65,000,000 Dollar Pulp Mill in Arrow Lake District

Two Thousand Men to be Employed From New Industry at Castlegar

VICTORIA (Special to Daily News)—Application for a forest management license on the Columbia River watershed south of the Big Bend has been received from Celar Development Co. Ltd., Hon. E. T. Kenney, minister of lands and forests, announced today.

The company, a division of Celanese Corporation of America, will start at an early date on construction of a $65 million project to provide for complete utilization of the forest resources in the area if the license is approved, Mr. Kenney said.

Present plans call for the construction near Castlegar of a kraft mill that will produce 400 tons of bleached and semi-bleached sulphate pulp daily, and a ground wood mill with a daily capacity of 275 tons of newsprint.

Plans for the addition of a plywood mill are under consideration and will be completed if sufficient peeler stock is found to make such a plant economically sound.

Also under consideration is the construction of a board mill to utilize waste from the pulp and sawmill operations.

Studies are being made to determine the feasibility of recovering tannic acid from the hemlock bark that would otherwise be wasted.

"The project," Mr. Kenney said, "would provide for the fullest possible utilization of our forest resources in the Arrow Lake and Columbia River districts."

"Low grade logs that are now left in the woods because there is no market for them will be used in the pulp operation. Where it is feasible the company also proposes to place barking and chipping facilities at strategic points in the area to utilize the slabs and edgings that are now part of the sawmill waste. These materials would be shipped as chips to the kraft mill to be manufactured into pulp."

"Cutting of timber on the forest management license for which the company is applying would be restricted to a volume that will not exceed the annual growth in the license area, there by assuring a continuous forest operation for the district.

"Logging and reforestation work to be done by the Celar Development Co. Ltd., would be supervised by the provincial forest service to guarantee an adequate program of conservation."

MILL SITE PURCHASED

"Subject to approval of the forest management license application, the company has arranged for the purchase of a 500-acre plant site on the Columbia River directly west of West Robson and three miles west of Castlegar. The site, with nearly three miles of frontage on the river, is already served by the Kettle Valley branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway."

"The mills at Castlegar, when completed, would provide employment for approximately 1000 men, and 1200 more would be engaged in logging and sawmill operations on the Arrow Lakes and upper Columbia River."

"In the license application, both the Celar Development Co. Ltd. and the provincial forest service are giving fullest consideration to the small operators at present working in the area. It is anticipated that the demand for low grade logs and sawmill waste that will be created by the pulp plants will substantially benefit both logging and mill operators."

"Celanese Corporation of America, through its original British Columbia affiliate, Columbia Cellulose Co. Ltd., already holds forest management license No. 1 in the Skeena and Naas watersheds and in four years of company operations in the Terrace districts the small operators have found that their position has improved materially."

"The proposed management license covers unreserved timber lands on the watersheds of the lower and upper Arrow Lakes and on the Columbia River from Arrowhead to Mica Creek, except for those areas reserved for existing operations."

Much of the total area in the watersheds is non-productive for forestry purposes.

Statement By Blancke

NEW YORK (Special to Daily News)—Plans of the Celar Development Co. Ltd. for an integrated forest industry in the Arrow Lakes district constitute the third phase of Canadian development program launched by Celanese Corporation of America four years ago, said Harold Blancke, president of Celar Development Co. Ltd., in a statement here today.

Since 1947, two of the company's Canadian affiliates, Columbia Cellulose Co. Ltd. and Canadian Chemical Co. Ltd. have committed more than $90 million for the construction of a high alpha cellulose mill at Prince Rupert and a petro chemical and cellulose acetate plant at Edmonton.

The Columbia Cellulose mill, completed last May, is now being enlarged. Construction of the Canadian Chemical plant at Edmonton was started in July, 1951, and will be completed this year.

Estimated cost of the Arrow Lakes development is $65 million but this amount may be increased by the addition of plywood and board mills.

EMPLOYMENT POLICY

The policies of the company adopted at Prince Rupert and Edmonton of employing Canadians wherever possible in the operations, of financing the construction in Canada, and of purchasing materials, equipment and supplies in Canada when they can be procured there, will be followed at Castlegar, Mr. Blancke said.

"The Canadian program of Celanese Corporation of America has been predicted on our belief that this country presents an unparalleled opportunity for growth and that we can expect to share in that growth only to the extent that we contribute to it," Mr. Blancke said.

"We propose to continue these contributions in the form of capital, industrial experience and technical skill."

"The conservation policies of the national and provincial governments in Canada have been a vital factor in our decision to develop a major industrial organization in this country."

"The capital cost of new plant construction today demands the assurance of an operation that can look forward to many years of production and the life of any producing unit is controlled by the supply of raw materials."

"The forest management program of the British Columbia government is of the greatest significance in our plans for the Arrow Lakes development. It is equally important to the 2,000 men and women we expect to employ in our mill and logging operations. It is their assurance—and ours—that the chief materials necessary for production will be available indefinitely. The expectation of permanent employment that is linked with the forest conservation plan will encourage expansion and new projects in the towns in the license area."

"Wherever possible, the products of the proposed mills will be sold in Canada for consumption, or further processing," said Mr. Blancke. "The remainder of the output will be sold on the export market, thereby aiding the campaign to strengthen Canada's position in the field of international exchange."

British Ship Now Released

HONG KONG (CP)—The British freighter Talkinshan arrived Tuesday from Formosa after 6½ months' detention by Nationalist Chinese authorities as an alleged blockade runner.

The ship's acting chief officer, Chu Weng-Ching, is still in Formosa. It is not known whether he is detained by Nationalists or remained behind voluntarily.

They decided, instead, to call a full-scale general convention before June 30.

Woman Hunting Victim

Mrs. Dell Slater, Formerly of Trail, Killed South of Burns Lake

Mrs. Dell Slater, aged 35, formerly of Trail and for the past eight months residing at Tatalross, across Francois Lake and 52 miles south of Burns Lake, is dead, the victim of accidental shooting while hunting coyotes, according to information received at divisional headquarters of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police here.

Mrs. Slater had left at 2 p.m. Sunday afternoon and, when she failed to return in the evening, search was started. At 11 p.m. she was found dead. The gun, beside her, had evidently discharged while she was endeavoring to climb over a windfall.

It is believed that death had occurred a few hours after the actual shooting through the abdomen.

Coroner Gregg White of Burns Lake found accidental death.

Churchill And Truman Meet

WASHINGTON, D.C.—President Truman and Prime Minister Churchill met again today at the White House but still no official announcement was made as deliberations took place behind locked doors.

Railway Clear—Highway Closed

Six inches of snow which fell since yesterday on the railway line between Terrace and Tye had been ploughed away and "everything is fine," Superintendent C. A. Berner stated this morning. Last evening's train for the East moved out without delay and the train from the East is due on time at 10:05 tonight.

Meantime, the highway between Prince Rupert and Terrace has been closed for two days while the public works department equipment struggles to keep ahead in the battle with the snow which has not, as yet, reached such serious depths as has closed the road by mid-January in past years. Hope is expressed that the department will be able to keep the road open throughout this winter. If so, it will be the first time it has been kept open all winter. The present two-day closure is in the hope that guarantee may be given later that traffic can get through.

Yesterday a public works grader became stuck near Exstew and held up road traffic, including the CNR bus, for several hours.

WEATHER

Synopsis

Overnight freezing which followed yesterday's fresh fall of wet snow in the lower mainland of British Columbia produced hazardous driving conditions in many areas. Interior temperatures ranged from the low twenties in the southern valleys to 5 to 10 above in the central interior and 20 to 30 below in the extreme northern limits of the province.

An intense storm is approaching the northern coast. Gale warnings have been issued for the waters near the Queen Charlotte and northern Vancouver Island about midday. Strong winds will develop along the west coast this evening.

Gale Warning

North coast region—Gale warning issued.

Cloudy today and tomorrow. Mixed rain and snow in the northern area, spreading to the southern area this afternoon. Snow showers tomorrow. Little change in temperature. Winds—southeast, 30, increasing to 45 to 55 during the forenoon, then shifting to westerly, 40, this evening. Winds—northwest, 20, tomorrow. Lows tonight and highs tomorrow—at Port Hardy, 32 and 38; Sandspit, 28 and 35; Prince Rupert, 30 and 35.

Sleeping Car Rates Hiked

MONTREAL (CP)—Increases in minimum fares for standard and tourist sleeping car accommodation between points in Canada, effective January 10, were announced Monday by J. A. Brass, chairman of the Canadian Passenger Association.

The announcement said the Canadian railways and Pullman Company found the increases necessary because of high cost of operation.

The minimum fare for standard berth accommodation will be advanced from $3 to $4 and for tourist lower berth accommodation from $2 to $2.70, with corresponding advances in minimum charges for other units of sleeping car space.

Fares for distances beyond the minimum fare are to remain unchanged.

Aldermanic By-Election January 31

Resignation of T. Norton Youngs and W. Allan Armstrong as aldermen following their qualifications being questioned because they had shared in commissions on city insurance business were accepted by the city council Monday night.

Youngs and Armstrong had been elected at the recent civic election.

By-election date was set for January 31 with nominations January 24.

Both Youngs and Armstrong have indicated that they will relinquish their connection with the insurance company concerned and stand for election again.

All's Well With Skiers

Mrs. Jessie Marshall and Jordan Smith, local youth, were safe and comfortable at their homes in Prince Rupert Monday night, after the worst of being lost overnight Sunday on the skiing fields of Mount Hays, back of the city.

Search for three lost skiers ended Monday morning at 10:30 when Mrs. Marshall and 17-year-old Smith were found only 1000 yards from search headquarters, the Department of Transport FM station on Mt. Hays.

Searchers Foster Husky, Larry "Lawson" and Jack Brien had covered the area the previous night and had come within a few hundred yards of where the two had dug in under a windfall. The other in the lost trio, Stan Wilkins, had been reported safe earlier 10 miles away at Watson Island.

The woman and youth, although weatherbeaten, damp, shivering and hungry after spending 20 hours without food on a blizzard mountain slope, were in good condition physically. Only food their rescuers, Harold Fidsvik and Neil Forman, had was an orange. This the two ate. (Continued on Page 5)

Million Dollar Fire in Quebec

SEPT. ILES, Quebec (CP)—A $1,000,000 fire left the centre of this booming iron ore frontier town on the north shore of the St. Lawrence River a gutted wreck today.

There was no loss of life. For a time it appeared that the town, centre of Ungava iron development, was feared doomed. The fire started in a garage, destroying $25,000 stock of tires, and then spread to other business buildings before it was brought under control.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

It was bumper attendance at the annual meeting of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce last night—some sixty members. Guests included Capt. William Kougham, harbor master, and Geoff Hill, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Three new members were admitted—Douglas W. Soutar, general manager here of the B. C. Packers; Alistair Frazer, barrister, and James E. Taylor, new manager of the Royal Bank of Canada.

Terrace and District Board of Trade has invited the local Chamber to send one of its executive members to Terrace to be guest speaker at the annual meeting there January 23. J. T. Harvey was asked to go but stated that it would be impossible. The new president, T. Norton Youngs, will name a delegate.

The Chamber will apply for membership in the newly formed British Columbia Chamber of Commerce. It will cost $12 to join.

Payment of $30 due the council of British Columbia Associated Boards of Trade, now being wound up, was approved at last night's local Chamber meeting.

A letter from Hon. Douglas Abbott, minister of finance, gave formal notice of the winding up of the Foreign Exchange Control.

The Chamber was not much interested in a communication from the Natural Resources League of British Columbia, an organization designed to "safeguard" natural resources such as natural park areas. It would cost $1 to join. The communication was filed.

The British Columbia Transportation Bureau advised the Chamber that express companies could not be held responsible for losses and damage due to weather conditions.

J. T. Harvey or W. J. Scott may represent the annual meeting of the Tourist and Travel Bureau in Vancouver March 28.

Instead of a brickbat, the provincial Department of Public Works is to receive a bouquet from the Prince Rupert Chamber. Appreciation will be expressed to the department on its effort to keep Highway 16 open during the winter between Prince Rupert and Terrace.

Hugo Kraupner told the meeting that he would be going to Vancouver next week to attend a meeting of the British Columbia Automobile Association. He would be glad to take along any representations from the Chamber in regard to Highway 16.

The financial report of the Chamber for 1951 showed revenue exceeding expenditures by $286.78. Assets included $111.01 cash on hand in the bank and $100 due from the city. A vote of thanks was passed to the auditors.

Prince Rupert People May Develop Fine Arts

A chance may soon come to talented Prince Rupert young people to be heard at no cost to themselves by some of the greatest names in cultural and fine arts and by audiences of 10,000 people or more. And if a plan, soon to be presented to city organizations, is accepted, a lot more local talent may be cultivated here.

At the coming annual general meeting of the Civic Centre Association, Director Jack Stirn will present the plan to form a Sir Ernest MacMillan Fine Arts Club here, to be affiliated with the original club in Vancouver.

Through this medium, says Mr. Stirn, any talented person who has passed elimination contests here, will be able to appear at the MacMillan Club Festivals, held several times a year in Vancouver.

The annual Malkin Bowl Rally, for instance, held in June in Stanley Park, draws more than 10,000 spectators, while future acting talent for Theatre Under the Stars will be among winners in the annual drama rally.

In Prince Rupert, a MacMillan Club of Fine Arts could be sponsored by city organizations much the same way as it is done in Vancouver, only on a smaller scale. Several talent contests and concerts could be held a year and the top talent enlisted to enter the main contests in Vancouver.

Bus Skids—Kids Walk to School

With occasional light wind-driven snows falling on icy streets and sidewalks, traffic conditions became even more hazardous in Prince Rupert today but, up to noon, as far as police reports were concerned, there had been no serious mishaps.

Cars were skidding and going off the streets in various parts of the city. At the end of Westview, a school bus slipped off the street while rounding the sharp corner off Vanarsdol Street into Atlin Avenue and was left with the front high in the air. Children in the bus, unhurt, left the vehicle and proceeded to walk to school.

Prince Rupert Shoreworkers' Local of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union met last night to formulate wage proposals for the 1952 agreement and delegated R. L. These delegates will join Tom Parkin, northern representative of the Union, who is already in the south on union business.

It is not likely the actual wage demands will be made public until they have been placed in the hands of the operators, although it is common knowledge that the Union feels a substantial increase is necessary this year in view of the rise in the cost of living. This view was expressed strongly at last night's meeting.

DISPRIN
in the RELIEF OF PAIN...
Science progresses... for 50 years we have used little white tablets—acetylsalicylic acid—for relief of pain. Today this familiar pain killer is available in a new form without the disadvantages of acidity, insolubility and bitter taste. It is called DISPRIN and is sold at drugists everywhere.
DISPRIN is soluble and substantially neutral. When taken in water as recommended, it enters the stomach as a true solution and not as undissolved particles. It is therefore less liable to cause stomach discomfort. DISPRIN is readily absorbed. Because it definitely dissolves (not merely disintegrates) DISPRIN permits speedy absorption and gives quicker relief. DISPRIN is painless. Even children will take it readily.

Anscomb Delivers "Political" Talk—Coalition Remains.

VICTORIA.—"The present arrangement with the Liberal Party for the life of this parliament still remains—and will remain until some problem or the other develops or, by the passage of time, the agreement expires," Hon. Herbert Anscomb, minister of finance and Progressive Conservative leader in British Columbia, said in an admittedly political address last night.

"That does not mean, in any sense of the word, that the Conservative Party, as such, is not an extremely active force in the life of the political thought of the Province, or that there is the remotest chance of it not taking an extremely active part in the future. As a matter of fact, it is very likely—certainly within the realms of possibility—that at the expiration of the present arrangement the two parties (Conservatives and Liberals) may be contesting the Provincial election under their own political banner, in which case the Conservative Party will be in the forefront of that political battle.

While there could not have been a Coalition had it not been for the Conservative Party in the first place being willing to sink its identity for the good of British Columbia, Mr. Anscomb said he had always taken the view that, despite the coalition, both political parties should keep their organizations healthy and active, and he had made every effort during the last five years or so to see that his party's associations were not only active, alive and vigorous, but that they expand in every section of the Province.

In doing that, it had been without any desire or intent to damage the coalition in any way—but it had been done, not only to strengthen the Conservative Party, but to strengthen the Coalition because, unless both parties were strong in the coalition, there could not have been an effective coalition. "Anybody who understands politics at all will realize the weak would be swallowed up by the strong and our Party had no intention of being swallowed by anybody and we do not propose to let that condition prevail at any time in the future."

DIFFICULT POSITION
"Now let me go further than that," Mr. Anscomb continued, "and say our position in the coalition has sometimes been rather difficult. Many things have come up and been dealt with that have not necessarily received our support in the ordinary sense of the political life of the country; but in a coalition we recognize our responsibility as a democratic force and have

Prince Rupert's Progress in 1951 Called only Forerunner

Important events which had taken place in the year 1951 and many plans which had come to fruition such as the Columbia Cellulose mill at Prince Rupert and the Aluminum Co. of Canada hydro-electric and smelter projects were only the prelude to other vast developments which might be expected as factors contributing to the well-being, growth and progress of Northern British Columbia and Prince Rupert in particular, suggested J. G. Gilker in his annual report as he retired last night as President of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce.

"We, in the North, are only standing on the threshold of an era just beginning," said Mr. Gilker. "We must, of necessity, change our ways. No longer may we, in Prince Rupert, consider ourselves neglected, forgotten, a small town. To qualify ourselves for the heritage which is now ours, we must grow, and grow fast, in civic, provincial, Dominion and, particularly, in Chamber affairs as they affect us as a group or individuals.

"May I exhort each and every one to guard carefully and exercise judiciously your rights as Canadians. Under no circumstance, relinquish to any one, be it this body, an individual, or a governing body, your prerogative by vote or voice. The majority shall decide how our natural resources may be used, our liberties preserved, and this Canada of our retain unchanged the freedom and opportunities we now enjoy."

While these new developments were going on, the old established and basic industries of the area had again produced abundantly during the year, contributing greatly to the city's prosperity.

For the fisheries, Mr. Gilker reported halibut landings in excess of 18,000,000 pounds during the year while 1,955,474 cases of salmon had been packed in the district. The salmon fishing had been good, particularly cohoes, Herring and miscellaneous fisheries were excellent.

Notable expansion in the fishing industry was seen during the year in the installation and operation of a modern new salmon cannery by Canadian Fishing Co., an edible fish meal and oil plant, as well as salmon cannery by B.C. Packers, and erection of cold storage and processing plant by Royal Fish Co. Other plants had been renovated and modernized and, as a result of all these additions, payrolls had been increased, more people were employed and all utilities and businesses of the city had benefited.

For the forest industry, Mr. Gilker reported that 241,038,300 board feet of logs had been produced in the coast area and 157,000,000 board feet in the interior.

Mention was also made by Mr. Gilker of the new High and elementary school buildings which had been completed and opened, school attendance having reached approximately 1400 pupils, the highest in the city's history.

CHAMBER ACTIVITY
As for Chamber activities, Mr. Gilker cited the campaigns for daily train service, utilization of the grain elevator, keeping of Highway 16 open during the winter, freight rates, industrial development, aviation, port services, communications, traffic safety, radio, highways and air field.

Outstanding events in which the Chamber had participated included the convention of the Associated Boards of Trade of Central British Columbia, the opening of the Columbia Cellulose mill and the visit of the Lieutenant-Governor.

The Chamber had been represented at the conventions of Canadian Chamber of Commerce in Quebec, Tourist Council, the Highway and Tourist Association and British Columbia Chamber of Commerce in Vancouver and Aviation Council of British Columbia at Harrison Hot Springs.

Membership of the Chamber now stood at 126, thirteen new members having joined during the year. Ten regular meetings had been held during the year, seven council meetings, one special meeting and innumerable committee sessions.

CONGRATULATED
The presidential report drew congratulatory comment from J. T. Harvey. Very substantial success of the Chamber during the year had been due to Mr. Gilker's guidance, Mr. Harvey proposed a vote of appreciation which was passed with enthusiasm.

Mr. Gilker thanked officers, executive, committees and membership generally for their support.

PERFECT MOMENT was this one as spectators and team members wait the result of this shot by Challengers' Joe Davis (33). The point was much needed in the close deciding game last Thursday between Vancouver Ellers and Prince Rupert all-star Challengers. That's Ellers' coach Jim Bardsley (66) ready for the rebound.

PERFECT SHOT left the palm of Mickey Webster (00) who guided his way past Captain Reid Mitchell's heavy checking the last few minutes of last Thursday's game between Vancouver Ellers and Prince Rupert Challengers in a three-game basketball series. Rupert's Ray Spring (11) waits, ready for action.

Ski Heil

By MARNIE BULGER

Due to the recent near tragedy when three skiers got lost on Mt. Hays Sunday, new rules have been adopted. Also, this department suggests that non-ski club members and others not familiar with the Mt. Hays terrain stick close to ski trails—especially in stormy weather.

Commencing next week-end, all skiers will be asked to sign in at the FM station, make a note of the set curfew and sign out when leaving the hill.

Sunday night ten members who had descended the mountain earlier left their homes as most were sitting down to dinner to climb the hill, heading into the howling darkness.

Many expressions were read from the faces of some—"I'm not a good enough skier to be skiing in the daylight in this weather—" "THEY MUST BE FOUND."

That is a spirit which is common among all skiers, and we're proud of it.

Special thanks go to the FM boys, the Eldsvik brothers, Duncan McRae, Foster Husoy, Jack and Don Eby and Andy Marshall who so capably organized the search. Thanks also to the RCMP and QCA, who organized a plane search and were ready to take off when the last two skiers were reported safe.

Here's hoping for a safe, week-end coming up. The rules will be placed in the main ski lodge and at the FM station and should be followed.

Following were the searchers of the rescue party:

Harold, Odd, Foster, Leiv, Howard, Ted, Larry, Monk, Ed Dawes, Jack Breen, Dunc McRae, Don Eby, Joe Gallant, John Fredheim and son, Alan, Bob Eby, Jack Eby and Andy Marshall.

President George Mostad has played his annual prank on us again—he's left town, but this time left quietly, without even saying "So Long." He didn't even wait for the presentation.

Why Didn't Athletics Do Better?

NEW YORK—An innocent bystander could hardly be blamed for thinking there had been a prominent optical illusion in the American League during the now almost forgotten 1951 pennant race.

Consider, for instance, the case of the Philadelphia Athletics.

The Athletics, now managed by Jimmy Dykes, finished a disappointing sixth in the championship standing, 28 full games in back of the pennant-winning Yankees. Dykes even came home 11 contests away from the first division, or the money half, of the race.

FAIN IN FRONT

Yet, the A's had the leading individual batter in the league in Ferris Fain; it had the home run and runs-batted-in champ in big Gus Zernial, and now we hear they were right up there in fielding, tied with Cleveland for the team leadership of their company.

What happened? One had better ask Dykes, and perhaps even he cannot tell.

At any rate, the Athletics finished with a fine .978 fielding average, according to official statistics just released, the exact mark of the Indians. This figure, by the way, was a large three points under the leading mark of 1950, posted jointly by the Red Sox and Tigers.

The A's also set the double play pace, piling up the impressive total of 204 in 154 games. No other club got over the 200 mark. The Yankees, who won the pennant and then defeated the Giants in the World Series, were second in the double play column with 190, and tied for fourth place in team fielding with the White Sox. The team double play record was set by the 1949 A's at 217.

VERNON BEST

Mickey Vernon of Washington was the best fielding first baseman at .994, a figure equalled by Yankee Johnny Mize, who appeared in just 93 games. Vernon was in 137.

Pete Suder, Athletics, was high at the second base position, doing .987 to edge out Bobby Avila, hustling little second sacker of the Indians.

The leading third baseman, of course, was the veteran George Kell, who manages to corner the market at his spot year after year. George did .960 for 147 engagements, two points better than Cleveland's Al Rosen.

Chico Carrasquel, the big South American, gave the White Sox the top spot at shortstop, edging Eddie Joost of the Athletics by a single percentage point, .975 to .974. Phil Rizzuto, Yankees, was third on the list.

HONORS SHARED

Three players shared defensive honors in the outfield. Johnny Groth, Tigers; Sam Mele, Senators, and Gene Woodling, Yankees, all finished at the .993 level. Barney McCosky had a perfect average, but played in only 23 games.

Jim Hegan, who appeared in the good total of 129 games for the Indians, was tops among catchers with a .991 figure. Yogi Berra of the Yankees beat him out for the workhorse role, however, getting into 141 contests. Berra also participated in the fine total of 25 double plays. To give you an idea of how good this is, Hegan was in only eight.

Seventeen pitchers in the American League had perfect fielding marks (.1000), with Sandy Consuegra of Washington of that group handling the most chances, 36 in 40 games. But Detroit's Dizzy Trout handled 66 chances with but one error, for a .985 mark, while Bob Lemon of the Indians handled 83 chances around the mound, most for any hurler, and committed only two errors for a .976 figure.

Local Students Take Visiting Alaska Team

Starting with a heavy lead at the second half, Bo-Me-Hi Rainmakers hung on to eight points to win the first of a two-game hoop series with visiting Wrangell Wolves last night, 44-36.

But it took a lot of playing by the local students to ward off a redoubled rally by the Alaskans in the last quarter which featured Wrangell's Maxand and Gunderson who made 29 of their team's points.

High scorer was Gunderson with 15, followed by Maxand, one point less.

In the first half, Rainmakers outshot and outplayed Wolves to the tune of 32-16 at half time. The visitors appeared nervous and unsettled at the beginning and couldn't get started.

Rainmakers were supported largely by Tait, high man with 14 points; Nickerson and Letourneau.

The second game will be played tonight.

Last night Fred Calderoni came out of retirement to call the fouls with Ole Slatta. These two experienced men kept the game well under control.

Rainmakers—Morrison 3, Nickerson 9, Tait 14, Young, Clarke, Ciccone 3, Letourneau 10, McKay, Watson 3, Sather.

Wrangell—Maxand 14, Jenkins, Miller 1, Gunderson 15, Schwartz 2, Bradley, Casey, Ferguson 2, French 3, T. Ferguson.

peel and all. They were exhausted but able to move.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Marshall's husband, Andy, and five others were heading down the opposite side of Mt. Hays following several old ski tracks in hopes of finding the two. This was where Wilkins had left the two to head out alone for safety at about 6 p.m. Sunday.

At 6 a.m. Monday he emerged, exhausted, bruised and beaten at Watson Island, near Columbia Cellulose pulp mill. He had trekked and zig-zagged over 15 miles of the toughest ski territory in the country in darkness of a blizzard night. His trail was followed by two three-man parties of searchers who hoped to run into trace of Mrs. Marshall and young Smith.

FRIGHTFUL EXPERIENCE

Wilkins said today he had had "a frightful experience."

"Several times I was close to tumbling over cliffs hundreds of feet down. I was soaked and moved only by instinct." He had on only a thin shirt and ski pants.

He followed a canyon-faced stream through a ravine, zig-zagging from one side to the other. The party which followed the trail Monday left the main ski slope at 9:30 a.m. and did not reach the end until 4:30 p.m. The men included Andy Marshall, Odd Eldsvik and Bill Sunberg; John Friedheim, his son Allan and newsmen Larry Sunwood.

Marshall, Eldsvik, Sunberg and Stanwood had been searching since 7:30 the previous evening with only three hours of rest.

RESCUER RESCUED

When the rescuers finally came out of the rock-stream and ravine cut territory they found Stanwood missing. After waiting until darkness, they backtracked to look for the missing rescuer. They found him at 9 p.m. on the trail. He had broken both skis with a headlong lunge into a stream and had trudged through waist-deep snow until darkness, then decided to wait for help.

Meanwhile, Wilkins was recuperating from his ordeal.

"I had given up most hope of ever coming out alive, but I knew I must push on and that the stream would lead out into the open somewhere. I don't suppose I made a mile an hour. I fell often and was soaked. I was so glad to see the open skies that I wept."

He came out of the woods onto the railroad track leading to the pulp mill. He walked to the mill where he was given a change of clothing and fed.

Mrs. Marshall and Smith were spotted in a snowy meadow by searchers Monday morning and their rescue was effected by searchers Harold Eldsvik and Neil Forman, followed by Foster Husoy and Eddie Dawes. After wandering for miles in circles from 2 p.m. Sunday to 10:30 Monday morning after they had become lost, the couple were still on the skis although feeling the effects of having no food and becoming cold for twenty hours through the long night. They had wrapped sweaters around their feet as they continued trudging.

When found, they were only about half an hour's walk from the Department of Transport's frequency modulation station, from which they had originally taken off.

Following their rescue, Mrs. Marshall and Jordan Smith rested for a few hours at the ski camp before coming on home.

SHIPS AND WATERFRONT

Southbound and northbound freighters of the joint Canadian Pacific Steamships-Frank Waterhouse Line winter service crossed near here Sunday. Southbound was the Yukon Princess, Capt. Angus Campbell, which arrived at 8 a.m. and sailed at 1:25 for Watson Island and thence to Vancouver. Northbound was the Cassiar, Capt. William Gleason, arriving at 2:30 p.m. from Vancouver and leaving at 5:30 p.m. for Alice Arm whence she came back here last night to clear for Alaska.

Delayed by wind conditions at Kemano, CPR steamer Princess Louise, Capt. Charles Robson, arrived in port at 8 o'clock last evening from Vancouver and waypoints, sailing at 2:45 on her return south. The Louise brought north a large listing of returning Alcan construction workers to Kemano and Kitimat and took a considerable number south from here.

Union steamer Camosun, Capt. John Boden, returned to port at 11:20 this morning from her regular weekly voyage to Alice Arm and Stewart and was away again within the hour for Vancouver and waypoints.

ROYAL CHRISTMAS CARD—Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip selected for their Christmas card a photograph of themselves taken by Adrienne Lunny of the Montreal Star when they visited McGill University, Montreal, Oct. 30. The couple asked for an enlargement while in Montreal and later cabled to have the negative flown to England. A Canadian Press item from London Dec. 24 conjectured that the photograph was taken at Charlottetown. (CP PHOTO)

HANDY TIPS FOR PREPARING MEALS BY GRILL COOKERY

Here are some handy tips for those who have to prepare meals on hot-plates or small electric grills.

Regardless of whether it is a business girl preparing her own meals or a wife feeding her husband, home economists say that the minimum equipment for grill cookery should include a medium size double boiler, with a top part that will also fit into a tea kettle; frying pan with a lid; saucepan with a lid; small glass casserole to fit into the saucepan; coffee maker and tea pot. The miscellaneous equipment should include measuring spoons and cup, paring knives, vegetable peeler, grater, sieve, lemon squeezer, egg beater and mixing bowls.

Two most convenient pieces of equipment are a pressure cooker and a triple saucepan. The pressure cooker increases the variety of dishes that may be prepared on a grill. Stews, braised meats, baked beans, and steamed puddings can be cooked comparatively quickly under pressure. With a triple saucepan it is possible to cook three foods at one time, because it has three pans designed to fit together on a single burner.

The meals should be planned for several days at a time and the Canada Food Rules provide an excellent guide for knowing what to include in them. The meal plan should be kept flexible so that leftovers and foods in good supply may be used. Staple foods can be bought once a week if storage space is available, whereas perishables should be bought in small quantities when needed. Be sure to buy by grade and watch for good values for your money.

A collection of quick, easy, inexpensive recipes is a good idea. These are usually based on six servings, so, to reduce the ingredients for one or two servings, be sure to measure accurately. If imagination and initiative are used, practically all dishes that can be prepared with a stove can be made on a grill.

For steaming, use the sieve over a saucepan or kettle of boiling water, place the dish containing the food in it and cover with an inverted bowl or tight fitting lid. Oven poached dishes, such as custards and souffles, may be cooked in the top of the double boiler while vegetables or other foods are being cooked in the bottom part. Soup tins with tops evenly removed and baking powder tins make good containers for cooking puddings or breads, but be sure to cover the top with lid or waxed paper and set the tin directly in boiling water. To make the most of the facilities, use the window ledge to cool jellies, desserts and other things quickly. The radiator can keep foods hot.

As the main course for dinner there are always chops, sausages, liver and bacon steaks, cut-up chicken and fish, with a pot roast for Sunday. But other quick and easy-to-prepare suggestions are Spanish toast, made like French toast except that tomato juice is used in place of milk; vegetable or cheese rarebit; macaroni and cheese and spaghetti and tomato sauce. Canned soups are very handy for making delicious dishes with leftovers. For example, cream of mushroom soup may be mixed with just enough milk to give a cream sauce consistency, then combined with vegetables, hard-cooked eggs or leftover meats and served on toast.

With limited cooking space, it is important to cook foods quickly so that they may all be served hot. Vegetables may be prepared quickly by cutting them into small pieces and cooking them either in boiling water or in a pressure saucepan. Most desserts can be prepared the previous night and if to be eaten hot, can be reheated in the top of the double boiler. Pudding sauces can also be made ahead of time and reheated at the last minute. This relieves the situation of having to cook too much at one time.

A little butter goes a long way when added to cooked vegetables immediately after draining them. The secret is to put the lid back on the saucepan and steam the buttered vegetables for a minute or two.

Here is a simple trick to soften butter in a hurry for sandwiches. Fill a small china bowl with boiling water and let stand until the bowl is really hot. Then pour out the water and invert the bowl over the butter. In a minute or two it will be just right for spreading.

Brighten up your meals by serving chicken often. Light weight chicken, that is, broiler type chickens weighing 2½ to 3½ pounds are in good supply. They may be purchased whole for roasting or cut up for frying or baking.

Two stuffed small chickens take less time to roast than one large bird. The birds will cook more evenly and rapidly in a shallow, uncovered pan with a rack or crossed skewers in the bottom than in one which does not give the air a good chance to circulate.

Grade A poultry represents the bulk of the supply of birds on the market today. If you buy this grade, you are ensured of complete satisfaction for all occasions and purposes.

Don't waste those left over egg yolks! Drop the yolks into boiling water and simmer for 15 minutes, then cool. They can be stored in the refrigerator until ready to use for sandwiches, salads, garnishes, canapés and so forth.

Egg whites beat up faster and to greater volume when they are at room temperature than when very cold.

Painting of Pr. Rupert

There was an interesting interlude in the proceedings of the first meeting of the 1952 city council last evening when C. A. Berner, divisional superintendent of the Canadian National Railways, on behalf of the Hudson Bay Co., presented the city with an oil painting of Prince Rupert, first governor of "The Company of Adventurers of England, trading into Hudson Bay," after whom the city of Prince Rupert was named.

Mr. Berner, making a few remarks appropriate to the occasion, stated that the picture of the Prince was done by Irving Sinclair in 1910 and was a copy of the original by Sir Peter Lily which hangs in Beaver House, London headquarters of the Hudson Bay Co. The painting shows the Prince in the Robes of the Order of the Garter.

Accepting the picture on behalf of the city, Mayor Harold Whalen expressed appreciation to Mr. Berner and the public relations department of the railway for its part in bringing the fine painting to Prince Rupert. He assured Mr. Berner that it was a most acceptable gift. It would be given an honored position on the walls of the City Hall and suitable acknowledgment would be made to the Hudson Bay Co.

NEED A LIFT—Two Toronto Transportation Commission motor-men were among the many thousands forced to thumb a ride last Friday when TTC employees called a strike to enforce demands for higher wages and other benefits. The two operators finished their last runs about 5 a.m.—strike deadline—and faced the choice of getting a lift or walking home. (CP Photo)

Salmon Arm Schools Open

SALMON ARM (CP)—With the start of the new fiscal year providing the key to school doors, more than five hundred pupils in Salmon Arm municipality went to classes Monday for the first time since September 30.

School buses, ploughed through heavy snow and side roads, marked the end of a situation unparalleled in the history of British Columbia. Pupils had been denied classroom education when a vote against a bylaw would have provided money to keep the municipal schools open.
