Action Needed on Power

WHAT is the situation concerning negotiations for Prince Rupert power, if any?

A letter to the editor on Saturday correctly remarked that almost a year has passed since the B.C. Power Commission was invited to become supplier here. Meanwhile apparently nothing at all has happened.

With the Northern B.C. Power Company's franchise due to expire at the end of March, this puts everyone concerned in a very uncertain and unsatisfactory position. Before the Commission can take over, there are such matters to be settled as purchase of existing facilities and creation of a local power district which certainly may be expected to take a fair amount of time.

Even if preparations started right away, it would seem almost impossible at this late date to meet the deadline. Evidently, then, the present supplier will be obliged to continue on a tentative basis without any idea of what is to happen next.

This kind of treatment is not only unbusiness-like. It is also unethical. In addition, it imposes a handicap on the whole city since no plans for power development can be made until the situation is clarified.

Prince Rupert has a right to expect a great deal more interest and action on the part of the Commission. That body should be asked to advise at once what it proposes to do.

Burns of Scotland

TODAY Scots the world over commemorate the birth of one who gave unique and imperishable expression to the spirit of their race. Literally drawing inspiration from his country's very soil, farmer Robert Burns within the brief space of 12 years established himself as a poet whose name is written indelibly in the history of Scotland.

Like many men of exceptional brilliance, Burns had an unhappy life. In a letter to a friend, he confessed that he longed for the end. It came soon enough, for he was only 37 when death finally climaxed a long period of penury and poor health. But unlike many others of outstanding talent who died at an early age, Burns had the satisfaction of knowing his work was successful. In fact, he was lionized to such an extent that his personal life became the subject of open criticism.

Since then, however, reports of his dissipation and decadence have been proved largely inaccurate. It is now said of him that he was not so much conspicuously sinful as that he sinned conspicuously.

All that, however, has no bearing on the priceless contribution that Burns made to his beloved Scotland. Tonight, in appreciation, Burns Clubs everywhere will pipe in the haggis and raise a toast to his enduring memory.

Lest auld acquaintance be forgot . . .

SUPPORT THE POLICE

The Editor,
The Daily News:

As our city has grown in the past few years we are developing many movements and institutions in which we can take pride.

These include our new schools, civic Centre, our housing project, tennis courts, curling rink, the "Little League" and Alaska Music Trail to mention only a few. These in themselves help to attract worthwhile citizens and aid in favorable consideration for new industries as the north continues to grow.

But we grow much less attractive if events prove that the law enforcement agency here cannot obtain the support of City Council in the fight against bootlegging.

Surely part of the punishment a convicted bootlegger must expect is the permanent loss of his taxi licence. Not only has he abused the trust placed in him when the RCMP issued his licence but he has exploited the weakness of those who feel that they must have a bottle at any price.

Has any thought been given of the consequences to this city of such traffic? Thousands of dollars are diverted from productive use, intoxication with all its problems increases and respect for law and order decreases.

The would-be honest taxi driver has no protection against this unfair competition, heavily subsidized by this illegal trade and either quits in disgust or is driven into bootlegging himself.

Thus, if the city council does not support the RCMP they are, in my opinion, definitely encouraging the criminal element in our city.

The carrying of passengers for hire on our narrow and increasingly crowded streets is a grave responsibility and should only be entrusted to persons of proven integrity and judgment—and this doesn't include convicted bootleggers.

Uncle Sam's New Line

IT SEEMS to me that the drastic change which is now taking place in U.S. world strategy will inevitably be followed by an equally drastic change in Canada's defense set-up.

The U.S.A. is now adopting the Radford policy, where the main dependence is to be upon American air and sea power, kept as mobile as possible. This means of course that the U.S.A. will "disengage" as quickly as possible as many as possible of her own troops now pinned down in such places as Korea, Trieste and Germany.

In other words in the middle of the twentieth century the U.S.A. is applying, on a larger scale, and in two elements instead of one, Britain's traditional doctrine of sea power.

IT IS interesting to note by what steps the Americans have arrived at their new position.

For the past two centuries, or even more, the Americans were what the Chinese called them around 1900 "second chop Englishmen." The United States was able to come into being, to grow and to reach unparalleled prosperity because British sea power maintained a certain world stability. Stated in another way—there never would have been an American, English-speaking U.S.A. at all had the Spanish Armada conquered England, which was then a brash, third class power. The U.S.A. came into being in the first place only because the English world power had beaten the French world power in the war which reached its climax at Quebec.

The subsequent revolutionary war between the American colonists and the reactionary King George III gave rise to one of the longest, and bitterest family quarrels in history.

But all the American top statesmen always realized—and the whole American nation felt in its bones, by instinct, that a powerful "England" was the real first line of defense for the U.S.A.

That great fact of history stood forth, in its naked truth, first in the Kaiser's war and even more in Hitler's. The overwhelming majority of Americans would have liked to stay out of both wars. But the most fundamental fact of life for the U.S.A. was that she simply could not afford to see Britain beaten in either of the world wars. For, as I wrote over and over again in this space before the U.S.A. came into the Hitler war "a world from which Britain had disappeared as a first class power would be a very uncomfortable place for the U.S.A."

THE END of the Second world war saw Britain bled white. It was impossible for Britain to maintain the strategic spots which had so long been the keys to her application of sea power.

Thanks to General George C. Marshall, and his superior, President Harry Truman, the Americans stepped into Greece and Turkey when British power was being pulled out.

What had happened, almost without anybody realizing what was happening, was that the British and American positions had simply been reversed. Instead of Britain being in the front line of a world balance of power which protected U.S.A., the U.S.A. was now out in the front line—with Britain and the whole Commonwealth, including Canada—dependent on the U.S.A. as its chief protector.

We have to fit our own plans into those of our big partner.

Dramatic Clashes Seem Inevitable at Meeting Of Foreign Ministers Opening in Berlin Today

By PRESTON GROVER
BERLIN (AP)—So different are the personalities of the four foreign ministers who begin today to discuss the world's crucial issues that dramatic clashes seem inevitable.

The two oldest and toughest, American John Foster Dulles and Russian Vyacheslav Molotov, represent the biggest powers. The others, Anthony Eden of Britain and Georges Bidault of France, are both in their 50s.

Here is how they look on the conference's opening day.

MOLOTOV: There probably is no harder and colder personality in the U.S.S.R. than Molotov. He comes to the conference near his 64th birthday March 9.

Unlike the other three, who have developed a certain warmth and acceptance of one another, Molotov hasn't a friendly contact in the Western camp.

Molotov, well grounded in Communist theory, never loses sight of the long view of Communist policy.

DULLES: The secretary of state, who may celebrate his 66th birthday at the conference table Feb. 25, has been on the fringes or in the middle of U.S. foreign affairs for a score of years. A Republican, he was at the elbow of various secretaries of state and worked out the peace treaty with Japan.

His recent statement that the United States would have to make an "agonizing re-appraisal" of its policy in Europe if France fails to ratify the European Army pact stirred up a ruckus in France.

He wants to see Russia back within its own frontiers and especially out of central Europe.

EDEN: The foreign secretary is looked upon as formidable at the conference table, firm and forthright. What he may lack in give and take, Eden makes up in a rich background of international experience, dating back to the League of Nations.

He wants to avoid an abrupt collapse of the negotiations. He favors removing the barrier between East and West by working out agreements on small things if larger scale operations are impossible.

BIDAULT: Favoring ratification of the European Army pact, Bidault comes to the conference table bolstered only by a thin and uncertain majority in Parliament and with no great assurance that he will be foreign minister more than a month after the conference ends.

He is learned in history, once was a history professor in Paris, and worked his way to the leadership of the "resistance" in France during the German occupation.

Inco makes worthless ore pay off

IN Inco's Creighton mine, there is ore so low in grade that it could not be mined at a profit. In this mine, Inco engineers have adopted a method of mining called "induced caving". In this method, no explosives are required and the ore practically mines itself. So an immense body of ore which was once thought worthless has become a valuable asset to Canada.

Busy Moscow Market Draws Big Crowds
Despite Inferior Produce, Higher Prices

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW — Moscow's central market might be a marketplace anywhere in the world. The farmers and their portly wives remind me of those at home and the bargaining between them and their customers is just as keen.

In Moscow, produce sold in the market is more expensive and is inferior in quality to that sold in the shops. With no rationing and cheaper prices, one asks why people go to market at all.

vegetables in your shopping bag. Milk, honey and yogurt are poured into containers you bring with you. Fowl are carried away by the legs or neck.

HANDLING VARIED

One farmer and his wife, with white aprons and cuff protectors, had their beef cuts spread out attractively under a show-case and sold everything at 12 rubles a kilo.

Others had their meat on an open counter and customers used long-handled steel forks to pick them up for inspection.

Beef varied from nine to 17 rubles (four to seven rubles 73 kopeks a pound), the latter for steaks. Lamb was consistently 17 rubles, whether in chop or roast, but pork varied from 17 rubles for roasts to 21 for chops. Bacon, extremely fat, was 30 rubles (13 rubles 63 kopeks a pound). In the stores it costs 11 rubles a pound.

AVOID QUEUES

"Because," said a housewife, "sometimes we are in a hurry and haven't time to wait in a queue if the shops are crowded; this is quicker but more expensive."

After they have delivered state-required quotas, farmers bring their surplus produce to market where the state also operates stalls.

Most stalls are indoors. There are great halls with stone counters, some with show cases. The buildings specialize in fruits and vegetables in one, meats in another and meats and dairy products in a third.

Moscow is a city in which a high school teacher earns 800 rubles a month; his principal 1,800 and a barber 1,000.

The artificial exchange rate set by the Russian government is 25 cents a ruble (100 kopeks) but the real purchasing value of the ruble is only from five to eight cents because of inflated prices.

POTATO PRICES

We were especially interested in the price of potatoes, a staple which I have been told, the Russians hope in time to provide free to the public. A state-operated stall sold a medium-sized brand at 40 kopeks a kilo (2 1/3 pounds). That made the spuds about 18 kopeks a pound.

For people in a hurry many were bargaining, but there was a queue at the state stall for the cheaper price.

Other vegetables available were carrots, between two and 2.50 rubles a kilo. Carrots brought the same price whether scrubbed or not; onions were the medium-sized cooking variety at two rubles.

Most expensive item was dried mushrooms at 80 rubles (36 rubles a pound). In the shop they sell for 25 rubles (11 rubles a pound) but are not always available. They are sold looped together on a string.

Nothing is wrapped at the market except meats. You pile

Terrace Major Port in CPA Northwest Expansion Plans

Special to The Daily News

TERRACE— Plans for maximum use of Terrace airport with direct scheduled flights to Vancouver by Canadian Pacific Airlines were outlined at the annual meeting of the Terrace and District Board of Trade.

Dudley Little reported that the Terrace fire department has been recognized by insurance companies and as a result, favorable fire insurance terms are now available.

A moment's silence was observed in memory of the late Will Robinson.

L. C. Smalley, supervisor and sales director for CPA in British Columbia, told the board that CPA hopes to obtain a first-class licence this spring for operation in the northwest.

Demands for air transportation in the area, including points as far north as Tulsequah, are increasing he said, and he felt that much of that traffic could be funneled through Terrace, with direct flights to Vancouver.

Two beacons and other flight aids were required at the Terrace airport, he said.

Fred Macklin, secretary of school district 53, was elected president of the board. Mr. Macklin, board secretary during the past year, succeeds in late Will Robinson as president.

Other officers elected were: Jim McConnell, first vice-president; Lionel Houle, second vice-president; Larry Pruden, secretary and Jim Norrington, treasurer. C. J. Norrington installed the new officers.

Annual reports heard at the session emphasized the board's continuing efforts to assure construction of a Terrace-Kitimat highway, and provision for a direct power line into Terrace from Kitimat.

Twelve tables were in play at the enjoyable event.

Challengers' Accuracy at Foul Line Sees Alaskan Squad Downed 48-42

Accuracy at the free shot line paid off for Prince Rupert Co-op Challengers Saturday night as they defeated Ketchikan Rockets 48-42 in a foul-studded game at the Civic Centre.

The win gave the Challengers a 50-50 split on the two game weekend series, Rockets winning the first game 63-54, and one win out of four in the home and home series between this city and the Alaskan Centre.

A total of 33 fouls proved costly to the Ketchikan squad as the Challengers sank 60 per cent of their foul shots or 30 out of 50 chances. Don Scherk netted 8 free shots in eight tries, Rupe Holkestad sank 10 out of 18 and Ray Sprig made 9 out of 17 chances. Challengers were penalized 14 times.

The Rockets outscored the Challengers in field goals 15-9.

Harlan Johnson opened the scoring for the Rockets but at 8:50 of the first quarter Prince Rupert's Pop Pay tied it up. The Challengers pressed hard but their shooting was off and the first quarter ended 8-8.

Seven free shots completed out of 8 plus field goals by Holkestad, Don Scherk and Ray Sprig wiped out baskets by Harold Leibowitz, John Christopher and J. J. Mackey in the second quarter which the Challengers took 13-8 for a 21-16 half time lead.

Challengers only got one field goal in the third quarter, scored by Don Scherk, as Rockets' Herman Ludwigen, Bill Martinsen with two baskets and Larry Erickson with another tried to come back. However, the Challengers sank 8 out of 13 free shots to the Rockets 4 out of 8 to end up with a 31-28 third quarter lead.

Sinking 11 free shots out of 22, plus three field goals, in the final quarter, Challengers more than matched the five field goals sunk by Ketchikan who only had 7 shots to take and sank only four of them.

DON SCHERK SHINES
Don Scherk again stood out for the Challengers both in scoring 12 points and robbing Rocket players of the ball. Rupe Holkestad was Challengers' top point getter with 18 followed by Ray Sprig with 13.

Only two of the Rockets failed to hit the basket with Martinsen heading the list with 10 points.

Two technical fouls were handed out during the game, one to each team, Prince Rupert for "lip from the bench" and Ketchikan for "language unbecoming to a sportsman" which foul made it five for Mackey, Ludwigen and Martinsen also fouled-out for the Rockets.

In a preliminary Inter B exhibition game Sunrise Grocery led by Bob Sankey with 12 points downed Nelson Brothers to the tune of 35-25.

Malayans Win Shuttle Title

VICTORIA (CP) — Plays in the 34th annual British Columbia badminton championships was concluded Saturday before nearly 1,000 shuttle enthusiasts.

Top-seeded Eddy Choong of Malaya came through with a straight set win over tournament-weary Joe Alston, Pasadena, Calif., 15-8, 15-13.

After battling the agile Malayan hard in the second set, Alston called for two points at 13 all rather than the usual five. Choong salted away the winning points with devastating smashes. Paired with brother David, Eddy also won the doubles crown from Alston and Wynn Rogers, Pasadena, in handy fashion 15-5, 15-6.

Bo-Me-Hi Trims Kay-Hi 46-41 To Split International Series

Paced by Dick Nickerson on the offense and with Rod Tait and Rey McKay turning in outstanding performances on defence, Prince Rupert Booth Memorial High school Rainmakers downed Ketchikan High school 46-41 to win the second game of a four-game home-and-home series in Ketchikan Saturday night.

Last two games of the series for the international high school trophy will be played between the two schools in Prince Rupert around February 25 and 26. Prince Rupert must win the final two games to take the series.

Nickerson led the Bo-Me-Hi squad with 12 points as the Rainmakers took the first quarter 18-9 and led 23-13 at the half. Prince Rupert managed to out-score the Ketchikan squad 12-10 in the third quarter and the rallying Alaskan high schoolers who came back to take the last quarter 15-11 in the final frame, couldn't cut down the extensive Bo-Me-Hi lead. Tucker led Ketchikan with 13 points.

LINEUPS:
Rainmakers — Nickerson 12, Tait 8, McKay 8, Kristmanson 7, HeIn 5, Ciccone 6, Morison, Sankey, Black, Forbes. Total 46.

Ketchikan—Tucker 13, Vincent 8, Auger 4, Antonson 3, Andis 6, Maddox 5, Johanson 2. Total 41.

Lions Awarded Weinmeister

REGINA (CP) — A new voice with mighty lungs will be heard in western football this year.

British Columbia Lions successfully gained admission to the Western Interprovincial Football Union at the league's annual meeting here this week-end, despite a threat by Saskatchewan Roughriders to block their entry as the fifth team in the conference.

Lions also were awarded Arnie Weinmeister, 30-year-old former tackle for New York Giants of the National Football League. Saskatchewan officials had contended he should have been able toicker with them alone because he was on the Rider negotiation list. Weinmeister already has signed for two years with Lions.

WIFU commissioner ruled he was not on the Saskatchewan list when signed by Lions.

Dale Makes Decision, Drives Home on Trick Two
 This is one of those touchy hands which seem to occur much too often and in which an important decision has to be made at the very first trick.

Mr. Champion led the five of hearts and Mr. Dale had to make up his mind whether to hold off or to win. If the diamond finesse was right, nine tricks were immediately available—six diamonds, two hearts and a club.

But if Mr. Dale had the king of diamonds, there were only five tricks in that suit and a spade trick would have to be picked up to make the required nine. In this latter case, the hold-up at trick one seemed to be called for.

However, there was another point to consider. If the defenders were permitted to hold the first trick, what if they shifted to clubs—a suit in which Mr. Dale had just one stopper? Then the diamond finesse would have to be right.

Mr. Dale realized that he might go set no matter how he played. But if the hand was hard to play, it was also hard to defend. In view of the danger of a club shift he elected to forget about the hold-up and to put the defenders on the spot at trick two.

Accordingly, he won with the ace of hearts and led a spade from the board. It should have been clear to Mr. Abel that the old master was trying to steal a spade trick, else why was he ignoring the long diamond suit in dummy?

Apparently it wasn't clear, for Mr. Abel played low. Mr. Dale won with the king of spades and shifted to the 10 of diamonds which was ducked in dummy. With one spade trick home he didn't care now whether the finesse worked or not as he had nine sure winners.

Refining May Not Be Necessary For Uranium Found in Australia

ADELAIDE, Australia (CP)—Australia of the richest form of uranium ore. Mining experts claim that pitchblende found at Wild Dog Valley, only 40 miles from this South Australian state capital, represents the first discovery in Australia.

'Bandleader Should Stay With Band, Not Customers'

LONDON (Reuters)—Controversy has split the black-tie-and-carnation hired help at London's glittering night spots.

The question: Should a band leader stand up and wave his baton all night or should he cruise around the flood trading gags with the expensive customers and having a drink here and there?

A London high court judge decided the leader's place is on the bandstand—and set off the controversy.

Bandleader-disc jockey Paul Adam was trying to sue the ritzy Astor Club for $14,000 damages he claimed he suffered when the club fired him for not staying on the bandstand. Adam contended it was his job to do more "mingling," as he called it, than baton-waving.

After a three-day hearing the court rejected Adam's claim. "There was nothing in the contract that meant Mr. Adam should act as host," the judge said.

In the champagne and show-girl nightclubs around London's West End there were plenty to disagree with the judge, not himself a notable nightclub customer.

One such was one of Mayfair's top band names, Ambrose. He estimated he gets paid about $30 a week as a musician and about $2,000 as a personality.

"I have to make them feel at home," he said.

Harry Roy, another top Mayfair name, said at the Copacabana: "I never go on the stand until the place has warmed up. Conduct? I give 'em a flick of the eyebrow and they're away for the night."

Paul Adam himself was not crying over spilt champagne. Now playing at the Milroy Club at a reputed $1,000 a week, he said: "Why should I worry? Here I wander around the club as I like. Everybody is happy."

lumps of the ore contain 70 per cent or more of uranium oxide.

The pitchblende at Rum Jungle, Australia's major uranium field in the Northern Territory, is not in the massive form, but is finely disseminated through black slate.

EASILY REFINED

The advantage of the newly-discovered ore lies in the readiness with which it can be refined to uranium oxide. Sir Douglas Mawson, one of Australia's top geologists, believes that if the deposits prove extensive, some of the ore may be capable of export without any refining.

A large refinery is under construction at Port Pirie, in South Australia, to handle the ore from another established state field at Uranium Hill. Shafting soon will be sunk at Wild Dog Valley in an effort to locate a pitchblende lode. If it is found a uranium mine will be established there.

Meanwhile, the South Australian government has awarded $500 to the two brothers, W. F. and J. J. Wenham, who found the deposit, and has reserved mineral rights over a large part of the area.

Atomic experts say that, Australia, although she has achieved world status as a uranium source, cannot hope for her own power supply from atomic energy for at least 10 years.

Bob Chidwick Purchases Van Meer Studio

R. W. A. (Bob) Chidwick, manager of the Van Meer photography studio here for the past two and a half years, has purchased the business and will continue to operate it under the same name.

Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Van Meer opened the business here six years ago.

Born in Winnipeg, and schooled in that city and in Vancouver, Mr. Chidwick started professional photography in 1933, training under R. A. Spencer in Vancouver.

He joined the photographic department of the RCAF in 1939 and served until 1946 when he returned to the professional photography field in Vancouver. He came to Prince Rupert to manage the Van Meer Studio in August, 1951.

Change of Name Irks Foresters

SALEM, Ore. (CP)—Oregon's state foresters, miffed because the U.S. Forest Service has changed the name of the Douglas fir, are going to ignore the change.

The Douglas fir is Oregon's state tree by action of the 1939 Legislature. The law making it the state tree calls it "pseudotsuga taxifolia."

The U.S. Forest Service, in cooperation with forestry agencies of other countries, recently changed the name to "menziesii."

Homer G. Lyon Jr., State Forestry Department's publicity man, said his department does not like the change, and that Oregon can't recognize it without action by the legislature.

Lyon said the forestry men here don't like the idea of changing a name that has existed 150 years.

The argument is over which of two Scottish naturalists, David Douglas or Archibald Menzies, discovered the tree.

Lyon said many authorities say Douglas discovered it, naming it "pseudotsuga taxifolia." The discovery was made in British Columbia.

Other authorities give credit to Menzies, saying he discovered the tree in 1791 on Vancouver Island.

Lyon says Menzies did file his report first, in 1804. He claims Douglas, although filing his report in 1805, actually made the first discovery.

Army Officer Threatened As Former Prisoner Charged

WASHINGTON (CP)—Cpl. Edward S. Dickenson, the former prisoner-of-war who changed his mind about remaining with the Communists and then was charged with unlawfully dealing with the enemy, is described by one of his lawyers as "quite a sick man."

Lt.-Col. Edward W. Hendrick said Sunday night the 23-year-old soldier from Crackers Neck, Va., is "obviously run down and nervous and was very much surprised and shocked when these charges were read to him Friday night."

An inquiry will determine whether the returned POW must face court-martial trial.

The case meanwhile continued to have repercussions both inside and out of the defence department.

Col. Norman F. Sprowl, public information officer for the Washington command who announced the filing of the charges Friday night, said he had received three threatening telephone calls and had been given permission to carry his service pistol at all times.

Sprowl said one man who called from somewhere in West Virginia early Sunday "said he didn't like the way we were handling the case—asked if we hadn't agreed to give 'these guys' liberty."

"The general idea was 'we'll get you for this,'" Sprowl added.

Assistant Defence Secretary John A. Hannah said the defence department has planned for some time to take action against returned war prisoners when their action justified it.

The charges against Dickenson, which are subject to further investigation by the army, are that he had unlawful dealings with the Communists and carried favor with his captors to the detriment of fellow prisoners.

Dickenson first decided, under the Korean armistice arrangements, to remain with the Communists, then changed his mind and came home.

SCREEN FLASHES

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (CP)—Hughes has run one of Hollywood's major motion picture studios for years. But he has never been inside it.

He confirmed that long-cherished suspicion in a rare personal interview, sitting in an inexpensive, four-year-old car on a rainy, darkened airfield.

There have been two stories going the rounds about Hughes and RKO studio. One was that he had never been on the lot.

The other was that he was through it one night, saying a word until he started out the gate. Then he snapped: "Put it."

Hughes says he has "never been in the place."

In a quarter century in Hollywood, Hughes hasn't given a handful of interviews or press conferences. Only occasionally does a reporter get to talk with him.

Hollywood often thinks of Hughes as a grim, ruthless, dominating man. During the time he was charming and outgoing, laughing heartily and often.

Hughes released both "The Outlaw" and the current "Front Line" without seals of approval from the Motion Picture Association. He claims neither has been cut because of censor trouble.

A police morality squad has two scenes of "Front Line" objectionable, but authorities took no action.

"The Outlaw" was given a "C" (or condemned) rating by the Legion of Decency on its first release. Hughes later agreed to revisions which made it "B" (or morally objectionable) part. He says the revisions obtained only to advertising.
