WORK HAS BEEN STARTED at Camp Gagetown, 11 miles from Fredericton, where Canada's army camp will be located. To cost $40,000,000 and cover 436 square miles, it is expected to be ready for troop accommodation by 1956. One of the main sewer lines is being made ready and preliminary clearing work is under way.

Candidates Make Final Pleas to Electors at Ratepayers Meeting

Final plea to the electors was made by candidates at a meeting in the Canadian Legion auditorium last night, sponsored by the Community Ratepayers Association, each was given an opportunity to express their views.

Under the chairman, John McLean, the candidates were called in alphabetical order and the public was given an opportunity to ask questions.

Tomorrow will choose a mayor and four aldermen. Harold Whalen and former alderman George Hills are running for the post of chief clerk.

The four retiring aldermen—George Casey, Bert Currie, John Currie and Mike Currie—are all seeking re-election. J. W. Prusky, John Smith, Norman Bellis, Lyons August Wallin and Elliott.

Alderman Casey, outgoing chief of civil affairs and published in The Daily News, said he was better than the publisher. He said he would take $50,000 and $75,000 for a satisfactory scenic spot in the city.

George Casey, Pat Forman (board chairman) and myself made a tour of the city parks after we were told that we had these monies for the beautification of Roosevelt Park," Mr. Casey said.

The provincial public works department, the city engineer and well-known and expert amateur gardener Charlie Balagno, also a member of the parks board, told the other members of the board it would be foolhardy to try to beautify Roosevelt Park and for that reason the parks board urged development of the Algonia Park area.

Ald. Casey told the audience that if they only knew the amount of stealth that went on in the city council, they would realize why he tried to delay things.

"I don't believe in working in the dark," he said, "I like to conduct my business in the broad daylight."

Speaking of what he termed "skulduggery by the inner circle," he said, "I like to conduct my business in the broad daylight."

"I opposed it singlehanded," he said because he didn't want to burden the B.C. Power Commission with additional capital investment if it took over from the Northern B.C. Power Company.

Ald. Krueger, in answer to discussion on the power question, said that when the city council passed a resolution voicing its decision to invite the British Columbia Power Commission to supply Prince Rupert with power the vote was unanimous.

The resolution was moved by Alderman Casey and seconded structure. Speaking to a public meeting sponsored by the Community Ratepayers Association, Mr. Hills said he was glad that the city voters were faced with a two-man majority contest as the man who gets elected would without a doubt have the confidence of the people.

Mr. Hills said he believed that he'd made himself quite clear on his attitude towards the referendum. He had noted the necessity of maintaining the Civic Centre for its social, athletic and cultural purposes, he said.

"I am against special levies, which can lead to a pyramiding of the city's tax structure to the point where it cannot be coped with, resulting in having to either increase the tax rate or reduce city services."

Mr. Hills said he blew neither hot nor cold on the transfer of the Roosevelt Park fund. He advised the electors to transfer it wherever the parks board sees fit.

Mr. Hills said the city should meet the Civic Centre's deficit after the Centre has done its utmost to raise funds for itself.

Referring to the power situation, Mr. Hills said that the B.C. Power Commission does not bid on projects that it has been asked to take over. It presents its case to the lieutenant-governor-in-council and, if permission is granted, expropriation proceedings can be started.

by Alderman Darrow Gomez," Ald. Krueger said, "Alderman Gomez was not away at the time and there was no kidnapping as claimed by Ald. Casey."

Ald. Krueger said that seven aldermen were present at the meeting in question. Only Alderman Kay Smith being away on leave of absence.

The resolution had to be unanimous, he said, to give the B.C. Power Commission sufficient power to proceed to the Lieutenant-Governor in council and make plans for supplying Prince Rupert with power.

Last word from the B.C. Power Commission was that negotiations are still proceeding, Ald. Krueger said.

John Currie, told the meeting that he was supposed to be the ing just the same," he said, "and silent alderman. 'I've been working I've held up my hand for a lot of good things and against a lot of bad ones.' He said he was not asking for votes but he had the qualifications if called upon.

Herbert F. Glassey said that he was an independent and not sponsored. "Once you're sponsored you must follow that group," he said, stating that if any group wanted a candidate to push some project that might be beneficial to the city, it didn't necessarily follow that it could be done. A person on the council knew what the city's finances can and cannot do, he said. He said that with his experience on the finance and utilities committees he would, if elected, serve the people to the best of his ability.

Phil Lyons said that although he was sponsored by the Civic Affairs Association no one was dictating to him. It was the electors' business to look after the biggest business they should be concerned in, the city of Prince Rupert.

"There's too much petty bickering and personal hatred going into elections, which proves a poor basis for choosing people for the city council," he said.

Mr. Lyons said that there had been a lot of criticism of the city council "most of which was unfounded."

He said the voter should consider the candidates' qualifications. "You are choosing men who will ruin this city or build it."

John H. Mair appeared confused as to the election in which he was campaigning. He told the people present that "the power question is your business, vote how you like on the power question. (There is no power question before the electors.)"

James W. Prusky former alderman and president of the Ratepayers Association, said he opposed all the referendums concerning special levies. He still thought that a $6,000 grant should entitle everyone to membership in the Civic Centre and that the municipal buildings referendum needed clarification. He urged the parks board to keep developing all the parks simultaneously.

He repeated his challenge of last Friday defying Mayor Harold Whalen to prove that he is or ever was a Communist and this time asked the editor of The Daily News to prove likewise.

Walter Smith urged his listeners to "get men up on the city council who will forget pettiness."

Envoy Dean Gives Reds Ultimatum

By The Associated Press

PANMUNJOM.—United States envoy Arthur H. Dean threatened today to break off tottering preliminary Korean peace talks unless progress is made in a reasonable time, and the Allied delegation prepared to head home for Christmas.

"It is apparent that the American delegation will be out of here before Dec. 20," one high source said. "Our boys are packing."

Communist insistence on Russia attending the peace conference as a neutral observer rather than as a voting participant has stalled negotiations to arrange the peace talks.

Dean told the Reds he will not be bullied into accepting Russia as a neutral and said he has full authority from the United Nations to walk out whenever he feels there is no chance of reaching agreement.

Meanwhile, another 30 South Korean war prisoners who refused repatriation unanimously reaffirmed decision to remain under Communist rule.

Allied explainers have talked with 220 prisoners without getting a single one to change his mind.

No apparent progress has been made in the preliminary peace talks since they began Oct. 26.

"Sovereignty" in Northland Stressed by Prime Minister

OTTAWA (CP)—It is "very important" that "non-Canadians" in Canada's northland respect Canadian sovereignty there, says Prime Minister St. Laurent.

In a Commons speech Tuesday, he mentioned this "sovereignty" five times.

Though he made it clear he was referring to Americans when he said "non-Canadians," the prime minister indicated that there have been no tiffs between the Canadian and the United States governments concerning the presence of U.S. servicemen in Canada's north.

Canada's defence build-up was made more difficult by the geographical fact that the country's northland lies between the U.S. and Russia.

But all joint Canada-U.S. defence measures "are implemented with full respect for the sovereignty" of Canada.

At one point, the prime minister said: "We must leave no doubt about our active occupation and exercise of our sovereignty in these northern lands right up to the Pole."

The prime minister also reiterated that Canadian resources in the north must be reserved for Canadian use.

He said he was referring to the government rejection a year ago of a U.S. application to use of Yukon water power for industries in Alaska.

Only Mark To Use On Any Ballot is X

Some 2,800 Prince Rupert electors have the opportunity tomorrow of going to the polls at the Civic Centre between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. to elect a mayor, four aldermen, and mark their approval or disapproval of four referendums.

Although this year's voters' list includes 2979 names of property owners, licenseholders and householders at least 45 limited companies failed to nominate a representative to cast the company's vote. It is estimated that a good 125 property owners are absent from the city although their names are on the voters' list.

How many of the remaining 2,800 will go to the polls remains to be seen. Last year's civic election, usually quieter than when there's a mayoralty race, brought out 1,477 out of 3021 listed voters; or less than 50 per cent.

Returning officer R. W. Long and assistant returning officer Miss Audrey Wrathall will supervise proceedings at the Civic Centre.

Top ballot out of the set of six will be for the mayoralty election. Underneath in the following order are the referendums on municipal buildings, the transfer of the Roosevelt Park reserve funds, the one-mill levy for Algonia Park development, the one-mill levy for the Civic Centre, and on the bottom is ballot for the aldermanic contest.

The returning officer stressed:

● Ballots must be plainly marked with the pencils provided in the polling booths. Ink-marked ballots will not be counted and all other markings besides an X will spoil the ballot.

● The only mark to be used in voting on any of the ballots, including the referendums, is an X. Last year ballots were spoiled when people answered referendums with a "yes" or "no."

● On the aldermanic ballots an elector may vote for any number of candidates up to and including four, if he or she wishes. But if any more than four Xs are placed against the names the ballot will be spoiled.

● Should a voter spoil a ballot unwittingly, he may return the ballot to the returning officer and obtain a new one. If a voter spoils one ballot it doesn't ruin the other five ballots.

● The returning officer advises all electors to read the instructions on the printed form in every polling booth before marking the ballot.

Eye Specialist Meets Patient

A successful mercy flight, to the rescue of an injured woman in Kitimat, was completed in quick time this morning by Queen Charlotte Airlines.

A Norseman plane, piloted by Roy Berryman, made the round trip to Kitimat and back here in about 2½ hours, bringing a woman suffering a serious eye injury to hospital here for treatment by an eye specialist.

Mrs. N. G. Stevens of Kitimat suffered the eye injury in a badminton game when she was struck with a racquet. She was operated on in Kitimat and then rushed here to see Dr. K. O. Fleming, Vancouver eye specialist who, with Dr. G. C. Large, Vancouver ear, nose and throat specialist, is in Prince Rupert this week for special clinics.

The QCA dispatcher here received the SOS call from Kitimat at 9:20 a.m. today and in 20 minutes, pilot Berryman was in the air with the Norseman and on his way.

The plane left here at 9:40 a.m., touched down at Kitimat at 10:51 a.m., took aboard Mrs. Stevens on a stretcher, and her husband, took off from Kitimat at 11:19 a.m. and landed here at 12:19 p.m.

An ambulance met the plane at the air base here and rushed Mrs. Stevens to Prince Rupert General Hospital, where Dr. Fleming was waiting.

Mr. Berryman reported good flying weather helped speed the mercy flight.

$300,000 Loss In Barge Upset Near Ketchikan

SEATTLE (AP)—Reports have been received here of the capsizing of a big barge near Ketchikan with a cargo of cement and automobiles.

Loss in the mishap, which occurred during the week-end, is estimated at possibly $300,000, about $100,000 for cargo and $200,000 for the 328-foot barge.

Barge owner was the Portland Tug and Barge Company of Portland.

Felix Schlickeisen, president of the firm, said reports indicate the barge hit a reef when the tug anchored in a snow-storm.

The tug later pulled it free and went about six miles to the Ketchikan vicinity. The barge tipped over after settling in the water.

Charles Sankey Found Dead

Charles Sankey, 58-year-old Port Simpson native, was found dead this morning in a ditch by the railway tracks at Port Edward.

He was found by RCMP Const. B. Groneweg about 100 yards east of the Nelson Brothers plant. He is believed to have drowned in the ditch which is flooded with water at high tide.

Mr. Sankey, who was last seen when he got off the midnight bus from Prince Rupert last night, was born in 1895. A widower, he is survived by five children.

London Express Urges Britain To Quit U.N.

LONDON (AP)—Lord Beaverbrook's London Express advised Great Britain today to quit the United Nations because the UN's activities "are damaging to the prospects of world peace and ruinous for the Empire."

The Express claims a circulation of more than 4,000,000. It follows an independent political line but is Empire-minded.

In an editorial, the paper stated: "What can Britain expect to get from membership in the United Nations except trouble and abuse? Britain and the dominions have only six votes between them—and one of those goes to South Africa which takes no part in United Nations affairs."

Citizens Warned To Put Correct Addresses on Christmas Letters

"We won't be able to give delivery service until after Christmas," he said, "and we cannot guarantee delivery before December 25."

He also warned that if a pre-paid two-cent Christmas card is found to contain a long message, the recipient will be taxed double or the card will be returned to the sender. A spot check of Christmas cards has already disclosed persons have been using Christmas cards as letters and mailing them for two cents.

Five words of greeting are the limit on two-cent prepaid cards. The postmaster also noted that two-cent cards do not receive air-lift treatment but are subject to the same mailing dates as parcels.

Deadlines for mailing parcels and two-cent pre-paid Christmas cards are: December 10 and 12, Maritimes and Quebec, and Ontario; December 14, Prairie provinces; December 15, British Columbia; and December 17, local delivery.

On To The Polls

TWO OR THREE features emerged from the election campaign, now in its dying hours, which deserve mention before the whole affair becomes history.

First was the formation of the Civic Affairs Association. This more than anything else revealed the growing determination of voters to take matters more into their own hands. It has led to the selection and endorsement of four aldermanic candidates who are considered best qualified to represent a broad cross-section of the electorate.

To follow this up the association plans, through personal representation, to keep an eye on council proceedings, and to discuss and analyze them at monthly executive meetings. This is a service designed for the electorate as a whole. Its operation should prevent any alderman in future making the bold claim that he is the people's watchdog. Under the new arrangement, the people will do their own watching.

A second feature was the attention which centred on the four referendums. It was a singular chance to air some of the questions facing the city and served in particular to stimulate interest in problems affecting the city's parks and its Civic Centre. The referendum concerning municipal buildings somehow figured less in discussions than the other three.

Still another feature, and an important one, was the heavy competition for aldermanic seats. Among the candidates to be voted on tomorrow, there are several comparatively young men making their first venture into a civic election contest. The conclusion is that a recognized need has arisen to infuse fresh blood into the council. It is a better than even bet that by tomorrow night there will be new names in the list of aldermen.

At the top of the heap the mayoralty contest stands clear and well-defined between two men. Both have given noteworthy service to their community and both can be counted on to give more. With no thanks to George Casey (who, despite appearances, is not running for mayor), their fight was above the belt.

Give either of these men a good council, and the city will have good government.

LETTERBOX

ASSESS REFERENDUMS

The Editor,
The Daily News—

As a taxpayer, I find difficulty in assessing the referendums being put before the electors. What is the city's long-term planning for the Algonia and Roosevelt Park areas? On what basis is this planning, if any, based? Are there any tentative plans for new municipal buildings? What is the general need? How many are required, by what date, and what is a rough estimate of likely costs? The same reasoning can be expanded to cover waterworks and other city talk-of projects.

As a professional engineer I question whether the city has any real plans, beyond yearly necessities and council discussions. Your present works superintendent is doing a good job, but I expect he would be the first to admit that his present limited staff forces his entire energies to current problems only.

Comparison with other cities of this size—and generally all situated in better positions—will show that an enlarged engineering department is a "must" and will save its own cost many times over.

We've had city-wide arguments on money problems in the past. I contend that most would have been unnecessary with proper advice from a city engineering department. I suggest to the new council, the CAA, the Ratepayers' Association and all taxpayers that this is one of your most urgent problems and early consideration is warranted.

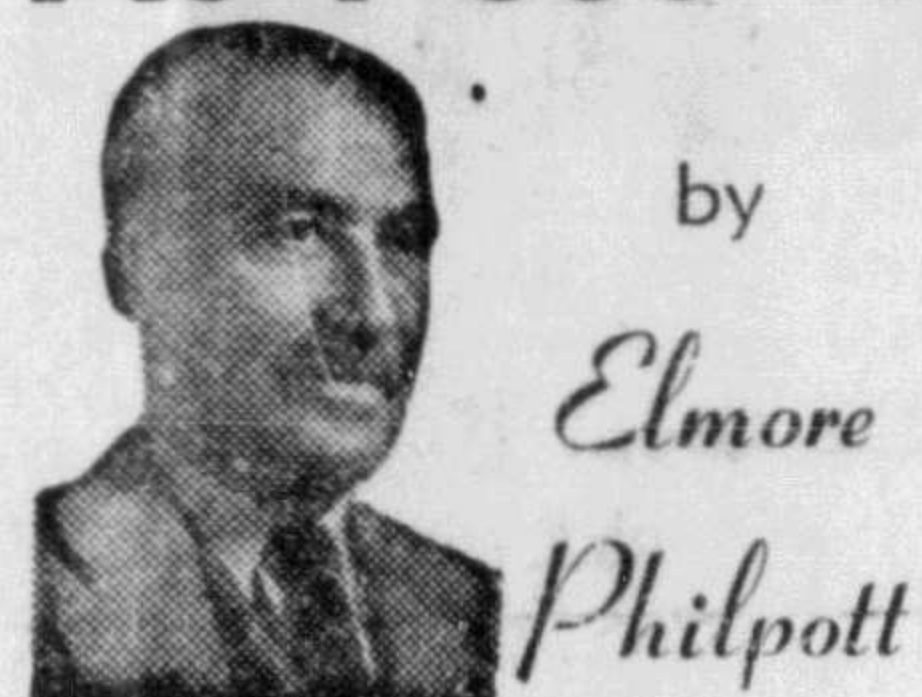

I had hoped this might be the No. 1 plank in at least one candidate's platform. The crux of the situation appears to be lost in the multitude of unknowns.

As I See It

McCarthy—J and C

THE big votes are all over, and parliament is now settling down to the more practical work of the session, such as what to do about the natural-gas pipeline.

There was nothing surprising about the votes on the speech from the throne, except that some Conservatives, headed by John Diefenbaker, voted with the Social Crediters, and against their own leader, George Drew.

I THOUGHT that George Drew and M. J. Coldwell between them gave most impressive reasons why the Social Credit amendment, as it stood, was not a practical proposition.

It baldly called for the acceptance of pounds sterling, as a means of promoting international trade.

As I myself have pointed out in this column over and over again in the past ten years, merely to accept sterling is not the answer either to Britain's problem or to Canada's problem.

You also have to have a plan to do something with that sterling after you do accept it. You either have to buy more British goods with that sterling, or you have to buy more stocks and bonds on the British market.

The only effect merely of "accepting sterling"—with no plan to make use of that sterling—would be to load up Canada with a pile of inconvertible British money.

AS WE waited in the lobbies for the vote I was comparing notes with the Hon. Douglas Abbott who has just taken all his medical "shots" for travel to Australia via Asia. In Australia the various finance ministers will grapple with the very thing that our own parliament has been discussing.

How to make the British pound and Canadian dollar convertible. It would be a wonderful feather in Mr. Abbott's cap if he could help with this, just before his final budget.

He is adamant, by the way, that it is to be his final budget.

PEOPLE are now having second thoughts about the unabashed defence of McCarthyism by the rugged Social Credit M.P. from Lethbridge—John Blackmore. They are beginning to think, it was not a mere man show.

Half-way through that stormy speech, that is, on opening the second day's installment, Mr. Blackmore stated he spoke only for himself.

But meanwhile in Regina, Saskatchewan, the Rev. E. J. Hansell M.P., was also making a forthright defence of Senator Joe McCarthy.

Mr. Hansell, it will be remembered is the man who engineered the successful capture of B.C. by Social Credit in the election of 1952. He is generally considered as the real "brains" of the Social Credit party. Hence it would appear that the Social Credit party is getting ready to make itself the deliberate and vocal champion of McCarthyism in Canada.

IN ONE of his speeches in support of Senator Joe McCarthy, Mr. Blackmore named Adlai Stevenson and Dean Acheson as among the "Communist top-notchers."

This fantastic falsehood was based on "evidence" read by Mr. Blackmore from a book called "McCarthyism" by the said Senator Joe McCarthy.

It could be Joe McCarthy is now to have his Charley McCarthy here at Ottawa.

Report From

PARLIAMENT

E. T. APPLEWHITE

Although we have all been rather hoping to hear from Elmore Philpott, the well-known newspaper columnist, who is now the Liberal Member for Vancouver-South, so far Mr. Philpott has not spoken in the House. However, he did intervene on one occasion, on a point of order, when he had John Blackmore withdraw the expression, "villifying outrageously," which Blackmore had used about Dave Croll, referring to a speech in which Croll had shown up McCarthyism for what it really is.

The announcement made in the Montreal Gazette on November 23 that Mr. Fred Rose, the Communist, has left the country to take up residence behind the Iron Curtain either in Russia or one of Russia's satellite states has been confirmed by his wife, who still resides at Montreal. Mr. Rose is the only Communist who ever got elected to the House of Commons. The news of his departure will cause only one regret in Canada. It is a pity that, like Mr. Rose, the other communists in Canada do not transfer their persons and their abodes to the other side of the Iron Curtain.

I hope I don't often—at least not too often—let politics dictate what I write in these notes, but I do think one thing is worthy of note at this time. The government has announced that at this session it will introduce co-ordinated plans for rehousing of disabled persons and a nation-wide federal-provincial assistance programme for totally disabled persons. This means help for those disabled persons who are not covered by military pension, Workmen's Compensation Acts, blindness pension or any other public provision. I think it fair to point out that this measure is being brought in at this Session, and is not being held until just before an election. In other words the St. Laurent government definitely is not playing politics with these unfortunate people.

The other day we came into the House of Commons Chamber at 2:30 in the afternoon to find on every desk a sheaf of bright yellow chrysanthemums. On making inquiries I found that these had been supplied by the Members for Hamilton, and were distributed in celebration of the Grey Cup victory of the Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

In the Commons last month, Maurice Bourget, Parliamentary Assistant to the Minister of Public Works, tabled a report of an investigation into measures for the reduction of the flood hazard in the Greater Winnipeg area, dated October 1, 1953, prepared by the Department of Resources and Development.

You may have seen from time to time references in the press to the desirability of improving the procedures in the House of Commons; a few days ago Mr. S. Laurent moved "that a select committee be designated to be appointed to consider with Mr. Speaker the procedure of this house for the purpose of suggesting any changes that may be desirable to assure the more expeditious dispatch of public business." He said that he thought it would be the desire of all members of the House to provide in the most efficient possible manner, for the orderly conduct of our deliberations, and he thought it was the general feeling that our rules and "standing orders" might be considered by a Committee of the House, with the Speaker, for the purpose of reporting to the House whether or not in their opinion there are any of these rules that it would be desirable to modify for the sake of the orderly conduct of the business of the House. The matter had been discussed with the leaders of the other groups in the House and it was generally considered that it would be desirable to have a committee set up that would study with the Speaker the rules as they exist and then report to the House whether or not in their opinion there are modifications that it would be desirable to introduce. It was for the purpose of providing an opportunity for such study that the motion had been put on the order paper and that the P.M. submitted it for the consideration of the House. It carried unanimously.

OTTAWA DIARY

By NORMAN M. McLEOD

OTTAWA—That split in the Tory party that developed in the House of Commons last week during voting on the Social Credit non-confidence motion has more to it than meets the eye, despite what spokesmen for the two factions may say about it. The split has been building up for a good many months. It was evident before the August election campaign reached its peak, if that desultory exhibition of Canadian politicking can be said ever to have reached a peak. The split is between a group of Conservative MPs who would like to see Prince Albert, Sask., lawyer John Diefenbaker in the leadership, and those—still in the majority, apparently—who want to stick by Hon. George Drew.

This is a split that both Mr. Drew and Mr. Diefenbaker have tried, as best they could, to prevent, for the good of the party. The fact that it burst into the open last Thursday was not unexpected over the long-range. But the timing did come as a surprise, and on a point at issue which—to most minds—wasn't one that should be the cause of a major split.

The Conservatives met Thursday shortly after noon for a routine caucus meeting. The main item on the agenda was how to vote on the Social Credit motion calling for the acceptance of sterling in part payment for Canadian exports—a thing that has been advocated by Conservatives in the past. In fact, it was used on the hustings in August's election campaign by a good many Conservative candidates, particularly in the farming areas which have lost their traditional British markets because of inconvertibility. They were in favor of the Sacred Idea.

But some of the other Conservatives had their eye on the Social Credit gains in British Columbia, and the recent pro-McCarthy speeches of John Blackmore and scored president Rev. E. G. Hansell. These Conservatives wanted no truck or trade with Social Crediters under any circumstances.

Mr. Drew did his best just before the vote was taken to try to bring the two factions together, and then announced he personally would vote against the Social Credit proposal. Mr. Diefenbaker, felt bound by the speeches he had made and voted the other way. Ten other Conservatives followed him. John looked glum for the rest of the day.

STILL DEPRESSED!

Early last summer, the PGE railway linked up with Prince George, and glorious was the rejoicing in the northern town. But if one may judge from the lack of developments since, the situation today is cruel. No one, it seems is able to cheer up. Perhaps what was expected did not transpire immediately. That often happens. Look at Prince Rupert. That fair young city is familiar with unfulfilled expectations, yet today is far indeed from being a dead one.

Carol Festival Opener Sees Five City Choirs Take Stage

Prince Rupert's first Christmas Carol Festival opened last night in the Civic Centre to a small but enthusiastic audience.

Last night's opener of the two-night festival, sponsored by the Prince Rupert Music and Drama Festival Association, saw five church choirs present nine of the less familiar Christmas carols, and audience participation in several well-known carols.

In the final festival session tonight, five more choirs will be heard with more carols, and the massed choirs will sing several Christmas songs, accompanied by the symphony orchestra.

Included in last night's program were "A Star Was His Name" and "Bells of Christmas" sung by the United Church Junior choir; "Angels We Have Heard On High" and "Sleep Holy Babe" by the Anglican Church choir; "O Little One Sweet" and "In Far Off Judea,"

United Church Ladies' chorus. "Adeste" by the Annunciation Male chorus; "Jesus The Christ Is Born" and "I Saw Three Ships" by the St. Andrew's Cathedral choir.

The St. Andrew's choir led the audience in several carols, including "Good Christian Men," "Deck the Halls With Boughs of Holly" and "Jingle Bells," and the program concluded with the Annunciation choir leading the audience in "Silent Night."

Organ interludes were played by Hugo Kraupner and Mrs. E. Becker was chairman for the evening.

Christmas Tea Held at Terrace

TERRACE—The Oddfellows hall here was the scene of a gala Christmas tea and sale staged by the afternoon branch of St. Matthew's W.A.

Many attended the affair, for which the hall was decked in the Yuletide motif. A big, brightly-trimmed Christmas tree was the centre of attraction and glowing candles on the tea tables added to the effect.

President, Mrs. E. S. Laird, was convener of the affair, which also featured tea-cup reading.

"The biggest business in the north is Prince Rupert," he said, "think whose going to spend your money and how."

Mr. Smith said that although he had been endorsed by the Civic Affairs Association he did not have to account to it, but to every citizen. "Those elected must have the interest of the city at heart," he said, "and if I am elected I will be responsible to every organization in the city."

"Vote as you like," he concluded, "but vote. Actions speak louder than words."

August S. Wallin said that because his list of accomplishments was not as outstanding as those of other speakers, it didn't mean that he wasn't interested. He did not resent not being sponsored by the Civic Affairs Association, he said, adding that by running he was providing more competition.

Norman Bellis said that although he didn't know very much about civic affairs he still didn't think the city was getting a dollar's worth of value for a dollar.

"I am not sponsored by anyone, I have no one to answer to but myself," Mr. Bellis said. (Mr. Bellis was endorsed by the Civic Affairs Association last Friday night.)

"If I am elected I intend to go in and work with the mayor and council and do a job," he said that he believed the city council needed a little bit of aggressiveness.

As soon as the question period opened up Ald. Casey asked Ald. Krueger to explain the purpose for which engineer M. A. Thomas was engaged.

Quoting from a copy of the March 9 city council minutes, Ald. Krueger said Mr. Thomas was employed as consultant to evaluate the proposals of the northern B.C. power company and the B.C. Power Commission.

Asked by Art Murray why council decided to invite the B.C. Power Commission to supply Prince Rupert with power, Ald. Krueger said it resulted from the power issue referendum.

Mr. Murray asked what was wrong with Northern B.C. Power that made council dissatisfied.

Ald. Krueger said that the NBCC had asked for a rate increase and had applied to the PUC for it. The NBCC also wanted to install a $300,000 diesel plant which altered the capital interest structure. This, he said, pleased the NBCC with sound argument to present to the PUC in its brief for a rate increase.

Jack Furness asked George Hillis which could provide the cheaper power, the B.C. Power Commission or the Northern B.C. Power.

Mr. Hillis said that he believed in public ownership of utilities and described the B.C. Power Commission of setting basic power costs as very fair. At the same time, Mr. Hillis said, he wanted to be fair to the Northern B.C. Power Company. He said that he didn't think that Prince Rupert would have received better power rates from anyone else than they did from NBCC.

"I've never disputed the rates," Mr. Hillis said, "only the service."

Mr. Hillis said he couldn't say whether the rates would be higher or lower under the B.C. Power Commission but in any case he was in favor of the commission "because a publicly-owned utility was more beneficial to the people."

Post-Graduate Studies Topic Of Nurses Meet

Post-graduate study for registered nurses was one of the major topics discussed at a recent council meeting of the Registered Nurses Association of B.C.

Miss Elizabeth Clement, Rupert hospital superintendent of nurses, reported on the B.C. group's meeting to the local Registered Nurses Association meeting.

She said the B.C. group had made tentative plans for further education of nurses in the hospitals, through correspondence courses.

The local group also saw a film from the department of national health and welfare, entitled "Frustrating Fours and Fascinating Fives," on how to handle children. The film was shown by Miss Helene Boehme.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting, at which president Mrs. Norman Hayward presided.

Last Rites Held For Stewart Baby

SPECIAL TO THE DAILY NEWS
TERRACE—Funeral service was held here yesterday for Philip Murray, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stewart.

Rev. M. W. O'Connell conducted the service in St. Matthew's church, attended by members of the staff of the Home for the Aged.

Burial was at Kalum cemetery.

Bartenders Hold Annual Banquet

Members of the Beverage Dispensers' Union, Local 636, and their guests enjoyed their annual banquet Sunday night in the Canadian Legion hall.

Harley Lewis was master of ceremonies for the variety program which comprised excerpts from the recent Elks variety show. Included in the show were Mrs. Peggy Andrew, Mrs. Pat Wicks, Nina Youngman, Jean DeCarlo, Mrs. Beryl Karasosky, Pat Bolton, Mel Thompson, Mel Skalmerud, Jim Cummings, Tom Wardrope and Mike Colussi.

The hall was decorated in blue and white, colors of the International Bartenders' emblem, for the affair, during which Mr. Lewis was presented with a cocktail set for his services.

The banquet wound up with dancing.

George Girard was chairman of the entertainment committee, assisted by Lloyd Lahti and Bob Hutchinson.

Stan Morin, president of Local 636, in a brief speech, welcomed the members and guests to open the banquet.

Vancouver Loses Fourth in Row

Vancouver Canucks, who share the Western Hockey League leadership with Calgary Stampede, suffered their fourth straight defeat Tuesday at the hands of Saskatoon Quakers to whom they bowed 6-4.

In the Western International Hockey League, Trail Smoke Eaters boosted their lead by downing Nelson Maple Leafs 5-3. In the only other interior game Spokane Flyers tied with the Okanagan Senior Hockey League's Kamloops Elks 4-4.

Substitution in playoffs is governed as follows: When a player is absent the rink in which he should play moves its players up. They then pick up a spare of equal classification or less and play him as lead. In other words when a player is absent the rink is promoted and the replacement plays lead.

There is nothing a hatter likes better than a cluster to shoot at. What's more, a stone on the button counts no more than a water on the 12-foot circle. In addition to this logic, two well-separated stones in the rings provide a much more disconcerting problem for removal than two rocks side by side, or even in front of each other.

Trying to play a short guard on a stone in the rings starts most of the trouble. Say you have a rock biting the eight-foot at the tee-line. You ask your player to draw another just in front of it so that there will only be one rock-width for the opposition to shoot at. Good thought, yes. But how often does

Ken Watson's Curling

KEEP THE TARGET SMALL

ARTICLE NO. 7

Back in the days of Alexander the Great, the massed phalanx of armed soldiers was the formidable weapon that conquered the world. But then the machine gun had not been invented. When the roaring game was first played in Scotland and later in Canada, no shots other than draws or guards were used. That was before the "hack" came into being.

The hack gave the player a toe-hold never before provided. Out of it was born the chap-and-lie game and eventually the running game. In both cases, the express purpose is to remove opposing stones from the rings.

In spite of this change in the style of curling, many skips still cling stubbornly to a mistaken belief that the rings or house is similar to a rifle target, with the button being the bull's eye. They persist in directing most of the strategy toward the inside rings through draws or guards, which involves the bunching of stones.

OUTDOORS With Marty

By ERIC MARTIN
There is a clause in the Game Act which states that a permit may be issued "to authorize any resident to go out with a person not residing in the Province, for the purpose of hunting big game." This permit is issued free and in the older days was a very good thing; perhaps now it has served its turn and should be ended, or tightened considerably.

The huge increase in hunting pressure in the interior has greatly lessened the numbers of certain of our big-game animals, so that now any trophy is at a premium; well and good if our own residents can make a kill, and more power to the properly paid guide who earns his living through his prowess in the woods, and the Provincial coffers welcome the fees which are paid by the visiting hunter who obtained his success through the guides' efforts.

But let us not be foolishly prodigal with the animals which remain, let us not advertise our wildlife in the high superlatives, which have decimated Alaska's big game, until now certain people from that territory have actually come into our own interior to hunt with a permit holding resident!

Our Provincial Guides Association and our Rod and Gun Clubs should take this matter up, the necessary resolutions and carry them forward. The "last frontier" of much game and fish is right here, nowhere else; let us get together to protect it!

Ever get out a particularly long cast, that one time when all conditions were just right, and the fly or lure just sailed away out there? Did you wonder how to measure it accurately?

Here's how: When the end tackle is at its furthest point away, simply make a slipknot in the line at the reel then wind the line all the way in. Next count the number of times the distance from reel to rod tip you can draw line from the reel until you reach the slipknot; a simple multiplication and you have your distance. Pull the slipknot out before resuming casting, you might get fouled up in trying for distance if you let it remain.

This column iterates the need for fishing the sunken fly deeply. Later on we will treat of the life cycle of many of the flies upon which trout and other fishes feed; for the once let it suffice to say that many winged insects spend all or part of their chrysalis life period in the bottom of lakes and streams, and that they take quite some time rising to the surface as a fly before they suddenly assume their wings and fly away. All of this time they are being eaten by fish, even when they are on the bottom with appearance of a small water bug. In consequence it is fishing for the angler in his bedraggled looking dark, twenty or more feet down, (slowly spaced) of a foot or more. Always remember that the lure which is in the water takes most fish, flying fish scarce hereabouts.

Only a few days left for hunters this season, but ducks and geese are open no more deer this year and sports angling license expires end of this month.

There is nothing a hatter likes better than a cluster to shoot at. What's more, a stone on the button counts no more than a water on the 12-foot circle. In addition to this logic, two well-separated stones in the rings provide a much more disconcerting problem for removal than two rocks side by side, or even in front of each other.

Trying to play a short guard on a stone in the rings starts most of the trouble. Say you have a rock biting the eight-foot at the tee-line. You ask your player to draw another just in front of it so that there will only be one rock-width for the opposition to shoot at. Good thought, yes. But how often does

U.S. Britain Have Similar Trade Policy

NEW YORK (CP)—The row between the Eisenhower administration and Senator Joseph McCarthy over Allied trade with Communist China is a domestic quarrel.

There is no quarrel between the Eisenhower government and the United Kingdom, for instance, although the two governments differ in their approach to the problem of non-strategic exports to China.

All the Allied governments have an embargo on shipment to China of goods of war-making potential, the so-called strategic goods.

President Eisenhower and several of his cabinet officers have endorsed Britain's right to carry on her peaceful trade in non-strategic goods. The U.S. itself has recently relaxed restrictions on U.S. exports to Hong Kong, a traditional gateway to the China trade.

A view of U.S. business was expressed in a policy declaration at the U.S. national foreign trade convention in New York last month: "In the case of materials and goods which are clearly of a non-strategic nature, the convention believes that the free world is likely, on balance, to experience greater disadvantage than advantage from any attempt to prohibit the shipment of such materials and goods."

BRITISH POSITION

This is not far from a statement by the British foreign office: "We cannot live without trade. We consider that this trade in non-strategic goods is to the advantage of the Free World."

Senator McCarthy in a speech called this "blood money" trading and said the U.S. should cut off economic aid to countries engaging in it.

Slight Error

BURNABY, B.C. (CP)—A 22-foot monument bought by children's pennies was placed on the international border at Point Roberts in 1861. It has been found to be three feet inside the Canadian side of the exact line and a committee has been set up to rectify matters and establish a border "peace mark."

BLACKWOOD on BRIDGE

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

Muzzy Makes Shrewd Play For Wrong Reason

When the queen of spades was opened and Mr. Champion saw the dummy, he was bitterly disappointed to note Mrs. Keen had as many as three cards in both black suits. Not that there was anything wrong with her bidding but why couldn't he be lucky enough to find a doubleton club or spade on the board?

However, the situation wasn't entirely hopeless. Mr. Champion saw he could make the hand on a squeeze if either of the defenders held his side's stoppers in clubs and diamonds. As you see, the cards were so distributed.

To set up the squeeze position, Mr. Champion planned to concede the first trick. He could then win the expected spade continuation and cash all of his trumps and the other high spade. That would leave everybody with four cards. Dummy would have four diamonds to the ace-jack. Mr. Champion would have a diamond and his original three clubs.

On the lead of the last trump at trick nine, Mr. Abel would have to play a card from a holding of the king and queen of diamonds and queen, jack, ten of clubs. Any discard he chose would give Mr. Champion the rest of the tricks.

A very fine plan—except Mr. Muzzy fouled the whole thing up by shifting to a diamond when he was permitted to hold the first trick. This knocked out a vital entry to the board and ruined the chance for a squeeze.

Mr. Champion went down one. He shook his head sadly. "You make about one good play a year, Muzzy," he remarked. "Why do you always have to do it against me?"

"I'll tell you why," shifted to a diamond," said Mr. Muzzy. "On the first trick Abel played a high spade, the eight spot. I knew that was a suit preference signal asking for a shift to the higher of the other two plain suits."

Mr. Champion groaned. "If you'd thought about it, Muzzy," he said, "you'd have realized that Abel wasn't flashing a high spade. The eight was

Oil Company Imports Supplies

VANCOUVER (CP)—Striking oil workers at Shellburn refinery in suburban Burnaby Tuesday used "flying pickets" in an attempt to halt shipments of gasoline and oil from Washington State.

Shell Oil Co. officials said they were bringing in supplies from the United States to fulfill obligations to dealers and to maintain employment for 269 workers not involved in the strike.

A spokesman for International Oil Workers Union (CIO-CIL) said pickets in automobiles were being placed to spot trucks bringing in the "hot" gasoline in time to set up picket lines.

More than half the canned chicken produced in Canada comes from Prince Edward Island canneries.

Priests Prepare For Christmas

HOLMAN ISLAND, N.W.T. (CP)—Two Roman Catholic missionaries who unwittingly made headlines four months ago are preparing to spend a quiet Christmas with their Eskimo charges in Holman Island, 70 miles from the North Pole.

Rev. Maurice Metayer, 42, and Rev. Henri Tardy, 33, are none the worse for the 21 days they and four Eskimos spent drifting aboard an 18-foot boat in Arctic waters last August.

Members of the Oblate Order and veterans of the Arctic, they became lost on a trip 275 miles south of here to pick up winter supplies. Their supplies were running low when an RCAF search plane spotted them.

The priests sailed back to Holman Island at the end of September and returned to the duties of their mission in this settlement on the southwest coast of Victoria Island, a vast barren island, 1,200 miles north of Edmonton.

TEND MIND, SPIRIT

They operate a school for Eskimo children and tend the spiritual needs of nomad Eskimo bands. The priests take turns making five-to-six-week trips from the mission. They catch up with one Eskimo group, spend a little time, then move on to another group.

The priests make a point of being in the settlement for such religious feasts as Easter, New Year's Day and Christmas.

Holman Island is a coastal settlement with a population of 35 persons, including the priests and the Hudson's Bay Company factor and his family.

Both Father Metayer and Father Tardy are natives of France.
