be given a chance to graduate. Prince Rupert folks want good baseball. They have a senior baseball association which is doing its best to provide good entertainment. Where are the reinforcements going to come from if the much younger element is not given a goal for which to shoot?

In the Little League Baseball set-up, local teams eventually compete with district teams, then with provincial teams and finally with American teams. From Little League clubs they graduate to Junior or Pony League clubs and that is where the Major League scouts see the boys in action and keep a watchful eye on them. For example, on Vancouver Island, Campbell River's Rod Cameron is far from 20 years old, yet is signed by the St. Louis Browns. He was spotted while playing in a Vancouver Island ball park not much better than Roosevelt Park. He has a great future ahead of him.

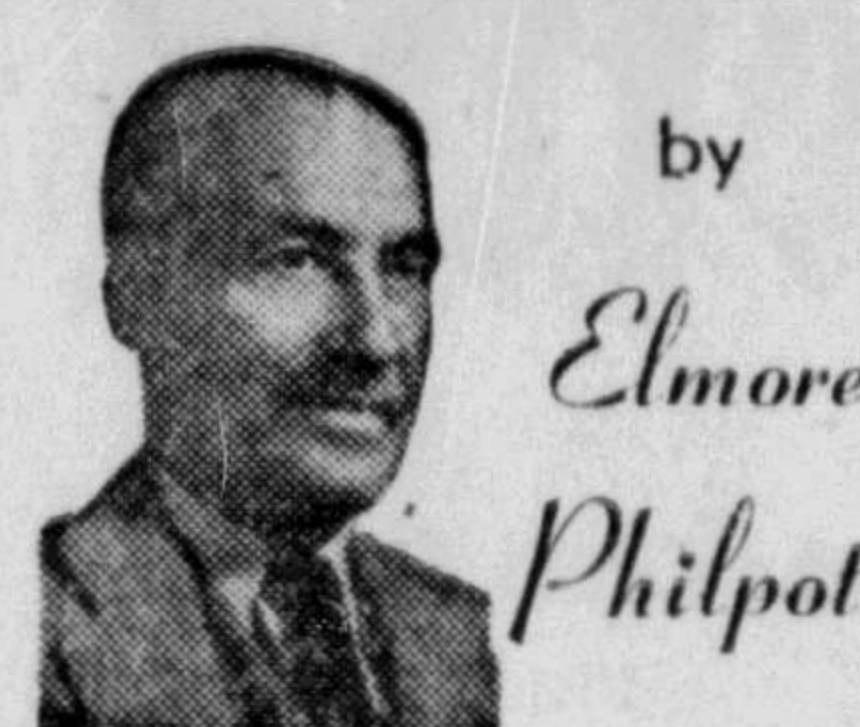

Now, not every boy who plays Little League baseball is destined for Yankee Stadium or Ebbett's Field, but the fact remains that the newly-formed league in Prince Rupert is worthy of support and continual support. There is nothing more pitiful than something that starts with a bang, then dies out like a wet squib. There is nothing more horrible to face than a young boy's faith in his elders being shattered after a promise has been made. Now Prince Rupert as a whole hasn't made this promise to the kids, that they're going to have Little League baseball partly this year and officially next year. The promise has been made by a group of men who have seen the boys playing themselves with little or no guidance.

Back them up.

As I See It

Old Warrior Rests

RT. HON. SIR WINSTON CHURCHILL is ordered by his doctors to rest awhile.

It may or may not be true that the old warrior's cabinet colleagues are wishing that the old boy would call it a day, and spend his last years in calm.

This piece is just to say that one ordinary Canadian admires that old war horse, beyond any other statesman in any country, of all these times.

It is not that I like all his ideas—some of them are poles apart from mine.

But the grand old man seems to me to personify part of what is best in the British way of life.

IN THE BRITISH election of 1951 I followed Mr. Churchill wherever he went. Not that that was such a hard job. Used to the Marathon grind of North American elections, I was astounded to see how neatly the British stage their polls.

The real campaign was confined within three weeks. Mr. Churchill himself made only seven speeches, of which I heard six. I missed only the last one, which was a sort of family affair when Churchill the father was speaking for Churchill the son.

CHURCHILL was cut to the heart in that election because he found out that the ordinary people of Britain did feel that there would be greater danger of war with him as prime minister than with Mr. Attlee.

My close-up observation of him, dealing with that question, was that he was sincere, to the very core of his soul, if souls have a core, about wanting peace.

Over and over again he told the people of Britain that if they gave him another chance to head the government he would make the supreme effort of his life to bridge the widening chasm between the two parts of the world.

I never had the slightest doubt that Sir Winston was as eager as he was sincere about meeting the Russian leaders face to face. Nor was I ever puzzled by his own sense of urgency, as contrasted with the hesitation and misgivings of the top men in Washington.

How much time have I got? the old statesman must have asked himself.

THERE is at least an outside chance that his enormous prestige would enable him to speak for the west, and to deal with the Russians, as could nobody else on this earth.

For Churchill's own record, good and bad, is woven right into the history of Russia's revolutionary relationship to the West. It was he who fathered the foolish policy of intervention after 1917. But it was he, also, who committed West to stand by Russia when she had been attacked by Hitler. It was he who after the Second World War issued the clarion call to the nations of the West to stand firm against what he considered as a new Red form of imperialist aggression.

CHURCHILL is a realist. He knows forces now grinding on their way, as impersonally as glaciers, may yet bring on that world war three. But wouldn't it be wonderful if the grand old man could hang on to his job as prime minister long enough to "have a go," as he puts it, for peace—and wouldn't it be wonderful if he could get it?

OTTAWA DIARY

By Norman M. MacLeod

Ottawa crew members of Canada's aircraft carrier "Magnificent" have been in the Capital during the current week on shore leave. They have just one topic of conversation, namely, the ship which stole the show in the mighty Coronation naval review at Spithead.

No, it was NOT the "Maggie." That's what enables the "Maggie's" crew members to be so voluble on the subject. If their ship had been the one involved in the incident, they would have had to keep modestly silent.

As it is, they're a mite disappointed at having seen only the back of the head instead of the radiant smile of Her Majesty. But underneath their chagrin they are generous enough to admit that the Queen had a compelling reason for looking the other way. Here's the story:

The great sloop-of-war saw the British and Commonwealth navies drawn up in three lines along each of which Her Majesty was scheduled to pass in the Royal yacht. Greatest honor was attached to a place in the first line. And that's where the "Maggie" was.

But across from the first line of the Commonwealth fleet, with only a broad avenue of sea intervening, were the guest vessels from foreign countries that were attending the review as a courteous recognition of the Coronation. They included mighty naval vessels from Soviet Russia, the United States, France, and other navies. Right opposite Canada's "Maggie" was the Italian guest vessel—a fully-rigged sailing ship said to be almost an exact counterpart of Lord Nelson's famous flagship "Victory." It is used by the Italian government for training naval recruits.

On the progress of her inspection Her Majesty, although sensible of the courtesy which the visiting vessels embodied, had eyes only for her fleet—until the Royal yacht arrived between the "Maggie" and the Italian training vessel. Then an attendant in her party directed her attention and she turned her head.

The sight was spectacular, graceful, and beautiful. At a word of command the Italian trainees lined their ship. Springing to their posts and standing at rigid salute, they stretched from end to end of the vessel on every deck. Then other scores of them swarmed into the rigging. They stood upright along the spars, their arms twined around one another's shoulders to better preserve their balance.

It was a spectacular performance of precision naval training. The "Maggie" crew were honest enough to appreciate it. But in the few seconds that Her Majesty turned her head almost involuntarily to watch it, the Royal yacht crossed the "Maggie." The Canadian crew, to their everlasting disappointment, saw only the back of Her Majesty's head.

Workmen have begun to strip London of its Coronation glitter. By the end of the month festive London will have lost its attraction for thousands of visitors who have been pouring in daily from all over the world to see the sights.

Officials dropped earlier plans to keep the capital in its Coronation cloak until the fall because traffic pile-ups, overcrowded sidewalks and packed restaurants made everyday life a nightmare for Londoners.

The flood of visitors became so great last week that police banned all sightseeing buses from central London so that members of Parliament could reach their seats in the House of Commons on time.

Only the more spectacular Coronation decorations will survive the big clean-up.

Sunday Fishing Trip Brings Man New Car

FLIN FLON, Man.—When Jim Bell cast his fishing line into nearby Athapapuskow lake he didn't think he'd reel in a brand new 1953 sedan. But he did!

Well, not exactly, but the whopping 36-pound, two-ounce fighting lake trout on the business end of his rod turned out to be the prize-winning catch of the 1953 Flin Flon trout festival.

It was last Monday that Jim set out with a friend for a peaceful afternoon on the lake.

They had been fishing for about an hour when the big trout grabbed the line. When the finny beauty was hauled in it measured 41 inches from tip to tail and 27 inches in girth.

Judges were working at top speed Wednesday measuring and weighing fish caught during the trout derby from June 24 to 30. Wednesday night they unveiled the prize catch and formally presented Mr. Bell with the keys to his new car.

For Mr. Bell, 58-year-old employee of the Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Company, it will mean the first car he's ever owned.

Pests are reported to be even affecting the bean crop on many a Canadian farm. Later on, consumers will attack the beans from the cans.

Speaking of tourists, perhaps you have not heard of the guide in Switzerland who, opening the bus door with a flourish, shouted: "Rhône River glacier to the left, toilet rooms to the right."

It isn't picnic weather. Nevertheless, you might by chance attend one in order to try and believe the story about there having been two ants in the ark.

ONE AFTER ANOTHER!

July is going to be just one ruddy and rousing show after another in Alberta. Saskatchewan will be heard from as well. The excitement will begin Monday, July 6 with the Stampede at Calgary. What next? Edmonton, of course. In that oil slippery metropolis the 75th annual exhibition is to be staged July 13. And then, rounding out the program, Regina's Provincial Fair is to celebrate her golden jubilee on July 27, continuing through to the first of August.

Most coast dwellers know something about these prairie land occasions. That is, a good many can recall, after colorful years, these events that loomed so immense in the more or less lonely existence of early homesteaders. They see a lot and enjoy variety, as well as meeting and chatting with multitudes they might never have met. Everybody goes back to the job, refreshed and better posted.

NOT NOTICEABLE

Now and then we are told Canadian newspapers are on the point of disappearing. It's not necessary to read them, because of the coming of the radio broadcasting and television. We haven't noticed any change. Advertising continues to be sold. Said a big industrialist the other day: "Newspapers are always the big guns of publicity. Other advertising media are only shot guns."

One election is just about settled after fooling around with it twice when another gives the high sign from an easterly direction. First of all there will be the keynote speeches to read, to learn and to inwardly digest.

Women teach their daughters how to attract men, and train their sons in the arts. Of the two tasks the first must be the easier. The girls begin dancing with clothes and singing dolls at a tender age. Teaching them their life's work must be like teaching a child to eat fish.

Little boys begin early to do things apart—a fine apprenticeship, you might say. Those mechanical skills at which men are supposed to excel. Taking things apart. But what about putting them together again?

My son is five months old, and growing fast. All too soon a grubby urchin will come from under a pile of bolts, wheels, pinions, ciphers and springs, and ask me the next move.

"So you don't know how to assemble it again, eh?" I'll ask sternly.

"No."

"Pie on you."

"Show me how, please, daddy."

"All right. First of all, is it a clock or a lawn mower?"

"It's a bicycle."

"A bicycle, eh? Well, I'm a bit of a mechanic at that kind of thing. You know what I have in my mind? It's a telephone book. I'll flip the telephone book open between thumb and forefinger. Look up the number of the Ace Cycle Shop. All that number and ask if they will be all right to take your bicycle in this morning to be fixed."

Any red-blooded father should be able to teach his son to fish. My father failed to teach me, but that wasn't his fault. He is an expert. After a few tries, during which I caught an occasional trout and broke a prized rod, I gave up and began raising white rats instead.

For the last several years I have tried again and again to induce my father to guide me in the art of casting a fly. He always changes the subject.

As a child of six I designed for my parents a chicken-mixing machine, a sticky gadget which at the turn of a crank would stir the wash with only twice the effort it took to stir the stuff with a stick. I received some praise for that effort, but I wasn't encouraged to invent anything else. That may be the reason why I am non-mechanical now.

I used to be fairly good at hitting out of one place of a ball in a cage inside another cage. Perhaps I could teach the boy to whistle a ball in a cage. Rather a limited market for the things, though.

Every time the baby makes one of those advances which are so dear to my wife—turning over in his crib, sitting up for the first time—I am seized with panic, because I cannot see any hope of learning the manly arts in time to teach him.

If my father won't teach me to cast, I look to him to teach his grandson. Then I'll teach the lad to do the chores of the yard, so that I can indulge in my favorite sport, loafing. This last is the manly art that the boy will have to learn for himself.

So you don't know how to assemble it again, eh? I'll ask sternly.

THE HUGE TENT, only slightly smaller than the big top for Ringling Brothers' circus, is raised over the Elizabethan-type amphitheatre at Stratford, Ont., where the Shakespearian Festival will be staged starting July 13. Chinese Writer Visits Canada

WINNIPEG — Mrs. Yen Fu of Taiwan, Formosa, is a slight lively woman who works on two magazines and is also a member of the Chinese Nationalist Legislature in Formosa.

She arrived here during a tour of Canada on a United Nations fellowship, and does not look on her busy career as anything out of the ordinary. In an interview she explained Oriental women are rapidly emerging from the ancient state of bondage to a role of active participation in public affairs.

Mrs. Fu is an editor of a monthly magazine for women which deals with cooking and child care.

She is also on the staff of a publication "Democracy and Constitution" which is often dropped by air to the Chinese mainland.

"We include some western recipes in our women's magazine," said Mrs. Fu. "Chinese women are learning to cook your way with milk and shortening."

Special Opening Service Planned For Church Built by Volunteer Labor

A special opening service will be held at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the Evangelical Free Church, Sixth and Ambrose. The meeting will be conducted by the pastor, Mr. C. W. Sinclair. Guest speaker will be Mr. Nick Goertzen from Terrace.

The Evangelical Free Church was started in a time of religious persecution in Europe and was nurtured by the great spiritual revival at the turn of the century in the United States.

It was just 12 years ago that the first Evangelical Free Church was established in B.C. and since then the work has grown till now there is work in 20 centres throughout the province. The work was former in Prince Rupert in the fall of 1950 under the leadership of Mr. A. Roark, and began to hold services in the home at 415 5th Avenue East.

In April, 1951, they called to the work Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Sinclair, whose home was in White Rock, B.C. Mr. Sinclair was a paratrooper with the Canadian Army during the Second World War, and served 17 months overseas. Both Mr. and Mrs. Sinclair are graduates of the Vancouver Bible Institute.

In November, 1951, the ground due to the increased attendance, moved to the 100F hall on Fourth Avenue East. It was at this time that they acquired the lot on which the church now stands, and when the opportunity arose to move closer to the new location, they moved to the premises formerly occupied by the Hays Cove Hardware in the Poulson Building (Station B).

The church has been built by volunteer labor, and tomorrow evening they will have the opening service, although only the main auditorium is finished at the present time.

Gadgets Diminish Danger Of Fire to Homeowners

By ELENORE LESTER

One of the biggest fears of homeowners is of fire. We are careful 999 times out of 1,000, yet there is always the possibility of a slip on someone's part.

Two new gadgets on the market may greatly reduce that fear. One is a small, lightweight, easy-to-handle extinguisher, recommended especially for use in automobiles and home garages. The other is a small fire alarm box which gives a loud, penetrating warning when set off by excessive heat.

The extinguisher, which sells for only a few dollars, weighs only two-and-a-half pounds. It releases a 25-foot stream, making it possible to apply it to the fire without getting too close.

No extinguisher yet made can be unreservedly recommended as capable of putting out every type of home fire. Water is still best for putting out paper, rubbish and upholstery fires, but for most gasoline, oil and grease fires the new extinguisher can be relied upon when used properly and without delay.

The fire alarm box may be used in any room of the house. It requires no maintenance and uses no current, except when set off by flames or excessive heat. It retails for $12.50 and will soon be available at leading department stores and hardware stores.

The extinguisher is on sale in housewares, hardware and auto accessory stores.

Dinner, Dance Planned For Visiting Yachtsmen

A dinner and dance will be given by the Prince Rupert Yacht Club for visiting yachtsmen at Club 27 next Thursday.

The visitors, who are competing in the second leg of the International predicted log race from Puget Sound to Alaska, are due to arrive at the Yacht Club at 2 p.m.

Joe Scott is in charge of invitations and the reception committee is composed of Commodore Dick Wilson, Joe Scott and Doug Frizzell. Tony Crawley will be in charge of timing.

Fourteen experienced amateur navigators will leave Vancouver to defy weather and tide of British Columbia's inside passage in the second leg of the international race from Puget Sound to Alaska.

The sleek yachts are due here at 2 p.m., July 9—if their masters' calculations have been correct and the vessels have been able to weather the elements.

Winner will be the vessel which comes closest to its predicted running time, based on the vessel's cruising speed. A large silver yacht trophy will be presented to the winner at the dinner.

The dance will be held in the Legion Auditorium beginning at 9:30 p.m.

Ruth Telford Celebrates Ninth Birthday

A junior garden party took place yesterday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Telford in honor of their daughter Ruth's ninth birthday.

The recipient of many gifts, Ruth said the one voted most popular by the children was the complete "Gym Town" given by Mr. and Mrs. Telford which had been set up in the garden for the occasion.

After a good feed of ice cream, sandwiches, candy and birthday cake, the children spent the remainder of the afternoon playing games in the garden.

A welcome guest was the Rev. Lawrence Sieber, who arrived in time to sample the birthday cake.

Other guests included Kenny Telford, Anne Harding, Dorothy Meighan, Barbara Cross, Edith and Lois Evans, Paddy Field and Dale Bartlett.

Archbishop Honored By Queen

LONDON (AP)—Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury, who crowned the Queen June 2, was presented with the Grand Cross of the Royal Victorian Order at a brief investiture in Buckingham Palace.

He was one of 30 officials, courtiers and dignitaries invested by the Queen. All played some part in insuring that the Coronation went without a hitch and each received some grade of the Royal Victorian Order, her personal way of rewarding service to the throne.

Three of the seven recipients of the Grand Cross of the order—which carries a knighthood—also were knighted. Among them was Maj.-Gen. Guy Salisbury-Jones, marshal of the diplomatic corps.

Three others already were knights, and the Archbishop is a Lord Spiritual.

Other awards included a Grand Cross for Sir Harold Scott, police commissioner who masterminded crowd control and traffic arrangements for the Coronation, and Cmdr. Richard Colville, Buckingham Palace press officer, who was made a commander of the order.

Walls Nears Big Time With KO Over Layne

By The Canadian Press

EDMONTON.—Canadian heavyweight champion Earl Walls set himself up as a contender for the world boxing title Friday night, knocking out pudgy Rex Layne of Salt Lake City at 1:03 of the first round in their scheduled 10-round outdoor bout.

The tall, rangy Negro smashed one tremendous right hand from a flurry of infighting square to the jaw. Layne fell like a wet log and didn't twitch as referee Bill Behr of Chicago tolled the count.

The front rows of a crowd of nearly 10,000 surged over collapsing press tables as Walls' hand was raised in victory.

For Walls it was the start of the big time. His promise to bring Edmonton a world title could place the city in line with Toronto and Montreal as a boxing centre.

Walls, 25, stepped into pro ranks from his hometown of Windsor, Ont., and has been fighting out of Edmonton for the last year. Weighing 192, he gave away 14 pounds to Layne, a 6-5 favorite.

His title of Pacific Northwest champion was at stake when he fired his big blow.

"I won that one for Canada," he said in his dressing room. "I hit him with a left hook and a straight right hand."

The blow could be heard clearly over the rioting crowd. It came as Layne, coming out of a crouch, stepped toward Walls, his gloves high.

Layne never saw the glove as it moved, landing on the right cheek to topple him over on his back.

The Mormon Bully Boy, who holds victories over former champions Jersey Joe Walcott and Ezzard Charles, said afterward he expected the loss to move him out of ratings as a ranking contender for the world heavyweight crown.

Layne currently is rated as eighth contender. He picked up 30 per cent of the gate or $10,000, whichever was greater, and a promise of a rematch within 60 days at Salt Lake City. Walls picked up 20 per cent. The take was not announced.

Only a half-dozen blows were landed. Walls came out fighting at the bell, moving in close to score with long left jabs.

Layne stunned Walls with a looping right and smashed a series of short jabs to the Canadian fighter's mid-section, his only solid blows.

Walls won the Canadian title from Bern Escoc in 1952. Most of his wins have come by either first or second round knockouts. He was stopped three times in bouts in the United States.

SPORTS ROUND-UP

By GALE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—It came as a painful experience to the reporters who follow the Yankees to learn that their idol, Casey Stengel, couldn't take it any better than the next manager when his club went into its protracted losing streak.

The boys were stunned when "Ol' Case" slammed the door on them after dropping the first game of the series in Boston and then refused even to talk with them when he finally did emerge. Prior to that, talking had been Casey's strong point.

No pilot in history ever enjoyed a more idolatrous press than Stengel has had in the last four seasons while his Bombers were running roughshod over the American League. It does seem, at that, that he might have taken his first brush with adversity in better grace. Casey's relations with the press may never again be quite the same.

Baseball men are saying that the Ralph Kiner-Hank Sauer combination of Chicago Cubs is the greatest one-two punch baseball has seen since Johnny Mize and Ducky Medwick were banging up on pitchers for St. Louis Cardinals back in 1937.

The comparison is flattering to the Cubs' pair. Medwick hit 374 that year and hammered 31 home runs. Mize's figures were 364 and 25. Pitchers who suffered at the hands of Medwick recall him as the most phenomenal hitter they ever faceted. Anything Ducky could reach, he could hit, and with tremendous power.

Hollywood In Slight Lead

Hollywood is a half game in front Saturday in the Pacific Coast League race after nosing out Sacramento for the fourth straight night, 3-2.

Los Angeles knocked over Seattle in the Rainiers' park, 2-0. The Angels got a masterful pitching performance from Eddie Chandler who had not been able to stick around to the finish in his 13 previous games.

Dale Long's home run over the right field fence in the sixth inning after Tommy Saffell had singled and stolen second was the payoff blow for Hollywood.

San Diego evened its series against San Francisco at two games each by downing the Seals, 8-3. Three Seal errors contributed to their downfall.

Red Adams registered his seventh win of the season as he hurled Portland to a 5-1 decision over Oakland. Red gave seven hits but no two in any one inning after the first.

Martell Sets Tourney Pace

QUEBEC — Veteran Henry Martell of Edmonton Highlands loomed today as a possible threat for the Canadian Professional Golfers Association championship on the strength of a practice-round four-under-par 68.

The tall, smooth-hitting golfer is no stranger to Royal Quebec's broad fairways. He reached the semi-finals of the Canadian amateur championship there in 1947.

Martell's score was the best of Thursday's leisurely rounds by most of the 50-odd entrants whose warm-up was interrupted by a driving late-day rain.

The rain was expected to make the greens lightning fast for a friendly four-ball competition in which professionals will team with amateurs from Quebec district. Forty-seven pro-amateur teams will tee off.

The 54-hole medal play championship, which Pat Fletcher of Saskatoon will defend, starts today with an 18-hole round. Two rounds will be played Sunday.

A dozen or so post-entries arrived to swell the 33-man field announced earlier this week.

The post-entries included Fletcher, Gord Byrdson of Toronto Mississauga, the 1948 champion; Jim Swarbrick of Montreal Marlborough, Bob Cunningham of Toronto, George Harrison of Sudbury and Ray Marshall of Arnprior, Ont.

Fletcher and Stan Leonard of Vancouver, four times winner, arrived Thursday and both shot a one-under-par 34 on the first nine. Leonard took a six on the par-4 first hole but quickly recovered.

Big Trout Near Record

TORONTO — Jack Oldfield of nearby Bolton recently caught a speckled trout in Thor lake, north of Sudbury, which may set a Canadian record for 1953.

The fish, caught with a small red-eye wiggler, weighed 7¼ pounds when weighed by officials of the Ontario department of lands and forests at Capreol, and that was after it had been gutted and gilled. Oldfield estimates it weighed 8½ pounds when caught.

The world record for speckled trout was set in 1915 when Dr. D. Cooke of Fort William pulled one weighing 14½ pounds from the Nipigon river. Last year's largest in Ontario weighed eight pounds, nine ounces. It was caught by Wilfred Laine of Port Arthur in the Nipigon.

Yankees Blank Athletics; Braves Nudge Dodgers

The old baseball legend says the major league teams out in front after today's games will win the pennants, but what's in store for the last-place clubs?

The record books don't hold much hope at all for the cellar-dwelling Detroit Tigers. Things are only slightly brighter for the lowly Pittsburgh Pirates.

Five times in the seven full seasons since the end of the Second World War the American League team in last place on July 4 was still there when it was all over in the fall. The two exceptions were St. Louis Browns of 1949 and 1950 who scrambled up to seventh.

Babe Zaharias Coming Back

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Women golfers who play for pay were given notice today that Babe Didrikson, greatest of them all, is coming back.

Mrs. Zaharias, who recently underwent a cancer operation, said "I'm going to lick this thing" and announced she will play in the Tam O'Shanter tournament to be held in Chicago later in the summer.

The greatest U.S. woman athlete of the century returned to her Tampa home during the week-end an disclosed Thursday that she is playing golf daily to strengthen her legs for the big tournament.

She said she played five holes Tuesday, seven Wednesday and nine Thursday. She carded a 37 for the nine holes she played at the Tampa Golf and Country Club.

Former Champ Seeks Divorce

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mrs. Ethel Catherwood Mitchell, formerly of Saskatoon and 1928 Canadian Olympic champion, Thursday filed suit for divorce from her husband, Byron. She charged extreme cruelty and adultery.

Mrs. Mitchell, 47, won the women's high jump for Canada at the games and was described in accounts of the event as "the most beautiful woman at the 1928 Olympics."

She married Mitchell, a former University of California rowing star, in 1932.

SELF-CONFESSED HEROIN USER SENTENCED

looking through the keyhole he saw a hand at the wash basin holding the eyedropper, a sleeve rolled up on an arm and a right hand resting on a forearm. He also saw the injection equipment re-wrapped in toilet tissue and again hidden behind the wash basin.

When the two men were accosted and taken back to the bathroom he and his fellow constable examined the arms of both men. Arms of both men, he said, showed signs of recent injections.

Cross examined by Recheck, Const. Harrison said he could not identify whose arm he saw at the wash basin.

Testifying under oath for himself, Recheck said that after coming down from Tulsequah where he had been drinking in a beer parlor when he met Paine. They stayed together on the night of June 23, he had met Paine again in a beer parlor and had returned to Paine's room. Paine left, and after a short time Recheck left the room to go to the bathroom. Outside the door he met Paine and they entered the bathroom together.

TOOK TWO SHOTS
"When I was ready to leave," he told the court, "Paine stuck his hand under the wash basin and produced the paraphenalia. I knew what he was going to do and said, 'Oh, oh. Let me out of here.' Paine said don't open the door. This won't take a minute. Paine took two shots and then put the stuff away. I was only let out of prison in April after a drug conviction and I had kept off the stuff and wanted to stay off it," Recheck said.

Recheck told the court that the marks on his arm were the result of a blood test he had taken in Ketchikan while on his way down to Prince Rupert from Tulsequah. The doctor up there had made two marks, he said. He asserted that he hadn't taken drugs since he left prison and had come north to get away from the temptation in Vancouver.

During cross examination by Mr. Brown, Recheck said that he didn't hold a match for Paine to heat the capsule or anything. He just watched.

Brought back into court to testify on Recheck's behalf, George Paine spoke swiftly and freely. Describing the incident in the bathroom of his hotel he said that when Recheck wanted to leave he asked him not to open the door.

"I told him to wait," Paine said. "I took one half of the 'cap' and waited for it to 'hit me.' Then I took the other half."

Under cross examination Paine said that he didn't offer Recheck a 'fix.'

OWNED PARAPHENALIA
"During the day I had found out that he was 'off the stuff,'" Paine told the court. "I told him that I was wired and that I was going to have a fix later. I told the police that night that the paraphenalia was my outfit and that Recheck didn't have a fix. It was bad enough for me to 'be on it' without getting him started again."

Brought to the witness stand again by the prosecution in rebuttal, Const. Jensen stated that there was no doubt in his mind that the marks on the arms of both men were caused by recent injections. He said that Paine had told him that the paraphenalia was his but considered that he was merely trying to protect Recheck.

Asked if he had anything further to say, Recheck told Magistrate Vance that he didn't know what the outcome of the case would be but the court knew he had had quite a battle on his hands.

"I have the satisfaction of knowing," he told the bench, "that since I left prison I have been able to keep away from drugs and but for this incident I would have been back at my job at the mine and away from it for good."

NO ALTERNATIVE
In summing up, Magistrate Vance said that he had no alternative but to accept the evidence of Const. Jensen who was an expert on narcotics matters. He said he couldn't agree with Recheck's story about the blood test and that if he had wanted to get away from the drug habit he would have left the bathroom instead of standing and watching Paine take a 'fix.' He found Recheck guilty as charged.

After Paine had been sentenced he told court that he had led a terrible life since he had first taken to the drug habit. He said that one friend had felt that there was still something worthwhile in him and had been trying to arrange for him to go to a sanatorium where he could be cured.

Later, he said, a newspaperman had befriended him and had also hoped to help him get off the drug habit.

"However," he said with a wry smile, "before any of this could happen, Const. Jensen appeared on the scene."

After Const. Evans had testified in regards to the break-in at the tobacco store, Paine told the court he had to steal to keep up the drug habit. He refused to state where he bought the heroin capsules but admitted that one cost about $25. Told that the stolen articles from the tobacco store were valued at $183 he said that he "had peddled the stuff wherever he could for about $25." He pleaded guilty to the breaking and entering charge.

It was then that Paine Magistrate Vance if he consent to the B.C. Penitentiary "They have set up a system cure guys," Payne said. "I to get off the habit and my only chance. They nothing at Oakalla," he bitterly.

Secreds Also Propose Tax Reduction Program in Canada

TORONTO (CP)—Solon Low, national leader of the Social Credit party, has proposed a program of tax reduction in Canada, accompanied by financial reform.

In a speech over the Trans-Canada network of the CBC, he said a Social Credit government would:

- Abolish "those hidden taxes which result in pyramiding consumer prices."
- Abolish all present sales tax except the two per cent which supports old age pensions.
- Further reduce personal income taxes and increase present exemptions.

ent production of the goods required by the people;

"Proper safeguards against inflation and deflation; reduction of basic interest rates; lower down payment and interest rate for home builders.

Mr. Low said the $500,000,000 tax reduction proposed by Opposition Leader Drew "is quite possible and practical," but "it cannot all be accomplished by orthodox means, which Mr. Drew would propose to use, without reducing some of the present services or impairing the defence effort.

"Mr. Drew would discover numerous places where savings of the taxpayers' money could be effected, because the Liberal government has been notoriously loose and wasteful in its management and housekeeping. "But it takes a great many of such specific savings to make up $500,000,000. Consequently, if the Conservatives were to be able to keep their promise, they would have to turn to the substantial use of unorthodox means to do it.

"We Social Crediters can show him and the government exactly how, by wise management and through our Social Credit financial proposals to reduce taxes by $500,000,000 a year without in any way reducing present social security payments or essential services, or in any way impairing the efficiency of the defence effort. The government knows that this is so."

Further, a Social Credit government would "adopt and follow scrupulously" a financial policy which would provide for: "A national monetary authority which will exercise full control over the issue of money and credit under a specific policy laid down by Parliament; "Issue of money at the rate necessary to insure continued expansion of production and consumption; "Credit on suitable and reasonable terms to agriculture and industry to finance efficient production of the goods required by the people;

The program, he said, is designed to effect an immediate reduction in the cost of living of not less than 15 per cent; to encourage productive effort towards maintaining a high gross national production; and to stimulate the growth among Canadian people of a strong spirit of independence.

Taft Expects House to Reject Ike's Foreign Relief Request

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Taft (Rep. Ohio) said today he expects Congress to reject President Eisenhower's request for blanket authority to send government-held farm surpluses to friendly foreign nations.

"I don't think there will be any such general authority given," the Senate Republican leader said in an interview. "The agricultural people are against it. They have their own ideas on handling these surpluses. There are many proposals."

And Taft hinted the White House request may have been an effort to separate the farm surplus problem from the $5-318,000,000 foreign aid bill passed by the Senate last Wednesday.

Eisenhower asked broad authority to use government-held farm products for famine or other emergency relief to foreign nations during the next two years.

He asked the right to fix terms—gift or sale—with the treasury paying the costs, including delivery, and said this should be separated from the long range military and economic assistance program of the Mutual Security Administration.

Republican chairmen of the Senate and House Agriculture Committee promised to hold early hearings on the White House request, but tentative plans to adjourn Congress July 31 and powerful opposition to the proposal indicate slight chance for its approval.

Democrats blasted the Eisenhower request as a "blank check" and "give away" of more than $3,000,000,000 worth of farm commodities now held by the government under its price-support program.

Senator William Knowland (Rep. Calif.), who has been acting as floor leader while Taft is recovering from a hip ailment, defended the president's request but opposed adding it to the foreign aid bill.

Knowland said Eisenhower expected Congress to write in "proper limitations" and would use the requested authority only for emergencies.

The Faraday Society was founded in London in 1903 to perpetuate the name of Michael Faraday, electrical scientist.

Farmers Hard Hit by Flood In Manitoba

DAUPHIN, Man. (C)—Federal and provincial governments are being asked to investigate the plight of farmers in northwestern Manitoba, hard hit by flooding streams flowing from rain-drenched Riding mountain, Duck mountain and Porcupine mountain.

The Manitoba Farmers' Union in a published statement said farmers in the area have suffered more from the floods than the victims of the Red river flood of 1950.

The MFU said the situation is worst north of Swan River and west of Riding mountain. Water rushing across the farms have left gullies as much as 14 feet deep.

W. J. Ward, federal member of Parliament for Dauphin, said a survey showed one-half the farmers had been able to sow only 10 per cent of their crops.

He said most of that will not be harvested because it is under water.

Two Losers Pass the Buck In Mishandling of Bid

When a bad result occurs and Mr. Muzzy is in the game, it is automatically considered to be his fault. And it usually is.

In today's deal, however, Mr. Heinsite, the brilliant "post season" analyst, overlooked the fact that he himself could have done something to avert disaster.

Against the five-club contract Mr. Champion led the king of spades. Mr. Heinsite won in his own hand with the ace, discarding a diamond from the board.

He led the deuce of spades, ruffed it and returned a trump. Mrs. Keen played the eight, and the 10 in the closed hand won. Very fine, except that there was no further entry to dummy and Mr. Heinsite was forced to give up two trump tricks and a heart trick for down one.

He fixed a wicked eye on Mr. Muzzy. "May I inquire," he said with mock politeness, "how you found two bids on that collection of trash? I admit you had a void suit and four trumps which, incidentally, were so small they should have been thrown back. But why not let the four-spade bid come around to me? I'd double and I had four defensive tricks in my own hand."

Mr. Muzzy was silent and Mr. Heinsite continued. "And besides," he said, "hearts was our spot. But you never gave us a chance to get into it."

Here Mr. Champion entered the picture. "And may I inquire," he sneered, "why you didn't make five clubs on the hand? What good did it do you to throw a diamond from dummy at the first trick? Just ruff in dummy and take the club finesse. Then ruff your ace of spades in dummy and lead another trump."

"That way, you get to lead clubs twice from the board and all you lose is a club and a heart. You can't make five hearts because my partner could win a club and a trump trick and I could ruff a club." "Exactly what I was going to say," lied Mr. Muzzy.
