Peace Chances In 1952 Solid, Churchill Declares

Warning On Communist Aggression

WASHINGTON D. C. (CP)—The United States was reported Friday night to be advising its allies that a Korean armistice, if obtained, should be supported by the implied ultimatum to the Reds. This would put them on notice that all-out air-sea war will be waged against Red China if the truce is violated by new aggression.

Missing Schooner Search Fruitless

HALIFAX (CP)—Search for the schooner Barbara Ronald, missing for sixteen days with eight men aboard after a North Atlantic hurricane, was abandoned Friday night when investigation turned up a derelict from a previous storm.

Alberta's Estimates of New Investment Reach Vast Totals

EDMONTON (CP)—Almost one billion dollars worth of new industrial development is in prospect for Alberta. It will top the province's prodigious growth since the Leduc discovery less than five years ago marked Alberta as one of the world's great oil fields and drew attention to its other unexploited natural wealth.

Millions On Highway Work

VICTORIA (CP)—British Columbia spent or contracted for nearly $19,000,000 for new highways and bridges in 1952, Hon. E. C. Carson, minister of public works, said Friday. A total of 124.5 miles of highway had been completed at a cost of $6,200,000. Another 50.6 miles was under contract at a cost of $5,500,000.

Oil Spurred Wealth

This indication of future development came as the province wound up its most prosperous year, a year in which Premier E. Manning said that if the development of natural resources continues at the present accelerated rate it "is not too visionary to foresee the day when Alberta will be a debt-free and tax-free province."

Meanwhile, Edmonton shaped up as the centre of a great new chemical industry. First in the field was Canadian Chemical Co., a subsidiary of Celanese Corporation of America. Its $51,000,000 plant, the largest of its type in the world, will turn British Columbia wood pulp into synthetic textiles and by-products of the nearby oil refineries into chemicals including some not present manufactured in Canada.

Close behind Celanese was Canadian Industries Limited which plans to build a $13,000,000 plant.

Heavy Session Opens Feb. 19

VICTORIA (CP)—Premier Byron Johnson announced Friday that the 1952 session of the British Columbia Legislature will open February 19.

Flying Enterprise Now in Tow and Heading For Port

LONDON (CP)—The crippled Flying Enterprise started under tow toward Falmouth harbor at a tedious three knots today. Her skipper, Capt. Kurt Carlsen, who refused stubbornly to abandon his wallowing ship in the face of wild storms, was jubilant and confident that he is going to win his long fight against the sea.

URGES WHIPPING POST

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Tobey (R-NH) suggests that the whipping post be revived to punish public officials who betray their trust.

SPECIAL DELIVERY—This helicopter, nicknamed the "Pregnant Bumblebee" because of its bulging waterproof mailbins, has been delivered to Newfoundland to inaugurate Canada's first regular helicopter air service. The federal government decided to use the helicopter on an experimental basis to carry mail to 20,000 residents on a group of isolated islands off the Newfoundland coast. If the four-month experiment proves a success, helicopter mail service will be inaugurated to break the isolation of other winterbound communities. (CP PHOTO)

NO TIMBER

There are no forests in Greenland, but a dwarf willow and birch are found in certain areas.

An independent daily newspaper devoted to the upbuilding of Prince Rupert and Northern and Central British Columbia.

Unfair to Prince Rupert

IF THE federal government is interested in giving the port of Prince Rupert a square deal and making a gesture of encouragement for ocean-going shipping out of here, it would do well to remove a discrimination which now exists in the matter of pilotage and which has been illustrated since export shipments of wheat were recently resumed.

Figures which have been compiled relating to the call here in November of the Japanese freighter Kiyokawa Maru show that pilotage service for this vessel at Prince Rupert cost $526.81 as compared with $187 which the same ship would have been charged at Vancouver.

The pilotage board charged $2.50 per draft foot here whereas the Vancouver charge basis is $1.50, here whereas the Vancouver charge basis is $2. On top of that was charged one and one-quarter cents per registered ton as compared with one cent at Vancouver—differentials which would appear to be entirely unjustified.

Further than these discriminatory charges, $30 was charged for pilot's waiting time here, $162.40 for travelling time and $100 for pilotage boat, which is free at Vancouver.

Presumably neither insurance companies nor shipowners insist on registered pilot service but the government says that ships must pay pilotage fees whether or not they use the pilotage.

To be reasonable about the matter, it could well be insisted that, if vessels using the port of Prince Rupert are compelled to have a pilot, the least the government could do would be to see that the cost of the service is the same at Prince Rupert as at Vancouver instead of the present arbitrary and discriminatory excess charges.

Of course, Prince Rupert could be removed altogether from the jurisdiction of the pilotage board and shipowners could then do what they wanted about pilotage. There would be no precedent as certain ports in the Maritimes—Yarmouth is one—are free of compulsory pilotage.

Certainly, we could well be exempt altogether from pilotage if the government does not see fit to at least make the charges for this port on an equitable basis with Vancouver.

A further penalty which shipping at Prince Rupert suffers at present, and which should be removed at once, is involved in connection with a Department of Agriculture inspection of grain ships. Ships using this port are being charged travelling expenses for the inspector to come here whereas Vancouver, Victoria and New Westminster get the service free.

Here are handicaps to this port which could be readily rectified and certainly should be. For the ten or so grain ships which will use the port this shipping season they will represent an extra charge of some $4000. Such things are discouraging generally to the use of the port.

We feel justified in expecting that there will be no delay in having such discriminatory treatment removed. It would be so easy to do so.

NEW INTERNATIONAL FISH

In an attempt to build up the stocks if other countries were freely exploiting this resource.

These and other associated matters were the subject of the discussions between the three governments in Tokyo. The convention drawn up at that conference is the first attempt to meet these problems of conservation on the high seas. By joint agreement between the three countries, they are prepared to waive some of these international rights and under certain circumstances to abstain from fishing such stocks as are under conservation by one or more of the other parties. The convention aims therefore at providing the maximum sustained yield of the fishery resources of the area with each of the parties assuming obligations to encourage the conservation of such resources.

Under the convention each country agrees to abstain from fishing certain stocks under certain conditions. If the particular stock is already under maximum exploitation and if it is under extensive scientific study and if it is also under regulation for the purpose of maintaining its productivity then any country which has not been fishing that stock may be asked to abstain. The other country or countries which are carrying through these conservation measures agree to continue such measures to maintain or increase the yield. Because halibut, salmon and herring off the British Columbia coasts do meet these conditions, Japan has agreed to abstain from fishing these resources.

SPECIAL INTEREST

The principles do not apply, however, in cases where a country has had a historical interest in any particular fishery and a country could not, therefore, be asked to abstain from any fishery in which she had had such interest. And her exception to the principles exists as between Canada and the United States in the waters of the Pacific coasts of the United States and Canada from the Gulf of Alaska southward. Because of the intermingling of stocks in this region and because of the intermingling of the fishing operations of these two countries no recommendation for abstention can be made to either of these parties.

To study the North Pacific fisheries and to determine the application of these principles the convention establishes an international commission representing the three parties. That body is to promote and co-ordinate the scientific studies necessary for ascertaining conservation programs, and it has the function, too, of determining what particular stocks meet the conditions. On the basis of this it will make recommendations to the governments for abstention. In the treaty itself Japan agreed to abstain as mentioned above, from the fishing of salmon, halibut and herring. The commission may recommend additional abstentions in the future or if any of these fisheries no longer qualify, under the principles it may recommend the ending of abstention.

The commission also has powers to arrange for the making of new conservation agreements between any of the parties should any stocks of fish seem to merit a conservation program. Thus, for example, should the United States and Canada wish to develop new conservation methods or techniques for, say, pilchards, this could be done under the international commission. Any two, or all three, of the parties can make such conservation agreements in the future.

The draft convention contains also clauses relating to the enforcement of these measures upon the nationals of the various parties and incorporates within it the machinery for handling in a free and equitable way the problems that inevitably arise when fishermen of different nationalities operate in the same waters.

BERING SEA SALMON

During the discussions particular difficulties arose over the determination of the movement of salmon in the Bering Sea to the coasts of Asia and North America, respectively. A provisional line was drawn on the 175° W longitude meridian, and Japan and Canada agreed to abstain from fishing to the eastward of that line. This provisional agreement is to be under the review of the commission whenever it is established. It is instructed to make specific studies relating to the intermingling of these various salmon stocks in the Bering Sea and to determine the most satisfactory method of handling this particular problem.

The conference in Tokyo did not sign this particular convention. The conference has recommended to the three governments that they each accept this convention. The final signing of such a fisheries treaty requires the ratification of the peace treaty itself. When this is done by Canada and the United States, then the way will be open for the signing of this convention for the high seas fisheries in the North Pacific.

As I See It

by Elmore Philpott

Litvinoff Reminder THE DEATH of Maxim Litvinoff is a reminder of the puzzle, the evil, but also the hopeful in Soviet Russia's ways.

For years past nobody in the west was sure whether or not Litvinoff was alive. When he was in eclipse in the Soviet, relations with the west were always dark. When Litvinoff was on the job, relations with the west were good.

But let nobody be fooled. Russia's relations did not improve because Litvinoff was on the job. Litvinoff was on the job because good relations were then expedient for Russia.

LOOKING back over my own comments on Litvinoff's goings and coming I see the following, printed in various Canadian newspapers on May 11, 1939:

"I regard the 'release' of Maxim Litvinoff from the Russian foreign office as one of the most crucial events of these times. For a numerous occasions before I have recorded the fact that drastic change in Russia's foreign policy was at least a possibility. Long before Britain and France pushed Russia into isolation at Munich, this possible change was being whispered by diplomats.

"Anyone who took the trouble to get a complete copy of the speech made by Dictator Stalin to the General Party Congress of the Russian Communist party on March 10 of this year could hardly be astonished that a tug-of-war developed from the Litvinoff policy and that enunciated by Stalin, who made it plain that he might outplay the democracies at their own game. At Munich they virtually gave Hitler the go-ahead signal on his long-advertised march to the east. Stalin meanwhile made it plain to Hitler that if Germany were going to go on the rampage anywhere it had better be at someone else's expense and not Russia's."

AFTER I wrote the above I was attacked from two different groups. The Chamberlain supporters (who included nearly every big newspaper in Canada) waxed indignant because anybody should predict such a consequence of the Munich policy. But the Communists were equally furious because anyone could predict, as I did, that Stalin and Hitler would make a deal, a dicker, a compact. Were not Communists and Fascists arch-enemies, they asked? Yet a few months later, when WHO'S WHO? Federal members appear mildly shocked. Toward the close of the recent debate, they learned that some students in Canadian universities are unable to tell the name of the Prime Minister. There did not appear to be any reasonable explanation. Wonder, if they mean the students can't pronounce it.

Captain Kurt Carlson, whose solitary vigil aboard the almost-sinking steamship Flying Enterprise caught the attention of the marine world, has been joined by an officer from the tug Turmoil which came 300 miles over a storm-swept sea. Contact has been reached between the vessels. The real test is coming. Can there be a tow? This is a great salt water story. And it isn't fiction.

WINSTON'S WELCOME This is a changeable sort of week for Premier Winston Churchill. He leaves London for the Atlantic, leaves the liner when near New York to board a plane for Washington and is spending the week-end with President Truman, cruising the Potomac River. Just one thing after another.

Banning of the word "Dominion" from the Elections Act is evidently arousing Canada. One would think so, from the debates as printed in Hansard. Members denounce the course taken by the government, and tell the House their constituents feel the same way. Some members persist in using the word. So does the Prince Rupert telephone directory.

Week of Prayer Special Speaker

Principal J. E. Harris of Vancouver Bible School, is to be in the city next week as special speaker at the annual Week of Prayer held under the auspices of the Prince Rupert Ministerial Association.

Until he took over the leadership of the Bible School, Rev. J. E. Harris held pastorates in Baptist Churches in Edmonton, Vancouver and Lethbridge. He was for some time connected with the Evangelical Publishers, Toronto, prior to assuming the work of the pastorate.

Mr. Harris was in Prince Rupert for a week several years ago, conducting a Bible Conference in the Baptist Church. He is a very able speaker and Bible expositor.

The Week of Prayer is to be held in one centre this year; namely, St. Paul's Lutheran Church.

There will also be daily Bible Classes, Tuesday through Friday afternoons in the Presbyterian Church.

The deal was made, the Communists in Canada and elsewhere meekly toed the new Moscow line, even to the point of sabotaging our war effort.

I FIGURE another startling change in the Russian world line is quite probable in the next couple of years—and this time the change could be very much for the better.

It seems to me that the true explanation of the tugging-and-hauling of the last few years was this:

The complete defeat of Germany, Italy and Japan in the Second World War created a vacuum of power the like of which had never before existed. The United States from the one side and Russia from the other rushed forward to seize as much of the vacuum areas as possible.

Russia has had a great extension of her power, chiefly because of the total Communist victory in China, which was as complete a surprise to Stalin as to anybody in America. But the United States has also greatly expanded—in fact has had the greatest extension of power that any country ever had in the entire history of the human race. For U.S. war bases now literally girdle the globe.

Now that the power vacuums are filled, the danger of war is less. Neither side can expand further without actual war. And neither can start such a war without inviting disaster.

Good! (By Rev. Lawrence G. Sieber, First United Church)

The Old Year said to the New Year: "You take him and show him greater things than I have. You must be for him a richer, fuller year of the Lord than I could be! It will be for that person such a year if he says 'I will go in the strength of the Lord,' remembering Paul's instruction, 'Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good.'"

NORTH BAY, Ont. — As a result of decline in fur prices this season trappers appear to be taking less beaver, although the animals are plentiful. To the end of the year only 67 beaver were sealed by forestry officials here, compared with 126 in the same period of 1950.

ALBERTA'S ESTIMATES

000 plant as starter. It will make polythene, a plastic widely used in the electrical, pharmaceutical and packaging industries, and will use 10,000,000 cubic feet a day of Alberta natural gas. A third chemical concern was reported ready to announce its plans.

Another C-I-L plant is under construction in Calgary—a $4,500,000 project to make commercial explosives. An additional chemical project is a $3,000,000 plant for the Lindbergh area, 120 miles northeast of Edmonton, to make caustic soda, chlorine and associated chemicals.

Other major new industries included a $5,000,000 addition to the Canada Cement plant at Exshaw, west of Calgary; a $3,000,000 refinery at Stettler, and a $5,000,000 pulp mill at Yates, 115 miles west of Edmonton. Sherritt-Gordon Mines Ltd. is considering Alberta for a $17,500,000 ore-processing plant, the site of which is expected to be announced soon.

VAST IRRIGATION
 The past year saw the completion of large-scale irrigation works, balancing in the south to some extent the industrial development in the north. Completion of the $7,000,000 St. Mary River dam marked the first big step in a $30,000,000 project which will open up some 4000 irrigated farms over the next 10 years and free large dry areas from dependence on grain grazing and ranching.

This will result in intensified raising of specialty crops. Already a quick-freeze plant in Lethbridge is producing more than one-fifth of all the quick-frozen vegetables marketed in Canada. A cannery at Taber announced a $1,000,000 expansion program and a new $5,000,000 beet-sugar factory, one of the most modern in the world and southern Alberta's third, went into operation.

Agriculture, still the province's basic industry, produced more than half a billion dollars worth of crops last year. Forest products topped $18,000,000. With more than 15 per cent of the world's coal in reserve, the province mined an estimated $37,000,000 worth during 1951.

Industrial activity stimulated all forms of commerce. The year saw tremendous expansion in warehousing, for instance. Retail trade topped three-quarters of a billion dollars, more than three times the turnover of 10 years ago. Bank clearings totalled $2,250,000,000 and bank debits approached the five-billion-dollar mark.

Movies by Television

NEW YORK (AP)—Americans soon may be able to see a first-run movie or a current Broadway hit on their television sets, if they are willing to pay for it.

Three different forms of subscription television have been developed, and the Federal Communications Commission shortly will be asked to lift its ban on the use of the air waves for any service for which a fee is charged.

Fundamentally, all three are similar. During a subscription program, television signals from the station are scrambled, to be unscrambled on the home set only where the viewer has the necessary attachment and has paid the program fee.

Subscription telecasts would be only of extra-special attractions not available for free telecasts, or costing too much for budgets of advertising sponsors. They would be in addition to all the regular programs on the air.

Officials of the Zenith Radio Corporation of Chicago have indicated they expect to ask the FCC shortly to authorize their method, called phevionision. Arthur Levey, president of Skiatron Electronics and Television Corp., which calls its system subscriber-vision, forecast the other day that some form of subscription TV would be in operation within two years.

The FCC has been authorizing experimental telecasts as the subscription television systems with a view to considering whether to permit such operations in the future.

FINDS BIG DEMAND
 Zenith ran a 90-day test of its phevionision, with 300 selected Chicago families having sets on which they could receive telecasts of fairly recent movies. The company reported the families subscribed to the TV movies at a rate 3 1/2 times greater than the average fam.-y attendance at the movies. They paid one dollar for each movie ordered.

Skiatron, having completed technical tests, plans to ask the FCC for permission to start a similar test of its subscriber-vision in New York within 60 to 90 days. Technical tests are being made in Los Angeles by Paramount Pictures Corp. of its telemeter system. Radio Corp. of America has disclosed that it also is working on a subscription TV method.

Motion picture producers, sport promoters and college athletic officials have expressed keen interest in subscription TV as a means of allowing telecasts of their products and events without causing heavy box office losses.

As envisioned by the developers, subscription television could be used by all stations for occasional telecasts, or by a single station in a community specializing in pay-as-you-see TV. But in any event it would supplement—not replace—the regular programs which the set owner receives free.

Skating and Curling by February Now Expected

But It All Depends on Working Enthusiasm— Kids To Get First Innings

Prince Rupert Curling Club is now setting its sights for February 1 to have the first ice on the curling rink at Seal Cove—but it all depends, says president Neely Moore, on the enthusiastic endeavor of members to get the job done in the meantime.

RCFAC Man Puck Star

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Bob Greenlaw, the hockey player who never was sure whether he'll really make it to the rink. That's because versatile Bob, RCAF flying officer, is always on call for flying duties, a radio operator aboard the RCAF plane used for top Canadian government and service personalities traveling in Canada and on the continent—sometimes the call comes at the last minute.

In his spare time, he plays curling with Herringay Racers of the English National League, a circuit composed almost exclusively of fellow-Canadians. At Christmas time Bob had scored seven goals and assisted in many others—not bad for a fellow who has played in only three games. All told Herringay has scored nearly 30.

Bob is probably the "commutest" player in British hockey. He lives with his British wife in a beautiful old house in Oxford, some 63 miles by rail from London. When he has a hockey date, Bob makes the two-hour trip to the city, where most matches are played, in a small English automobile.

Along with other crew members attached to the V.I.P. aircraft, Bob is stationed at Abingdon, six miles south of Oxford. One of the crew's recent assignments was to take Defence Minister Brooke Claxton and party from London to Bonn and Hannover in Germany and then to Rotterdam to welcome troops of Canada's 27th Brigade.

Greenlaw, 28, learned his hockey in Perth, Ont., and also played for Stratford Kroehlers, Peterborough Eagles and Sydney Millionaires of the Cape Breton League. He served in the RCAF during the war and saw service in France with Mosquito fighter-bombers, but that's a period he prefers not to talk about.

After a period as salesman he went back first to hockey and then to flying, re-enlisting in September 1950 and receiving a posting to a squadron stationed near Ottawa. He came to Britain four months ago and his aircraft hardly touched down before Herringay sought permission to use him.

Now Bob combines his two favorite pastimes, hockey and flying, and Mrs. Greenlaw, formerly of Watford, Herts, sighs and says:

anticipated in getting the workers out, particularly since the slow preparatory labor has been done and the results of work henceforth will be readily visible. The Club is also standing by its promise that there will be some skating for the youngsters immediately the rink is completed and in operation. We hope to give the kids about a week of skating," Mr. Moore says "before the curlers get their innings."

In any case, there should be a good period of curling during the Spring.

"What about summer curling?" Mr. Moore was asked.

"That depends upon the B. C. Packers," he replied. "The company's own requirements as the fishing season develops will naturally effect what they can do for the curling club. If there is to be year-round curling for sure, the eventual answer, of course, will be to have our own refrigeration service."

Rainmakers Face Wrangell Wolves Here Next Week

After playing a two-game hoop series with Ketchikan's Kay-Hi this week-end, Wrangell Wolves will appear here Monday and Tuesday in a two-game bill with Booth Memorial High School's senior Rainmakers.

The Wolves are considered by Kay-Hi's Coach Bassett as the greatest threat to his boys in the Southeastern Alaska loop which includes Ketchikan, Petersburg, Wrangell and Klawok. Meanwhile, Rainmakers stand beaten only by a few points each game of four played recently with Ketchikan, and Bo-Me-Hi's Coach Jack Evans thinks the two teams here next week will be very evenly matched.

LINEUP
The starting lineup which will face the Wolves here is as follows: Young and Cleonhe, guards; Morrison, centre; Nickerson and Tait, forwards. On the bench will be Sather and McKay, forwards, and Letourneau, guard. Watson is still suffering from a broken finger sustained in an earlier league game.

Remember when?

The first game of the newly-organized National Hockey Association was played at Montreal 41 years ago today, when Montreal Canadiens defeated Cobalt Silver Kings 7-6. The NHA, operating at that time in opposition to the Canadian Hockey Association, was expanded 12 days later into the National Hockey Association, forerunner of the National Hockey League formed in 1917.

Chess, Checker Tourney Next Week

The art of fencing may be introduced to Prince Rupert if enough interest can be aroused in this sport, says Civic Centre Director Jack Stirn.

Himself a fencing enthusiast, Mr. Stirn hopes to hear from others who have had experience with the blades, or who would like to learn. Equipment will be made available, as well as instruction.

Meanwhile, the checker and chess tournament is gaining momentum as more players have registered. The round robin tournament is to get under way next week, time to be announced. Registrations are open until Monday night.

New Cub Pack Formed Here

Another new Cub pack was organized as the voices of seven boys last night echoed through the basement of the First Presbyterian Church.

Registration and distribution of the official equipment and uniform catalogue was the main topic of the evening.

The pack, to be known as the Third Presbyterian, is supervised by Cubmaster Andy Wyatt, assisted by Noble C. Powell. Next meeting of the pack takes place Friday, which starts off the regular Cub nights.

The group committee will also meet at this time to discuss purchase of scarves, and other organizational problems.

NAVY NEWS—

History of Chatham Dates Back to 1792

Prince Rupert is aware of the White Ensign flown from a mast at the foot of McBride Street but few people speak of the buildings which compose the Naval Division here as a "ship."

The Canadian Naval Reserve Division at Prince Rupert is named after H.M.S. Chatham, the consort-ship of H.M.S. Discovery in which Captain George Vancouver explored the west coast of North America in 1792. Built at Dover, H.M.S. Chatham was an armed tender of 135 tons carrying a crew of 55. She took her name from the second Earl of Chatham, Sir John Pitt, who was the First Lord of the Admiralty from 1768 to 1794. Captain William Robert Broughton was in command when she made her trip to America.

FIRST COMMISSIONED

H.M.C.S. Chatham was commissioned in 1923 with Lieutenant Commander W. Hume in charge but, for the next two years, the ship's company consisted of nothing but one basketball team, so that in 1926 the division closed down. However, in 1929 the naval centre was re-commissioned and by 1931 the complement consisted of five officers and seventy-five ratings.

When war was declared in 1939, the whole ship's company was called into active service and Chatham, as a reserve division, was paid off in June 1940. The quarters were turned over to the Fishermen's Reserve. Shortly afterwards the establishment was re-born in its wartime role of a permanent R.C.N. base—recruiting centre, and routing centre for ships, convoys and patrols along the Northern British Columbia coast—and remained such until paid off in August 1945.

On Trafalgar Day, October 1946, Chatham was again commissioned, this time as a peace time Reserve Division. In contrast to its prewar lack of training equipment and space, the new naval centre was provided with all the gear necessary to give its trainees full instruction.

As well as recruiting men for the permanent navy, it carries out the main function of training young men and women of Prince Rupert as naval reserves. The "old reserves" are responsible for the fine record of Chatham—the reserves of today are not to be outdone.

TRAINING

The staff at Chatham is preparing for the second half of the training year. Facilities at Chatham include sports, woodwork, sailing and boating. With the arrival of the two new dinghies some good sailing races are expected in the summer.

Motorist Fined After Accident

A city motorist was fined $25 and costs in police court yesterday after pleading guilty to a charge under the Motor Vehicle Act of driving without care and attention.

Charge arose from an incident December 11 when Peter Hunter, the motorist, knocked down William McInnes at Second Street and Third Avenue. McInnes was not seriously injured.

Hunter was defended by T. W. Brown, K.C.

New Members Are Welcomed

Four new members—Peggy Ann Dominato, Joan Bennett, Drue Patrick and Myrna Knutson—were initiated into the local Job's Daughters' Bethel last night by the Honored Queen, Heather Brewer.

Two members—Mary Strachan and Luella MacDonald—came for vacation from studies in Vancouver, were welcomed.

Associate Guardian George Dawes congratulated the new officers on their proficient handling of the meeting.

Ken Malcolm was the winner of a cookie dish at the entertainment which followed the meeting.

AGILE CREATURE

The Gibbon, smallest of the anthropoid apes found chiefly in the Malay Peninsula, rarely exceeds three feet in height.

The strangest part about our business is that the less workmanship you can see, the better the job was done! That's why we're so proud of the cars that cruise out of our shop with that "brand new" look—even though they may have been in serious accidents. Remember this number if in need:

Anchorage Taxi Laws Tightened

ANCHORAGE—City ordinance which would do away with driver owned cabs and abolish cab stands within the city came up for first reading at the city council meeting.

Cab operators would be required to: maintain off-street parking; own all cabs in the fleet; have the same color scheme for all cabs owned by one operator; maintain 24-hour service.

Public liability insurance of $10,000 for death or injury of one person, $40,000 for more than one person, and $5000 property damage would be required.

All licenses would be issued subject to vehicular inspection and certification of applicants by the police chief.

Number of cabs could be limited on a basis of demand for service shown by records of operators, the effect on traffic congestion, impairment of safe use of streets for vehicular and pedestrian traffic, or other reasons deemed fit by the city manager and council.

No taxicab could be used for personal use at any time, and no cruising for fares would be allowed.

All calls would be handled through the dispatcher's office where complete records of all drivers, and trip sheets would be maintained.

License requirements for both operators and drivers include United States citizenship, 21 years old, ability to read and write, non-addiction to the use of intoxicants or narcotics.

Good moral character and reputation, no conviction of a felony for 10 years previous to date of application, no conviction at any time of a felony or misdemeanor involving an immoral turpitude, assault with dangerous weapon or use of traffic in narcotics, drugs or traffic in women for immoral purposes.

A written driving test would be required and in the case of drivers, a physical examination.

No driver would be allowed to drive more than 12 hours on shift, nor return to work until after eight hours had elapsed.

Drivers' licenses could be suspended by the police chief for speeding and would be revoked for reckless driving or for other violations of the code.

Other rules and regulations within the meaning of the code could be adopted and enforced after due notice by the police chief.

Similar regulations, with minor variations would apply to buses, airlines limousines, vehicles for hire, and sight-seeing buses.

REACH SAFETY—Seamen all but glad to be ashore after drifting helplessly for seven days during one of the worst winter storms to sweep the Atlantic are these crew members of the SE Mayfair, shown at St. John's, Nfld., as they await the repair of their ship. The ship was bound from Bonavista to St. John's when fuel pumps broke down seven miles from her destination. For three days the vessel drifted while crew members used mess tables to keep fires going. This fuel ran out and she drifted without food and water running low. On the seventh day she was spotted by another ship and taken in tow. (CP PHOTO)

Prince Rupert Great Salmon Port—Dodge Cove Progressive—Where Have Tuna Gone?

In not many places in Canada is the catching of salmon the year around so simple a matter as in Prince Rupert. It is not at all unusual off, or near Prince Rupert. Anyone, in a rowboat, or some other kind of craft is free to go out and see what his skill, or just plain luck amounts to.

A local citizen, within the last few days, managed to land more than half a dozen fine fish. Free salmon is a most acceptable dish, any old time. Many a year ago the late Bishop G. A. Rix (Diocese of Caledonia) who had come from Ontario to take over the duties of Canon at the new Pacific port of Prince Rupert, decided to take a row on the harbor. Weather was pleasant. He had heard much of British Columbia's salmon wealth and took along a rod, doubtless thinking there was no reason why he should not be rewarded. He was indeed. It was not more than a couple of hours when the tall figure of the Canon could be seen passing the corner of Third Avenue and Second Street. In his grasp he held a noble fish. It might have been a steelhead, or a spring. Anyway, it was a dandy. And as for the fisherman? Oh, he was prouder'n Punch.

One never knows all about the more or less perplexing points there are to the fishing industry. There had been a notion that on the British Columbia coast, albacore tuna would be caught indefinitely. The catch that had developed into a million dollar affair one year, faded away and gradually disappeared last year. It had been selling at $350 per ton at one time.

Dodge Cove, peopled chiefly by those active in fishing and boat building, is situated on Digby Island, the site being just across from the western end of Prince Rupert townsite.

It is a comparatively new community and industrious and progressive, may be said to be the largest village so near this city. Throughout the season, the deep sea and other forms of fishing keep the residents of Dodge Cove well occupied, for they are experienced, not only in the fishing industry, but also in the turning out of gill-nets and other craft.

Growth in deep sea shipping, although not directly in connection with Prince Rupert. Affairs is seen in the movement of iron ore deposits of Texada Island, down the coast. This ore, as well as coal, will be made use of by Japan. It will be necessary to build a new wharf at Texada and it is expected the sailings from there will equal Campbell River which averages five a month. Japan is making steel.

It was in 1951 that for the first time since the early forties, Japanese shipping was noted on this coast. There was a new vessel on the first regularly scheduled service with the Orient. Today, competition is sharp on world routes. Freight charges are high and there is a ship shortage.

There is said to be no sound reason why Aluminum Co. freighters, after discharging alumina at Kitimat, should not pick up return cargoes such as fish, pulp, shingles and ore concentrates at Prince Rupert, Vancouver, Victoria, Nanaimo and New Westminster. The question, it is thought, is doubtless already being studied.

THE CAPE VERDES
Contrasts can interest. Prince Rupert, with her mild and misty islands, her snow flurries and icy streets could never remind one of the Cape Verdes!

It's always cool—even in mid-summer—as well as fresh and often fair away up in this port of the North Pacific.

But off the coast of northwest Africa, the sky, if not cloudless, can easily be that way. A few hundred miles from the continent, the sea is a rich, a dark blue, and the sunshine strong and dependable.

Portugal has owned the Cape Verdes for centuries. The climate is rated unexcelled. As British Columbia understands it, there are no forests. Peaks have a parched look. But that doesn't mean this is an arid land.

Folks in Prince Rupert may forget about halibut, precious salmon and herring—oolichans and cleansing rains. Here's a different slice of creation. There's color and warmth. The islands are just north of the equator and plenty of products flourish. Fruits and stimulants, pineapple,

Tense Picture Due at Totem

Story of a criminal lawyer who is so convinced that his client is innocent of a murder charge that he attempts to bribe a vital witness when the case starts going against him. "The People Against O'Hara," is the feature picture on the screen of the Totem Theatre here next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Spencer Tracy has the leading role and the cast also includes Pat O'Brien, Diana Lynn and John Hodiak.

How Tracy vindicates himself and tracks down the real murderer at the cost of his own life makes for an absorbing drama which shifts from courtroom to varied colorful locations in New York City where portions of the picture were filmed.

Pat O'Brien has the part of a sympathetic policeman torn between two emotions. Diana Lynn is the daughter of Tracy. Her devotion to her father stands in the way of her marriage. John Hodiak is a persuasive district attorney.

Royal Tour in CNR Pictures

MONTREAL—A comprehensive pictorial review of the recent tour of Canada by their royal highnesses, the Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh, has been issued by the Canadian National Railways. It is published as a supplement to the January issue of the Canadian National magazine and copies are now being distributed with pay cheques to the company's 115,000 employees.

In more than 90 photos the "Royal Visit Picture Supplement" takes the reader over the nationwide route starting with their royal highnesses arrival at Dorval airport to the departure from Fortuque Cove, Newfoundland.

The pictures represent a careful selection from thousands of negatives made during the tour and provide a wide variety of scenes ranging from formal ceremonies to incidents of human interest.

Their royal highnesses travelled 3,460 miles over CNR lines and in a special message to employees, Donald Gordon, chairman and president said: "It is a fine tribute to our service and the men and women who performed it, that all our arrangements should have earned the praise of our royal visitors and those who accompanied them and those who made the plans."
