Remains Of Hall Party Found Near Scene Of Wrecked Plane

Signs Indicate Fall or Explosion

By The Associated Press

KETCHIKAN, Alaska.—Parts of the bodies of two women have been found by a shore party from the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Kimball searching the beaches of Boca de Quadra for Ellis Hall, missing New Mexico oilman, and four other plane crash victims.

A terse message from the Kimball said the remains are believed to be those of Mrs. Hall and one of the two daughters who were aboard the plane when it disappeared a month ago.

No further information was given but Coast Guard officials here said today it appeared likely the bodies had been broken up in a long fall or from an explosion since the message said only parts were found.

The search has centred in the Tidal Basin area, 35 miles southeast of Ketchikan.

Wreckage of Hall's de Havilland plane, light green in color, was spotted Tuesday by Hermie Ludwigen, Ketchikan flier and basketball star, about 100 yards from the shore of the timbered arm of Revillagigedo Channel. The wreckage was scattered over half a mile of wooded land at an elevation of about 1,200 feet.

The plane with Mr. and Mrs. Hall, two daughters and 17-year-old Patrick Hibben, son of a New Mexico University professor, was first reported lost August 17 when it was overdue on a flight from Annette Island to Bellingham, Washington, via Smithers, B.C.

A $25,000 reward was at first offered and then raised to $30,000 by the Condor Petroleum Company of Abilene, Texas, for anyone locating the missing aircraft.

Joining in the search from Prince Rupert were planes from the Prince Rupert Aero Club, Queen Charlotte Airlines, Consolidated Mining & Smelting Co. Ltd., and Nelson Brothers Fisheries.

In addition financial assistance is available toward meeting the cost of equipment, the amount of such assistance dependent on the value of any particular item to civil defence.

On the training side the senior governments are underwriting cost of schools for training of key men.

W. H. Hill and Tommy Elliott have been trained as instructors in atomic, biological and chemical defence methods. Jack Ewart holds a certificate in civil defence rescue. F. H. St. John Madeley and W. R. Long took courses in welfare for people made homeless by war or disaster and Mayor Harold Whalen took part in an orientation course.

The federal government also provides regulation fire pumps to assist in the training of auxiliary firement.

In B.C., he said, there are about 50,000 people actively engaged in civil defence with 30,000 of them considered as trained. In addition, 50,000 B.C. school children have received elementary first aid training.

Douks Refuse To Talk

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER. — Approximately 30 more Sons of Freedom were scheduled to stand trial for nudism today amid signs that their prison hunger strike was weakening.

They are the second contingent of Doukhobors to undergo swift trial before Magistrate Graham Ladner on charges of appearing in the nude in public.

Yesterday, nine males of the 14 Doukhobors currently fasted in Oakalla prison farm were convicted in a series of hearings, longest of which ran 15 minutes. All were remanded until Monday for sentence.

Today's group is expected to continue the "conspiracy of silence" observed by Thursday's defendants, none of whom said a word or acknowledged that a trial was taking place.

As one after another refused to answer when his name was called by Magistrate Ladner through a Russian-speaking interpreter, the judge remarked on "the similarity of conduct on the part of the accused."

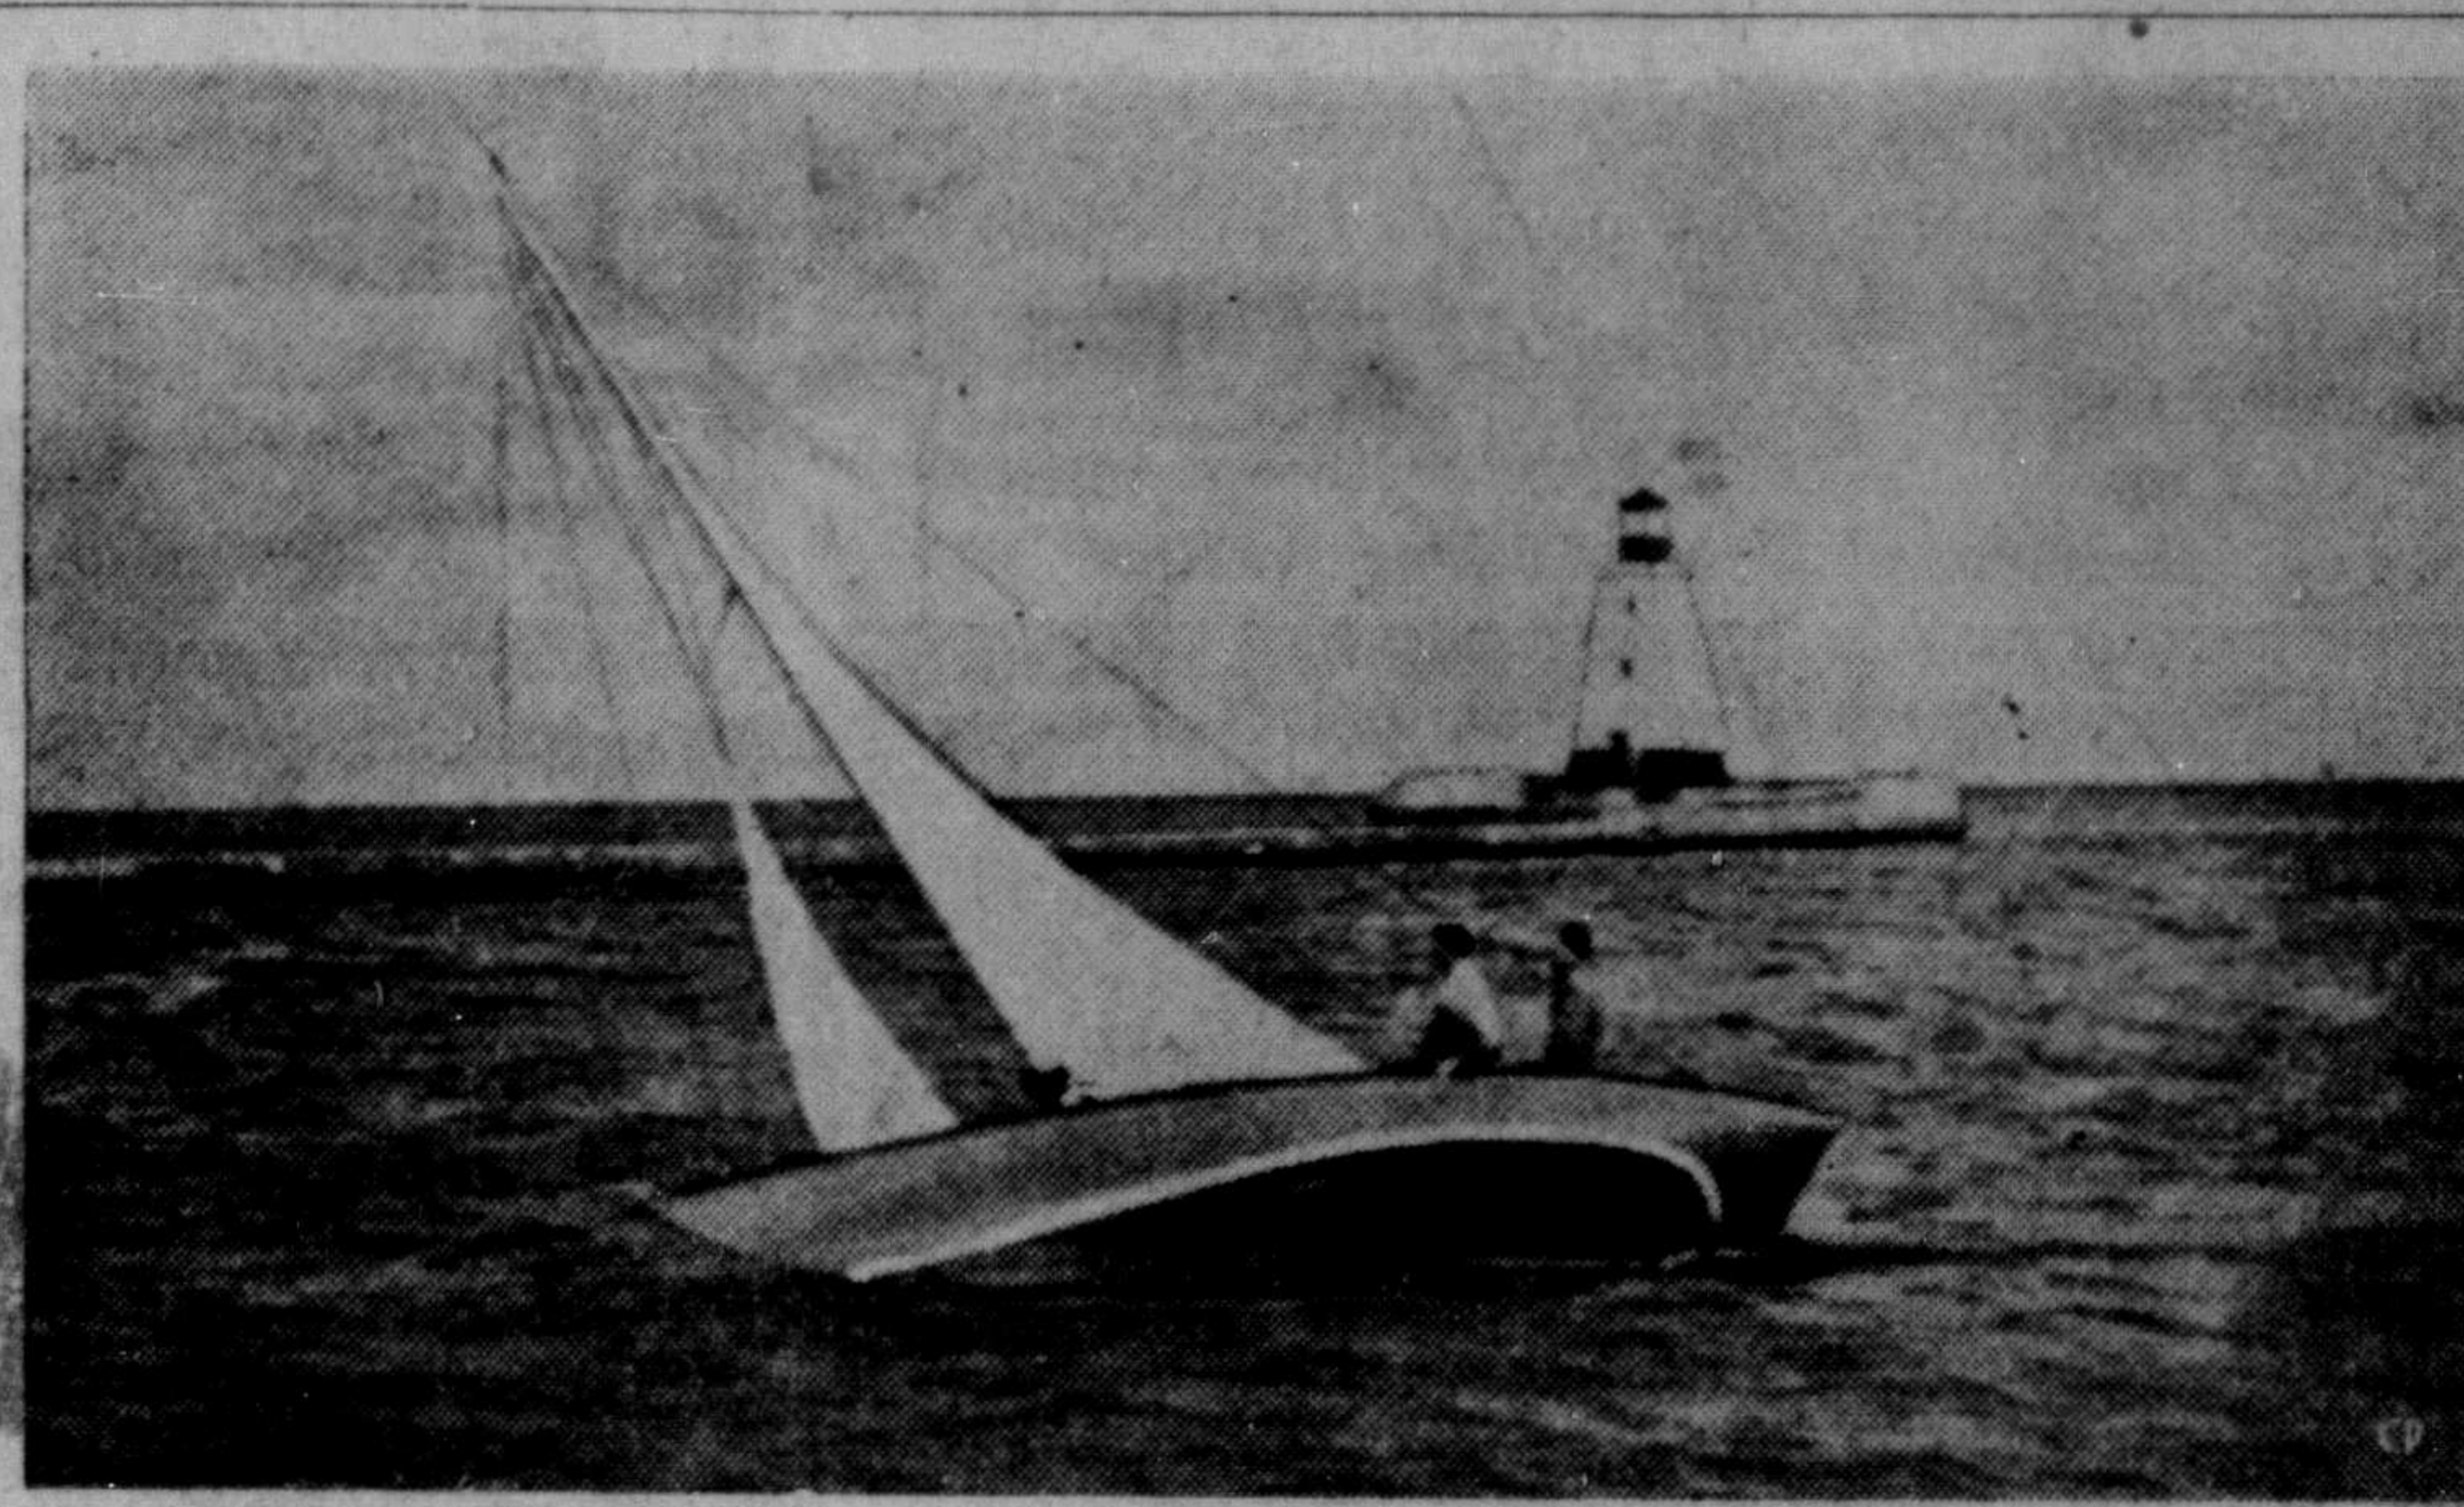

First reports that the hunger strike might be abating came from warden Hugh Christie of Oakalla, where the 144 have been foodless since their arrest at Perry Siding Sept. 9.

Some of the "diehard" Sons, the warden said, have asked for vegetable juices. These men have existed solely on water since their arrest. Some of the women wavered earlier and accepted juice.

RCMP officers at the hearings, being held in a ramshackle Burnaby meeting hall, said on Thursday they expected to "dispose of" 30 cases, some of them women, in today's hearings.

Women have not appeared in the courtroom since Thursday morning, when only 14 of the 71 in custody were signified fit enough to travel the miles from Oakalla to the hall.

Some of these were carried bodily from the huge chartered bus into the court. They slumped forward in their chairs, refusing to acknowledge the charge as it was read.

A PLEASURE TRIP IN THE ROUGH WATERS of Toronto's eastern gap ended in death for James Robertson (right), 26, of Winnipeg, who was drowned a few minutes after this dramatic (Telegram) photo was taken. The sloop sank and Robertson's companion, Edward Jull, 39, (left) swam safely 150 yards to shore. Robertson was unable to swim the distance. Ironically, the mast of the sloop remained above water after the vessel sank and the men could have clung to it in safety.

Parliament to Meet Nov. 12; Jean Lesage Gets Cabinet Post

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament will meet Thursday, Nov. 12, with probably only one new face on the front benches.

Prime Minister St. Laurent announced Thursday night that Jean Lesage, 41-year-old lawyer who has represented Montmagny-L'Islet in Parliament since 1946, will join his cabinet as minister of resources and development.

Mr. Lesage was appointed last January as parliamentary assistant to Finance Minister Abbott and was reappointed in that post last week. He served as parliamentary assistant to External Affairs Minister Pearson in 1951 and 1952.

Hon. Robert Winters, 43-year-old resources minister since 1950, becomes works minister succeeding Mr. Justice Fournier, 60, appointed to the Exchequer Court before the Aug. 10 federal election.

Mr. St. Laurent also spiced reports that Finance Minister Abbott and External Affairs Minister Pearson might figure in a cabinet shuffle.

He said Mr. Abbott, 54, has agreed to remain as finance minister to pilot the revision of the Bank Act through the new Parliament. The act must be reviewed every 10 years.

Consideration was given to Mr. Abbott's anxiety to relinquish the finance ministry, Mr. St. Laurent said. But in view of the serious consideration necessary by Parliament of the Bank Act, Mr. Abbott, who has been finance minister since 1946, agreed to remain in that post.

He also said Mr. Pearson, 56, external affairs minister since 1948, feels he is doing the job to which he is best suited and hopes he will remain in his post.

He added that Mr. Pearson, now in New York as head of Canada's delegation to the General Assembly of the United Nations, asked him to make the statement in view of speculation that Mr. Pearson might leave external affairs.

Fires Cause $5,000 Damage In Rupert During Summer

Twenty-eight fires during the past two months inflicted approximately $5,150 damage on city property, Fire Chief Earl E. Becker, said in a report tabled at this week's council meeting.

During July the fire department answered 15 calls with damages amounting to approximately $3,000 being sustained.

The report said the largest amount of damage was inflicted on the residence of M. U. Patrick, 812 Sixth Avenue East, to the extent of $2,150 and to a cannery boat belonging to J. S. Todd and Co., to the extent of $700.

In August the department answered 13 calls with a total damage being estimated at $1,200. The most serious fire was the burning of a cannery boat with damage set at $800 and one life lost. Damage of $300 was sustained at a fire in the Provincial Public Works garage.

The fire chief's report said that routine monthly inspections of hotels and apartment houses were carried out and that 35 extinguishers in schools, hospitals and other establishments were refilled. The CNR fire alarm system was also checked.

The department also answered 29 ambulance calls during July and 38 in August.

Commission Will Purchase Kitimat Power

VICTORIA (CP)—The British Columbia government-owned Power Commission will buy power from the Aluminum Company of Canada development at Kitimat, it was announced yesterday.

The eighth annual report of the commission, tabled in the Legislature yesterday by Premier W. A. C. Bennett, said that power will be used to serve the rapidly growing power district around Terrace, about 50 miles away.

The report for operations up to March 31 said the comparison of the cost of development of local sites with the cost of power purchased from Alcan indicated that the latter would be most economical.

Construction of a transmission line between Kitimat and Terrace will be facilitated as soon as rail and road communications are developed between these two points.

Defence Chief Praises Work Accomplished by Authorities Here

Columbia's top civil defence co-ordinator is very pleased with the progress made by Prince Rupert authorities in assessing the requirements of a civil defence organization here and the formation of a suitable organization to handle an emergency.

General G. R. Stein is holding talks with civic authorities and W. H. Hill, civil defence co-ordinator for the Prince Rupert target area.

Under a wartime set up Prince Rupert would be designated as a strategic target by the provincial civil defence organization due to its importance as a major port and railhead. Equally important, Gen. Stein said, was the possibility of a major disaster in the form of fire or earthquake, when a civil defence organization would be called into action.

Although Prince Rupert would not warrant being considered as a primary target in wartime, Gen. Stein said that it certainly would be classed as secondary, because of its position on a possible approach of enemy aircraft flying south to Canadian and United States cities.

In answer to questions as to the support of civil defence by the federal and provincial governments, Gen. Stein said there was no doubt that financial aid would be increased.

He hoped Prince Rupert civic authorities would avail themselves of the matching funds program offered by the two senior governments, before the end of 1953.

Under the program any municipality doing anything on behalf of civil defence can get two thirds of all its administrative expenses for civil defence, paid for equally by the senior governments.

In addition financial assistance is available toward meeting the cost of equipment, the amount of such assistance dependent on the value of any particular item to civil defence.

On the training side the senior governments are underwriting cost of schools for training of key men.

W. H. Hill and Tommy Elliott have been trained as instructors in atomic, biological and chemical defence methods. Jack Ewart holds a certificate in civil defence rescue. F. H. St. John Madeley and W. R. Long took courses in welfare for people made homeless by war or disaster and Mayor Harold Whalen took part in an orientation course.

The federal government also provides regulation fire pumps to assist in the training of auxiliary firement.

In B.C., he said, there are about 50,000 people actively engaged in civil defence with 30,000 of them considered as trained. In addition, 50,000 B.C. school children have received elementary first aid training.

Search Fails To Find Aged Hunter

A search party combing the woods on the northern tip of Graham Island for Arthur Watson of Masset was swelled to 50 yesterday as no sign of the 70-year-old hunter was uncovered.

A B.C. Airlines plane has joined the search scanning the tangled woods on the northern island of the Queen Charlotte group.

Mr. Watson left Masset about 10 a.m. Wednesday on a hunting trip. He was expected back early the same evening.

The hunt was started again early this morning. RCMP said no word had been received from the party up to press time.

Light Rate Hike Remains Laurent Tells Newsmen

OTTAWA (CP)—The seven-per-cent freight rate increase which went into effect March 16.

The eight provinces which opposed the boost have no further recourse. However, strong protests against the increase are expected to be made at the coming session of Parliament by western and eastern members.

The provinces' appeal against the increase which amounts to about $28,500,000 a year was heard by the cabinet in May. It was the first full-dress attack before the government on a general freight rate increase since 1949, after the original post-war increase of 21 per cent.

A statement issued by Mr. St. Laurent's office said: "The government has advised the governor-general against rescinding the board's judgment and order, or referring to the board certain specific directions concerning such matters as the revenues, operating expenses and other income of the Canadian Pacific Railway and uniform percentage increases in freight rates. This had been requested by the provinces in a petition dated March 30, 1953."

The board's tentative plan to equalize freight rates is slated to come into effect January 1.

Rich-Quick Expert Faces Back Welcome With Codfish

ST. LOUIS, England (Reuters)—A hard-headed London dealer who made $100,000 in war surplus after the war is busy attempting to do the same thing with codfish.

The price war has broken down the fish market in Iceland where fish is a staple and existing operators a bleak welcome for the country's best-known get-rich-quick expert, George Dawson.

Action Needed Now

EVENTS on this part of the coast have reached a stage where it is imperative that immediate and full action be taken to put the Prince Rupert drydock into the best possible operation condition.

It will be a disgrace beyond all forgiving or forgetting if this potentially valuable installation is allowed to deteriorate any further from its already deplorable condition. Some of the alarming details were brought out by the Prince Rupert delegation at the Central B.C. Boards of Trade convention which described the filling and decking of the dock in such disrepair that only the under third of the structure can be used.

So rotten is the whole edifice that a powerful crane at the outer end stands useless because heavy loads transported to it might produce a collapse. In addition, the pontoons are corroded to such an extent that their complete replacement is the only apparent solution. No large ship could be placed on them in their present condition.

Unless the federal government takes the action called for, citizens of this whole coastal district can only conclude that their interests are being wilfully ignored in the face of growing opportunities to encourage shipping trade here which, in turn, would lead to activity on many other levels.

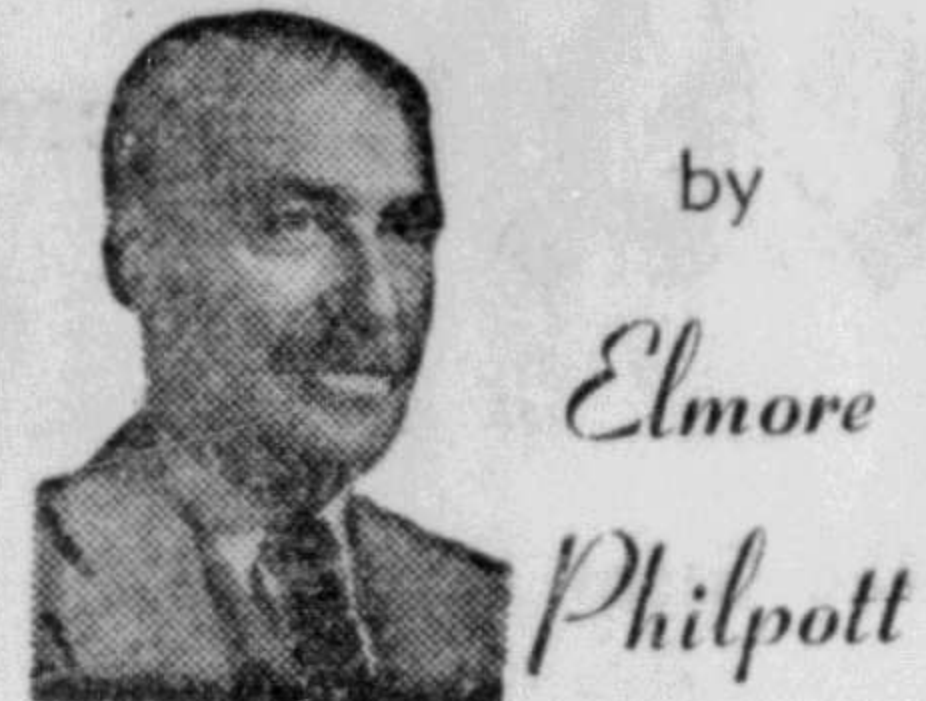

In particular, development of the aluminum industry at Kitimat represents a real chance to make use of local ship repair facilities. Ocean-going vessels carrying aluminum and other cargoes will, with the commencement of operations there, become almost daily visitors to the North Pacific coast and it is logical to expect there will be frequent occasions when they will require attention to put them in shape. Under present conditions, their only choice would be to proceed hundreds of miles south to Esquimalt.

The possibility of U.S. vessels making extensive use of this dock also should be kept in mind. During the past year the Alaska Coast Guard ships have come here for routine maintenance, and there is reason to hope this is a type of service that could be further encouraged.

Considering these circumstances, we believe there is good cause to anticipate that the federal government will put the drydock back in business, and we are heartened to know that Ted Applewhite plans to press the point.

Rehabilitation of the plant is by no means merely a local consideration. It would, in fact, be tantamount to the establishment of a new industry in the area and could be counted on to have a broad and stimulating effect on employment and circulation of currency.

UN Near Crossroad

THE present session will almost certainly make or break UN, mankind's second attempt to set up the beginnings of world law and order.

If the rank-and-file members of the UN break the stranglehold of the Big Two, and admit all the nations now excluded, the world organization will soon be "over the hump."

But if the deadlock caused by Russia and the United States is indefinitely dragged out, the days of the UN may indeed be numbered.

THE following sovereign nations are excluded from UN by the sheer stubbornness of Russia or the United States: Albania, Austria, Bulgaria, Ceylon, Finland, Hungary, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Jordan, Libya, Mongolia, Nepal, Portugal, Romania, Spain. The minute Germany gets a single government, she too will be at the UN door.

Russia openly vetoes most of these because the United States lines up bloc support to exclude some of her own satellites, such as Albania, Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary. Even on a horse-trade basis, Uncle Sam seems to have lost his old shrewdness. He keeps out three or four Russian votes, but loses 11!

This obstructionist attitude has been rebuked in the strongest possible terms by both the former Secretary General of the UN, Trygve Lie, and the present one, Dag Hammarskjold. The former made the principle of "universality of membership" a main plank in his fine plan to save world peace. The latter has just reminded the world that the UN is not an exclusive club, in which privileged members in a privileged position, have the right to blackball other applicants for admission.

CHINA is probably the rock on which world peace will either break, or the foundations of a new order of UN peace will be laid.

Britain has agreed with the United States not to press for the immediate seating of the Chinese government in the UN; and the murderous attack by Chinese Communists on a Royal Navy patrol vessel near Hong Kong will certainly not make the Churchill government more eager for a rift with Washington on this point. But a "Foreign Office Spokesman" indicates that Britain does not intend to maintain this "go slow" policy after Christmas.

All parties in Britain are agreed that the real government of China should be recognized, especially inside the UN. See AS I SEE IT—Page 6

Members Tend to 'Forget' North Regions

VICTORIA (CP)—Members of the B.C. legislature tend to forget the northern regions of the province they were told this week by Ray Williston, (SC-Fort George).

"The north was still waiting for roads to be completed as far as Prince Rupert as had been promised some years ago," Mr. Williston said.

"This area which has contributed so handsomely to British Columbia's revenues gets little in return," Mr. Williston told the House while giving his speech seconding the reply to the speech to the throne.

Mr. Williston also made a plea for action to build up B.C.'s dwindling supply of teachers. He said the situation was "desperately critical."

"We have tried to solve our problems by diluting our standards of professionalism."

Coupled with that, he said, "is the matter of insufficient assistance and supervision on the job."

He proposed three steps the province could take to combat the problem:

1. Additional instructional supervision in areas having a large percentage of inexperienced and unqualified personnel.

2. Appointment of a committee to enquire into the problem of teacher training and bring recommendations to the next sitting of the house.

3. Publicize the situation as it exists so the people can give sympathetic support to measures designed to improve the situation.

Mr. Williston said in 1952-53 teacher positions in the province increased to 6,052. A total of 829 left the profession and there were only 600 graduates to fill the jobs.

In 1951-52 there were 1,237 vacancies and only 700 graduates.

SERVE CANADA AND YOURSELF IN THE ARMY

OTTAWA DIARY

By Norman M. MacLeod

One of those problems which could be important but about which no one in Parliament Hill circles ever gets too worked up is the future of the Senate.

The so-called "Upper House" is on the thin edge of becoming a one-party chamber. Out of its total membership of 102, less than a dozen—eight to be exact—now are Conservatives. Obviously that's not enough to constitute even a token opposition.

Theoretically a one-party legislature is an undesirable state of affairs in any field of government since it invites the use of dictatorial powers. While that danger doesn't actually exist in the present Senate situation—since the powers of the Senate are strictly limited by the fact that they are shared with the House of Commons—the objection to one-pattern thinking in a Chamber which is supposed to be one of sober second-thoughts upon legislation is clear. Where all Senators are trained in the same political school, the impossibility of eliciting a variety of approaches to legislation resulting in comprehensive, impartial debate is manifest.

Prime Minister St. Laurent revealed his awareness of the problem when he failed to fill 13 vacant Senate seats on the eve of the recent Federal election. Such a course was dramatically unprecedented on the part of any party leader in Canadian political history. The Prime Minister made it clear that he was leaving the way open to Mr. Drew if he should win the election, to partially redress the top-heavy Liberal majority in the Upper Chamber.

Civic Centre Staff Preparing Gymnasium, Rooms For Winter

Plans To Be Discussed Tonight For Annual Membership Drive

By SHIRLEY YULE

The Prince Rupert Civic Centre is a hive of industry these days as the staff prepares for a busy winter season.

There is little public activity in the Centre as yet, but the staff is at work, preparing a new schedule for the winter, housecleaning the many meeting rooms, and above all, getting ready for the annual one-night membership drive on October 5.

The membership committee meets at the Centre at 7 o'clock tonight to discuss plans for the drive.

At present, the big building on Second Avenue is being used for dancing classes, some casual basketball practice in the gymnasium and a few business meetings of local groups, but otherwise the building is quiet. However, the tempo will increase at the end of the month with launching of the membership drive and the start of other activities.

Eileen Cross of the University of British Columbia Extension Department will begin her sewing, tailoring and home rejuvenation classes October 5.

CHANGE-ROOM ADDED

The auditorium floor is now being prepared for roller skating, which is expected to get under way before the end of the month, and a skate change-room has been added to the facilities.

The badminton club, too, is expected to get active at the end of the month. A large group, they meet twice weekly for games in the auditorium.

Following the membership campaign, in which representatives of various city groups using the Centre will form teams to canvass the city, the regular program of educational, sports and craft projects will get under way.

In the sports line, as in the past basketball will be featured with a heavy schedule of games and practices in the main gymnasium. Squash will be available, by appointment, and there will be table tennis, billiards and pool, boxing and weight-lifting, as well as badminton and roller skating.

ORGANIZED GAMES

Also scheduled in the sports line are physical classes similar to those held last year, consisting of organized games for boys and girls in various age groups, plus keep-fit classes for women. A teen rifle club and square dancing club may be organized this year.

In the educational, cultural and social line, it is expected that National Film Board movies again will be shown. The Little Theatre, the Prince Rupert Symphony and the Civic Band will continue their work, music appreciation for adults will be resumed, and a similar class for juniors may be organized.

Crafts and hobbies this year will include leatherwork, flower craft, metal work, woodwork and copper craft. Something new, classes for pottery making, may be introduced this year.

For many of the scheduled activities, volunteer leaders are needed, and persons interested are asked to contact Fred Jones, general secretary, or Rowley Miles, program supervisor, at the Civic Centre.

Labor Day Proceeds Total $1,800

Special to The Daily News

TERRACE—Terrace Civic Centre Committee disclosed that the Labor Day program grossed approximately $1,800.

O. A. Kaulbeck, president, expressed appreciation to all helpers, especially ladies, and particularly to the Barrel Derby committee. An extensive program of sporting activities was detailed for the winter, including: junior badminton on Thursday evenings and Sunday afternoons, miniature shooting range for young people run by the Rod & Gun Club, and Turkey Bingo on 7th October.

An organizational committee will arrange basketball and boxing, and additional bowling alleys are being installed. Mrs. R. Collier, Earl Suttis and Jack Williams are the committee planning Amateur Night for November 13.

New Dancing Classes Prove Popular Here

The new dancing classes at the Civic Centre are proving highly popular with Prince Rupert's youngsters.

Enrollment to date in the classes totals 161, 150 girls and 11 boys, aged four to 18 years.

The young people are being taught ballroom, tap or ballet dancing by Buddy Taft, a professional who after several years of dancing in the south and Eastern Canada, has turned to teaching.

Mr. Taft planned at first to hold classes only three days a week. However, the response has been so great that it is anticipated classes will be held every day.

Enrollment in the classes is still open to Civic Centre members, and it is expected adult classes in popular dancing may be initiated.

Civic Centre spokesmen report that considerable interest has been shown already, and if enough adults register within the next few days, such a class will be started.

Largest class to date is in the four to five and one-half years age group, in which 18 youngsters are registered.

Students are given a one-hour lesson, once a week, at a cost of $5 a month.

Appointment of Colonel Cyril H. Batten, of Vancouver as Commissioner of the Association for B.C. was announced by the president of the council of the association, simultaneously with another appointment from Dominion Headquarters in Ottawa.

Mr. Batten, who has been an active member of the Scouts' Executive, succeeds T. J. OBE, of Victoria, who recently resigned.

Commissioner Batten heads a staff of 1,700 volunteer leaders, more than 20,000 Cubs, and 10,000 Rover Scouts in B.C. and Alberta.

Personnel and administrative duties include the basic principles of scouting within his jurisdiction, to make a tour of the province.

Mr. Batten, of Northampton, England, was educated at the Oldham School, as well as attending the University of London.

During the First Great War, he was later commander of the Royal Garrison Band and served in France with the Howitzer Battery, 1st Canadian Trench Mortar Battalion, in 1913, in real estate, in the importing business, and after retiring from the latter he has contributed his energies to Boy Scout, and other interests.

Home & School Officers

Officers were named at the Home and School Association's first fall meeting at the Annunciation School.

Mr. Batten was named secretary, Mrs. Thelma Yalson, president, and Mrs. E. Page was treasurer, replacing Mrs. J. J. Mohan.

Repairs were discussed, and the proposed installation of a new heating system, and members volunteered for various school projects.

Refreshments were served at the business session.

Brooklyn Series Victory Assured If Pitching Above Par Says Dressen

By BEN PILEGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York Yankees haven't fooled Charley Dressen by losing one game to Cleveland and two out of three to St. Louis Browns under his watchful eyes.

The Brooklyn manager, who has been doing some personal world series scouting from a Yankee Stadium box, declared Thursday:

"They look about the same as last year."

As for his own ball club, Dressen said:

"I think we're better than last year."

But he added quickly:

"I don't say we're going to win. But if we can put the same fellows on the field we were using a couple of weeks ago and if we can get the pitching, I think we're better than they are."

A year ago the Yankees beat the Dodgers in a seven-game series.

The American League champions bowed 1-0 to Bob Lemon of Cleveland; split a twin bill with the Browns, losing 5-3 and winning 3-2, and lost to the Browns Thursday 7-1.

SECOND STRINGERS

Against the Browns Casey Stengel used a flock of his Yankee second stringers. They could not do much against the Browns' Don Larsen, who set them down with four hits while winning his fifth straight game.

"Our scouts don't get to see them very often," Dressen observed. "I was glad to get the chance."

Dressen said he understood that Johnny Podres, one of his young pitchers who has been injured, was fit again and said he was going to see Carl Furillo Saturday. Furillo, the league's leading hitter, has been out of action for two weeks with a broken finger.

Because of his self-imposed scouting duties, Dressen wasn't on hand to see his club win its

SPORTS ROUND-UP

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—There will be little personal animosity between Rocky Marciano and Roland La Starza when they meet in the ring a week from tonight. The champion and the challenger seem to admire each other, at least in a limited sense, and neither has yet been talked into calling his rival names.

With their respective managers, however, it's different. Jimmy Deangelo, who cuts La Starza's purses, such as they have been, has a deep-seated and chronic hatred for Al Weill, Marciano's one-man brain trust. Al, long the most powerful man in boxing, exhibits a cheerful contempt for Deangelo and says that his boy is lucky to be getting a title shot at all.

This is just in case you suspect there's a press agent in the woodpile, and that the current wrangle between the two pilots about a return bout in the event La Starza lifts Rocky's title was dreamed up. It wasn't. The only thing about it that puzzles insiders is that Deangelo popped off before the fight instead of afterward.

WANTS RETURN BOUT

What happened was that La Starza's grey-haired little manager, calling at the Garden to pick up some tickets, was asked by Harry Markson of the IBC when he might be ready to give Marciano a return in the event his boy wins. Deangelo became heated, accused the IBC's managing director of fronting for Weill, and spoke to the effect that "after we win it we'll make them seat a while."

A couple of boxing writers walked in on the row by the purest chance, and they helped Markson convince Deangelo that he should remember his bum ticker and simmer down. They then got in touch with Weill up at Rocky's training camp, and that is why Al intends to go before the Athletic Commission at Syracuse Friday and try to force La Starza to post half his purse as a guaran-

Director of World's Largest Paper Once Hit Editors With 8-Foot Plank

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer
LONDON (CP)—A tabloid newspaper called the Daily Mirror has the world's biggest daily circulation. Here are a few facts about it:

A director once went about slugging editors on the head with an eight-foot plank.

The paper received 3,758,441 letters in 10 years. Its daily sale exceeds 4,500,000 and is going up.

When launched in 1903 it was intended for "gentlewomen." Sales slumped from 250,000 to 28,000 in three months. Today the Mirror is still aimed at women but nobody would say its approach is gentle.

In fact, it is a tough, breezy, arrogant, confiding sheet, revealing in its own admitted vulgarity, specializing in mass appeal through pictorial cheese-cake, sledgehammer headlines and comic strips that are just that. Its famous cartoon character, Jane, a young woman woman easily separated from her clothes, was a wartime favorite of Canadian soldiers in Britain.

HUMAN INTEREST

The Mirror celebrates its 50th anniversary in November and to mark the occasion its editorial director, Hugh Cudlipp, has written a book called "Publish and Be Damned!" It traces the paper's fascinating history from the unpromising beginnings to the "revolution" in the '30s when the editors turned to human interest, sex and crime.

"The plan which these young men evolved," he writes, "was simply this—to get under the readers' skins and stay there. They were all, in their way, lay psychologists. Most had come from working-class or middle-class families; they really knew and had personally experienced the aspirations and setbacks, the joys and the heartaches of the millions of ordinary people they set out to entertain and instruct."

Carrying the idea farther, book reviewer Maurice Richardson writes in The Observer that The Mirror is a significant phenomenon marking the latest phase "in the vast social-leveling process by which 95 per cent of the nation has become middle, or to be precise, lower-middle class in habits and ways of life."

MAKES LIFE SEEM GAY

The newspaper makes life seem gay and exciting to housewives, says Richardson. Its reader symbol is a bus conductor "who daydreams of dancing the samba with Princess Margaret."

The Mirror makes a point of aggressiveness. Its wartime attacks on the government were so bitter that Prime Minister Churchill intervened, and the government threatened to close the paper. But The Mirror rode out the storm.

Cudlipp also tells about the pranks of Harry Guy Bartholomew, one-time director, whose favorite trick was creeping up behind an editor and pasting him with a plank. Unsuspecting visitors swooned at the sight, but the plank was made of balsa wood and did no damage.

Prisoner Query Still Unanswered

PANMUNJOM (CP)—The United Nations' demand of an accounting of 3,404 men, including three Canadians, believed to be in Red captivity is still unanswered. Major General Blackshear M. Bryan, senior Allied member of the armistice commission, told reporters today he would ask the Reds about it "before too long."

At luncheon this month Randolph Churchill, the prime minister's son, attacked The Mirror for its treatment of Britain's royal family. Cudlipp, guest speaker, promptly tore up his notes and replied to Churchill. His paper, he admitted, is vulgar, but it is also "decent, awkward, back-biting and courageous." He said it made some mistakes, but it was not really a "sexy" newspaper. In fact, he thought it rather "prissy" at times.

AS I SEE IT

IF IT IS true that the UN cannot function effectively unless and until China's seat in the UN is occupied by the real government, it is even more to the point that the UN cannot even survive unless the United States remains with it.

I am rather appalled at times at the tone of some of my own letters from ordinary readers across Canada. Many Canadians of 1953 are so fed up with the international policies of the Eisenhower administration inside UN that they advocate a gang up against U.S. policy. I think these forget that if Uncle Sam were to walk out of the UN, there would be no UN; and if for any reason UN goes down only a miracle can avert a third world war.

BLACKWOOD on Bridge

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD
Mr. Abel Goes Down
By Aiming Too High

While the purpose of the game is to make as many points as possible, that goal is not necessarily attained by going after the maximum number of tricks on every hand.

In today's deal Mr. Abel got into a good contract of four hearts. Now, if the queen of hearts had been on his right not over four long, he could have taken the heart finesse, picked up the trumps, given a club trick and spread the hand for six-odd.

However, the cards were not distributed in that manner and, far from making six-odd, Mr. Abel actually took a minus score.

He won the opening diamond lead with dummy's ace, led the jack of hearts and let it go. Mr. Champion won with the queen and led another diamond.

Mr. Abel ruffed and laid down the ace and king of hearts. When Mr. Dale showed out on this last heart lead, the contract was hopeless.

Mr. Abel cashed the ace and king of clubs and led a third club. But after winning with the queen, Mr. Champion fired another diamond.

Mr. Abel ruffed with his last trump—and there was still a trump out. When a good club was now led, Mr. Champion ruffed and cashed a diamond trick.

Mr. Abel should have timed the hand for safety. After winning the first trick, he should have cashed the ace and king of hearts at once. He could afford to lose two hearts and a club and there was the added chance that this play would drop the doubleton queen of hearts.

Three rounds of clubs would put Mr. Champion in with the queen and while he could force Mr. Abel with diamond leads, Mr. Abel could in turn force him with club leads—and always be one jump ahead in the trump department.

Playing this way, Mr. Abel wouldn't have as much chance of making six, but he would have a much better chance of making four.

Big Question Confronts Forecasters

TORONTO (CP)—Transport Minister Chevrier this week gave the weather forecasters an object to strive for: to forecast a whole season's weather.

In a speech to the joint session of the Royal Meteorological Society and the American Meteorological Society, he said:

"Think of the boon to mankind if ever we reach the stage where a season's weather can be forecast in advance, even in such general terms as whether it will be comparatively wet or comparatively dry, comparatively warm or comparatively cold."

Mr. Chevrier gave the weather men something else to think about. Research, he said, might establish whether the climate of North America is warming up.

"Is it possible," he asked, "that the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence River may one day be open to navigation all the year round?"

"If so, may that occur within the next few generations?"

The minister then spoke of what meteorological science has already done for Canada.

The weather service has often come to the aid of the railways. For shippers of perishable fruits and vegetables the forecast has largely solved the problem of when to air condition their goods.

To the Great Lakes where big storms blow up rapidly meteorology has lessened danger.

Mr. Chevrier said that since commercial aviation began not a single Trans-Canada Air Lines passenger has been injured as a result of an error in weather forecasting.
