Ridgway Appointed

Mark Clark Taking Over in Korea

WASHINGTON, D. C. (CP) — Appointment of General Matthew B. Ridgway, at present commander-in-chief in the Far East for the United Nations, as successor to General Dwight Eisenhower as supreme allied commander-in-chief in Europe was announced today.

General Eisenhower is returning shortly to the United States.

President Truman announced at the same time the appointment of General Mark Clark to succeed Ridgway as United States commander in Korea and commander-in-chief of United States armed forces in the Far East.

General Alfred M. Gruenther will continue as chief of staff to the supreme allied commander in Europe, the post he held under Eisenhower.

Ridgway's appointment and Eisenhower's release become effective approximately June 1.

Clark is now commander of army field forces at Fort Monroe, Virginia.

Jap War Is Over

Great Celebration Today—Nationalist China Also Signs

TOKYO — Today was one of great celebration in Japan for it marked the going into effect of the peace treaty ending the war with United States and other Allied countries, including Canada, which started ten years ago when Japan tried by force to seize control of the Pacific Ocean.

The day was also marked by the signing of a peace treaty with Nationalist China, ending even a longer war.

Only country with which Japan is still technically at war is Soviet Russia which refused to accept the terms of the peace treaty.

To mark the signing of the treaty 1,230,000 prisoners were released from jails in Japan as a general amnesty was granted except for war criminals and those serving time for crimes of violence.

The amnesty was granted to persons convicted of or accused of crimes to let them "make a new national start" on this National Independence Day.

Excluded from the amnesty were 949 war criminals in gray Sugamo prison although it affects most of 240 prisoners serving time for "offences against the occupation."

The amnesty is only one of the manifestations of this historic day on which Japan becomes one of the world's free countries as a democratic, sovereign state.

(The Japanese peace treaty becomes formally effective at 6:30 a.m. Pacific Standard Time Monday.)

The United States embassy will resume operations after more than 10 years of suspension by war and occupation. Heading the diplomatic mission is Ambassador Robert D. Murphy.

Japan resumes full diplomatic relations with many other countries including Canada but she remains technically at war with Russia which did not sign the peace treaty at San Francisco September 8.

Russia immediately denounced the treaty and the accompanying U.S.-Japanese security pact as "treaties for the preparation of a new war in the Far East." Russia assailed pacts in statements by Ambassador Alexander Panushkin.

The latter called the peace pact an illegal separate peace treaty with Japan and said it was concluded in a violation of the Big Four Moscow conference in 1945. He added:

"The conclusion of the treaty shows how far the U.S. government has gone in the policy of 'coercing' Japan into a United States military bridgehead in the Far East."

CANADIAN TROOPS LEAVE FOR FAR EAST—Over 1,000 Canadian soldiers, enroute to Korea to replace elements of Canada's 25th Infantry Brigade, received a typical United States send-off at Seattle recently as their troopship pulled out of port to the martial strains of the Seattle Military Band. The troopship, on a turn about trip, had just disembarked hundreds of Canadians, home on rotation leave, a short time before sailing. (National Defence Photo)

Naval Disaster Takes 174 Lives

United States Minesweeper Sunk by Aircraft Carrier in Atlantic

WASHINGTON, D.C. — One hundred and seventy-four officers and men of the United States Navy minesweeper Hobson were listed as missing and believed lost last night following a collision in the Atlantic Ocean Saturday night with the aircraft carrier Wasp, also of the United States Navy.

The disaster, one of the worst in peacetime naval history, occurred some 2000 miles east of Norfolk, Virginia, and 700 miles from the Azores.

High seas and murky darkness were prevailing.

Sixty-one members of the Hobson's crew were rescued.

Lt. Cdr. Tierney commander of the Hobson, is among those believed lost.

Although seventy-five feet of her bow have been damaged, the Wasp is proceeding to the United States under her own power.

SEARCH CONTINUING
The Navy said today it had received no official word that the search for survivors had been called off but said it was acting on "supposition that active search had ceased."

A department aide said that this view was based on belief that planes and ships in the area of the sinking have had "ample time to search the waters."

The disaster was probably the United States Navy's worst since the end of the war and one of the worst non-combat losses.

WHAT HAPPENED
The Navy believes this is what happened:

The Hobson and Wasp were part of a task group enroute to the Mediterranean.

Night manoeuvres were being held enroute.

The Hobson and another destroyer-minesweeper were trailing the Wasp to help pick up men if any of the carrier's planes failed to land on its decks.

Around midnight the Wasp, probably cutting through rough seas at 20 to 25 knots, turned into the wind to enable planes to land after a simulated night strike.

The Hobson, travelling at about the same speed, plowed into the carrier.

It is not clear whether the Hobson sank immediately.

an Vice-President Visitor; Impressed at Sight of Big Project

Prince Rupert Port To Be Used

After seeing so many things in such a short space of time at the company's stupendous industrial developments at Kemano and Kitimat, Paul S. White, youthful vice-president and secretary of the Aluminum Co. of Canada, found it a little difficult this morning to make any comment to a Daily News representative.

"I have been hearing so much about it that I had to come out and see for myself," said Mr. White who, like others who have been at the great tunnel and powerhouse excavation at Kemano, was greatly impressed with the magnitude.

Mrs. White accompanies her husband. Yesterday at Kemano she had the distinction of being the first woman to drive into the great ten-mile tunnel through which the Tahtsa Lake water will be brought out to the Kemano powerhouse.

And the climax of the visit to Kemano was a helicopter ride—the first Mr. and Mrs. White had experienced.

They spent four hours in the Kemano area and then had a look at Kitimat where the great aluminum smelter is being built.

While here today, Mr. and Mrs. White are the guests of the Columbia Cellulose Co., paying a visit to the Watson Island pulp mill this afternoon.

They were also met by officials of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce.

Tonight they entrain for Vanderhoof and, after a visit to the Neehako dam, will proceed back to Montreal.

It is the first trip to the Pacific Coast for Mrs. White whose home is in Toronto although now residing in Montreal.

Mr. White said that there was no doubt considerable heavy construction material from the East for the Kitimat and Kemano plants would be moved through Prince Rupert.

Already the possibilities of using this port were being investigated by the company in its "struggle" with transportation problems.

As to what extent this port would be used when the plant got into operation was something that would have to be studied. The alumina would be coming for the smelter by ships from Jamaica. The disposition and the method of shipment of the output would be determined later.

Principal purpose of Mr. White's trip west was to attend a conference in Victoria of the Pacific Northwest Trade Association where there was a unique and unprecedented panel discussion in which he, as representative of Aluminum Co. of Canada, and representatives of Aluminum Co. of Canada, Reynolds and Kaiser Corporations took part.

Mr. White also visited Winnipeg where he addressed the Manitoba branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

Drunken Boys Stole Liquor

KETCHIKAN — Four 14-year-old Ketchikan boys were taken in custody early Saturday morning in a cabin on Pennock Island after stealing twelve bottles of whisky and 48 bottles of beer from the Elks' Club the previous evening.

The boys were all inebriated after having consumed five of the 12 bottles of whisky and considerable beer in their nocturnal binge.

One of the boys said they had taken the liquor to the island in an outboard motor boat, drinking on the way. One of them became so intoxicated, he collapsed in the boat.

The boys were turned over to their parents who promised they would take drastic disciplinary measures.

The Little Man's Dollar

WE ARE going to hear plenty in the forthcoming election campaign about the millions of dollars that are being poured into British Columbia by big industry. Every British Columbian is proud and appreciative of our growth. Certainly Prince Rupert has good reason to be happy about the advent of industry on a large scale which has brought us the era of economic prosperity which we had anticipated so long and about which so many despaired and gave up. There is certainly no desire to minimize the great benefit which big industry has brought during the past few years to this whole area and is continuing to bring in ever-increasing measure with a prosperity, the opportunities of which, indeed, many find it hard to avail themselves of to the fullest degree.

The average working man, labor and white collar, is glad of the prospects of future prosperity providing he is able to get in on it. He's glad to join in the welcome to new industry although he is also watching to see that the concessions are not made too generous.

The Richmond-Marpole Times has some timely remarks to make along these lines. It says:

The ordinary man knows the giants of industry can look after their dollar and that government will give it better than adequate protection. His attitude now is "What about my dollar?"

The leaders of the old line parties should get their ear to the ground. That rumbling noise is not applause. It is the worry of the little man about the value of his own hard-earned dollar; his investment by way of taxes in his own well-being and that of his family.

He is happy about the principle of hospital insurance but he wants it administered with reason and logic. He wants the myriad of services for which he pays government to be conducted with due regard for economy.

The man on the street, on the farm, in the store and in the plants will not be persuaded by any platform of immediate and sweeping nationalization. That would lead to chaos in our labor and economic picture and he knows it.

But the little man is concerned about his own dollar, hard-earned and subject to high taxation and living costs. Premier Johnson and the others should let the voter hear the assurance that his dollar is getting just as immediate attention, care, guardianship and affection as those of industry.

Crime and Publicity

THUGS and jailbirds are getting plenty of publicity these days. Even misguided juvenile delinquents obtain their share of it. Punk criminals are getting their names and pictures spread all over the front pages. Some of them even get follow-up stories, telling about the soft side of their lives, giving the alibis which led to their iniquitous careers. Of course, some of them never did much wrong except rob a bank or two anyway.

There is a type of thug who likes the limelight and doesn't mind how he gets publicity—as long as he gets it. To be played up in the news, to get into the limelight, thrills him immensely. Evidently, he believes that he is envied by many of his own kind of lawbreaker.

Too often thugs are made to look like the heroes of the piece instead of enemies of society which they are.

As I See It

by Elmore Philpott

Bacon for Britain

IT IS an old saying that it's an ill wind that blows nobody any good.

Canada had a vast surplus of pork, even before the hoof and mouth disease closed our markets in U.S.A. Mr. Gardiner told Parliament of the government's intention to sell this pork at cut rates or even give it away to foreigners.

Surely this surplus gives us the chance to help Britain through her own deep economic crisis. If we have to sell the pork surplus below cost, why not to Britain?

Better still, why not GIVE the whole works to the people of Britain, absolutely free?

The entire surplus amounts to just about one pound per person for each man, woman and child in Britain. An absolutely free bonus of the Canadian pork surplus would give a real lift to those people far beyond its food value.

IT WOULD cost Canada something to give this pork to Britain. But the out-of-pocket cost would be mere "chickadee" compared with the hundreds of millions we are tossing around for defense—necessary as defense is.

But I think the return we would get from such a gift would be worth more than the money outlay. The British bacon ration per week or even month is just about what they serve in well run B.C. logging camps per day. Of course, not every Briton could get bacon, hams or pork chops from the surplus, if we did ship it over. But everybody could get something. I think such a shipment would do more than ten thousand speeches by politicians to show the British people that the Commonwealth idea really means something. AFTER wars are over as well as while we are shooting at Germans, etc.

FOR YEARS past in this column I have been shouting my head off warning of the loss of our British markets.

We are losing those markets, bit by bit.

If the Russians are really in earnest about the new policy which they proclaimed at the recent trade conference in Moscow, Canada could eventually lose more and more chunks of the British market. For the Russians have offered to do what we should have offered to do long ago—that is, accept payment for what we sell to Britain in British pounds sterling.

That would not mean that the B.C. lumbermen fish packers or fruit people would get paid in sterling. Our government would be responsible for paying the Canadian producers in ordinary Canadian money. But the equivalent amount would be credited to Canada's account in British pounds sterling. AND EACH YEAR WE WOULD USE UP OUR ENTIRE CREDIT BALANCE IN BRITAIN EITHER BY BUYING BRITISH GOODS OR SERVICES OR BY BUYING STOCKS OR BONDS ON THE BRITISH OPEN MARKET.

CAN anybody honestly say that we people of the British world commonwealth have done everything we could to get our economies straightened away?

Surely the illustration of the pork surplus drives home the truth. We have so much of it unsold that we don't know what to do about it. Yet the British who love bacon, get only bits of it about the size of postage stamps!

Talk about hoof and mouth disease! Surely we suffer from

Parliament Hill

By Edward T. Applewhite, M.P., Skeena
Smithers Public Building Coming—Public Works in This Area

The much-delayed Smithers public building has been the cause of considerable activity between my office and the office of the Minister of Public Works.

The latest information, which I believe to be authentic, is that the revised plans have been completed, specifications are just about complete, and the newspapers should be carrying the advertisements calling for tenders by the middle of May. As Smithers people have a right to expect, I shall keep in constant touch with the Department on this matter.

The last annual report of the Department of Public Works—that to March 31, 1951—is at hand. It reports work done under contract at Prince Rupert consisting in the renewal of 1020 lineal feet of log floats 16 feet wide, the building up with 36,000 lineal feet of the floating log breakwater section, the construction of a new 40-foot section of log breakwater, the pulling of approximately 40 piles, the placing of 2,000 lineal feet of creosoted piling and the renewal of part of the mooring pile brace timbers. It also reports a quarried rock mound breakwater 852 feet long, with a 10-foot wide crest at elevation 30 feet above low water, and having side slopes of 1 1/2 to 1, completed. After the years of work and effort, it is a great satisfaction to read of this breakwater as a completed project.

The total expenditures incurred by the Public Works Department during that fiscal year, on its various works of construction, maintenance and operation amounted to the sum of $84,214,855.32. Under the heading of "Harbor and River Works" the total expenditure was $23,122,359.89. I give here some of the works under contract which were completed in the year covered by the report:

Allison Harbor, float and shed construction;
Balmoral, wharf construction;
Bella Bella, construction of scow grid and loading platform;
Dodge Cove (Digby Island), wharf construction;
Masset, renewal of floats and dolphin piles;
Masset, seaplane landing construction;

Metlakatla, wharf construction;

Prince Rupert, breakwater construction and float renewal. Included in works under unfinished contract were:

Alice Arm, wharf reconstruction; and Prince Rupert, construction of roadway (both finished now, thank goodness).

Under the heading of Public Buildings the Department spent $51,872,663.75.

The Prime Minister seemed to be in excellent health and spirits when the House re-opened after Easter. He had spent a short holiday in Bermuda, and he must have found a lot of sun, because his complexion was nearer that of a tomato than of a peach-blossom.

Immediately after the House was called to order when we reconvened, Mr. St. Laurent said he would make a short statement regarding the treatment of Canadians in China. He said the house would wish to know that the United Kingdom charge d'affaires in Peking that day had presented a note to the Chinese Vice-Minister of Foreign Affairs on behalf of and with the approval of the governments of Canada, Australia, the United Kingdom and the United States, regarding treatment accorded their nationals in China. In addition to the numbers known to be in jail there, there is an undetermined number of persons who are understood to be undergoing one form or another of house arrest. The United Kingdom charge d'affaires has asked the Chinese ministry of foreign affairs for information regarding the charges against those persons who have been arrested, the sentences if any which have been passed upon them, and their present whereabouts and welfare. I rather doubt that much satisfactory information will be forthcoming.

Something a lot more deadly—hoof and head disease. The one disease affects animals' hoofs. But the worse one affects man's brain.

All we need to do is to say to Britain, "Provided that you will agree to buy from us at a high volume we agree to accept YOUR money in payment. We agree to end this part of your 'dollar problem' forever."

BA U is the new president of Burma—or is that what he says to the Opposition?

About the only money that goes as far as it did in 1940 is the quarter that rolls under the bed—that is, if you chance to have a quarter left, observes a contemporary.

NO STRAIGHT JACKETS

There is this much to remember, concerning the annual floods that make life miserable for tens of thousands of people. Do we ever think that man-made dikes and dams will continue to fail, for Nature will not be put in a straight-jacket. Flood control involves a far-reaching overall conservation program by which forests will be restored and over-grazed lands will be re-covered with vegetation that will hold water on the lands. Ignore these principles, and feel the power of Nature.

Girl Guide—Brownie Tea And Sale Bright Success

A charming and successful tea and sale was presented in the parish hall of St. Andrew's Cathedral by the Girl Guides and Brownies of Prince Rupert Saturday afternoon. The event was well patronized by parents and friends who came out to enjoy not only a good cup of tea but also the stalls of handicrafts and home cooking displaying much of the work of the girls themselves.

The pourers' table looked charming centered with yellow tapers and a large bouquet of carnations and narcissi. Each tea table was also daintily set off with a bouquet of the same flowers.

Pack and Girl Guide Heather Stevens.

Brownie Sixers and Girl Guides lent their assistance at all the stalls.

Cashier for the afternoon was Girl Guide Nancy Lund.

Gardening....

PLAN THINNING OUT TO PROLONG GARDEN HARVEST

Thin Out Excess Plants Gradually, and Allow the Best Plants To Live, Using Discards for Table When Possible

Many a home vegetable garden crop which gets a fine start, is ruined by the failure of the gardener to thin out the plants, so they have a chance to mature.

But do not destroy at once all excess plants. There are many hazards in the garden which may destroy some plants and it is well to keep a reserve on hand, as long as possible.

Just as soon as the plants are large enough to handle, thin them to stand about an inch apart. This will allow them to develop rapidly, with no danger of entangling their roots with neighbors.

When they threaten to crowd again, many of the tiny plants can be used on the table. Carrots as thick as your little finger make a dish to remember. Beets just beginning to form, cooked with their tender, nutritious tops, are a real table treat. Lettuce leaves two inches across can be used in a bowl salad. Onions, kohlrabi, Swiss chard and spinach are among other plants which are delicious when half-mature.

By removing alternate plants, using the discards where possible, the optimum spacing of the survivors is attained. What this spacing should be cannot be told precisely for your garden. It depends upon the variety you grow, and the fertility of your soil. In well fed home gardens, plants can usually be grown closer together than in market gardens, and the tendency is to increase the number of plants grown, even in commercial operations.

Be sure, however, that each plant has room to mature without suffering from competition. Peas will do well in single rows, when spaced an inch apart; bush beans two to four inches; bush lima beans, 18 inches for the large seed varieties, and a foot for the small seed. Carrots will mature when close enough for the root tops to touch; beets need three to four inches, and turnips, which must grow fast, should be thinned out at an early stage to stand four inches apart.

Thinning out plants should be an opportunity to select the finest plants you have for growing on, discarding the inferior. And while you work at it, make a mental note of the folly of sowing too many seeds. Two or three times as many seeds as the plants you can mature should always be sown, to allow for accidental losses. But beginners often sow ten times as much as they need which wastes seed, and increases the work of thinning out.

It gives the beginner an emotional shock to pull seedlings which have grown from seed sowed; but this is a task which must be done, if a failure of the crop is to be avoided.

CHICKEN MACARONI CASSEROLE

Chicken Sunday—leftovers Monday. Menus are not as rigidly routine as that, but many times the "leftovers" are still temptingly good.

Here's a way to stretch that leftover chicken around the family table. It's a recipe for chicken-macaroni casserole, one of those every one-dish meals that eliminates the need for numerous side-dishes.

Main support of the casserole is prepared macaroni in cheese sauce—the kind in cans at the grocery store.

This canned macaroni is a blend of elbow macaroni in a sauce of rich cream and cheddar cheese. The sauce is seasoned, providing a rich contrast for the chicken.

2 15-ounce cans macaroni in tomato sauce with cheese
1 to 1½ cups diced chicken
2 tablespoons melted butter
1 cup bread crumbs.

Grease 1 quart casserole. Alternate layers of macaroni with layers of chicken. Melt butter and mix with crumbs. Top casserole with buttered bread crumbs and bake in moderate oven (350° F.) for 35 minutes.

Girl Guides Sell Cookies

This is annual Guide Cookie week during which the Guides and Brownies will be ringing door bells all over the city as they make the rounds to vend their specially-made and tempting product.

This is one of the ways by which the Guides raise money for their companies and packs to carry on. It is a rule that no cash may be asked for—it must be raised by the efforts of the girls themselves and for value received.

Blouses Keynote Summer Costumes

PARIS (Reuters) — Blouses from the simple pique models to the fashion up a morning tailored costume, through silk print blouses to formal models in organza or lace are the keynote to variety in summer costumes this season.

Prices, starting at less than $3 up to Couture models which cost nearly as much as a dress itself.

Expert handling, and a good fit have transformed the once undistinguished blouse into one of the smartest items of the wardrobe.

Blouses with full billowing sleeves accentuate this summer's demand for a wasp waist.

Lanvin features frilled "dandy" shirtwaists of the early 19th-century beau.

These immaculately-tailored blouses in white batiste and linen, feature prime high necks and long sleeves offset with white or pleated shirtfront ruffles.

Shantung and wild silk, beaded small printed foulards and other silks, are smartly styled in dressmaker blouses, with ruffles or bow necklines which offset tailored suit revers.

The cocktail or dinner blouse of crisp organdy replaces the daily lingerie models in chiffon.

Wheel of Fortune Lass Queen of Jukeboxes

LYWOOD (AP)—A buxom lass who can't read a note of music is queen of the jukeboxes.

Starr, a girl with a big spin the "Wheel of Fortune" into the country's No. 1 among popular records.

Starr Records happily re-issued the Starr version already in the 1,000,000-mark and to way over.

"Wheel of Fortune" is but the hit in a series from the 17-year-old southern miss whose easy, moon-shouting style was tabbed uncommercial by the record people. Musical and jazz purists had disdained her long ago when she shed 165 pounds and was weighed her tonsils out in favor of $35 a week.

Smith even then but as far as it went until she signed her in 1947.

and the famed Negro singer have similar styles described by a word widely used among musicians—gut-butt.

EARLY START

was born on an Indian reservation near Dougherty, but moved when she was two to Dallas, Tex. Her forebears are of Iroquois, Cherokee, Choctaw and Irish descent.

She was high school age when her family moved to Memphis—capital of the blues. Even while a student at Memphis Technical High School, she was good enough to be a featured soloist on a local radio station.

Summer vacations gave her a chance to sing with bands—one of them Joe Venuti's. When Kay finished high school at 17, she joined the famed jazz fiddler for a two-year tour.

Kay says Joe made one suggestion about her singing that she still thinks the most valuable she ever got:

"Old Joe told me to always sing loud. That way if I ever made a mistake the audience would blame it on the band."

She still sings loud, but with no mistakes.

Dieting has trimmed her figure to a svelte 120 pounds out not without much discomfort.

"I live on broiled lettuce," she moans.

Soviets Work Had to Push Culture Campaign in India

By ARUNA MUKERJI

BOMBAY (Reuters)—Soviet interest in India has been increasing during the last six months. Outward Russian interest in India has been mainly cultural and has been characterized by visits by delegations, exhibitions and participation in a festival. There has also been an attempt to foster trade between the two countries.

A Soviet exhibition the first big exhibition of foreign paintings ever to be held in India, now is touring the country. Recently an eight-member cultural delegation headed by Russian poet and author Nikolai Tikonov visited the country for two weeks.

Important Russians have been visiting India during the last six months. M. B. Nesterov, chairman of the Soviet Chamber of Commerce, headed a 50-man industrial delegation. N. Semenov, Russia's deputy minister for cinematography, headed the film delegation who participated in the international film festival. Author Nikolai Tikonov, Stalin Prize winner, was leader of the cultural delegation.

RED BOOKS CHEAP

Soviet political literature is sold cheaply on pavements, at bus stops and in bookshops.

The Russian art exhibition which opened in Delhi last month, includes 60 large oil paintings, 18 sculptures, and innumerable sketches shipped by the Russians from Odessa at the request of the Indian Fine Arts Society.

At the International Industries Fair which opened here last January, Russia's Nesterov said: "Soviet Russia is prepared for close trade relations with all countries on the basis of equality and considerations of mutual profit."

He said Russia is prepared to supply capital goods to India like textile machinery, machine tools, transport and mining equipment and generators in return for Indian jute, textiles, tobacco and spices.

The Russian pavilion which drew crowds during the six weeks it was shown here exhibited streamlined cars, agricultural machinery such as tractors and harvesters, textile machinery, cameras, surgical instruments and furs. The goods, especially machinery, had been so chosen as to have the greatest appeal to a people fast trying to industrialize.

During recent months, well-known Indian artists and writers have received invitations to visit Moscow.

A thirty-member team of Indian business men and economic experts attended the recent economic conference in Moscow.

Relations With Labor Good

Better Than Anywhere In Province, Says Union Official—Laborers Elect

New president of International Hod Carriers and Laborers' Union, local 1427, is William Josephson, following the annual meeting Saturday. William James, union consultant conciliator, was in attendance.

Other officers are John West, vice-president; James Mah, secretary-treasurer and A. Greaverson, sergeant-at-arms. Balance of the executive will be elected at the first regular monthly meeting, date to be decided.

Relationship between employee and employer in Prince Rupert are better than anywhere in the province, said Mr. James, in an interview following the meeting.

Supply of laborers was now in excess of demand, although he did not consider this serious as new work would soon take up "any slack."

Meanwhile, Mr. James said union officials were asking the Federal government to ensure immigrants could speak and understand English "before being put on the labor market."

"And this is only for the sake of safety. A man who cannot understand or speak the going language can be a hazard to himself and his fellow workmen by not following safety rules and instructions."

"The unions hope the government will seek to make it easier for immigrants to learn this country's language. We need the workmen very badly, but safety comes first."

This is the way to mark your ballot under Alternative Voting

Alternative Voting will be used in the coming Provincial Election.

Explaining Alternative Voting briefly, it may be said that the voter has no longer to content himself with marking an X for just one candidate. He marks a first choice for his candidate, and then proceeds to make a second, third and possibly further choices for as many candidates as have been nominated.

On counting the ballots, if the highest candidate has an absolute majority over and above the total votes cast for all the other candidates, he is declared elected. If, however, no candidate obtains an absolute majority on the first count, a second count is required. Before doing this, the lowest candidate is excluded and the second choices on that candidate's ballot are transferred to the other candidates as indicated on his ballot. If the second count elects no one on an absolute majority, the next lowest candidate is eliminated making a third count necessary. This is continued until some candidate obtains an absolute majority.

New Outdoor Range
May Provide Trap Shooting

Acquisition of a skeet throwing machine will be investigated by Prince Rupert Rod and Gun Club along with plans to revive the outdoor rifle range at Eleventh Avenue and the highway. Members made this decision at the monthly meeting Friday night.

Came Warden Ed Martin told the club that if a city permit was obtained to operate the range members with membership cards did not need firearm licenses to carry guns to and from the range.

Cpl. Martin was enthusiastic about the prospects of an outdoor range. He felt it would give boys a chance to practice shooting without infringing on game laws or city bylaws and without danger to anyone.

Range would be supervised by senior Rod & Gun Club members.

Jarvis McLeod was appointed a committee of one to purchase the skeet machine if one could be found at a reasonable price. If obtainable, members would lose no time in organizing a skeet or trapshooting club.

Members passed two resolutions to be forwarded to the B.C. game convention in Victoria next week.

1. That the big game season in the northern district be amended to be open only one month for non-resident hunters, from September 20 to October 20, and for resident hunters, from September 20 to November 15.

2. That the department of fisheries place a "competent fishery officer" to patrol Kioyah River during salmon spawning time to see an adequate supply of water flowing over the Kioyah dam is ensured.

The last resolution is to be forwarded to Hon. R. W. Mayhew, minister of fisheries.

Mr. McLeod, resolutions chairman, deplored the lack of attention Kioyah River had received last year from the fisheries department and said the water had been "so low at times that salmon were found rotting on the beaches."

Speaking in favor of the game season resolution, Mr. McLeod

Bobo Newsom
Changed Man

By WILL GIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP)—Fat and 43, fabulous Bobo Newsom is happy as a damp-eared rookie over his new chance in the majors.

"You can tell the world this is a new Newsome," the portly right-hander said as he leaned against the Washington dugout at Yankee Stadium.

"No more popoffs. No more breaking training."

Bobo is dead serious now. Proud to be up here again, there is only one place to play ball, the major leagues. Old Bobo's going to make the most of it this time.

Bounced from club to club and league to league and finally shuffled to the minors, Newsom's baseball days appeared numbered until he popped up again this spring as relief pitcher for the Senators. It's his fifth time with the Washington club.

"I'm grateful and I'm ready," he said. "Whatever Bucky (Bucky Harris, Washington manager) wants me to do, I'll do it. If he wants me to start, okay. If it's only relief, okay."

"I figure my old wing hasn't lost much. I figure I've lost only about 12 per cent of my speed and picked up about 50 per cent on brains and savvy. I'm probably as good a pitcher as I ever was."

STILL LIMBER

Only one other pitcher active in baseball has won more major league games than Bobo. That is Cleveland's Bob Feller, who has won 231. Bobo's total is 205.

"I pitched more than 300 innings for Birmingham (in the Southern Association) last year," Newsom added. "I won 17 games; and two in the playoff. That doesn't sound like old Bobo is through, does it?"

"I've picked up a knuckler which helps some but the main thing is I've held my control. I can throw any pitch I've got."

Detroit and Chicago Making Strides in American

NEW YORK (CP)—The lightly-regarded Cincinnati Reds and Chicago Cubs made hay again Sunday in the National League while the Detroit Tigers and Chicago White Sox made further strides to vacate the second division of the American League.

Rain once again curtailed activity in both leagues.

The Reds broke their tie with Chicago for second place by sweeping a doubleheader from Pittsburgh Pirates, 8-2 and 1-0. The Cubs remained within hailing instance by turning back the St. Louis Cardinals 6-3.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Ted Gray pitched the Tigers out of the American League cellar with a brilliant 1-0 sixth-inning victory over the Cleveland Indians. The White Sox outlasted the St. Louis Browns 7-6 in 14 innings in the first game of the doubleheader.

The Sox led the Browns 3-1 at the end of five innings nightcap which was called because of darkness. The game will be

THE ROUND-UP

By LARRY STANWOOD

Novations, Awed by Beauty

From the party of youths coming through that Pat had landed a big one—out of the same hole we had been fishing all morning.

Yep, that's the way she goes. Sunday morning was brisk with a few degrees of frost and the guides on our rods kept icing, but it warmed up rapidly after the sun came out.

There are not the right words in my vocabulary to express the rugged beauty of the lakehead as it appeared at dawn, mirror-smooth, reflecting snow-capped Mt. Morris on one side and the dark, steep-rising cliffs on the other.

There seems to be a different type of grandeur here, compared to the rest of the coastal range beauty. Perhaps it's like Texas—and the rest of the States—just plain bigger.

Another factor which struck me forcibly—only a few miles from B.C.'s third largest port is wilderness. In some directions you don't have to go that far before civilization ends abruptly and practically virgin territory begins. Indeed, this is still frontier country. And on behalf of every form of wild life, and every trout that rises unconcerned to break the calm of a hidden lake, I hope a lot of this part of B.C. can remain unmarred for years to come.

David Stone, of Co-op Store at Cow Bay, was unanimously elected to the board of directors of Prince Rupert Rod and Gun Association Friday night to replace Harold Eldsvik, now at Franco's Lake.

Squeeze in Two Suits Yields Few Tricks

A squeeze in two suits against either one opponent or both will yield only one extra trick. In other words, if you are trying for a squeeze to make a ten trick contract, you must have nine available winners.

A squeeze in three suits has one advantage and one disadvantage. The advantage is that it yields two additional tricks instead of one. The disadvantage is that, since one opponent must hold all of the outstanding high cards in three suits, it seldom comes up and therefore is of little practical value.

In today's deal Mr. Dale bid two clubs over Mr. Abel's take-out double in a feeble attempt to keep Mr. Meek out of the bidding and especially to prevent his opponents from reaching a possibly favorable contract in spades.

Miss Brash, who peeds practically no encouragement, then jumped all the way to five. Mr. Abel cashed the king and queen of hearts and led a third round of the suit which Miss Brash ruffed.

From the bidding it appeared that the spade finesse was surely wrong. Could Mr. Abel be squeezed in spades and hearts? He would have to retain just one heart, the nine, to beat dummy's eight spot. And he would have to keep the king and one other spade—three cards in all.

Three tricks had been played and Miss Brash could win the next seven, outside of the squeeze suits, or 10 tricks in all. Not enough. Mr. Abel would still be left with his three essential cards.

The only hope appeared to be the chance that Mr. Abel alone held his side's only stoppers in all three plain suits.

As you see Miss Brash's luck held, as usual. Beginning at trick four she cashed four trump tricks. Mr. Abel followed suit twice, then discarded the six and 10 of spades. There was nothing he could do, however, when the last trump was led. He elected to drop the nine of diamonds.

Miss Brash then cashed three diamond tricks, ending on the board. The last diamond squeezed Mr. Abel again. If he let go the nine of hearts, dummy's

Says Posture Aid To Healthy Body

LONDON (CP)—Most women don't know how to carry themselves properly, says Charles Neil, chief instructor at a London centre for physical and mental re-education.

Some don't even know the right way to push a baby carriage, says Neil. "Many mothers push the pram with the head back and chest thrown forward. "All wrong," says 36-year-old Neil. "Carry the head level and push with the whole body."

Another tip: If you let your body sag while carrying your shopping bag, you're just making things harder for yourself. It's less tiring to walk erect, spreading the strain over the body.

And never pick things up without bending the knees just to save your stockings. The knees are bent much more when you sit down.

Huge B.C. Ranch Ranks As Biggest In North America

VANCOUVER (CP)—The largest cattle ranch in North America is not in Texas as many people believe but right here in British Columbia.

The Gang ranch south of Williams Lake, in the province's interior, controls well over one million acres of range land of which they own 45,000 acres outright.

It was founded in 1861 by Thaddeus and Jerome Harper, brothers, who came north from Virginia shortly before the American Civil War.

In 1862 they drove their first herd, Texas longhorns, Herefords and plain scrubs, from Oregon.

When Jerome retired in 1870 the brothers were full-fledged cattle barons and they had acquired more land, timber and mining interest.

Rich and tired of ranching, Thaddeus retired in 1888, selling to Western Canadian Cattle Ranching Company of London, England, which in turn sold the holdings 60 years later to W. Studart of Phillipsburg, Mont., and F. Skelton of Idaho.

In the 1870s beef sold at $1.50 a pound or more, but gold was plentiful and high prices meant little to the miners.

OTHER BIG RANCHERS

There are several other large cattle empires around Gang ranch, in the lower Cariboo and Chilcotin districts.

The Pavilion Mountain, actually a giant elevator plateau is occupied by Pavilion ranch owned by Victor Spencer and Frank Ross. The Lillooet and Clinton highway runs right through the range land, Earls court ranch at Lytton has an interest in the Circle 5 at Dog's Lake and the Douglas Lake Cattle Company, whose ranch extends over 500,000 acres, has a herd of more than 10,000.

The Canoe Creek ranch near Big Bar Mountain in the Cariboo, founded by Henry Coster, son of a German baron, is another well known B.C. spread. Some years ago it was combined with the Empire Valley ranch on the west side of the Fraser River and the name changed to B.C. Cattle Company.

There are many other ranches throughout the province, although not so well known.

Virtually all B.C. cattle, especially in the Fraser Valley and on Vancouver Island, are free of tuberculosis.

PIPE-SMOKING DOG—This is no resident of Dogpatch, but Molly Adams, year-old female dog of doubtful lineage, who loves her pipe. Molly likes nothing better than to put on her perky red bonnet, a thick woolen shawl and relax on the couch in the home of her owner-trainer, Mrs. Matthew Adams of Guelph, Ont., and have a good smoke. Between times Molly is an expert rat catcher. But for real relaxation, apparently nothing can beat hitting the pipe. (CP PHOTO)

PREPARING FOR SPRING

Springtime brings with it a surge of activity. In the great outdoors, plants and trees are bursting out with new life, which means that many spring foods will soon be on the market. In the home another sure sign of spring is the housecleaning that is on the go. Home economists suggest that now is the time to use up the remaining cans of last year's food and to clean out frozen food lockers. Fresh spring foods will soon be replacing them.

Arsenal Hurt But Confident

Injuries Weaken Gunners,
For Cup Final at Wembley

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (P)—Despite a crop of injuries, Arsenal's famed Gunners are confident their brilliant team play and strong reserves will carry them to victory over the great Newcastle
United team in the Football Association cup final at Wembley May 3.

For the Gunners it will be their sixth appearance in a cup final, with a chance to score their fourth victory. Arsenal and Newcastle met only once at Wembley. That was in 1932, and Newcastle won 2-1.

The Gunners engaged in a tight battle with Manchester
United for the English League honors and suffered a mounting casualty list in the process. Newcastle, out of contention for the league title, concentrated on the cup playoffs and will go into the final with a well-rested club.

Arsenal lost its chance Monday to become the first club in 55 years to win the cup and league championship "double"—a prize last won by Aston Villa in 1897.
The Gunners bowed out to West
Bromwich Albion 3-1 and dropped two points behind Manchester United, which virtually clinched the title by defeating Chelsea 3-0.

Manchester and Arsenal clashed in the last fixture of the season Saturday. Manchester won and went out ahead on points.

The injury jinx hit the Gunners hard during the Easter list of fixtures. First major casualty was Ray Daniel, Arsenal's brilliant young Welsh international centre-half. His left wrist snapped when he collided head-on with Blackpool's Stan Mortensen in a vital Good Friday match which ended in a scoreless draw.

Leslie Compton, who at 38 won his first international cap with England last season, was called in to fill the gap.

Daniel, however, is being fitted with a lightweight plastic cast and may be ready at Wembley.

Fate frowned again on the London club in its league encounter against Bolton the following day. This time left-back Lionel Smith, an English International, was sidelined with a badly wrenched knee.

In the last few days Jimmy Logie, Reg Lewis and Art Shaw joined the injured list.

However, the club has lost none of its vaunted confidence. Led by the master of strategy, 38-year-old Joe Mercer, the team boasts of such other noted stars as goalie George Swindin, the aggressive Alex Forbes and alert, unerring marksmen in Doug Lishman, Peter Goring, R. Roper and the opportunist, Freddie Cox. Behind them is a reserve of veterans and youngsters, all imbued with an inflexible will-to-win.

To change these tremendous projects planned for B.C. from mere blue-prints to job-giving reality at least fifteen hundred of millions of dollars must be invested in the next three years.

The money will come if investors feel it can safely be risked here.

When British Columbians overwhelmingly rejected Socialism in 1949, the result was a flood of vast new developments. The eyes of the entire world turned to B.C.

We can continue to attract capital, to grow, to see thousands of new jobs develop if we prove that as a people we favor sound, progressive public policies under a free enterprise form of government.

Editor of Debrett's
Is Urbane Authority
On U.K. Blue Bloods

By ALAN HARVEY
LONDON (CP)—"Mr. Hankinson, sir, somebody wants to know would you say 'Rt. Hon. the Lord So-and-So,' or 'the Rt. Hon. Lord?'" Hankinson puts his fingertips together and considers the matter.
"On balance," he replies gravely, "I think I'd just say 'Rt. Hon. Lord So-and-So.'"
That's the sort of delicate distinction that is drawn every day by Cyril Francis James Hankinson, the dedicated, fraill-looking Englishman who edits "Debrett's Peerage," a 2000-page register of Britain's finest families sometimes irreverently called the Bible of the Blue Bloods.
In his book-strewn, second-storey office near Covent Garden, approached through an arch appropriately bearing the coat of arms of a duke, Hankinson and his assistants patiently keep tab on titled families, sifting through birth, marriage and death notices for background on the 150,000 persons annually listed in who's who of the elite.
"We don't miss many of them," says the 56-year-old Hankinson, a bloodhound after baronets and belted earls ever since the day 31 years ago when he drifted from a spell of unemployment into the business of tracking down family trees.

Hankinson is a tall, thin, approachable man whose pockets are always stuffed with papers. He became editor of Debrett's in 1935 and likes his job. In a way he's grateful to Oliver Cromwell, who left the nobility in such an untidy state that in 1675, after the Restoration, it was decided to clean things up in a book on the leading families, published in what was then called "Fleetstreet."
DEBRETT'S SINCE 1770
A young man named John Debrett took over the book in 1770 and it's borne his name ever since, never having missed an issue since 1864.
Apart from keeping track of titles, Hankinson has developed into a sort of back-door office to Buckingham Palace. He gets about 60 letters a week from persons interested in royalty and genealogy, principally from abroad. A woman in Chatham, Ont., for instance, learned that she is descended from Charlemagne, King of the Franks.
Debrett's editor has a gentle, professional air. Sometimes, though he writes pretty stiff letters to people who are trying to elbow into the aristocracy.
"It's the same every spring," he says. "Something about the prospect of matrimony seems to make people think they'd like to have a handle to their names. But not many of them get away with it."
On the other hand, some people who are entitled to be in Debrett's object to having their names—or their ages—listed, and some particularly sensitive ones have come to Hankinson's office threatening legal action.
When he isn't listing lords and dukes, Hankinson likes to read biographies of the Victoria era, bathing himself in the fragrance of a more kindly time. He mildly deplors the "rootlessness" of modern life. His father, still an active writer at 86, lives in a big house in Bournemouth but Debrett's editor, a man attuned to tradition, has to settle for a labor-saving apartment in suburban Earling.
His favorite anecdote is of a Socialist peer whose coat of arms, "Labor Omnia Vincit," means "Labor conquers all things," and is interpreted as a not-so-subtle plug for the Labor party.

Birds' Bees Obsolete

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP)—As far as fruit farmers are concerned, the birds and bees are obsolete.
Farmers in British Columbia's Okanagan Valley now fertilize their trees by shotgun.
It's not as silly as it sounds. From about 10 feet the marksman fires a shell containing one-fiftieth of an ounce of pollen from a standard 12 gauge shotgun. The pollen then settles on the blossoms and fertilizes them.
Lawrence Bartlett, distributor for the pollen in B.C., said about five times as much pollen is being used this year as last. It follows relaxation of regulations which formerly made it difficult to get the pollen because of the disease hazard. The pollen is gathered mostly in California and Oregon.

One orchard with 150 trees here will discharge 600 shells at cherries, Delicious and Winesap apples, D'Anjou and Bartlett pears and Hale peaches. Some apricots and plums will be pollinated artificially this year.
Other methods of pollination, such as use of a brush, blower applicator and a little stick with a gauze bag are much slower.
Besides the gain in efficiency and speed with the shotgun method, many orchardists say they will have their "hunter's eye" when the hunting season rolls around.

Petite New Canadian is Doctor on Wheels

MONTREAL (CP)—Florence Nightingale on wheels—that's Dr. Dagmar Vosu, new Canadian from Estonia, who rides the ambulances at the western division of the Montreal General Hospital.
The petite, five-foot-two, blue eyed doctor has a degree from Tartu University in Estonia, but, like most foreign doctors hoping to practise in Canada, she has to put in a year's internship before she can sit for qualifying exams.
Recently she has been answering the hospital's ambulance calls—anything from industrial accidents and fires to highway accidents and suicides.
A short time ago she was called upon to treat a man who had slit his throat and wrists.
Asked if she became nervous on calls, Dr. Vosu said:
"Why, I've never been nervous in my life. True, spectators seem surprised when they see a woman doctor, but most think I am a nurse and the patient doesn't worry about my sex—he's anxious to get medical treatment from man or woman."
She grabs 40 winks while on night emergency but claims, "I can get dressed in a split second when a call comes through... no pin curls though."
Married since 1940, Dr. Vosu's husband has been working as a designer since their arrival in Montreal last year.

DINNER GUEST—Willie, the pet budgie, has a habit of dropping in around meal-time to help his youthful master David Laurent, 10, of Ladner, B.C., tuck away the vitamins. Willie has a sweet tooth and usually manages to get his share of the jam or honey on the slice of bread. (CP Photo)
