Conflicting Stories Told by Released Korea War Prisoners

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer
PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. — Conflicting pictures have emerged from correspondents reporting the past few days' exchange of prisoners of war from Communist Korea. On one hand there are accounts of American prisoners being marched and atrocities; on the other are Commonwealth accounts of uniformly decent treatment.

Ill Treatment Reported. Commonwealth Prisoners

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. — Commander of Commonwealth forces here, Lt. Gen. Harry Wells, said that not one Commonwealth prisoner free by the Communists so far has told of marches or similar ill treatment. He said that in an official statement released here, Wells said "from interviews with repatriated Commonwealth prisoners of war we have gained no knowledge of such marches or similar ill treatment."

Mystery About Body of Man

SEATTLE (C.P.) — Washington state patrol said today the body of a man had been found near the charred wreckage of a four-engine U.S. Air Force military aircraft which crashed into a hillside after it was abandoned by its listed crew of 10. Presence of the dead man, Roger D. Rondeau, 27, Boeing Airplane Company worker, could not be explained. Men who parachuted said they did not know he was on craft.

Russia Prepared To Begin Talks To Settle World Controversies

Eisenhower's Speech Answered by Pravda

White House Says Decision May Settle Cold War Problems

By The Canadian Press

MOSCOW.—The official newspaper of the Communist party declared today that Russia is ready to enter into "business-like" discussions with the West to end the great world controversies, but made it clear the Soviet Union is not retreating anywhere along the line of foreign policy.

The Russian reply to President Eisenhower's April 16 foreign policy speech was spread across the entire front page of Pravda in an editorial.

TONE SHARP
The whole tone of the Pravda reply was sharp and argumentative, but it was not vituperative or belligerent. It declared: "The Soviet government will welcome any step of the American government or any other government if it is directed at friendly settlement of difficult questions," and added: "The Soviet people invariably supported all steps directed toward concluding a just truce in Korea."

The editorial held out Korea as a No. 1 example of deeds, not words, in favor of peace.

FIRST STEP
In Washington, the White House said Russia's new peace statement may be "first step toward something concrete" in settling cold war problems. "If so," an official White House statement said, "the world will continue to wait for definite steps that must be made if Soviet leaders are sincerely interested in a co-operative solution to world problems."

Canada Seeks Agreement With Japan

OTTAWA (C.P.) — Canada is negotiating a new trade agreement with Japan which Trade Minister Howe expects will be "mutually beneficial to both countries." The minister made the disclosure in the Commons through the House and parried opposition criticism of Canada's trading policies.

Mr. Howe was questioned closely about Japan—to whom Canada sold $102,000,000 worth of goods last year and took $13,000,000 in return—and about Japanese competition. He said "negotiations are proceeding for a trade agreement between Japan and Canada in an amicable and friendly manner and we have good reason to believe that an agreement will be arrived at, which will safeguard the interests of Canadian manufacturers and at the same time will be mutually beneficial to both countries."

-WEATHER-

A large low pressure area to the west is spreading moist air over the province. In coastal regions the present showery weather will continue over the weekend. Gale snow blowing in exposed north coastal waters will subside gradually during the day. Cloud is spreading slowly eastward across the interior and a few showers are possible in the western part tonight. With the increased cloud cover temperatures tonight will not be quite as cold as those last night.

Forecast
Gale warning continued. Intermittent rain today, cloudy with a few showers Sunday. Little change in temperature. Winds in exposed locations southeast 30 this morning becoming southerly 20 this afternoon. Low tonight and high Sunday at Port Hardy 44 and 55; Sandspit and Prince Rupert 42 and 53.

WEARING COLORFUL COSTUMES of their ancestral land, these young Japanese-Canadians were on hand to welcome Crown Prince Akihito of Japan to Montreal. Prince Akihito has been touring across Canada on his way to the Coronation.

Leader Appeals to Doukhobors To End 'Stupid Game' of Fires

VANCOUVER (C.P.) — Stefan S. Sorokin, bearded spiritual leader of the fanatic Sons of Freedom Doukhobors, has appealed for an end of "this stupid game" of home burning in the Kootenays. In a letter from Uruguay, where he is seeking a new home for his people, Sorokin said: "If the fires occur during the night, secretly, then I can't help anybody. But if they are performed openly and in broad daylight, as it was in the past when they burned their own homes, then the consultative committee should look into the matter and legally put an end to this stupid game."

Referring to his efforts in Uruguay to find a haven for his followers, Sorokin wrote: "The government here has promised to give a decision re immigration to Uruguay. Of course, this only applies to the peaceful tollers and not to firebugs and criminals." Sorokin said he had not yet been informed by the consultative committee—a government-appointed body on Doukhobor affairs—of a recent renewed outbreak of burning and dynamiting in the Kootenays.

His letter was made public just one day after Attorney-General Robert Bonner of British Columbia announced rewards would be paid for information leading to arrest and conviction of the dynamiters and arsonists. It was written in answer to a telegram "informing me of the rapidly-increasing burnings and asking of me a message for the people, and of my return."

He added: "My people, the Reformed Doukhobors, will not participate in any burnings and dynamiting."

Shotgun Carrying Guards Patrol Against Doukhobors

NELSON, B.C. (C.P.) — Determined men, carrying shotguns, stalked through villages in the Slocan valley last night, protecting their homes and businesses against "possible violence by the Sons of Freedom Doukhobors." Fearful of continuance of terrorist raids which have destroyed 23 homes and buildings this spring, non-Doukhobor residents of the valley are taking no chances. Armed night patrols have been organized in most communities and the situation is described as tense. One shot already has been fired. A jittery guard let go a warning blast from his shotgun when two men failed to answer his challenge. No one was hurt.

Civic Centre Hobby Show Features Many Outstanding Handicraft Items

The Civic Centre Hobby Show is proving so successful that it will be held over for another day. The show, which opened Friday afternoon, will now continue until Monday night, announced Rowland Miles, crafts instructor, in charge of the display.

This year's display, open to all hobbyists whether or not members of the Civic Centre craft classes, is the biggest such display ever staged here.

There are many magnificent works of art included in the hundreds of items on display, outstanding among which are articles made of leather, pictures of copper foil, woodwork of all kinds, machining, embroidery, knitting. Special attention has been drawn to the copper work display, a large hooked wool rug, a ship's model, a leather handbag and intricate fretwork furniture.

Ornate items include kneeling pads for church-goers, intricately designed dolls' clothes, totem pole carving and cushion covers. Group displays have been entered by Booth Memorial High School industrial arts class, other school groups, Miller Bay Hospital and a leather work display is expected from Vancouver.

The show is open continuously today from 2:30 p.m. in the afternoon and after 9 p.m. Sunday when coffee will be served, and all afternoon and evening on Monday.

Special feature is the showing of movies on various types of handicrafts, illustrating methods.

Mr. Miles, who is enthusiastic with the number of entries in the display hopes this year's event is the forerunner of "bigger and better shows."

Display takes up space in both the Civic Centre gym and auditorium.

"While this is the best display of hobby work we have had here there are many more artists in this area whose work would be most interesting to see."

"Publicity of this show should attract even more entries next year," said Mr. Miles.

The Civic Centre handicraft class students helped to arrange the display and will assist in serving refreshments Sunday, both in the afternoon and in the evening.

Ketchikan Accepts Wooing

(Reprinted from the Ketchikan Alaska Chronicle)

IT IS GREAT FUN, as many good ladies can testify, to be wanted and to be wooed.

This is the situation in which Ketchikan finds itself this year, with the coming of the pulp industry stepping up the movement of heavy freight this way, putting both Seattle and Prince Rupert into the picture as wanting to be the gateway to a bigger Alaskan trade.

The week's announcement that four railroads will team up with Foss Barge and Tug of Tacoma to make a single through billing to Ketchikan was the biggest indication thus far that Puget Sound will not take the Rupert gateway threat lying down. But don't forget these other angles, too:

1. The barge operation will be less subject to labor tieup than the present steamer system, because fewer seafaring unions are involved.

2. The Rupert gateway likewise promises less strike disturbance than the present steamer operation.

3. Alaska Steamship Company is considering latching onto the Rupert operation in one way or another perhaps with its own tug and barge system, or perhaps with a car ferry of its own.

Thus the competition for Ketchikan and South-eastern Alaska already has brought some very apparent benefits. What develops in the rate structure remains to be seen. It is expected that the combined haul via Rupert will be less than via Seattle because of a promise that Ketchikan will receive terminal rates. But that may depend on the volume, on carload lots, etc. On the other hand, Seattle is set up to handle Alaskan business and feels it has the facilities and know-how that even another American city like Portland does not possess to such a degree.

At any rate, it's nice to know that service will be better, rates held down by competition, and that we shall have an alternate lifeline in case of future shipping tieups.

All Aboard By G.E. Mortimore

Women must be tidy at all costs. Consequently many women dig their graves with a scrubbing brush.

Doctors know they are wasting their breath when they tell a woman patient to take things easy. She says "Yes, doctor," quite meekly, but as soon as his back is turned she begins to wax the floor or dust the ceiling. Somehow she invents a number of strenuous domestic jobs which must be done right away.

A man in the same position is likely to behave quite differently. He balances one alternative against the other, and concludes that it would be better to be untidy than dead. A woman comes to the opposite conclusion with no visible evidence.

Of course some women seize the smallest excuse to avoid work, and even convince themselves that they are ill when they are not. But they are in the minority.

Most of the little sweethearts have a strong strain of the martyr in them, I believe. A sick woman bent on work has a pale dedicated look and a burning eye. Like Joan of Arc flourishing a broom instead of a sword, she charges with suicidal zeal into battle against the armies of dirt.

When a man regains consciousness after some illness or ordeal, he reaches for a cigarette. A woman reaches for a lipstick. This contrast in reactions symbolizes that difference between the sexes of which the French deputy said "Vive."

Women set more store by appearances than men do. The advertisements which tell you how to attract a mate by means of hair oil or toothpaste are not as ridiculous as they seem. Niffling cream may be the shadow godfather of many a happy family.

A woman sizes up a man like a mechanized David Harum evaluating a used car. Both of them pay considerable attention to the state of the upholstery. If it looks slatternly or betrays heavy use, there is a strong chance that the engine has also taken a beating. Let the buyer beware.

Not all women form their judgments in this way, though. If they did, I for one would still be standing on the dealer's lot, so to speak. But somehow my wife got the idea that my emotional engine was in good shape. She should have consulted a reliable mechanic.

Women live by the rule that things are often what they seem. And since they are highly sensitive to the opinions of other women, they struggle to keep a clean house, even if it kills them. Domestically speaking, they choose death before dishonor.

But there is more to it than that. Drab or dirty surroundings inflict real pain on the average woman. Perhaps the physical harm she does herself by working in a lesser evil than the mental harm she would do by staying idle.

A woman ties her nerves in knots for causes which seem trivial to a man. That's the way she's built. But we love her just the same. Housework is the sedative an ailing woman prescribes for herself, and when it comes to a showdown, the defeated male is forced to acknowledge that she is the doctor.

Boosts Free Milk Plan

THE highlight of the B.C.

Tory election plan for 1953 is a half a pint of free milk a day for every pupil in grade schools.

B.C. has thus had a striking new demonstration of some old truths: You can't keep a good man down.

The good old Tory party of Sir John A. Macdonald, Borden and R. B. Bennett is far from dead.

Under the smiling ex-airman Deane Finlayson's inspired leadership the B.C. Conservatives have not only set the political pace for all B.C. Once again B.C. has set the pace for all Canada in the field of human welfare.

THE WHOLE history of democracy is one long proof of the power of ideas. "Mightier than an army with banners is an idea whose hour has come."

It would be a bold prophet who would say that the B.C. Tories could win this election in B.C. But it does not take much of a prophet to see that the free milk plan, which has been proclaimed by the New Look Tories, will sweep everything before it.

All parties will sooner or later have to step in line to apply this fine reform. The people of B.C. will not forget that it was the Conservatives who led this great social advance.

ANYBODY who studies the history of politics can see that there have been long periods of history when the Conservative party kept the confidence and goodwill of the great mass of the people by championing plans which were considered "radical."

In Britain The Tory Disraeli took the famous "leap in the dark" and gave great masses of poor people the vote. In Canada at the time of Confederation the Tories were anything but reactionary.

In Ontario in my own boyhood days the Tories were putting through public ownership of public utilities full 50 years before the Labor government did the same thing in Britain—yet no Ontario Tory ever dreamed of calling that "Socialism."

THE FREE milk plan comes in the nick of time for the B.C. dairy farmers.

In the greater Vancouver area population increased by about 100,000 from 1947 to 1953. Milk prices rose from 14 to 22 cents per quart. Yet consumption decreased by 2,618,026 quarts—or 3.2 per cent. That is, per capita consumption fell off by over 20 per cent.

The free-for-all sales system proposed by the Social government after May first will further lower the fluid milk consumption. If the Winnipeg experience is a good guide. In that city stores were permitted to sell for two cents per quart less than wagon delivery price. Sales through Safeway increased by 400 per cent—but overall milk consumption declined. Hundreds of farmers were cut off from the fluid milk market altogether. Distributors had to dismiss employees, and some outlying districts lost their delivery service.

THE BEAUTY of the free milk plan is that it will mean an outlet for a vast amount of whole milk that otherwise would have to be sold as by-products. In the Vancouver area roughly half the total milk production is sold as whole milk. The other half is sold for making dried milk, butter, ice cream and cheese. (Many of these products are held in vast surplus.)

The farmer gets 12.95 cents per quart for every quart that is sold for 22 cents at the city kitchen door. But the farmer gets much less than this per quart for the same amount of milk sold as by-products. The Tory free milk plan should thus drastically cut distribution costs.

Parliament Hill

By Edward T. Applewhite, M.P., Skeena

The air services out of Prince Rupert have been causing me some concern and I have been in pretty constant touch with Queen Charlotte Airlines which holds the licences for our area, and with such organizations as the Stewart Board of Trade.

I have now assurances which I consider valid that Q.C.A. are and will be in a position to provide the services which Stewart, with good reason, confidently expects to need this year.

One thing I am becoming increasingly sure of is that if we could only find enough revenue business to justify the use of a Canoe in the area, then we could improve all the services. Prince Rupert-Masset, Prince Rupert-Ketchikan, Prince Rupert-Stewart and charter. The government's interest in maintaining air services was recently indicated by the voting of a subsidy of $150,000.

Very often little things take time and effort which, in proportion to the money involved, is far greater than that taken up in major projects. It is the large amount of small matters originating in Skeena which keep me always well "in arrears" with my work. For instance, I am having difficulty getting a five-ton derrick for the Port Simpson wharf. But this is one case when I have "my neck bowed" and refuse to take No for an answer.

INTRODUCES BILL
Doug Abbott, Minister of Finance recently introduced a resolution and a bill to consolidate, revise and modernize the legislation governing pensions and retirement allowances for members of the public service of Canada. Since the original provision in 1870 there have been numerous changes and revisions. Moreover, there has been a great deal of experience gained in the administration of our Act, and there has also been a steady and continuous development of pension policies and practices in private industry and in government employment, both in this and in other countries.

It is a rather lengthy and technical bill. For the Conservatives, J. M. Macdonell in a brief but clear statement agreed to the bill. George McIlraith, Liberal, Ottawa West, was particularly pleased that it had come forward. He said that the report of the Malcolm Committee in 1923 was the basis for the present superannuation legislation, and the 1924 Act was based upon it.

Prior to 1944 not only was it necessary that a civil servant, before coming under the Act, must be permanent, but also that he be paid a stated annual salary. As he interpreted the remarks of the Minister, he took it (correctly) that the discrimination against "temporary" in favor of "permanent" civil servants is now being removed.

LETTERBOX

TOTEMS NOT BOUGHT

The Editor,

The Daily News:

In your paper under the heading "Totem Poles in Danger..." you state that the poles were purchased by me while I was city commissioner for the sum of $1000.

The natives did not sell their family totems but were paid the $1000 to take the poles down and deliver them to a boat kindly furnished by the Canadian National Steamships, for erection in the city of Prince Rupert where they were to be repaired and preserved for the benefit of everyone interested in Indian crafts.

Indian Agents Collison and Gillette who assisted in this work called the collection the best of all totems in existence.

An American expert and his assistant came here to examine them and dubbed one of the poles the best carved that he had ever seen.

There is not a city in Canada that would not be proud to have any one of our poles for a place of honor in their park.

From a tourist standpoint, they are most valuable. They cannot be replaced and Prince Rupert is in honor bound to keep them safe and in good repair.

CRUSHING BURDEN

The Editor,

The Daily News:

Enfranchisement for the Indian sounds wonderful in theory. But would the native, at the present time, be able to provide for himself adequately? Would not the full responsibility of his own support, with the added obligation of paying taxes, hospital insurance premiums, etc., prove a crushing burden?

I would be interested in Mr. Stanwood's views on this point.

Yours very truly,

EILEEN WRIGHT.

NAVY NEWS...

HMCS Chatham is busy with preparations for the gigantic Coronation Ball to be held June 2 in the Navy Drill Hall, under the sponsorship of Mayor Whalen and the city council.

The co-ordinating committee are: Lieutenant Walter Smith and Sub-Lieut. Dianne Kennedy, acting for the navy, with Mrs. William Halliwell and Mrs. J. Ewart, acting for the IODE. They have arranged for sub-committees to assist them in their preparations.

Decorations, favors and refreshments will be outstanding. A jeweled crown-pin in the coronation motif is to be presented to each lady guest.

The ball is to be semi-formal and all military personnel are expected to be in uniform. The Five Dukes will be in charge of the music and Job's Daughters will be in attendance in the cloak room.

Invitations have just been received from the printer and the committee is busy drawing up the list of guests, which should be completed by May 1. This will be a gay and colorful occasion and anyone wishing to be placed on the guest list is asked to contact HMCS Chatham at 526.

SPORTS ROUND-UP

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—Nobody outlawed the two-platoon system in baseball but it looks as if the old boy is on his last legs.

Even Casey Stengel, who practically invented the idea, has slowed up on the switches. Stengel actually didn't double-team his New York Yankee line-up much last year. He concentrated on shuffling the batting order with 98 different versions.

Stengel is platooning at two positions this season. One is caused by the injury to third-baseman Gil McDonald.

With McDougald out Stengel has been playing Andy Carey against lefthanded pitchers and Loren Babe against righthanders.

There is a typical twist to the other change. Against a lefthander, Stengel has lefthanded batter Joe Collins; for another, Johnny Mize. The theory is that Mize, one of the game's great hitters for years, can hit any kind of pitchers while Collins often looks bad against south-paws.

Marty Marion sometimes makes a change in his St. Louis Browns' outfield. Jimmy Dyck, who gave way to Bob Elliott at third base, usually plays left field when a southpaw is pitching. Dick Kokos replaces him against righthanders.

Chuck Dressen is still two-platooning left field for Brooklyn Dodgers. George Shuba has been slow recovering from a knee operation so Dressen has used Don Thompson against righthanders and Dick Williams against lefties. Neither is a ball of fire at the plate.

For the Philadelphia Phillies Johnny Wyrostek has been slugging at a .533 clip against the righthanders. But Mel Clark starts the game in right field when the opposition pitches a lefthander.

Rogers Hornsby makes one change in his Cincinnati lineup, alternating Gus Bell and Wally Post in centre field. Bell plays against the righthanders.

New Bears Threaten WIL Race

(This is one in a series on the prospects of teams in the Western International Baseball League.)

By GEORGE F. REDMOND

Yakima Republic Sports Editor

YAKIMA—The Yakima Bears, playing in this flowering garden of kid baseball, are going it alone in the Western International League this season—perhaps even closer to a pennant than when assisted by the San Francisco Seals.

Backed by the riches of Frederick Merrey, Jr., theatre, hotel and business building magnate, the Bears are starting out now—new faces, new uniforms and new business office management.

Only manager Dario Lodigiani, the old major and Pacific Coast League infielder, pitcher Jack Thompson and first-baseman Len Noren remain.

YOUNG TALENT

Mercy wants a winner built by his own hand and the hands of his local associates and especially does he want it built from the talent to be found in an area he believes possesses more promising youngsters than any other in the world.

To accomplish the purpose, which is spurred by home-town pride, he has unwrapped the strings from his pocketbook and given general manager Bob Osland and Lodigiani a "go-ahead" sign conditioned only that youngsters be given the preference on the roster.

Acting on that advice, Lodigiani arrived on the local scene March 17 with a whole flock of youngsters in tow. He had picked them from the California sandlots during an off-season of scouting the California winter leagues.

Present training camp appearances indicate Lodigiani's efforts have not been in vain. Among the promising players are Milt Mountaine, a big catcher; John Matzek, a six-foot-two-inch shortstop, and Chuck Cannady, a fire-balling righthander.

PACKAGE DEALS

However, a player package accompanying the Seals' stock into Merrey's hands may pay the biggest dividends.

One of these players is Dick Young, six-foot-three-inch 21-year-old righthander. A pitcher signed by the old Yankee pitcher, Carl Mays, he had a 22-1 record in the Portland City League when Uncle Sam called him into the service.

Another pitcher in the package was Leroy Schaening, a Californian who had an 18-4 record in the Mountain States League before his entry into service.

The grab-bag also contained Herman Lewis, fleet Negro outfielder who had more than 50 home runs in two years of organized baseball and also a .340 batting average in the Mexican Pacific Winter League.

There were also shortstop Elmer Clow, who batted better than .300 and was picked on the Mexican league's all-star team, and outfielder Babe Gammino, who had entered the service after a .335-year in the Arizona West Texas League.

Osland during the winter obtained second-baseman Buddy Hjelm, a veteran of the WIL, from Wenatchee; infielder Jack Louman, a hometown boy who has played Texas ball, from Tyler of the Big State League; pitcher Eddie Locke and outfielder Bob McGuire from Vancouver Caplanos and pitchers Duwain Chipman and Bill Creech from the Gulf States League.

Millionaire Scores Race Track Taxes

TORONTO (E. P. Taylor of Toronto has pleaded for a reduction of the eight-per-cent betting tax on Ontario race tracks to five per cent, and chided the Ontario government for what he termed its "short-sighted policy" in this respect.

In his presidential report to the 46th annual meeting of the Canadian Thoroughbred Horse Society, the Toronto millionaire sportsman declared:

"As soon as our provincial governments come to realize that through excessive taxation they are discouraging the largest spectator sport in North America, I am sure that the race tracks will do their part and provide adequate modern and up-to-date physical facilities, and better purses.

"When all this comes about, provincial revenues will be very much larger at a five-per-cent tax than they are now at much higher rates.

"Recognizing that breeders and owners throughout Canada look to Ontario for leadership, your society has made repeated representations to the Ontario government in regard to the handicap of unduly heavy taxation. So far our pleas have only met with scant success as the tax still stands at eight per cent."

Mr. Taylor said that with the growth of racing the Canadian breeding industry "has been expanding in the quantity and quality of thoroughbreds produced" but "from the financial standpoint, the industry cannot be considered to be in a healthy state."

A check of several prominent breeders who keep accurate records indicates that the true cost of a yearling up to the time that it is broken or sold amounts to between $3,000 and $5,000, depending on the value of the mare, stallion fee, and all other elements of cost.

"As the average selling value of the yearlings at sale time or later as a race horse does not average nearly this amount, it can be truthfully said that breeding in this country is currently being conducted at an annual loss which is probably in excess of $1,000,000."

Spring Salmon Derby is Planned To Become Regular Annual Event

Opening of the first annual Spring Salmon Derby here Sunday marks the beginning of what is planned to be a regular annual event for sportsmen and women.

Sponsored by the Rupert Rod & Gun Club, the derby is operated by a three-man committee according to accepted rules in other derbies.

There is one main difference between the Derby here and those held in other areas—the Rod & Gun Club cannot commit itself in advance of what the main prizes will consist as other sponsors do.

Because this is the first such derby held here, there is no way of estimating amount of funds that will be available for prizes through sale of derby tickets, explained derby committee members.

All money collected from sale of entry tickets, however, will be used only for operation of the derby.

Another major handicap the derby committee experiences is lack of boat rental facilities in Prince Rupert. A special appeal is being issued to all row-boat owners willing to rent out their boats during the whole or part of the derby season.

Those willing to rent their boats are asked to contact Elmer Clausen at Cow Bay, telephone Red 919 and arrangements will be made.

The derby committee is particularly grateful for the support already received by city merchants who have donated derby prizes.

A canvass was made of all merchants last fall for prizes in the coho derby. Because of a low entry list, only a limited number of prizes were awarded and the balance retained.

These will now be used for the Spring Salmon Derby and the Steelhead Derby, which closes May 3.

However, more prizes will be needed in addition to ones made available through entry fees and another canvass of merchants will be made.

For the future, one canvass will be made annually. Merchants are asked to support the derby to promote a growing tourist attraction as well as outdoor sporting locally.

A display of prizes donated will be shown in a downtown window throughout the derby season, beginning next week.

Members of the derby committee are Elmer Clausen, Howard Walker and Larry Stanwood.

English Cricketers Still Hope To Down Aussie ChampionsBy ARCH MacKENZIE
By The Canadian Press

LONDON (E. P. Taylor of London) — On the losing end of the Australian-England test matches for a long time, England still can whip up a lot of enthusiasm for the visiting cricketers from Down Under.

"A summer which brings us the Australians cannot be dull even if it rains," opined J. P. W. Mallalieu, Labor member of Parliament, journalist and cricket lover, summing up the cricket fan's attitude toward the test matches inaugurated in 1876 and scheduled again for this summer.

This year's Coronation visit is that much more welcome because some observers have professed to detect a clink or two in the armor of the Australians, who last played here in 1948 under the great Sir Donald Bradman. Australia won handily on that occasion and hasn't lost since 1932-33.

England's hopes of victory may be more wishful thinking than substance, for the Australians may be nurturing them to make eventual victory sweeter, but it's said that Australian bowling isn't what it used to be. Their draw with South Africa in the test matches concluded early this year was blamed on injuries to Keith Miller and Ray Lindwall, demon fast bowlers comprising two-thirds of the Australian main attack and both over 30.

AUSSIERS CONFIDENT

Still the visitors seemed pretty confident when they docked in mid-April and there is nothing wrong with their fielding and batting records.

In fact, their roster, which includes eight veterans of the 1948 Australian team, looks as good statistically as England's, with an average age of 28, a year younger than the previous team.

Miller and Lindwall are reported good as new, bad news for English batsmen who can recall being harassed by their lightning deliveries which now and then exploded under their chins.

The team captained by Lindsay Hassett starts play at the end of the month in a charity match and fits the five English test games into a schedule which totals 31 games with other clubs.

First test match starts June 11 and the last August 15.

Grandmother Golfer Drives 9 Holes-in-One

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (AP)—Mrs. F. F. Small, 61-year-old golfing grandmother, drove for two more holes-in-one on the golf course at Invercargill Thursday, it was reported here.

They were her eighth and ninth this year.

Mrs. Small, who has been clicking off her holes-in-one with amazing regularity, turned in her first Jan. 15. Since then it just keeps on happening.

Reports from Invercargill say Mrs. Small decided to give up golf for a while after turning in holes-in-one on three consecutive days early in April. She went off on a non-golfing vacation but came back to the links Thursday. This time it happened twice.

The first was on a 114-yard hole, and the second, 190.

Fourth of High Card Power Is Enough To Suggest Game

When Mr. Meek opened the bidding with one spade, Mrs. Keen correctly decided that she had enough to make two bids. She had about the equal of an average hand—25 per cent of the high card strength. This was not enough for game unless Mr. Meek had something over a minimum opening in distribution of high cards. But it was enough to suggest game by bidding twice.

Mrs. Keen's first bid was two clubs. Mr. Meek then made the gross underbid of two spades. A two no trump bid would have shown his true strength. However, it was fortunate that he was so conservative as Mrs. Keen might have raised to three no trump—a hopeless contract in this case.

Mrs. Keen's second bid was three spades which even Mr. Meek could not pass. He went on to four and Mr. Dale led the king of diamonds.

While Mr. Meek's cautiousness in the bidding was open to criticism, his cautiousness in the play was commendable indeed. He won the first trick with the ace of diamonds. He laid down the ace of spades and saw Mr. Dale drop the queen. Here he paused to reassess his chances. He had to lose a club and a diamond. Therefore he could afford to lose one spade. But not two.

It was possible that Mr. Dale had started with queen-jack doubletons in spades. If so, he had the lone jack at this point and the play of the king would pick it up. In that case Mr. Meek would make five-odd, losing no spade tricks at all.

But if the queen really was a singleton, then Mr. Abel had J-9-7 left. Here the play would lose two spade tricks for sure—and put the contract down one.

The chance for an extra trick left Mr. Meek absolutely cold. At trick three he simply led a low spade toward the ten. If he lost to the lone jack on his left he would still take ten tricks. As it was, Mr. Dale showed out and Mr. Abel beat dummy's ten with the jack. But later Mr. Meek was able to take the marked finesse against Mr. Abel's guarded nine of spades.

Natives Dignified In Africa

By The Canadian Press

EDMONTON. — Mrs. Edward Fawcett Wilkinson, who with her husband recently came to Edmonton after 12 years in Africa, says the African native in his own environment has pride, tradition and dignity.

It is the native living on the borders of industrial centres, losing his sense of heritage, who is baffled by an alien civilization and becomes the trouble-maker, she says.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilkinson lived 12 years in the major cities of Africa. They grew up and attended school there, although both are of English birth. Mr. Wilkinson was a shift manager in various mines on the Gold Coast, and is familiar with employment problems of native labor.

Speaking of the Mau Mau situation in Kenya, Mrs. Wilkinson says that if the Kikuyus ever succeeded in gaining possession of the rich plantation lands owned by the whites, the land would soon deteriorate under poor farming methods.

She says that despite repeated instruction, the native will plow a hillside vertically rather than horizontally, and the torrential rains wash the seeds down the furrows and the crop is lost.

Segregation is a problem among all people living in Africa—English, Dutch and natives, Mrs. Wilkinson says.

The Boers or Afrikaners, who have maintained a bitterness against the English population since the days of the Boer War, do not permit their children to attend English-speaking schools, a detriment to the social, economic and political future of the country.

She says the Dutch Reformed Church maintains a strict code for its adherents not only theologically, but socially.

For example, says Mrs. Wilkinson, they take note of such things as bathing suits. Coverage is the dictum—over the shoulders and down to the knees.

Smithers Curlers Ponder Problems

SMITHERS. — Smithers Curling Club plans to change the annual meeting date from October to the last week of March. A resolution to this effect will be introduced.

It has been found the incoming executive is at a disadvantage taking over duties so close to opening of the curling season.

Heaving of ice sheets is a problem confronting the club. It is proposed either to put down plank flooring or spread considerable thickness of gravel in an attempt to provide better curling surfaces.

RANDOLPHE WILLIAM DIAMOND, 62, of Trail, B.C., mining and metallurgical engineer, is the first Canadian to be presented by the Institute of Metals platinum medal. Mr. Diamond, executive vice-president of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company's western region, receives the medal at Montreal from Dr. Gerald Letendre of Quebec. The Institute is a British organization with branches in all parts of the world.

Railway Museum Train Travels Across Canada

MONTREAL.—A rare chapter of railway history was written here Friday when Mayor Camillien Houde of Montreal officially inaugurated the Canadian National Railway museum train which eventually will be shown throughout Canada and parts of the United States.

Following the official introduction by M. A. Metcalf, executive assistant of the CNR, Mayor Houde handed specially prepared train orders for "all points of the Canadian National system with historic right over all trains" to a veteran engineer riding in the cab of the first locomotive.

The brief ceremony marked more than three years of intensive research to prepare the only mobile museum of its kind in the world.

It has three old-time locomotives, a passenger coach of 1860, diner of 1875, sleeper of 1890, and three baggage cars of the 19th century—all museum pieces themselves.

Oldest locomotive of the three is No. 40, one of the last of the woodburners and the first standard gauge engine ordered by the Grand Trunk Railway in 1872. Locomotive 247 is a saddle tank switcher of 1894, and locomotive 674, a Mogul type engine built in 1899, is the oldest locomotive still in service.

The sleeping car features the ornate designs and carvings of its period, and the dining car of 1875 features silverware from five of Canada's pioneer lines, now part of the CNR system.

The passenger coach of 1860 has oil-burning lamps, a stove at each end of the car, and baggage racks good only for car-petbags used at that time. Modernly designed cases and panels in the three baggage cars display hundreds of early rail-roading items. They include such relics as a Bible rack, once used in the Central Vermont Railway passenger cars; old timetables, drawings and photographs of historic Victoria Bridge, the royal tours and railway construction of pioneer days, and the first diesel engine in North America.

The train will remain on display at Montreal until April 29. On May 16, it will run between Toronto and Aurora, Ont., to mark the centennial of the first railway line in Upper Canada, and in July will run over the old St. Lawrence & Atlantic Railway line from Montreal to Coaticook and, possibly, Portland, Me.

Following a two-week showing at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto, it will travel over the route of the Great Western Railway through southern Ontario in October to complete the centennial celebrations of 1953.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What will they think up next for Esther Williams?

Hollywood's only amphibious film star was doing the last big production number for her latest picture, "Easy to Wed." It took place in the water, of course. But any resemblance to previous routines ended there.

In the first place, she was outfitted in baggy pants, a red wig, painted face and other elements of a clown's attire. While a grandstand full of kids yelled and cheered, she was to stand on her head and go through other gyrations on a tiny, self-propelled aquaplane board.

"For the climax," she reported enthusiastically, "I grab onto a bunch of balloons and get carried into the air."

Doubles will do some of these stunts for Esther, who is expecting her third child. But she was on the set and prepared to spend a good part of her day in the MGM tank.

Esther's vehicles have the limiting factor that she must always be kept close to the water. In case there is a lull in the plot, there must always be a tank handy for a swimming routine. Despite this limitation, she remains immensely popular after 10 wet years in the movies.

"She is the No. 1 star in foreign countries," producer Joe Pasternak reported. "They love her in Germany, in England, Africa, Japan and all over Asia."

"When I was in Paris, five of her pictures were playing on the Champs Elysee."

What is the reason for her success?

"She is clean, wholesome sex," the producer analyzed. "Her pictures have no messages. They aren't aimed at promoting lend-lease or furthering world peace. All they do is entertain."

"Esther is great because she doesn't act. She's not an actress; she's a personality. She plays herself, and you know that she's enjoying her work."

Smithers P-TA Presents Play

SMITHERS. — Smithers Parent-Teacher Association's three-night presentation of the play "Too Many Relatives" this week was well received.

A very good attendance witnessed a newly-married couple involve itself with deception of their hard-of-hearing rich old aunt and uncle and emerge triumphant. The escaped convict seeking hide-out in their apartment added confusion and amusement to connubial bliss.

Proceeds are for purchase of an opaque projector for educational purposes in the schools.
