

New Policy of More Advanced Processing in Celanese Planning

Watson Island May Even Make Yarns—
Blanke Enthuses Over This Area

Celanese Corporation of America is embarking on a new policy, which was not at first so fully envisaged, of completing to a greater degree of finished products the products of the wood pulp of British Columbia, Harold Blanke, president of the Celanese Corporation, said in an interview Thursday night following a two-day visit of inspection to the subsidiary cellulose pulp plant of Columbia Cellulose Co. near Watson Island.

This policy may have its initial effect on the Prince Rupert plant.

Originally it had been contemplated that the product of the Prince Rupert mill would be largely exported in the form of pulp. Now, however, the corporation was putting in the great chemical plant of the Celanese Chemical Co. at Edmonton where the pulp from Prince Rupert would be further processed into flake and yarn for the textile industry.

"We are desirous," said Mr. Blanke, "of taking the natural resources we find here and carrying the processing in Canada as far to completion as is economically practicable."

The original object of establishing at Prince Rupert, said Blanke, was to aid in securing a high grade of cellulose pulp. The picture was changing, however, and the world's second largest textile pulp plant admitted a lot of research and development was being given to the possibility of further purification and more advanced processing of the product right here. "There is a good possibility," he admitted, "of processing beyond the cellulose stage, which could mean the making of some day of yarns of different types by combining the pulp manufactured at Prince Rupert with chemicals which would be imported." It might take some years but Mr. Blanke looked into the future for a large extension of the plant here.

EXPANSION HERE
Speaking of more immediate things, Mr. Blanke voiced expectation that the program which had now been embarked upon of increasing the capacity of the Prince Rupert plant from the original 200 to 300 tons would be accomplished by the end of 1952. The world is crying for cellulose pulp and the demand of the market is far in excess of the supply.

Reporting progress on the plant expansion work here, Mr. Blanke announced the Dominion Construction Co. had the work well in hand. Concrete for the foundations of the new water treatment building had been completed. Later will come the installation of the water treatment equipment, a 25-ton

Doukhobors Going Free

VANCOUVER (CP) — Spokesman for the consultative committee on Doukhobor problems said Thursday night that John Sherstibitoff, convicted eighteen months ago as "the official bomber" for the Sons of Freedom Doukhobor sect will be released from prison within a few days.

Col. Frederick J. Mead, chairman of the organization's screening sub-committee, said that Sherstibitoff, convicted on six counts of arson and sentenced to fourteen years in penitentiary, will be released on condition that he remain permanently outside of the borders of British Columbia.

The consultative committee had been set up to find a solution to Doukhobor unrest in the province which has led to bombing of railway tracks, burning of homes and nude parading.

Col. Mead also announced the release "several days ago" of Philip Perseveroff, who had served four years of an eleven-year penitentiary term for arson committed in fire raids.

Tragedy Seems Looming in Case of Missing Freighter Far Out in Pacific

Extending Search Reveals No Trace of Pennsylvania Crew

Senators Say General Will Accept Draft

WASHINGTON.—Members of Congress generally interpret Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's statement this week as marking him, at the least, as a receptive candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

Senator McClellan (D-Ark.) commented to reporters that it was obvious Eisenhower was willing to accept the nomination and that furthermore, "his statement seems intended to encourage his supporters and those who are sponsoring his candidacy."

Senator Bricker (R-Ohio), who is supporting Senator Robert A. Taft, his Ohio colleague, for the nomination, said the statement means Eisenhower "is open to be drafted if the Republican party wants to draft him."

Senator Carlson (R-Kas.), who heads the Washington Eisenhower-for-President movement, said the general's statement "releases his supporters to redouble their drive in his behalf."

Pensioners to Get Services

VICTORIA (CP)—Health and Welfare Minister A. D. Turnbull says that British Columbia's social welfare branch will continue to provide health services to all those persons who were receiving old-age and blind persons allowances as of Dec. 31.

"Regardless of whether or not people in this group qualify under the income regulations, they will continue to receive these services which include payment of B. C. Hospital Insurance premiums and co-insurance, medical, optical, drug and limited dental care," said Mr. Turnbull.

Within the next week or two, letters will be sent to each person affected by this policy advising them individually of this fact, explained the minister.

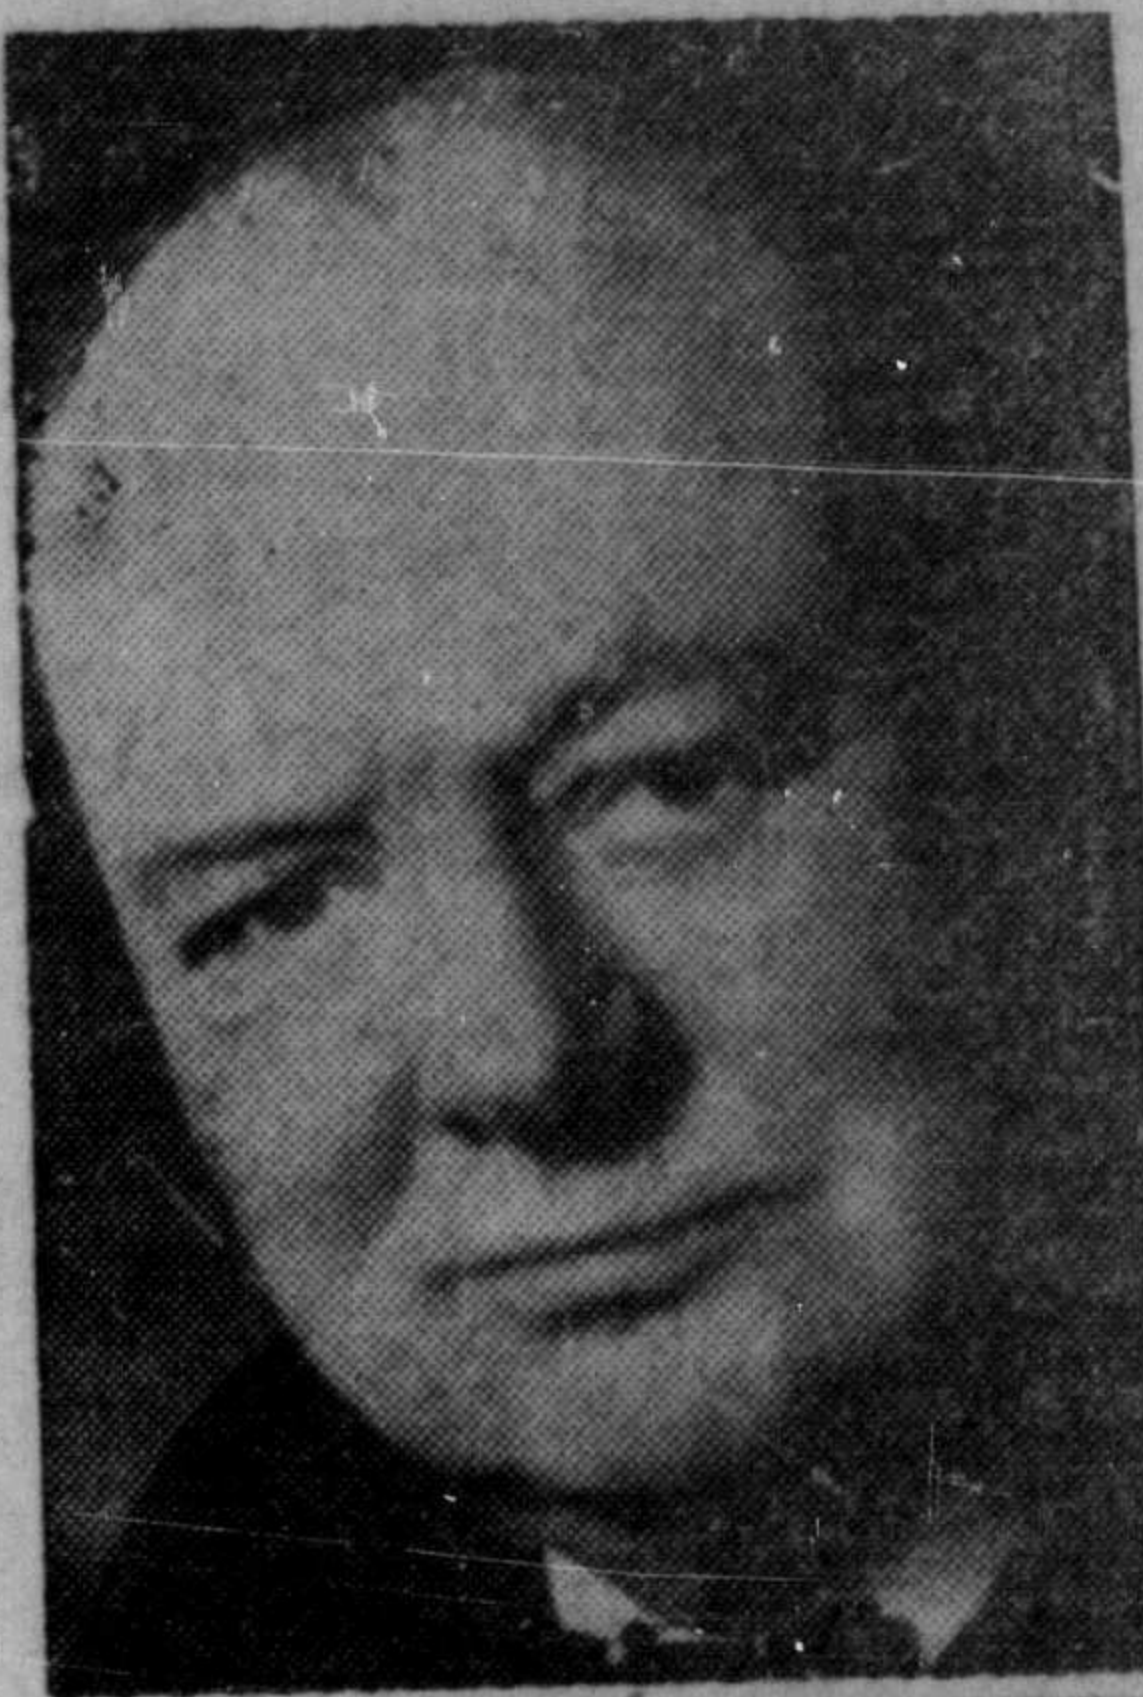

"Those who do not qualify under the income regulation will not receive a cost-of-living bonus but will continue to receive health services," Mr. Turnbull stated.

British Prime Minister Acclaimed in Ottawa on Arriving Today for Visit

OTTAWA (CP) — This capital today welcomed an old friend and comrade-in-arms. Winston Churchill. The British Prime Minister arrived by train from New York for a five-day stay devoted partly to rest and partly to an official visit. He will meet with Prime Minister St. Laurent and members of the cabinet for a discussion of world problems. New Atomic Gun, Top Secret, Shown to U.S. Senate

WASHINGTON (CP)—Military officials today showed to the Senate and House atomic committee, the model of an artillery gun designed to handle atomic shells.

The model, enclosed in a concealing wooden box, was brought before the committee by an ordnance officer. Chairman McMahon declined to comment when asked whether the model was that of a gun, already and actually constructed, or if it is to be built from the blueprint of a gun still to be made.

CBC Boosting BC Station

VANCOUVER.—CBR radio station here will change its call letters two weeks hence to CBU and its wave length to 690 kilocycles. The strength is being increased to 10,000 watts.

Donald Manson, general manager of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, said today that the transmitter will be opened in Vancouver toward the end of the month.

CBU will be operated in conjunction with existing CBC facilities in Vancouver which have been used in the operation of CBR.

Mr. Manson said that change in power and wave length was designed to provide listeners in southwestern British Columbia with improved technical service from the CBC. Signal strength will be increased and coverage extended through use of the new clear channel frequency, increased power, and use of directional antenna.

January 25 has been set as the date for the opening of CBU and the closing down of CBR.

Truman To Tell By February 6

WASHINGTON (AP)—A presidential caller said today Mr. Truman had told him he hoped to make known before February 6 whether he will run again, but the White House reported later there was "absolutely no commitment."

Representative Hays (D-Ohio) gave reporters the first word. Presidential Secretary Joseph Short told them an hour and a half later that Mr. Truman had not committed himself to the date when he will announce whether he will seek re-election.

"The President had made no commitment as to anything, including a date of announcement," Short said.

Hays said he had pointed out to Mr. Truman that February 6 is the last day for filing of candidates for delegates from Ohio to the democratic national convention.

More Power At Ketchikan

KETCHIKAN.—Engineer W. D. Shannon of Seattle has begun work on engineering for the Beaver Falls expansion project, Manager John Weir of KPRU reported here today. A recent resolution of the city council approved the project and authorized Mayor Beck to file an application with the Federal Power Commission asking authority to proceed.

Weir said the project covers a new turbine at the Beaver Falls powerhouse, with more space in that building to house it; penstock, spillway and tunnel at the lower lake, and additions to the sub-stations handling power in Ketchikan.

All in all, about 3900 kilowatt hours should be added to the utilities' production capacity. Beaver Falls can now produce about 1850 KW's at peak load.

Federal Power Commission and Defence Production Authority are needed to allow for construction as well as for purchase of equipment. Applications for both will be filed in the near future.

A Banker Speaks

THE position that James Muir occupies as president of the Royal Bank of Canada lends weight to his discussion of national financial and economic matters, part of which was contained yesterday in the Daily News in a report of the annual general meeting of the bank where he made his customary statement.

Mr. Muir reiterates a feeling of unhappiness that has been expressed in many quarters over the huge budgetary surplus that has been built up through taxation by the federal minister of finance and which has made for political criticism. Mr. Muir used a rather striking expression when he suggested that, unless wisely used by the government, this budgetary surplus could prove an inflationary "time bomb."

There is something new in Mr. Muir's declaration that industrial development and free trade can be achieved together and his suggestion that closer relationships still between this country and the United States could well be developed.

Mr. Muir's views, being from the straight business and not political angle, are worthy of respectful consideration.

Leadership Begins at Home

WE TALK much about international leadership which appears to be passing from the eastern to the western side of the Atlantic Ocean.

Important problems involved in world leadership include control of international gangsters abroad who plot inhuman crimes. It also means keeping ourselves on this side vital and clean within against domestic criminals and gangsters.

Leadership implies setting the example for others. It involves national, community and personal responsibility.

We have made great headway toward world security and peace by the United Nations, the Atlantic Pact, and NATO. The free nations are more united and agreed on practical plans against aggressors. Let's hope that unity by law for mutual international protection can be strengthened.

Mascot Had Close Call

OTTAWA (CP)—The dog known as "PO, Wren Alice," the No. 1 canine mascot aboard the Canadian destroyer Cayuga serving off Korea, had a close brush with death.

Naval headquarters told the story of how Alice developed a habit of jumping from her own ship to the tanker during refuelling operations. But in one jump the dog slipped on a spot of oil aboard the tanker and found herself in the narrow strip of water between the two vessels.

Leading Seaman James A. Tyer of Vancouver, who had been caring for Alice for months, feared she would be squeezed between the two ships and called for a gun to shoot the dog.

The destroyer captain, Commander James Plower, instead issued the order to "Clear lower

As I See It

NOT FIT TO VOTE

I HAVE lived and worked right across Canada from Montreal west; have made my home in B.C. since 1937; and paid taxes on our home in Vancouver since 1942.

But I get no vote in Vancouver. For our house is in my wife's name, just as it was in the other provinces where we lived—and where I voted. But here in B.C. I get no vote in civic affairs because B.C. is still away back in the dark ages in municipal government.

SOME PEOPLE east of the Rockies have the false idea that B.C. is the most "progressive" part of Canada. That is downright nonsense. We in B.C. only talk progressive. We don't act even liberal.

Back in Ontario, under the Tories, they put through great chunks of socialism in the early years of the century. They wrapped it up in the Union Jack, and had it marching behind Adam Beck who looked wonderful in silk plug hat and white dress shirt.

But they never, never called it socialism. They called it public ownership. They wanted results—not words. Smart Tories!

DURING THE HITLER war many British boys were stationed down at the RAF training base at Boundary Bay. For something to do they began to study the set up of municipal government in British Columbia. At first they simply could not believe the facts they found. I don't blame them.

The laws of municipal government in this "most progressive" part of Canada were about fifty or sixty years behind those in Britain—which many ignorant Canadians call "so w old Britain."

IN THE RECENT Vancouver election the voters (that is, the property owners) voted to extend the civic franchise to all adults.

That has long since been done in every other city worthy of the name in all the western world (except B.C.).

But now a Conservative cabinet minister in the moribund coalition government of B.C. suggests that this should not be done. The time might come, he says, when people who are not property owners would elect the Mayor of Vancouver.

Well, so what? Are the citizens of Vancouver less responsible than those of Edmonton, Winnipeg, Toronto, London, Edinburgh, Glasgow, New York, Chicago or Seattle?

THIS controversy amuses me because it renews my boyhood. I heard all these same arguments when I was a boy in Hamilton, Ontario—before they put through the reforms which "progressive" B.C. is talking about forty years later.

Later I read exactly those same arguments in my history books. They were used by the more reactionary apologists for the government of George III in the controversy with the American colonists who asked for "no taxation without representation." At that time only 130,000 people had the right to vote in all Britain.

COME to think of it, this would be an excellent issue to discuss in the coming Liberal party convention in B.C. and later decide in the B.C. provincial election.

I don't know yet how I'll write, speak, or vote in that election. But I think a lot of other folks will feel like I do about this: Democracy begins at home. If you haven't got it in civic affairs you haven't got it. Period.

At least 90 per cent of the Chinese are as much against this rebellion as Britain because law-abiding Chinese are the main victims of the war.

Though they lack a central base, the Red terrorists are tied together. A nucleus of some 3,500 men are rated as members of the "Malayan Races Liberation Army," an obvious effort to ring in the other races.

Party members are estimated at 4,000 or so, which probably includes most of the army. All told, the "activists"—guerrillas, working politicians, soldiers and all—runs upward of 5,000.

Against this slippery enemy the British and federation forces have fought for more than three years, at present with some 150,000 men of all services.

UN Agency to Aid 'White-Collar' Workers

Non-manual workers now account for over 30 percent of the population in industrialized countries employed as wage-earners. The International Labor Organization has prepared a full description of the main problems affecting "white collar" workers which will be discussed by ILO's Advisory Committee on Salaried Employees and Professional Workers due to meet next February. Here, Max Kaufmann, Chairman of the Committee, takes up the matter with ILO's Director-General David A. Morse (center) and Assistant Director-General Luis Alvarado, at right.

Old Schools Are Tragedy

CALGARY (CP)—One of the tragedies of this continent is that the older schools were built "too well," in the opinion of W. A. Branton, completing his 40th year as Calgary school board architect and building inspector.

"The older schools have become obsolete when actually their stone construction will stand indefinitely," he said.

"The modern schools we're building now are practical plants to work in, not to be admired from the outside."

"The one-storey schools we're building can be changed to meet changing needs in education. Why, you can tear down a wall and switch things all around in a summer vacation if you need to."

The older schools, however, were fixed and unchangeable. They had to stay whatever way they were built and when they became obsolete nothing could be done to change them. Scrapping them cost considerable sums.

When Mr. Branton came to his school board duties here in 1911 from Spalding, Lincoln county, England, there were about 12 schools in the city. Now there are about 65. Each addition is Mr. Branton's work.

Reds Fight For Malaya

Conflict Stepped Up Since Slaying of Commissioner

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya.—Communism's fight for Malaya has been stepped up since the ambush killing of high commissioner Sir Henry Gurney 50 miles north of here Oct. 6.

It took a dangerous turn when Communists terrorized 8,000 workers into staying away from 16 big rubber plantations in the state of Negri Sembilan.

But men who have been fighting the red terror in Malaya for three years say things look a little worse now than they really are.

Communism is trying to win Malaya by a terrorist war which the Red themselves divide into three phases.

The first is guerrilla warfare, the second is setting up of "liberated areas," the third is the final capture of the nation and government.

The war still is in the first stage.

There is nothing new in the blueprint. It's the same one the Chinese Communists used. But there are differences here which may make the blueprint harder to follow.

The biggest difference is the lack of any nationalism in this war. In the other wars of Asia the Communists manage to make it look as though the nationalists and patriotic people are on their side. Even though Malaya still is a colonial country where the white man still rules the local populace are against the Reds.

At least 90 per cent of the Chinese are as much against this rebellion as Britain because law-abiding Chinese are the main victims of the war.

Though they lack a central base, the Red terrorists are tied together. A nucleus of some 3,500 men are rated as members of the "Malayan Races Liberation Army," an obvious effort to ring in the other races.

What Pulp Mill Means

Ketchikan Paper Figures Benefits and Points to Prince Rupert

The Ketchikan Chronicle has been figuring out the big things that the advent of a pulp mill and the attendant logging industry will mean for that community and, in doing so, cites the beneficial effects of Columbia Cellulose on Prince Rupert. The Chronicle says:

"Prince Rupert shows a population increase of about 2000 from the pulp mill alone. But logging for its mill is not done near to Rupert. It centres around Terrace, 90 miles inland, and Terrace's gain in population has been about 1800 in the past two years. The logging interests have begun to build a very good access road overland toward Haida Gwaii, that one day may extend to Portland Canal, developing a great untapped empire. Rupert stores stayed open Friday evenings all summer long to handle the extra business of pulp mill employees.

"Large scale logging always develops a country, by building roads, docks, schoolhouses and transportation facilities. Maintenance of a fleet of tugs alone is a good sized job.

"Economists figure that for each man employed in a primary production job, one other full-time job is created, and that the two men thus employed in turn will support five other persons. So one primary job in logging or the pulp mill will mean work for another man, and the two will support in their families and with their spending, a total of seven persons. Thus if the mill and camps employ 1000 persons in this vicinity, it is safe to assume that existing and new retail and service establishments here will add over 500 persons to their payrolls. The other 500 jobs created by the primary employment will be on the farms in the states, on the shiplines serving Alaska, the airlines, etc.

"There need be little worry about supporting schools and public facilities. The present assessed valuation of the independent school district is about $14,000,000 but it will run up to about $30,000,000 in three or four years, and the net income tax, gas tax, tobacco tax and liquor taxes these people will pay will be two or three times what the city now produces. The pulp mill will pay all taxes in full except the property tax for a 10-year period.

"It must be remembered that the pulp industry may pave the way for other small industries, such as plywood, and that its saw logs will be cut by existing mills, which will increase their payroll. Also that a new barge and ferry service may come out of the pulp plant, and that it could mean a rich new lifeline to Ketchikan, making this a tourist centre, perhaps even a great wholesaling centre, if terminal freight rates were obtainable here.

"The industrial accident insurance for logging camps hits a pretty figure. An average logger may spend $150 a year just for his boots, and in some west coast lumbering towns it keeps a half a dozen to a dozen men busy in boot shops just making logger boots. The Alaska logging camp operator figures that it costs him over $10,000 a year to keep a man employed in a camp, and most of that $10,000 per man (multiply this figure by 600 and it reaches $6,000,000) will flow through Ketchikan, for equipment, supplies and in the wages of the employee. Total retail trade here in 1949 is shown by the U.S. census at about $7,000,000."

Reflects and Reminisces

That's a good description of Vancouver in a recent issue of Saturday Evening Post. The evergreen city does itself proud. The picture on the cover, showing a man gazing pensively at falling snowflakes, is also a work of art.

Captain Carlsen knows the moods of the ocean. Practically all of his bold life he has gone down to the sea in ships and there is little he can be told about the mutations and hazards of what blue water, as a career, means. It can be cruel as well as kind. It can distinguish, as well as humble. The story of the Flying Enterprise reflects for example, how remorseless it can be. The skipper—and the world—thought he had won an epic battle. Instead, he was vanquished, though having cheerfully given hardship and almost his life. Because he was born with brine in his veins he loves ships and voyages. He has to.

Most of the Royal Family will be on, or pretty handy to the Pacific early this summer. Victoria reigned sixty years and never went much further away than Germany. Well, plenty never know what they miss.

Aspiring young people with an itch to write and rooms papered with rejection slips are advised to get in touch with an exclusive yet talented Russian novelist, J. Stalin. Whatever it is he writes about, must have tremendous popular appeal. Circulation to date, totals 5,116,361.

QUEER, BUT TRUE
Prince Rupert, within con-

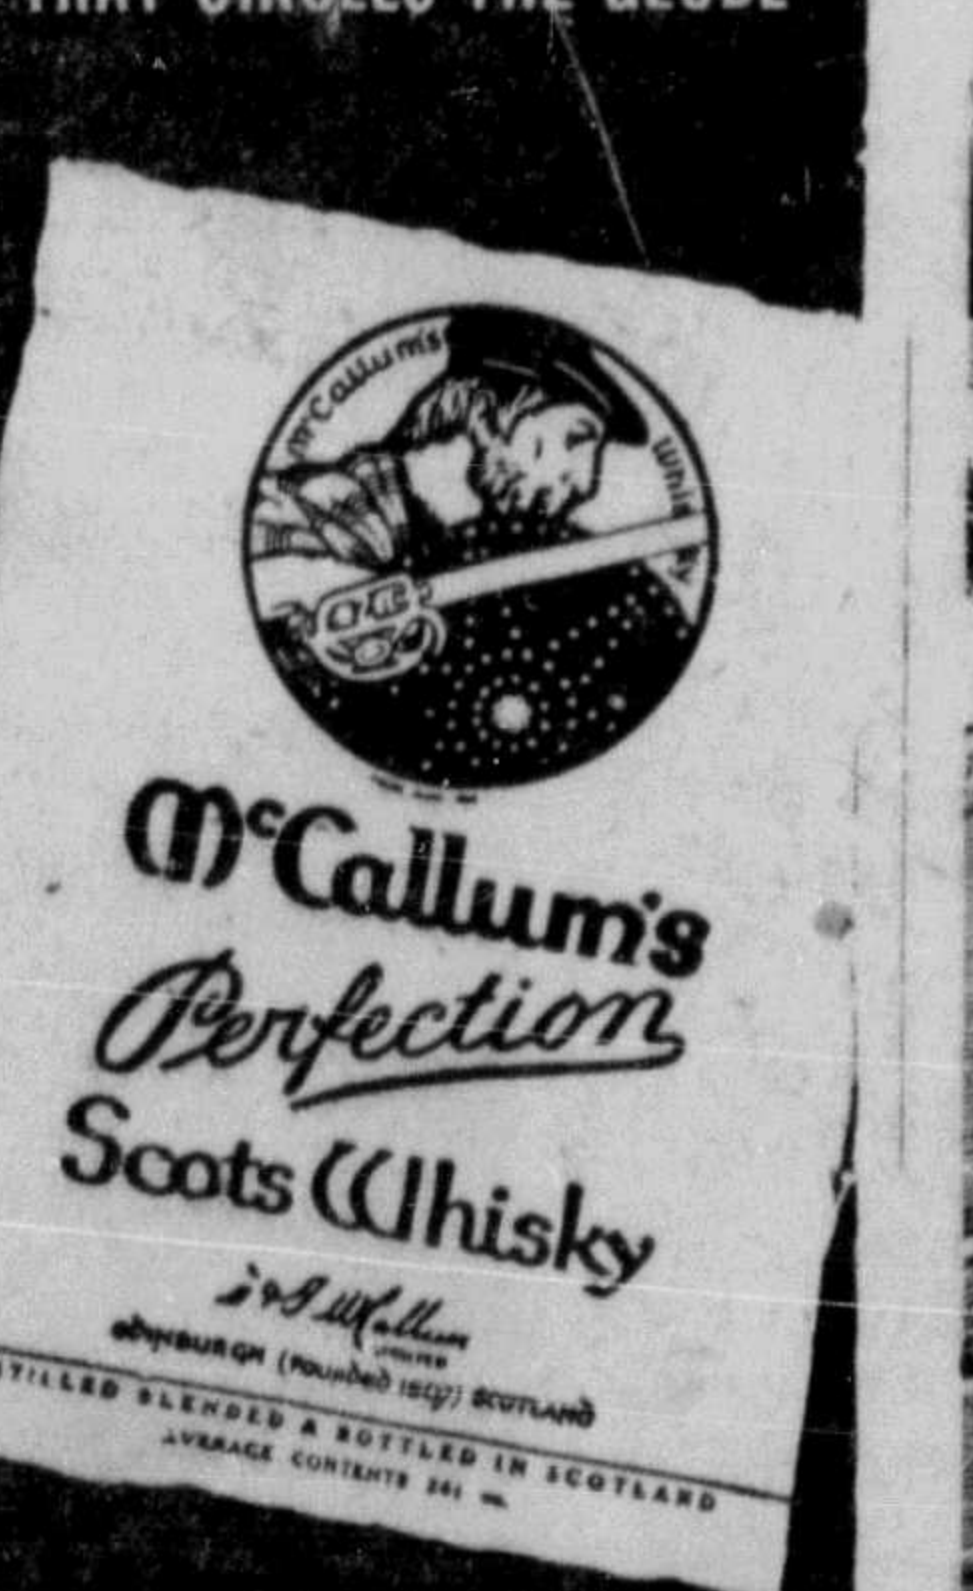

Competition In Celanese

TORONTO—The market action of Canadian Celanese Ltd. common stock has been receiving a good deal of attention from investors recently. It sold as high as $68 in February 1951, but since mid-September dropped from $92 a share to a low of $45 a share in November, down 27%. Currently it is trading around $47-$48 a share.

Although the lower quotations reflect generally lower security prices in virtually all industries, plus the drop in demand for textiles in the last half of 1951, they are also due in part, investment men say, to the prospects of greater competition in the synthetic field in future. Canadian Celanese is at present Canada's sole producer of acetate rayon yarn and staple fibre and the biggest manufacturer of synthetic textiles in the country.

Courtaulds (Canada), sole Canadian producer of viscose rayon, plans to boost its annual tire yarn capacity to 22 million lb. (now 10 million) and its staple fibre capacity to 24 million lb. a year (now 12 million). Canadian Chemical Co., subsidiary of Celanese Corp. of America, says its $54 millions chemical plant at Edmonton will make not only cellulose acetate but also acetate yarn and staple fibre; may eventually make viscose yarn and staple fibre as well. This would make it competitive with both the above companies. Celanese Corp. President Harold Blanche said recently that "just a small part" of the cellulose acetate produced would be made into yarn and staple fibre.

Challenge of Prayer Price

Speaker Outlines What Must Be Done to Be Effective

Over one hundred prayer-church members gathered in the Lutheran Church last night in the fourth of the inter-denominational services, sponsored by the Baptist Ministerial Association and challenged by Rev. E. Harris, Principal of the Bible School, who is the special speaker for the week with the need for facing up to a price that must be paid for prevailing prayer.

H. E. Olsen, St. Paul's Lutheran Church, directed the singing and Senior Captain G. Olsen read the Scripture portions and led in extemporaneous prayer.

Mat Wakadale responded to the prayer.

Harris said "there are four things we must do, and they are: we must be willing to give up our lives; we must be willing to seek privacy; this is the price we must make a complete break with sin and the world; and we must have a forgiving heart toward those who offend us."

The speaker added a very striking illustration to prove his point. "Is it the name of a man who is manager of a National Firm who gets credit for the firm? Is it the authority that the man has in their name? In the way we are a part of company when we become Christians and, therefore, the authority of His name requests we make to God for Him."

Alton Dybbavn was soloist effectively in the words prayer hymn: "If I have any soul today."

Godfrey Bird led the final of the evening and was assisted by Mrs. David Owens and G. W. Fiddes.

This is the final gathering of the series. A new soloist to represent congregations will be prayer thoughts with an: "Except I am moved by compassion," Peter Lien will be organist.

AT SCHOOL

Rev. E. Harris spoke to the school Christian Fellowship at noon today. Considerable interest was evident in the service and maidens gathered in the afternoon for prayer and song.

Rotarians See Fine Pictures

Impressive pictures of early industrial development in the Kitimat and Kemano areas were shown to the Rotary Club at luncheon Thursday by Sgt. L. A. N. Potterton. Recent new pictures around Prince Rupert, including air shots of the Columbia Cellulose mill at Watson Island and a variety of community activities, added to the interest of the projection in the Capitol Theatre following luncheon in the Broadway Cafe.

Charles Roberts announced plans for another of the popular series of Rotary variety concerts and George C. Mitchell reported on a successful Boxing Day luncheon aboard the steamer Prince George.

President Fred Scadden was in the chair and luncheon guests included Rotarians Bernard Allen of Vancouver and Arthur Warren of Penticton, Inspector W. Chisholm, RCMP, Rev. Canon Basil S. Procter, James Taylor, C. E. Salter, William Black of Scotland and Rev. J. E. Harris of Vancouver.

Bus Service Discontinued

The Canadian National Railway bus has discontinued service between Prince Rupert and Smithers because of wintry conditions. How long this will continue is not definitely known, but it will have to be a good deal more springlike before there is a change.

Taft Claims Enough Votes Surveying of Alaska Ports

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Taft (R-Ohio) claimed today if all the pledges he now holds are translated into voting strength, he will win the republican presidential nomination.

That was the Ohioan's answer to the statement of General Dwight D. Eisenhower that he is a republican and would respond to a "clearcut call to political duty" but would not personally campaign for the GOP nomination.

Eisenhower supporters jubilantly heralded his statement as assuring the general's nomination and election.

Taft told a reporter he believes this makes Eisenhower only a "draft" possibility, adding:

"If all the pledges we have obtained from all over the country can be translated into delegates when they are chosen, I believe we have more than half of the convention votes."

The GOP nominating meeting, to be held in Chicago early in July, will have slightly more than 1200 delegates, with more than 600 votes needed for the nomination. None of the delegates has been formally chosen yet.

Taft said he always assumed that other candidates would be seeking the nomination and that "General Eisenhower would be one of them."

Union steam Chilcotin, Capt. William McCombe, is due in port at 7 o'clock this evening from Vancouver and will sail at midnight for the south end of the Queen Charlotte Islands whence she will return here southbound Sunday evening.

New Jobs At Ottawa

Important Appointments
To Be Considered

OTTAWA — The Federal cabinet is expected to consider within the next few weeks a series of appointments to new positions established by legislation passed at the recent session of parliament.

Top job is the chairmanship of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority—the crown company established to construct the St.
Lawrence Seaway with or without United States participation.
The authority will consist of a chairman and two other members. R. A. C. Henry, 63, prominent Montreal engineer, is mentioned in unofficial circles as a likely choice for the chairmanship.

Mr. Henry, now a consulting engineer for Marine Industries Ltd., of Sorel, Que., has been closely associated with plans for the seaway project. A few years ago, at the request of the Federal government, he headed a board established to investigate and report on the work necessary to fit Montreal'sachine canal into the seaway project.

A former vice-president and general manager of the Beauharnois Light Heat and Power Company, Mr. Henry is familiar with power development possibilities on the St. Lawrence.

There has been speculation that either Transport Minister Chevier or Production Minister Howe would resign their portfolios to assume the chairmanship of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority. The reports are discounted by sources close to Mr.
Chevier.

The move would involve resignation from the cabinet and retirement from public life. The chairman of the Seaway Authority will report to parliament through the Minister of Transport. One source said he could not picture Mr. Howe, for instance, being content to report to parliament through another minister.

The cabinet is expected to meet Tuesday or Wednesday for the first time this year. It last met Dec. 29—the day the fifth session of the 21st parliament was prorogued.

Prime Minister St. Laurent went to Quebec for New Year's and will return Monday.

Besides the seaway appointments, several others await cabinet action. Legislation at the last session increased membership of the CBC Board of Governors to 11 from nine and of the Board of Trustees of the National Gallery to nine from five.

Members of the boards receive a small honorarium and traveling expenses to and from periodic meetings.

Although there are some 15 vacancies in the Senate, Prime Minister St. Laurent has given no indication that he plans to fill them at an early date.

A vacancy that may be filled shortly is on the Board of Transport Commissioners where W. J.
Patterson resigned to become Lieutenant-Governor of Saskatchewan.

Lloyd's Medal Valued Award

By PHILIP RAY

Lloyd's Sub-Agent at Prince Rupert, Lloyd's Medal for Meritorious Service, awarded to Capt. Kurt Carlsen of the freighter Flying Enterprise, is bestowed by the committee of Lloyd's upon ships' officers and others who, by extraordinary exertions, have contributed to the preservation of vessels and cargoes from perils of all kinds.

The medal, now struck in silver and bronze, has changed in design three times since its institution in 1893. The original medal was a bronze star, with blue and red ribbon. In July 1900 this was changed to a silver oval, with blue and silver ribbon. In April 1913 the medal was made circular and bore the crest of the Corporation of Lloyd's, and in June 1933 the design was altered, and the medal now bears the arms of the Corporation of Lloyd's.

Northern B.C. Mining Moving Ahead Again

Fifteen Properties Employing 900 Men—Asbestos Important

From gradual development in the last three years, mining in central and northern British Columbia is entering its richest year and is well established as one of the main industries north of latitude 54.

From a beginning which brought gold-panning prospectors from the south mining developed, then slumped during depression years and only lately has seen revival again in this area. Today there are 15 operating mines employing more than 900 men and several more mines are under way, including much exploration and prospecting work.

Back in the city following a complete tour of mines in his district, Provincial Mines Inspector J. H. Bennett feels northern B.C. is facing a great span of development ahead.

ASBESTOS

One of the most promising and striking projects is the McDame Creek asbestos property which, says Mr. Bennett, has been worked on all summer and is proving exceptionally high grade fibre.

McDame Creek is located some 50 miles southwest of Lower Post. A highway to the property connecting with the Alaska Highway is expected to be used this summer for trucking out ore concentrates. A mill, however, is to be installed there for refining asbestos for shipment direct to manufacturers.

"Beyond a doubt, this is one of the greatest asbestos finds in Canada," says the mines inspector.

HAZELTON

Meanwhile, Central B.C. mines are working on a larger scale than ever before. Silver Standard tops the list in this area and last year was the province's second highest dividend payer.

Other mines at Hazelton are the Red Rose and Rocher Debole, operated by Western Uranium. Considerable work was done at the Red Rose last summer and the company hopes to be rolling steadily this winter. The property is mainly tungsten.

American Standard is not yet in operation but shaft sinking is continued and some high-grade ore has shown.

SMITHERS

At Smithers, Silvan is planning a mill this year for its lead, silver, zinc and gold properties of the old Mamie mine and the Canary Humming Bird, both of which are reported to have shown good value. Silvan is affiliated with Silver Standard.

Milling is expected at the Cronin-Babine mine early this year. The company expects to assemble the mill formerly operated at Zabellos Mines and shipped to Smithers.

Glacier Gulch was shut down during the summer, but a little prospecting is reported going on now.

One of the first influences felt in the mining industry by the approach of the Alcan project is the operation of Emerald Glacier mines. A road from Burns Lake to this property above Francois Lake has been forced through by Alcan giving the mining man opportunity to truck out their ore.

ALCAN INFLUENTIAL

The road, started by the miners but who were unable to go further because of high cost, now is a good surface highway, says Mr. Bennett, and leads to within three miles of the mine. The ore—silver, lead and zinc—was trucked out and shipped to Nelson to be milled, last summer, but plans are to install the mill at the mine this year.

A new development has been started east of Telkwa with reopening of the old Cassiar-Crown mine by Transcontinental Resources Ltd. and is now known as the Copper Ridge mine. Diamond drilling and surface work has been done here and the company expects to work on a large tonnage, low grade basis for the base metal deposits.

NEW DEVELOPMENTS

Other new developments include the Atlin Ruffner silver mine and Black Diamond tungsten, also opened recently by Transcontinental; the Gibson Girl mine on Gibson Island near Prince Rupert and copper drilling at Usk.

The Torbrat Silver Mines at Alice Arm carry the biggest single operation in this area, followed by Premier-Silbak, both mines producing steadily. Tulsequah Chief and the Big Bull are operated by Consolidated Mining & Smelting Ltd.

Silver Tip Gold Mines and Premier Border in the Stewart area have been operating at a moderate pace while considerable exploration has been accomplished by a new San Francisco outfit on the Marmot River.

PLACER GOLD

Only gold of any quantity is being mined at the Noland Placer mine in the Atlin district, which last year produced 9,000 ounces.

This mine is unique in that it is the only underground placer mine of such proportions in North America. Digging is done 20 feet underground where gravel is shovelled from an old river bed. A few other placer mines are worked in this area, mostly by individuals and partners on a small scale.

"The whole picture, however, seems to show a steady increase in production and a definite expansion of the industry, with the greatest jump within the last three years," summarizes Mr. Bennett.

New Divisional Engineer Here

The appointment of J. H. Spicer as division engineer, Smithers Division, Canadian National Railways, is announced by C. A. Berner, superintendent. Mr. Spicer will make his headquarters in Prince Rupert where he succeeds R. C. "Bob" Davidson.

Born in Moose Jaw, Sask., John Howard Spicer is a graduate in civil engineering of the University of Manitoba, and served with the RCAF during the world war. He began his railway career as an instrument man and later served as assistant engineer at Vancouver and Winnipeg and as acting division engineer at Port Arthur and Winnipeg.

SECOND AWARD — Cpl. Leo Major, 30, of Montreal, who won the Distinguished Conduct Medal in northwest Europe in 1945 while serving with the Regiment de la Chaudiere, has been awarded a bar to his DCM for bravery in action in Korea. The award was for his action late in November when the Royal 22nd Regiment fought thousands of Chinese to a standstill some 40 miles north of Seoul. (CP from National Defence).

Delved Deep Hunting Into Science Tragedy

Canadian Research Covered Wide Field in Past Year

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's National Research Council roamed widely through the universe of science in 1951. Its experts reached into fields as varied as analyzing the air of distant planets, producing new atomic materials and developing better anti-freeze for car engines.

The council, the government agency for co-ordinating scientific studies, summarized its 1951 work in a year-end statement today, and it indicated defence and defence production were in the forefront of its activities. But the versatile scientists of the council ranged into many other areas.

On the atomic front, the council announced the discovery of two new isotopes—radio-active particles useful in industry and medicine—at the Chalk River pile. These were "Calcium-41" and "Actinium-229," which have a radio-active "half-life" respectively of 120,000 years and 66 minutes.

Whether practical uses have been found for the new isotopes was not indicated.

In its defence work, the council concentrated largely on aerodynamic, building and radar research. For supersonic aircraft development, the council put into operation a wind tunnel with air speeds up to five times the speed of sound.

In the field of radar, the council reported progress—without disclosing details—on its application to artillery fire control and in the detection of aircraft. It said a new design of a medium-range radar used in the Second World War now is going into large-scale production.

With the defence of the north growing in importance, the council continued studies on the best means of building in that area. No specific findings were reported, but the council said plans are being made for a "perma-

BURNS LAKE—A middle-aged woman named Del Olson, who came here some time ago from Prince George and had been working in a logging camp near Tatalrose, fifty miles south of Burns Lake, was the victim of a hunting tragedy.

She was an expert rifle shot and spent her spare time hunting wolves and coyotes. On January 6, she left the Bauman Logging camp armed with a 30-40 rifle but, as she did not return on time, Hans Olson accompanied by Joe Bauman, went out to look for her. They found her about a frosty research station at an unnamed location.

In the field of applied biology, N. R. C. scientists came up with some food discoveries.

One was a new method of making citric acid from sugar-beet molasses. Another was a means of improving the flavor retaining qualities of some vegetable oils, though the council noted this was at the expense of some of the nutrition value.

Railway shippers of food will benefit from a few other developments. Construction changes in refrigerator cars' ice bunkers and air-circulation systems will drop their temperature by five degrees. The council said the railways have adopted the innovations.

In its chemistry studies, the council brought out a rain-repellant paint for airplane windshields that already is outselling available production. It worked on fire-resistant paint, moth-proofing of fabrics and the improvement of anti-freeze.

Probing the heavens in the interests of "pure" science, the council's astro-physicists studied, among other things, the atmospheres of the far-off planets Uranus and Neptune. They found hydrogen is abundant in them. Another continuing study was that of the cosmic-ray bombardment of the earth, still largely a mystery to the scientists.
