Government Prepared To Run Hospitals Hit by Finances

VICTORIA — The B.C. Social Credit government soon may be in business of running several hospitals in the province, Premier Bennett told a press conference Friday the government is prepared to take over any hospital which finds itself in the same financial difficulties as the North Vancouver Hospital.

SEVENTEEN PARACHUTE TO SAFETY FROM PLANE

LONDON — Seventeen crew members of a United States bomber parachuted safely just before their $3,000,000 bomber crashed on the last few miles of a flight from Texas. The plane was enroute from Texas in a flight with 16 other bombers which landed safely.

Liquor Board Report Differs from Commission Findings

VICTORIA (CP)—The chairman of the British Columbia Liquor Board and the three-member inquiry commission sharply about conditions in the province's beer parlors. Mr. McGugan, board chairman, said in a report that conditions are "deplorable" not only in beer parlors but in government liquor stores as well. Provisions in the Liquor Act against drunkenness, gambling and disorderly conduct in taverns were being ignored.

The commission said inspection methods were "grossly incompetent." Mr. McGugan said the inspection department has "enjoyed the full co-operation of holders of all licences." Twenty-three beer licences had been cancelled in the year ending last March.

Mr. McGugan said 6,112 inspections were made of beer parlors, 1,023 of clubs, 512 of liquor stores and 458 investigations carried out. The commission said some hotels were little more than "slums." Mr. McGugan said "improvement in the existing hotels has continued throughout the province, both to the hotels proper and licensed premises."

Hotels had spent $2,319,870 on improvements during the year. Mr. McGugan admitted there had been "considerable difficulty" keeping minors out of taverns and "every endeavor has been made to eliminate this objectionable practice."

Crash Kills Six

BORDEAUX — A French passenger plane crashed in fog, today, killing six of 21 persons aboard. Others were burned or injured.

London May Finance Garages from Parking Meter Revenue

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain is considering installing parking meters in the heart of London. The immediate effect might be to reduce traffic congestion in the streets of the biggest city in the world. But judging from the experience of large American cities, as long as the cars are on the streets the traffic remains — parking meters would be to pennies and sixpences to finance construction of huge underground garages.

Trafalgar Square, for example, at a given moment during the rush hour may be clogged with as many as 50 lumbering double-decker buses and dozens of automobiles circling around the towering Nelson column. Park meters in the surrounding streets would not check the crawling flow of traffic, but a garage under the bustling square could take more than 10,000 of these cars out of circulation.

The traffic problem is increasingly urgent for London. Since the war the city has been spreading out and more and more people are commuting to work by car.

Parking lots in unrepainted bombed sites provided a stop-gap solution but they are now being filled in by new buildings.

A committee has been studying the city's traffic problem ever since 1951 and is expected to file its report soon.

CCF Should Get Opportunity To Take Over If Socreds Fall

Kenney Criticizes Government Policy

VICTORIA (CP)—Liberal leader E. T. Kenney said in the provincial legislature Friday that if the Social Credit Government falls the CCF should be given a chance to govern without a new election being called.

The veteran member for Skeena said the Liberals will challenge the government and cause its downfall if it "goes off the deep end" in legislation.

Premier Bennett interrupted: "why don't you move an amendment to the Throne Speech then?"

This would mean a motion of non-confidence in the government which, if upheld by a vote, would bring about the fall of the government.

Mr. Kenney replied: "I'm not going to do your dirty work for you."

Mr. Kenney said the Social Credit and CCF equally balanced with 18 members each, not including the speaker.

"Labor member Tom Uphill of Fernie usually supported the CCF, and if the government fell, the CCF should be given a chance to form a government as it would have a strength of 18 with the support of Mr. Uphill and not including the speaker."

Mr. Kenney noted the Social Credit and CCF had given each other their second choices on the alternative ballot and said: "They wanted to make so sure the Liberals wouldn't go back that they both gyped themselves."

He said education minister Tilly Rolston, in moving the address in reply to the Throne Speech, "crowded" for 25 minutes over Social Credit's victory. This was hardly "efficiency with economy" as preached by the Social Credit.

Mr. Kenney said the people in the northern half of the province had not had equal opportunity to be heard by the liquor inquiry commission. Spending only $10,000 on the inquiry was "false economy."

He said labor legislation should have been given primary consideration but there was no mention of it in the Throne Speech.

Workmen's compensation and hospital insurance should have ranked second and third, but there was no mention of them, either, he said.

On redistribution of legislative seats, he said outlying ridings with great natural resources should not be represented by fewer members than now. "Development in the last few years had not been in cities, but in the north."

A ridge of high pressure building behind it will bring partial clearing but there will be scattered rain showers in coastal areas.

Forecast

North Coast Region: Variable cloudiness with widely scattered showers today. Cloudy Sunday with rain beginning in the northern part about noon spreading to the southern part in the evening.

Little change in temperature. Winds westerly 25 today, southerly 25 tomorrow.

Low tonight and high Sunday at Port Hardy 35 and 45; Sandspit and Prince Rupert 36 and 44.

He stressed the action was taken on the "sole responsibility" of the U.S. government.

"Our consistent position has been that his island should be neutralized, so far as that is possible, while hostilities continue in Korea," said Mr. Pearson.

Winch Raps Bennett

VICTORIA — No member of Social Credit government will speak on the throne debate next week in the legislature, it was announced Friday.

Speaking in Oak Bay, Harold Winch, CCF opposition leader, charged Premier Bennett with trying to force fast dissolution of the House so he could return to "ruling by order-in-council."

Rupert Fighter Loses

VANCOUVER — Andy Marshall, 1952 lightweight amateur boxing champion of B.C., lost his middleweight bout at the Pacific Northwest Diamond Belt tournament here last night after giving a crowd of 2,500 the evening's best entertainment.

Marshall and Bill Workman of Portland fought to a split decision in a rough toe-to-toe slugfest that brought the fans to their feet many times.

Workman had the edge in science and ability but Marshall's powerful punching had Workman in trouble in the second round, when he tagged the American with a crashing left hook, and bothered him throughout the bout.

Glen (Tiny) Carlson, 1952 provincial heavyweight titleholder, does not box until tonight.

The prince Rupert fighters both won their titles in the Golden Gloves tournament here last year.

Jail Costs In B.C. Up 65 Per Cent

VICTORIA (CP)—Cost of living in British Columbia jails shot up 65 per cent in a single year.

The annual report of the inspector of jails, tabled in the Legislature by Attorney-General Robert Bonner, showed the average cost of feeding a prisoner last year was 91 cents a day. The previous year it was 59 cents.

Numbers of prisoners in the four county jails—Oakalla, Nelson, Kamloops and Prince George—rose from 8,203 in 1950-51 to 8,368 last year. Of these, 392 were drug addicts.

Former warden John Millman of Oakalla again stressed overcrowding in the jail and urged additional prisoner accommodation immediately.

Kinsmen Fund $300 Over Quota

The Kinsmen Club of B.C. Polio fund here received another welcome boost Friday when principal A. M. Hurst presented Bill Bond with a cheque for $60 on behalf of the student council at Booth Memorial High School.

Mr. Bond, chairman of the campaign, said the donation from the students, sent the total collected here to $1,360. The Prince Rupert club had set an objective of $1,000.

Up to Friday night 337 citizens had answered direct-mail appeal letters giving $985 and the balance is made up of $259 from the hockey game here two weeks ago between the Gyros and the Elks, and $55 from the Junior Red Cross Society at Borden Street School.

THE 2,166-TON NORWEGIAN freighter Congo, blown ashore by high gales, rests against a marine ship on the Dartmouth side of Halifax harbor. The ship was pulled free by three tugs but four of the wharf's cradles were damaged.

Groups Across Canada Start Drive to Help Flood Victims

Organizations throughout Canada are all stepping forward to help the thousands of victims in flood-ravaged Europe.

The IOOE here is holding a tag day in Prince Rupert today with the entire proceeds to go to the flood relief fund and at a meeting last night members of the Job's Daughters unanimously endorsed a motion by one of the teen-age girls to donate $50 to the fund.

Late yesterday, Premier Bennett announced B.C. plans to provide free lumber for Britain to help rebuild flood-ravaged homes.

He was speaking on a suggestion by Mrs. Laura Jamieson (CCF-Vancouver Centre) that the government send financial aid to Britain immediately.

At the same time, the premier said in a telegram to Prime Minister St. Laurent he would be "delighted" to serve on the Canadian premiers' committee for European Flood Relief.

Mr. Bennett said in the House there is unsold B.C. lumber in Britain. "This lumber might be more welcome than cash."

Mrs. Jamieson said she was glad to hear what was being done but added that some financial aid should be sent at once.

The Canadian Red Cross Society has offered all assistance possible in the flood-ravaged countries and an RCAF plane with two workers is now enroute over the Atlantic. It is carrying 1,500 army blankets, seven cases of clothes and bedding and half a ton of shoes.

There will be NO special Red Cross appeal for funds, but the many branches across Canada are prepared to accept special donations for purchasing relief supplies.

At Ottawa, Dr. J. Auer, president of the newly-organized nationwide Netherlands Flood Relief Fund in Canada, today thanked the CARE overseas food and textile agency for allocating 200 food and blanket packages to flood disaster areas in the Netherlands.

The United Church of Canada, through its overseas relief committee, has forwarded $10,000 for relief of flood-stricken families in Great Britain and Holland.

The relief, the Church announced today, will be handled in Great Britain through British churches and in Holland through the Dutch Reformed Church.

The city of Toronto started a fund for its citizens by sending $1,500, of which $1,000 was intended for British flood victims and $500 for those on the Continent.

The Senate unanimously extended sympathy to the people of the flood-stricken areas and promised them material aid.

A resolution similar to that passed last Monday in the Commons was sponsored in the Senate by Senator Wishart Robertson, government leader, and Senator John T. Haig, Progressive Conservative leader.

Senator Robertson said Canada in the past has been the recipient of help and he is sure that all Canadians join with the government in an expression of sympathy and a desire to send whatever help is needed.

Meanwhile, reports said flood waters receded steadily from disaster regions of Holland as thousands toiled to rebuild ridged dikes.

Holland's death toll stands at 1,372; Britain counted 546 dead, and Belgium 23.

Britain Hopes to Increase Spending Power in Canada

LONDON — The British government has expressed its determination to spend as much as its dollar resources will allow on development in Canada.

This was disclosed in the Commons debate on the December Commonwealth conference by Richard Butler, chancellor of the exchequer.

"It has been a tragedy of the modern Commonwealth that for various economic reasons we have not been able to have in this sphere closer ties with Canada," Butler said.

Butler said work is going ahead on one project called "Commonwealth Finance Corporation."

This was formed by a group of British financial and industrial concerns to sound out Commonwealth development. He planned to make a detailed announcement on its progress in a few weeks.

Butler said Britain would be enabled, consistent with the basic provisions of the General Agreement on Trade and Tariffs, to continue duty-free entry of Commonwealth goods. Increase in duty, however, might become necessary from time to time to protect Britain's own agriculture and industry.

David Croll, Liberal member of Parliament for Toronto Spadina. Currie is the chief witness before the Commons special committee formed to study the report.

Help the Flood Victims

ONCE again, Prince Rupert citizens have the opportunity to show how quickly they can come to the aid of others who are suffering because of sudden disaster.

A campaign for funds to relieve suffering and damage caused by a week of ravaging ocean floods in parts of coastal England, in Belgium and in a great portion of the Netherlands, is underway here.

The campaign started off Thursday night when 45 Dutch men and women rallied to organize help for their countrymen as well as those in other stricken areas.

Right at the meeting, these new Canadians dug deep into their pockets with average donations of more than $25 per person. They had only one thought: Let's help those who are less fortunate than we, and let's help them the very best we can.

Today, another body devoted to service went into action. The receipts from the IODE tag day also will go to the European Relief Fund.

Next week, every householder in the community will be asked to give. Let's do it freely, even if it pinches a little, for what we can provide for the homeless, the injured, the orphans and the destitute over there will be repaid many times over by alleviation of suffering, saving of lives.

Prince Rupert has done it before. The city was outstanding in giving to the 1948 B.C. flood relief fund. It rose to the fore again two years later when the city of Winnipeg was hit by even greater flood disaster.

Now the ravages of death-dealing, uncontrolled water has struck in Europe, but on a scale which dwarfs the damage and toll of lives in the Canadian disasters.

It is impossible to envision, for the average, the havoc which has been wrecked when millions of densely-populated acres of land are suddenly swelled over by 20 to 30 feet of driving water. Such has been the case in Holland; to a lesser degree in England and in Belgium.

While Europe may seem far away to many, it is brought much closer when its people are in trouble. There are many ties between this country and those overseas. Who, but the native, can say they or their ancestors did not originate there a few decades ago?

They are our fellowmen, and they are in dire trouble, so let's help them.

WHERE IT STARTED

The Currie report has caused countless jests and cartoons at the expense of the Department of Defence. We all enjoy a laugh but jesting apart, should hundreds of cemeteries, hospitals and invalids be subjects of mirth? Horses or no horses, that's what it all harks back to.

North Vancouver General Hospital will shut down in a month unless this higher wage demand is forgotten. It means $72,000 more, and perhaps it's not here where you write Finis.

More power to the local movement to improve the museum in making it more of a tourist and educational centre. This is something in which everyone can co-operate. Prince Rupert is the centre of a huge and picturesque region—the sort of hub into which all sorts of objects can find their way as time goes on, and public interest keeps alive and aggressive.

Seagulls, ravens and crows are seen at Prince Rupert 365 times annually, but this week we noted something different in midwinter bird life. A dozen feathered strangers—plump, little, given to occasional twitters, and hopping about one leafless tree, had a hungry look.

More Flying Saucers

BILL BOSS has come home on leave from Korea with the most sensational report yet of the mystery aircraft, which have been nicknamed flying saucers.

The CBC war correspondent told a CBC national network audience how U.S. planes encountered strange craft "like giant ferris wheels" and how the automatic electronic devices of the U.S. planes automatically guided the U.S. jets to the flying saucers, which were hovering motionless. But when the U.S. planes neared the saucers, the latter took off and easily outdistanced the Yank jets—though the latter were going over 600 miles per hour.

EX-PRESIDENT TRUMAN now says he does not believe the Russians have the atom bomb after all.

Had Harry said that a year earlier it would have been a sensation. Was the former President trying to deceive us in office, in order to get through a big armament program, or is he kidding us now?

We are all from Missouri, Harry.

THE American government now says it is going to lift the ban which for nearly three years has prevented Chiang Kai-shek from raiding the mainland of China.

The Communist armies which will be on hand to meet the raiders will be well armed with the vast stores of U.S. arms which were supplied to Chiang's armies and which fell into the Red armies' hands, usually without any real fight.

This may turn out to be a Chinese form of Gallup poll.

IN NEW YEAR predictions published here I recorded one by a noted mystic foretelling "the worst ship disaster since the Titanic." Now that the above prediction has come so swiftly, tragically true, I have checked back on the remainder of the same prophet's forecasts.

Here they are: "The Soviets will not win the B.C. election" by a clear majority. Neither will Liberals win the federal election by outright majority. Mr. St. Laurent will, after election, have to choose between coalition or new election.

Winston Churchill will resign in late summer. War will not end in Korea till August 23, 1954. Many reports of flying saucers will be made this year. There will be another worse railway wreck in Britain. A new type of hydrogen bomb will sadly upset Canada's weather.

The U.S. will go to war with Russia in August 1957. So says the mystic who foretold the big shipwreck off Scotland.

AN OUTSPOKEN reader in Lloydminster, Saskatchewan, says our Lester Pearson is not fit to be Secretary General of UN because he knuckles under too much to U.S. But he is specially shocked to learn the Secretary General draws $60,000 per year, tax free.

I think my friend would find that most of that money goes to defray expenses which are incidental to the job—but of a kind which cannot be charged up directly.

Our own M.P.'s at Ottawa are woefully underpaid. It is getting so now that no man can consider taking the M.P.'s job unless he has private income.

UNDER OUR ROOF

By JOHN STURDY

Hamish came out to the shed the other night and told me I was wanted on the telephone.

I dread telephones, but at least it was an opportunity to get inside the house and take a look around; a rare occasion these days, what with our guests, Hamish and Little Augie and Col. S. Skeffington-Smutts (Ret.) and Anastasia Skeffington-Smutts living in the house, and my family and me living in the shed.

The voice that greeted me over the telephone gave me a distinct shock. It was a voice out of the past; in fact, it belonged to one of my old schoolmasters from Back East, who happened to be holidaying on the Coast and thought he would give me a ring. Well, it was a great pleasure to talk to him, and as a matter of fact it made me feel quite young, because if one of my former schoolmasters was still alive, I couldn't be too old.

"Still pounding Latin into small heads?" I inquired.

"Oh, no," he said. "I've retired."

"Just recently, I suppose?"

"I've been retired for the past twenty years," he said. "Of course, that was some time after you left school."

"How's the weather back east?"

I interrupted, brushing a grey hair off my shoulder.

SENTIMENTAL MOOD

Well, it was still a great pleasure talking to him, and when I went back to the shed I'll admit I was in a pretty nostalgic and sentimental mood, thinking about the old days when I was a schoolboy. You know, you read so much about juvenile delinquency in this day and age that sometimes it frightens you, but if you just turn back the clock a bit, you come to the conclusion—at least I do—that in the days of our youth we were not delinquents—we were downright criminal.

Of course, the masters knew how to handle us. Perhaps these progressive schools are fine and dandy, but I think there was a lot to be said about the old system. We either survived or were broken on the rack. It is astonishing how many survived, and actually became good citizens.

CRIMINAL TYPES

Definitely we started out being criminal types. Psychiatry was practically unknown in those days, so nobody paid much attention to what we were doing. After all, we were just following in the footsteps of centuries of other criminal adolescents.

Our crimes were many and varied, and at times we would stop at nothing—not even blackmail. I indulged in this sport once or twice, and sitting there in the shed thinking of my school days, I was reminded of one particular occasion.

That was the time I poured the gallon pot of glue over "Fat-stuff" Grogan's head. Naturally I was banished from the class—I don't remember the subject, but it was given weekly—and that meant that once a week I had an afternoon free. I think I was supposed to sit in the library and study, but I knew a better place—the front row centre of the Gayety Theatre.

The Gayety was a burlesque house. And in those days burlesque was much better theatre than most of the things you see today. It was the time of the famous Columbia Wheel—of great artists like Sliding Billy Watson—and naturally GIRLS.

So on the afternoons of banishment I would grab a streetcar and dash downtown to be early at the box-office and obtain a seat in the first row.

One intermission, when the house lights came up and the hawkers started to peddle their peanuts and popcorn down the aisles, I prepared to leave my seat. Turning, I happened to stare directly into the eyes of the man behind me.

They were familiar eyes. In fact, they belonged to the chemistry master from our school.

Well, the Gayety was no place for a chemistry master to be, let alone one of his pupils, and I can't remember which of us was the more startled. He made for one aisle and I made for the other, and I am quite certain that there were two vacant seats in that house for the rest of the performance.

Well, the point is that the chemistry master couldn't do very much about me. On the other hand...

That was the year I just managed to pass in most of my subjects. Except for one. When the standing for the final chemistry exam was posted—lo, my name led all the rest!

That chemistry master knew the score, all right.

OTTAWA DIARY

By Norman M. MacLeod

A week ago yesterday will long be remembered in Capital circles as the date of the greatest political gamble ever taken by a Canadian government or party leader.

It was on that day that Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent decided to summon railway management and labor leaders, locked in intransigent disagreement in Montreal, to Ottawa.

The stakes for which the Prime Minister was playing in his summons were high indeed. If the sobering magic of the Ottawa air, abetted by the government's good offices, could resolve a situation which on the surface appeared completely hopeless, the nation would be spared the disaster of a rail strike. In addition, Liberal Government prestige, which was no higher than the famous Currie report had boosted it—that was about cellar level—would soar once more. The public memory is notoriously short and forgiving. The rail strike crisis looked like a Heaven-sent opportunity to relegate the juicy details of the Currie indictment to the limbo of forgotten issues.

But if the rewards of success were dazzling, the penalty for failure would be equally great. Nationally, there would be the disruption to the economy of a complete railway stoppage. Politically, the government would be in the unenviable position of the referee who walks in between two opponents in a slugging match. Only the government would get belted from three sides, instead of just from two. The public, in addition to railway management and railway labor, would blame them for a clumsy failure.

The situation was especially risky because of the expectations which the summons to Ottawa had raised amongst the disputants. Railway labor expected suddenly to be threatened with arbitrary government legislation to prevent a strike. Railway management felt almost smugly secure, for it shared the same belief. It expected the government to pull its labor chestnuts out of the fire for it.

ROLE OF P.M.

It was small wonder, therefore, that the first meetings on Thursday in Ottawa appeared simply to intensify the stalemate. By the time of the mid-afternoon adjournment, the situation looked to the naked eye to be worse than ever. It was at that juncture that the Prime Minister had his hour-long conference with President Donald Gordon of the Canadian National Railway. What was said at that meeting probably will never be known exactly. But Mr. St. Laurent convinced the CNR head that, instead of solving the problem of the railways, arbitrary government legislation such as they were, in effect, inviting, would boomerang against them by wrecking their labor relationships for all time to come. Gordon returned to the conference room that evening. The strike was off. The Prime Minister had won.

Saturday Sermon

By REV. FRED ANTROBUS, First Baptist Church

GOD'S FELLOW WORKERS—1 Cor. 3:9.

"Laborers together with God." This is indeed a solemn thought; God needs men to carry out His purposes. We read that "God was in Christ reconciling the world unto Himself." We also read Paul's word, "We beseech you, in Christ's stead, be ye reconciled unto God." That is it—God choosing and using men to be the instruments of His purpose, the messengers of His mercy and grace, the doors of His will.

True, on the Cross, Jesus spoke the triumphant word; "It is finished." But for the distribution and application of that finished work, God depends upon men. The coming of the Son of God into the world, and His Sacrifice for our sins at Calvary, created a gospel to preach, which provides forgiveness of sins, and eternal life.

But the spreading abroad of that supernatural revelation, is left in the hands of men, who work through natural processes, and who thus become laborers together with God; and enable the Lord Jesus to be to single souls, in blessed reality, what He is potentially to the world—our Savior and Lord! He died on the Cross to finish the work of redemption, doing thus a work only He, as God the Son, could do. And because this work of His is finished, our work begins.

To Sir Christopher Wren belongs the undying honor of having designed the great cathedral of St. Paul's, London, England, with its famous dome. But he could never, in a million years, have built the dome alone. He

LONDON FASHION — This white brocade gown from the spring collection of Arthur Banks of London illustrates the effect of Coronation ceremonies on fashion. Destined to be worn in Westminster Abbey by peeresses attending the Coronation, the off-shoulder effect is necessary for the proper display of the crimson robes which will be worn over the gown. The tulle petticoat effect is held by brocade leaves and roses sprinkled with silver and diamonds.

Magistrate Says Crime Comics Legal if Actions Told

REGINA (CP)—A Saskatchewan magistrate has ruled that it is legal to sell crime comics as long as they depict actions before and after a crime.

The magistrate cited a subsection of the code defining a crime comic as "any magazine, periodical or book which exclusively or substantially comprises matter depicting pictorially the commission of crimes, real or fictitious."

Magistrate E. S. Williams, QC, dismissed a charge against William Tabor, a news vendor of Vibank, Sask., who was accused of having in his possession for sale after a crime as well as the actual crime itself.

NEWS ...in brief

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (CP)—The stage version of Erskine Caldwell's best-selling novel "Tragic Ground" has been banned in Memphis Wednesday.

"Shockingly and brazenly vile, lewd and indecent," it added. The play had its premiere Tuesday night.

OTTAWA — A Senate committee voted 16 to 4 in favor of granting a charter to a Netherlands-controlled bank for operations in Canada.

JACK ADAMS, general manager of the Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League, was fined $500 for invading the referee's dressing room on the night of a game. League president Clarence Campbell said no useful purpose is ever served by a team official discussing game incidents between periods of the game.

Jean Beliveau May Turn Pro

BOSTON (AP)—President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League says Jean Beliveau, the fabulous young star who played three great trial games this season for Montreal, may turn professional.

The NHL president said that Beliveau's playing status fluctuates with the size of the crowds that turn out to watch him perform with Quebec Aces of the Quebec Senior League.

"Since the crowds there are down now," he added, "there is a chance Beliveau will sign with the Canadiens, possibly before the end of the season."

Canadians Not Invited To Tourney

VANCOUVER — The Canadian Amateur Basketball Association headquarters in Montreal has a question to answer — why were Canadians not invited to the women's world tournament set to open in Santiago, Chile, March 7?

It will be the first tournament for women held under men's rules and the U.S. and several European countries, along with Russia, will have teams entered. "I can't understand why we haven't been invited," said Ebbie Bowering, western CABA representative, here today.

He said women's basketball was discussed during the Olympic meet at Helsinki last year.

Bowering was present during discussions and he told delegates Canada was interested in promoting a comeback of women's basketball.

"I knew a world tournament was being discussed, but I didn't learn when and where it would be held."

Bowering and Miss Ruth Wilson, another western representative of the CABA, have sent a wire to headquarters in Montreal asking why Canada was left off the invitation list.

McNab Named Royals' Coach

VANCOUVER — Owner-manager Kenney MacKenzie fired himself as coach of New Westminster Royals.

MacKenzie, who had been coaching his Western Hockey League club since Walter (Babe) Pratt left Jan. 19, said he had appointed forward Max McNab to fill the job.

"One of the main reasons for appointing McNab is to free me so that I can take in the play-offs on the prairies and other places," MacKenzie said.

SPORTS ROUND-UP

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—The second time, has a more valid claim to recognition than any U.S. fighter. The new joint middleweight champion for years. It might even be that Sugar Ray Robinson, who retired recently to become a song and dance man, will go down in the record books as the last of the 150-pound kings.

You think this unlikely? Then you haven't studied with any care the hare-brained plan of the National Boxing Association and the New York State Athletic Commission to find a successor to the Sugar Boy.

All the boys have done as their first major contribution toward chaos is to name 11 United States middleweights — good, bad and indifferent — as "contenders" for the vacated title, and then invite them to begin fighting one another. At least half the group cannot by any stretch of the imagination qualify as real top-flighters.

No DISTINCTION No effort has been made to match them. No distinction has been made between Bobo Olson, by any reasoning, the leading U.S. aspirant for the crown, and the No. 11 man on the list, who probably is laid up with bursitis.

No recognition is given the fact that Randy Turpin of England, who defeated Robinson once and came very near doing so the second time, has a more valid claim to recognition than any U.S. fighter. The new joint middleweight champion for years. It might even be that Sugar Ray Robinson, who retired recently to become a song and dance man, will go down in the record books as the last of the 150-pound kings.

LILIAN MILLER

Little Theatre members met Tuesday evening to rehearse the play "Lovers' Leap," which is to be presented in late March.

You'll remember Marian Thomas in "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay," a Little Theatre production of two years ago. Marian is back again as leading lady in "Lovers' Leap." Co-starring with her is Keith Faught, hero of "Ask Me No Questions." Supporting Marian and Keith are Jim Cumming, Lilian Miller and Alice MacNeil.

Alice has taken on a triple job. As well as her role as the maid in "Lovers' Leap," she is playing in and directing "Strange Road." Alice has not been able to hold rehearsals yet because of an incomplete cast. Experience on the stage is not necessary, as Alice will take time to train anyone interested in taking part.

She has had considerable experience in this in Montreal. Anyone wishing to try out for a part should contact any member of the Little Theatre as soon as possible.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Alice MacNeil at 1151 Seventh Ave. East.

REMEMBER WHEN John L. Sullivan knocked Paddy Ryan in the ninth round at Mississippi City, many years ago tonight to claim world's heavyweight boxing title. Sullivan won universal recognition as champion by beating Jake Kilrain at Richmond, seven years later in the last knuckle championship fight.

TEN COMMANDMENTS FOR CURLERS

As these curling articles draw to a close, you will have noticed that no mention has been made of many topics that curlers everywhere are keenly interested in. Time and space have necessarily excluded discussion of employment, of strategy in curling, sweeping, methods of practice, psychology of team play, and others too numerous to mention.

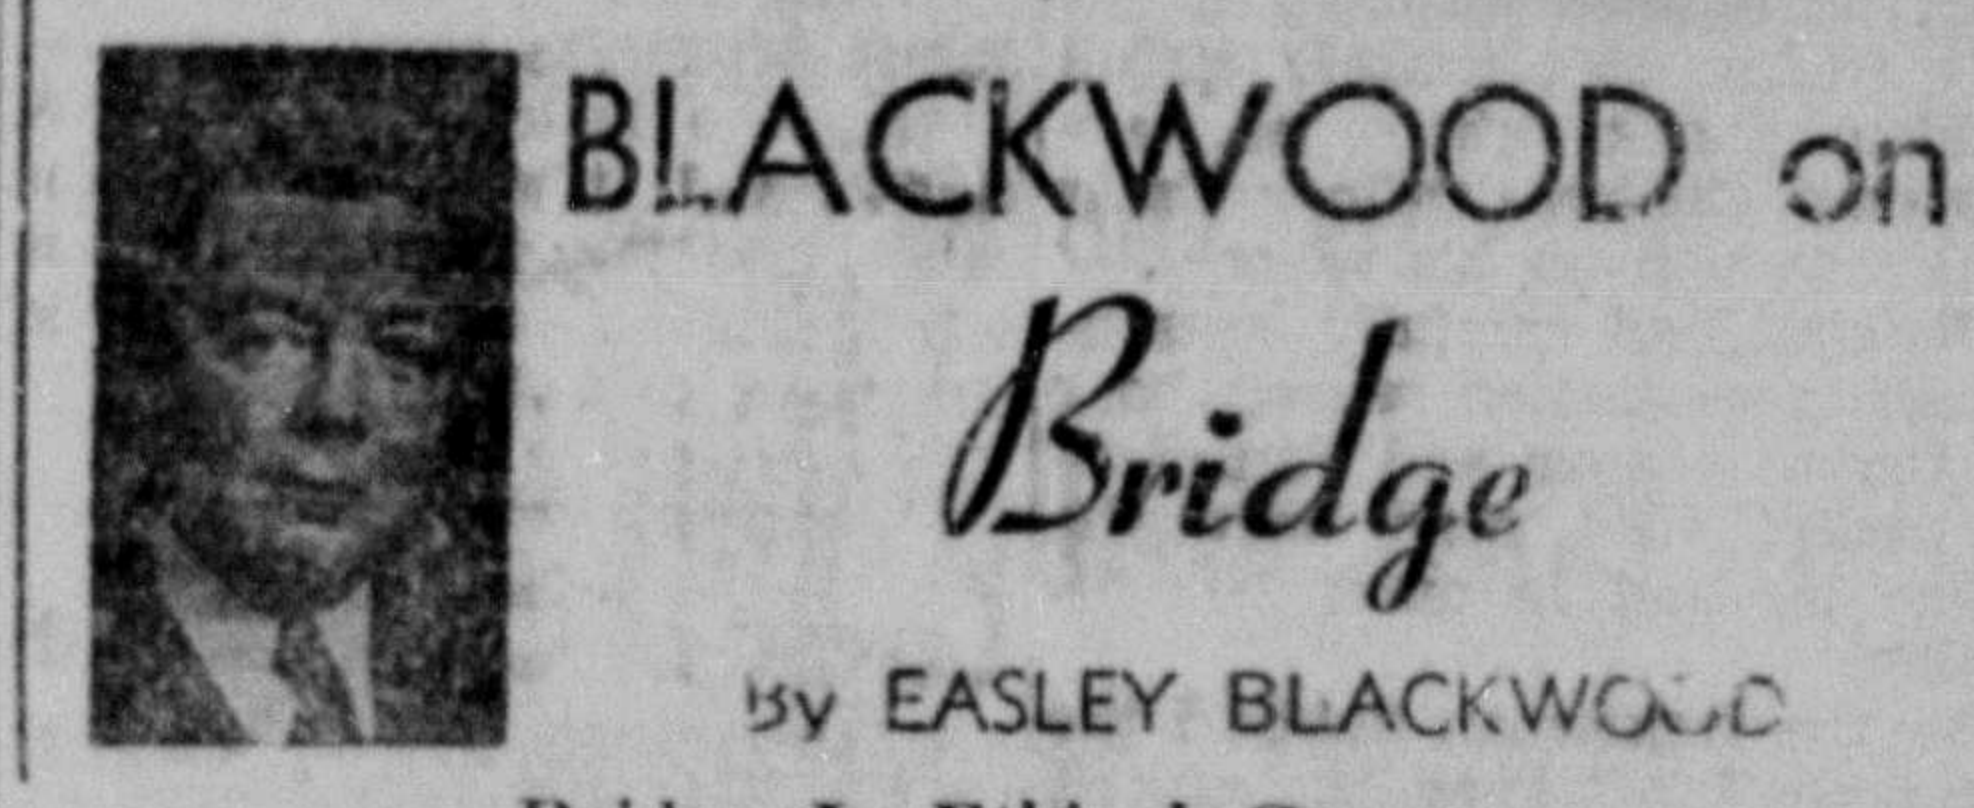

This series has been devoted almost exclusively to the mechanics of delivery in the hope that curling enthusiasts who have had the patience to pursue the series this far will garner a few grains of satisfaction to aid their play and give added zest and enthusiasm for a game that offers many challenges.

Just in case you would like a brief resume of the foregoing articles, here are the Ten Commandments for observance of all curlers in delivering a stone properly:

1. Keep your eyes on the broom. (Your target is the skip's broom at the other end of the ice.)
2. See that your stone at the start of your backswing is lined up with the broom, (target).
3. Let the stone hang from the fingers during the swing.
4. Swing that rock out and ahead ... at the broom.
5. Follow through ... reach forward and after the stone when it is released.
6. Keep your right leg stretched well back.
7. Use your broom for balance, but keep the straw pointed forward and ahead of your body. (Do not ride the broom.)
8. Keep all the weight of your body on the right leg during the backswing.
9. Face your target (the skip's broom) when sitting in the hack.
10. Don't slide ... Swing ... then follow through ... with your body and soul.

Certainly—if you practice what has been preached in these articles, you will win your game for awhile ... but not for too long, I assure you. Good luck and good curling!

NOTE—This is the final article.

Blackwood on Bridge

Bridge Is Ethical Game, But a Few Cross Boundary

One very fine thing about bridge is the high ethical standard maintained by nearly all players of the game. Of course, as in every other activity, there are a few whose tactics at times come pretty close to the boundary line between ethical and unethical. In today's hand, the line was crossed.

When Mr. Abel reached three no trump, Mr. Sharpe promptly doubled. Most players use a double in this situation (where neither defender has entered the auction) to ask for a lead of the first suit bid by dummy. That's the way Mr. Sharpe was using it—and that's the way Mr. Champion understood it.

But Mr. Sharpe was not satisfied to let the play begin in normal fashion. No sooner had Miss Brash made the final pass than he asked for a review of the bidding. Properly, such a request comes only from the opening leader, in this case Mr. Champion. He may be assumed to desire the information for his purposes in choosing his opening. However, when the request came from Mr. Sharpe it could be assumed that his purpose was to point up the fact that the first suit bid by dummy was spades. It was unethical for him to stress that fact.

Now, Mr. Champion has faults at the bridge table, chief among which is his arrogant criticism of his partner's errors. But he is a strictly ethical player. As soon as his partner doubled this contract, he made up his mind to lead the deuce of spades. He did lead that card and Mr. Sharpe was able to win the first five tricks.

But Mr. Champion was not through. "Sharpe," he said, "I led a spade on this hand with clear conscience because I had already mentally selected that lead before you asked for a review. But if you ever pull that

Cow Bay Bridge to be Torn Down By City Workmen Beginning Monday

The Cow Bay bridge which has connected the city with the eastern waterfront via Third Avenue for 30 years will be torn down and replaced with a fill. The bridge will be closed, beginning Monday morning, for about a week, D.C. Stewart, superintendent of works, announced today.

As this bridge is the only connecting link between city centre and the waterfront lying east of Government Docks, all vehicular traffic will have to be routed via the Station B Post Office road, past the drydock.

Foot traffic, however, will be able to pass over the temporary sidewalk laid over the sewer pipe running alongside the bridge.

"We realize this will be inconvenient, but it's a matter of necessity," said Mr. Stewart. Plings of the old bridge are badly rotted and heavy loads could cause it to collapse anytime. As there will be men working underneath the bridge throughout its removal "we just can't take any risks."

"We had intended to keep part of the bridge open for light one-way traffic while filling in the other part, but the driving public hasn't co-operated."

"Motorists have ignored the 5-mile-an-hour speed limit signs and trucks have persisted in driving over the bridge heavily loaded."

The $20,000 fill job is expected to be completed by the end of next week. A dozen men are on the job under city works foreman George Geddes. Rock fill is being used, obtained from the city quarry on the Cemetery Road.

A culvert will be placed in the ravine to allow passage of surface drainage into the salt water.

Radar Fails

Canadian National Steamships recently equipped its luxury coastal liner Prince George with two identical sets of radar so that if one happened to break down, the other would be immediately available.

But this week, on the George's first trip to Prince Rupert since the dual installation, both sets broke down long before the ship's arrival in harbor here.

With the two sets available, however, Marconi-authorized technician Bert Jefferies of Prince Rupert made quick repairs using interchangeable parts.

Mr. Jefferies stated that while sometimes inconvenient, if not serious, situations have arisen in the past due to lack of radar parts here, he expects a complete set in his workshop in the near future.

In that way, he will be able to service radar equipped vessels quickly by interchanging parts and repairing defected elements at leisure, instead of having to wait for air-expressed parts from Vancouver.

Mr. Jefferies said this service is being instituted following the recent grounding of the Prince George in Ripple Channel. The incident was blamed at the time on a faulty radar set for which there were no parts in Prince Rupert.

Name Changed

Jack Jenkins, Rupert fisherman for whom Ralph and John Wick have been building a 35-foot troller this winter, got a sudden shock when he approached Customs Officer Oscar Smith to register his vessel.

Jenkins had carefully searched the registration record book of motor vessels and found to his relief that none bore the name he had in mind for his troller.

So the fisherman dubbed the "treasure box" Pandora, and it was so christened on Dec. 17, 1952.

But upon registering the Pandora, it was found that another such name was already listed—a sailing vessel, no less.

"Belongs to some herring choker out in New Brunswick," said Jenkins. So the Pandora has been changed to the Nymph, which name she will soon proudly bear.

The Wick brothers are putting the finishing touches on her now—bunks in the fo'c'sle, table, lockers, sink and stove.

"An awful lot of stuff can be crammed into a small place if you know how," said Jenkins watching Ralph Wick at work.

The fisherman hopes to be completely outfitted and ready to start fishing by May 1.

Why does a fisherman register his vessel? He can be licensed to fish without registration, but most of them get on the "official" list because of the protection it offers them.

Skippers and crew of registered fishing vessels are eligible for a low-cost federal government-operated marine insurance which takes care of hospital bills and a host of other expenses in cases of accident or sickness incurred on board the vessel after it has cleared customs.

Canadian Life Insurance Men Face Stiff Competition

Kenneth Thompson, C.L.U., of Vancouver, regional vice-president of the Life Underwriters Association of Canada, said today there are 5,000,000 policyholders in Canada out of a total population of just over 14,000,000.

In Rupert this week to visit insurance men, Mr. Thompson, who is also supervisor for the B.C. mainland branch of the Great-West Life Insurance Company, said that of 21 leading countries analyzed last year by the Institute of Life Insurance in New York, Canada was the only one with a total life insurance in force greater than a year's income.

Mr. Thompson pointed out that Canadians buy their life insurance in the widest, most competitive market in the world" and said 24 United States companies and six British firms compete in Canada with 31 Canadian insurance companies. All offer a wide variety of plans to the Canadian people. "Such a situation," he stated, "is to be found in no other country."

"In addition, Canadian companies do more than 40 percent of their business in the United States, the British Isles and elsewhere around the world, proving that their policies and rates must be good or they could not be so successful in face of the strong competition they meet from local companies wherever they go."

THAT OLD FEELING GRIPS CHARLTON HESTON as he comes upon Jennifer Jones in "Ruby Gentry," the Bernhard-Vidor Production starting Monday at the Totem Theatre. Charlton, however, is keeping his eye on the rifle.

Hospital Tenders Too High So Citizens Take on Job

EXETER, Ont. (CP)—A group of amateur builders have constructed a $389,000 hospital here for $270,000.

South Huron District Hospital opened its doors Feb. 2 in this community 35 miles northwest of London on a sound financial footing.

Part of the money used to erect the hospital was donated by 15,000 citizens who contributed $114,000. This is approximately $8 for every man, woman and child within a 20-mile radius of the community. County, provincial and federal government grants also were provided.

While funds were being raised the chairman of the hospital committee, Urie Snell, asked for tenders on the new building. The lowest figure was $320,000 not including $60,000 for equipment.

"We couldn't afford that," he said, "so we went to Queen's Park in Toronto and told them we would erect it ourselves."

Mr. Snell hired a builder to supervise the construction at a straight salary of $10,000. Exeter officials weren't content with buying cement and lumber wholesale. They went direct to the manufacturers, thus saving approximately 25 per cent.

To help meet expenses, the Lions Club built a cottage and raffled it off, making $10,000. The Legion made $3,000 through a giant bingo and the Ladies Auxiliary of nearby Centralia donated $1,100.

One of the first steps involved in the construction was the purchase of an old 14-room house which formerly belonged to Sir John Carling. This had been converted into a reception room, offices and nurses' quarters.

Next to the Carling mansion, stretching almost a block, is the new one-story structure. The rooms have flower-tinted drapes and a public address system connected to the corridor.

SCREEN ★ FLASHES

Torrid love scenes and violent action during the filming of "Ruby Gentry," the Bernhard-Vidor production coming to the Totem Theatre on Monday, cost Jennifer Jones a broken hand and Charlton Heston a jump behind his right ear, scratches on his nose and face.

The broken hand was sustained during the filming of a highly emotional scene. It was a love scene which ended up in a fight when Heston proposes love to Jennifer, who refuses him.

In the ensuing melee, Miss Jones broke the small bone beneath the little finger of her right hand. It was in a cast for four days. An ingenious device was fashioned to allow her to continue with the picture.

Lack of Cortisone

VANCOUVER (CP)—Medical researchers at the University of British Columbia are investigating the theory that arthritis is caused by a lack of cortisone in the body. Cortisone is produced by pituitary and adrenal glands, and as a drug is obtained from animal glands.
