Daily News Resuming Popular Bridge Column

By popular request, the Daily News is resuming its daily Blackwood on Bridge feature which was formerly run in this paper but has been suspended a time. It reappears today.

Most ardent bridge players know that Blackwood is not a man, but a system. It is the possession of the best name in bridge and origin of the Blackwood slam convention. Blackwood operates on the conviction that mathematics and bridge are nothing short of a lifelong hobby. His family pressed into service as a bridge player, the age of 11 to round out his foursome. Blackwood writes an easy, friendly kind of prose, and you quietly to some of the most intriguing bridge games ever played by some of the country's most intriguing bridge players. It's good.

Brett New Labor Head

Elected President Of T. and L. Council—Joe Gillis Welcomed

W. H. Brett of the Deep Sea Fishermen's Union was elected president of the Prince Rupert Trades and Labor Council at the annual meeting last week.

R. G. Moore of the Teachers' Federation was elected vice-president and E. A. Evans of the Civil Employees, secretary-treasurer.

NEW LABOR HEAD
... W. H. Brett

The executive consists of J. S. Black, Carpenters' Union; D. K. Llewellyn, Fire Fighters, and R. L. Gardiner, United Fishermen. Auditors are R. G. Moore, H. M. Daggett and D. K. Llewellyn. The officers were installed by J. J. Gillis, a former president and long active member of the local council, now residing in Victoria, who was warmly welcomed by the retiring president, James S. Black. Mr. Gillis led in the fight many years ago for the present widows' pensions.

Mr. Gillis spoke of matters past and present. He regretted the passing, since he left Prince Rupert, of Mayor Rutherford and Ex-Alderman James Black, both workers for Labor. The members should be proud of W. H. Brett, ex-MLA, for the work he had done for Prince Rupert. Mr. Gillis said, Workers should be educated more along federal and provincial lines to work to remodel Labor Acts. None were brought in perfect to start with but small beginnings finally got results if the fight is kept up.

Many new delegates were seated from affiliated unions. Discussion took place on what was termed the lack of planning of the Immigration Department in bringing in immigrants to districts where there were neither jobs nor places to live. The charge of $10 for night classes to learn English was more than some can afford.

Unsatisfactory state of the handling of mail on the Alcan project, due in part to the Post Office Department having no appropriations for that district, was reported.

R. L. Gardiner reported on the convention at Penikese last month, where W. D. Wilson, A.F. of L. organizer, lost his life in a car accident while driving there. There was talk at the convention of setting up a B.C. Federation of Labor.

The great need was again stressed for a Fair Wage officer to be stationed here due to the great expansion in this district. Labor unions are being asked to request the Department of Labor to grant this request.

Lofty Englishman Finding Life in Canada Different

A 26-year-old Englishman, former British Celanese foreign export manager, finds life in Canada quite a bit different, especially working as a cost accountant at the Kemano Bay Alcan project.

Mike Baynes, six-foot-three and very athletic looking, doesn't look at all like the man who would use his big, strong hands to punch an adding machine but, when he came to Canada in August last, he promised himself he would learn to know this country.

And he's tried it from various angles. Today he is going back to Kemano Bay where he landed in October and just last weekend made his first trip out.

After arriving in eastern Canada, Baynes landed on a farm in southern Saskatchewan at the tail-end of the wheat harvest. Also, he fed pigs, milked cows and generally "worked with my hands, like I wanted to for the first six months."

Then he came west and joined the employ of Morrison-Knudsen Co. of Canada Ltd., to work at the construction camp at Kemano.

Last year, Baynes was in South Africa to relieve his firm's representative at Johannesburg for a six-month stint. But when he returned to England he found too many years lay between him and any more promotion so he struck out for a new kind of life.

SCENERY

At Kemano he's found a part of it, he says. Greatest impression in that part of B.C. wilderness is the scenery.

"I was awed with it—the mountains, trees and snowy peaks are tremendous."

Baynes spent Christmas and New Year's at his camp with four or five hundred others. The holidays were featured by a "great Christmas spread—really an impressive menu."

RECREATION

What do most Alcan employees do in their spare time?

Frankly, says this one, most of them do more work—get in as much overtime as possible for it's a place to "make a stake."

But there is recreation, too,

Little Hope Held Now For Survival of Men On Ill-Fated Vessel

VICTORIA.—Little hope is held today for the survival of 46 members of the crew of the American freighter Pennsylvania which sank last Wednesday some 400 miles northwest of the north end of Vancouver Island in the gale-swept waters of the North Pacific. They must have perished by this time even if their boats lived in the frigid gale and seas.

Snow and sleet conditions prevented five surface ships and 12 planes from carrying on a search yesterday following the finding of wreckage during the week-end.

The Canadian weather ship Stonetown and two other vessels, however, have been keeping up a continuous search for the lifeboats but without finding trace as yet.

The Stonetown reported temperatures of around zero in the search area.

New Asian Move Soon

HONG KONG.—It is predicted in well-informed quarters here that the Chinese Communists are preparing to strike in force soon somewhere else in southeast Asia. It may be in Indo-China.

At the same time Soviet Russia is forecasting that the western powers are planning a new move. This propaganda would be the build-up for Communist action.

New Railway To Edmonton

EDMONTON — Consolidated Mining & Smelting Co. and Eldorado Mining & Smelting Co. may be identified in the construction of a 500-mile railway from Great Slave Lake to Edmonton. It would bring ore to uranium processing plants to be located here. The project would make Edmonton the uranium capital of Canada.

and picture shows. The recreation hall is the natural and most-used gathering place where concerts are put on by the men themselves and bingo games, cribbage, bridge and other card drives are played.

Chess is another game at which "quite a few fellow pass their time."

Clubs are being formed, too. A shooting club is in existence and a ski club is being organized.

"I've never done that sort of thing, but the country looks very accommodating for that kind of sport," says the Londoner.

BEARDS GONE

Beard-growing, he says, has almost come to a halt now, since arrival of a few women in the camp. At first, many a youth and olderman, too, got in the race to produce facial foliage but with the arrival of the "fairer sex" beards "vanished overnight."

Some of the women are wives of executives, living in married quarters; others are office employees living in female dormitories.

Food at Kemano is "bountiful and good, I've never anywhere eaten like I do here." And a striking difference this London business executive sees at Alcan is the way "everything is done on a large scale, compared to British construction where all corners possible are cut."

Baynes hopes to stay for some time yet at Kemano, but has "no definite plans yet" as to his future. But he thinks Canada is great.

Blizzard, Gale Hit City Hard

One of the worst snow blizzards with winds reaching more than 70 miles an hour crippled power lines in the city Saturday night, plugged streets and highways, disrupted communications and gave anxiety to at least one vessel at sea.

Digby Island weather station reported only one and a quarter inches of snow falling, but, whipped by southeast gales, it rapidly filled in streets, causing traffic snarls.

The Prince Rupert-Terrace highway is officially closed, department of public works announces. Snow plows are working to clear it.

Power lines were blown down during the fiercest part of the storm at about 8 p.m. Saturday, leaving two sections of the city in darkness. Radio Station CFPR went off the air.

Canadian National Telegraph lines were down completely this morning after several breakdowns following the storm. The latest trouble was east of Salva.

At sea, Capt. Julius Barth had 17 troubled hours with his 40-foot steel-hulled beam trawler, David Scott, before the vessel and crew reached safety.

At about 1:30 p.m. Saturday he sent out an alarm he was drifting helplessly near Butterworth Rocks. Several fishing vessels proceeded to sea from Prince Rupert into the teeth of the gale to give help.

Snow and high winds, however, prevented any of the vessels reaching the David Scott, but at 6:30 a.m. Sunday, the drifting vessel's engines were working again and a safe harbor was made.

Sunday morning appeared cool, clear, and still but there was a legacy of heavy snow on the ground which kept snow plowing equipment and snow shovellers busy.

All long-distance telephone lines as well as telegraph lines were reported out of order this morning. Cow Bay area also was cut off during Saturday night's storm and service has not yet been resumed. Telephone Superintendent Eric Janes said this morning.

Cunard Getting Two More Ships

GLASGOW.—John Brown & Co., builders of the Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth, has been awarded the contract for two new liners for the Cunard Company at an estimated cost of more than £4,500,000.

This famous Clydebank firm has just celebrated its centenary of shipbuilding. The first vessel launched at Govan was the paddle steamer Jackal—for Cunard.

Safe After Breakdown in Storm

After drifting all night west of Butterworth Rocks, some forty miles outside of Prince Rupert, the storm-swept waters of northern Hecate Straits, the 40-foot steel fishing vessel David Scott of Vancouver was reported at 6:30 Sunday morning to be under way again and proceeding safely.

The David Scott broke down at 1:30 Saturday afternoon. Distress calls through Digby Island radio station sent a number of vessels hastening to her assistance in one of the most severe gales and blizzards of the winter. Heading out from here were the Armour Salvage Co.'s Quonset and the fisheries patrol cruiser Kildit. The American vessel Dakota and the local dragger Kalea I, at sea, also answered the call. None were able to do much in the thick and stormy night.

The search was called off when the David Scott was reported by the Dakota to be under way and proceeding to Triple Island. The storm has passed southward and it was calm and cool in this neighborhood Sunday.

The David Scott has been beam towing for Atlin Fisheries.

It is understood that Mr. Churchill, on behalf of the British government, asked that Viscount Alexander be released from his post here so that he may return to Britain.

Two possible posts are mentioned for Alexander:

1. Minister of Defence.
2. Co-ordinator of Allied forces against Communism in southeast Asia.

The Prime Minister has also been conferring at length with the Governor-General.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden has now joined Mr. Churchill here.

VANCOUVER — Paul Robeson will sing at the opening of the convention of the United Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers here, President Harvey Murphy announced. All trade unions would be invited to have representatives at the ceremonies of opening, Murphy said.

The Negro basso has long been known for his Communist tendencies.

Herring Quota Here Extended

Herring quota of the northern sub-district has been extended for another 10,000 tons, Fisheries Department announced today. Fishing commences at noon, on Wednesday.

The department also reports that herring in the district seem to be spreading from the famed Gasboat Pass where most of the past 50,000 tons were taken. Fish have been reported in Ogden Channel and at Arthur Passage. Meanwhile, 11,435 tons of the 40,000-ton quota have been taken in the central sub-district with fishing now opening up at Kildit Sound and Thistle Passage, at the entrance of Lored Inlet.

He says the question of statehood for both should be among the first matters to come up. The promise has already been given.

Under Size Range In Choosing Togs

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—British manufacturers at last admit that all women do not come in standard sizes.

The year women who do not fit in the normal grooves—those who are too tall, too short, too stout, the long-limbed, the short-waisted and the five-foot-nothing—are finding a wider choice than there has been since the war. The new styles, and up-to-date styling, are making it possible for women to wear clothes that fit.

Now these women can at last buy clothes "off the peg," as they say, in the standard sizes. The reason the selection of styles, which is less necessary to have clothes tailor-made or altered, is now so wide.

Part of the reason goes to M. A. Gavin, secretary of the Association of Tailor Women, who has been constant in her efforts to get women of six feet and over to go to the tailor. She says that the average woman is now five feet six inches tall, and that the average dress is only five feet four inches long.

For instance, jersey dresses by well-known wool firm, (Jaeger) now are made especially for 36 to 40 inches in bust, and overall length of 51 inches. Shoulder to waist length is 19 inches and the sleeve measures 22 inches. The price of these dresses is just under $6.

CLOTHES EXCHANGE
Not only that, but the 1,600-strong association now holds its own "bring and buy" sales at which members sell clothes that have grown too small or of which they have become tired—and others buy others to take their place.

Many large department stores now have an "outside department" with a range of styles ranging from the slimmer to the fuller. Manufacturers are also offering for the "young outside" and older women no longer have to make their choice from matronly garments.

The days of the eternal half-sizes are at an end, cross-over front and plain, stitched pleating are one. Styles are smart and manufacturers avoid designs as becoming uncomplimentary to the older figure.

In London's winter sales, the latest styles are as heavily laden with up-to-date bargains as those of any other department. Even at off-sales periods outside bargains now can be purchased for 2 to 4 and under.

Small women, too, have a greater degree of choice and can now find it less necessary to buy clothes in the teen-age department.

Played Whist By Candlelight

Braving the season's worst blizzard, 40 people enjoyed the Saturday night Moose whist tourney, playing by candlelight after the power failure. Winners were:

Mrs. J. Richards and Mrs. O. Stegavik, ladies' first and second; E. A. Chilton and W. T. Ward, men's first and second. Mr. Ward also won the pool prize.

HOPE WANING—Hope is waning in the search of Mrs. Huguette Lemay, 22-year-old Montreal woman who disappeared mysteriously in Miami, Fla., while fishing with her husband, a Montreal real estate man. Lemay said a wife left him to go to their automobile and change clothes and he never saw her again. Mrs. Lemay was a semi-finalist in a Montreal beauty contest. Sheriff's deputy James O. Barker said "it is almost inconceivable that a person alive and able to walk around would remain undetected for so long." (CP PHOTO)

UKRAINIAN YULETIDE—Thousands of Canadians, particularly the 29,000 Ukrainians who have come to this country since the war, still are celebrating Christmas and New Year's.

At midnight Jan. 13, the New Year of the Julian calendar is ushered in with gay celebrations and dances. The holiday season continues until Jordan Day, Jan. 19.

It is a season of church services, special observances and traditional foods. Many national dishes will be served including borsch or beet soup, cabbage rolls and pyrohy, type of dumpling stuffed with a cheese mixture.

To make Pyrohy you need: one cup of flour, three-quarters cup lukewarm water; pinch of salt. Sift flour and salt and add enough lukewarm water to make a fairly soft dough. Let stand covered in a warm place for about 10 minutes and then roll out thin as pie crust.

Cut into small squares (about 1 1/2 or 2 inches) and place a little of the filling in each. Fold over like a triangle and pinch the edges together. Drop into boiling salted water and boil steadily for four or five minutes. Serve sprinkled with buttered bread crumbs or sour cream.

Filling: One-half pound dry cottage cheese, one egg, salt and pepper. Try to get uncreamed cheese for this. Mix with beaten egg and seasoning. Place small spoonful of this on each square of the dough.

BORSCH OR BEET SOUP
Ingredients: Four medium sized red beets; one small onion; sliced parsley; one cup shredded cabbage; one cup diced celery; two cups chopped mushrooms; two cups tomato juice; two tablespoons butter.

Slice beets thinly. Cover with cold water and cook one-half hour. Chop onions and parsley. Add to beets, salt to taste and cook until vegetables are done. Add chopped celery and cabbage. Boil 20 minutes. Add tomato juice and bring to boil.

Melt two tablespoons butter. Add two tablespoons flour, let brown. Add two cups beet juice and mix well. Boil until smooth and add to borsch.

Boil mushrooms and onions separately for about 20 minutes. Pour juice into boiling beets. Brown chopped onion and chopped mushrooms in butter. Salt and pepper to taste. Prepare some dough as for pyrohy. Roll and cut into tiny squares. Put into square some of the prepared mushrooms. Paste together as pyrohy. Cook in boiling water. Serve a few in each bowl of borsch.

CABBAGE ROLL
Cabbage roll is an easy dish to anyone to make. The ingredients: One pound ground pork; one cup rice; salt and pepper to

Employment Improving

Situation Better Than Normal, NES Says

Employment situation in Prince Rupert is "better than normal" for this time of year, the National Employment Service office here said today.

Although January is considered "the bottom of the well" in employment generally, less people on a percentage basis are out of work than last year.

The spokesman indicated there were more people drawing unemployment insurance this winter but "at least" 20 percent more people are registered and more are finding employment than in 1951.

Shortages, however, still exist in certain skilled trades, such as machinists, diesel men and cabinet workers.

Labor situation is expected to better itself soon with opening of logging camps and resuming of work at the Alcan project. Some of the work shortage this winter was due to the brewery strike but most of the men laid off found part-time employment, said the spokesman.

Capt. Alf Ritchie left the latter part of last week for the drag fishing grounds in Skidegate Inlet area with the New Laurel which is fishing for Canadian Fishing Co.

taste; one onion fried with bacon; one head fresh cabbage. Put boiling water over cabbage to soften leaves. Cut off centre; mix uncooked rice, which has been well washed, with pork, onions, salt and pepper. If the cabbage leaves are large, cut in half or in three parts. Line pot with cabbage which cannot be used for rolls. Put spoonful rice mixture to each roll. Spread evenly and roll. Lay them loose in pot as the rice must expand. Pour over this one tin of tomatoes, little salt, boiling water to cover. Cook until they are done on top of stove or in oven for two hours.

Gov't Policy Problem Child

LONDON (CP)—Establishment by the government of a strong inter-departmental committee to tackle the problem of child delinquency in Britain is recommended by a special board which has been studying the subject for three years.

The board, appointed in 1948 and headed by H. W. F. Franklin, headmaster at Epsom College, blames "the present chaotic situation of overlapping responsibilities for confusing the proper handling of maladjusted children both before they become delinquents and afterwards. It urges the Ministry of Education, Health Ministry and Home Office to formulate a common policy as the only means of securing better justice for the problem child.

The board finds a close association between delinquency and delinquency and contends that many dull and unstable children have found their way into corrective institutions because their special educational and medical needs have been left unsolved in their earlier years.

"The provision both of schools and institutions for the mentally retarded and of child guidance clinics with adequate staffing is tragically inadequate throughout the country," says the board's report. To meet this situation the investigators recommend establishment of residential psychiatric centres on a regional basis. Detailed amendments of the code of discipline are also proposed.

The practice of giving extra food as a reward for good behavior is condemned but the board favors restoration of the power to remove jam, cake, pudding and other goodies for misconduct.

The report says that not a single witness appeared before the board to suggest that corporal punishment should be abolished. It found that the cane was being used judiciously in all approved schools and remand homes.

After examining the four types of cane in use, the report concludes that none could be considered a brutal weapon. It held, however, that the type used in senior boys' schools was too thick and rigid and more likely to cause bruises than pain. It recommended a longer, thinner cane.

The proposal was branded as "shocking" by the London Star which suggested the recommendation be torn up and that Parliament should insist on abolition of corporal punishment.

The Star added: "When the Home Secretary considers the report he might remember the Spaniard's retort to an English critic of bull fighting: 'At least in our country we don't flog children.'"

... HOUSEKEEPING ...

LIGHTWEIGHT CHICKENS IDEAL FOR SMALL FAMILY MEALS

In these days of modernizing and streamlining, even the chicken gets the new look! The small chicken in the shops today has been raised on special feeds to produce the most tender and meaty bird in as short a time, and at as small a cost, as possible. These light-weights, most of them under 12 weeks of age, weigh an average of two and a quarter pounds eviscerated, and are available all year. They may be purchased either whole or cut-up. There are two days of buying cut-up chicken—all the cuts of the bird together in one package, or each cut, such as the breast and legs, separately. This is ideal for a small family as they can buy just as much or as little as they need, and favorite parts may be selected. The breast and legs are naturally higher priced than the whole ready-to-cook bird, while the back, neck and wings sell for less per pound. The cheaper cuts are economical for fricassee and soup.

The light-weight chickens are dressed, eviscerated, and delivered to the market as quickly as possible to keep them fresh. The housewife should use the birds within a day or two after buying. They should be kept in the refrigerator until cooked.

Home economists have tested cooking methods for these young birds, and find them a pleasant, tasty change from everyday meals. They recommend fried chicken as excellent party fare, or just as a special family treat. The whole eviscerated chicken may be bought and cut up in the home, or the ready-to-cook cut-ups may be used. Since sometimes parts of the lungs and windpipe may not be completely removed, the pieces should be thoroughly cleaned and wiped. If necessary, use scissors to cut through any parts not well divided. Coat the pieces with flour, salt, pepper and a little paprika. The paprika helps in the browning. An easy way to do this is to put the coating mixture in a bag and shake the chicken in it, several pieces at a time. Heat ½-inch of fat in a heavy frying pan. Never allow the fat to reach the smoking point—it is hot enough when a bread cube browns in 30 seconds. Carefully place the chicken pieces in the hot fat and brown on both sides, turning with the tongs. Be extremely careful in turning the pieces, for the hot fat has a tendency to splatter, and may cause a bad burn. When the chicken is well browned, cover and cook for 25 to 35 minutes. The bony neck and back pieces, which do not require as much cooking, may be removed after about twenty minutes. If the chicken is not crisp enough, cook it uncovered for about five minutes. As an alternative method of cooking the chicken, after browning the pieces may be transferred to a shallow uncovered pan and baked in a moderate oven of 350°F., for 20 to 25 minutes.

An excellent way to prepare chicken cut-ups with a minimum of work is to bake them entirely in the oven. Cover the bottom of the pan with fat, then place the coated pieces in the pan, skin side up, and bake for one to one and a quarter hours at a temperature of 350°F. Baste every 15 minutes with melted fat. If the chicken is not well browned, the broiling unit may be turned on for a few minutes.

Home economists found that the whole chicken was deliciously tender when roasted. To prepare the bird for roasting, clean and wipe with a damp cloth, or wash thoroughly by allowing a strong stream of water to run through the body cavity. Dry well. Salt the inside of the bird, and stuff with a favorite dressing, preferably one that is not too highly seasoned. Allow about three cups of dressing for a two-pound bird. Do not pack the body cavities too tightly, as the dressing will swell up when cooked, but fill the neck opening sufficiently to give the bird a plump appearance. Close the openings and truss. Rub melted fat on the skin of the chicken, and place breast side down on a rack or crossed skewers in an uncovered roasting pan. Add no water, but baste frequently. Roast at 375°F., a slightly higher temperature than is usually recommended for mature birds, allowing approximately 50 minutes per pound. Turn breast side up when half done. If birds are very small, two may be roasted together and served at once.

THEIR SUCCESS DEPENDS ON YOU

artificial light have taught lessons which the amateur may easily adopt to solve his problems.

Seedling plants can be started in a dark basement, without expensive equipment. On a table sheltered from drafts, where the temperature will average 60 degrees, place your seedboxes. The soil which fills them should be a mixture of sifted top soil, builders' sand and peat moss, one-third each. To prevent disease, sow the seeds in a layer of sphagnum moss half an inch thick, laid on top of the soil. Cover the seeds lightly, or not at all.

Instead of soil, you may fill the boxes with sphagnum moss, or vermiculite, but these are sterile substances, and you will have to supply plant food when your seedlings begin to grow.

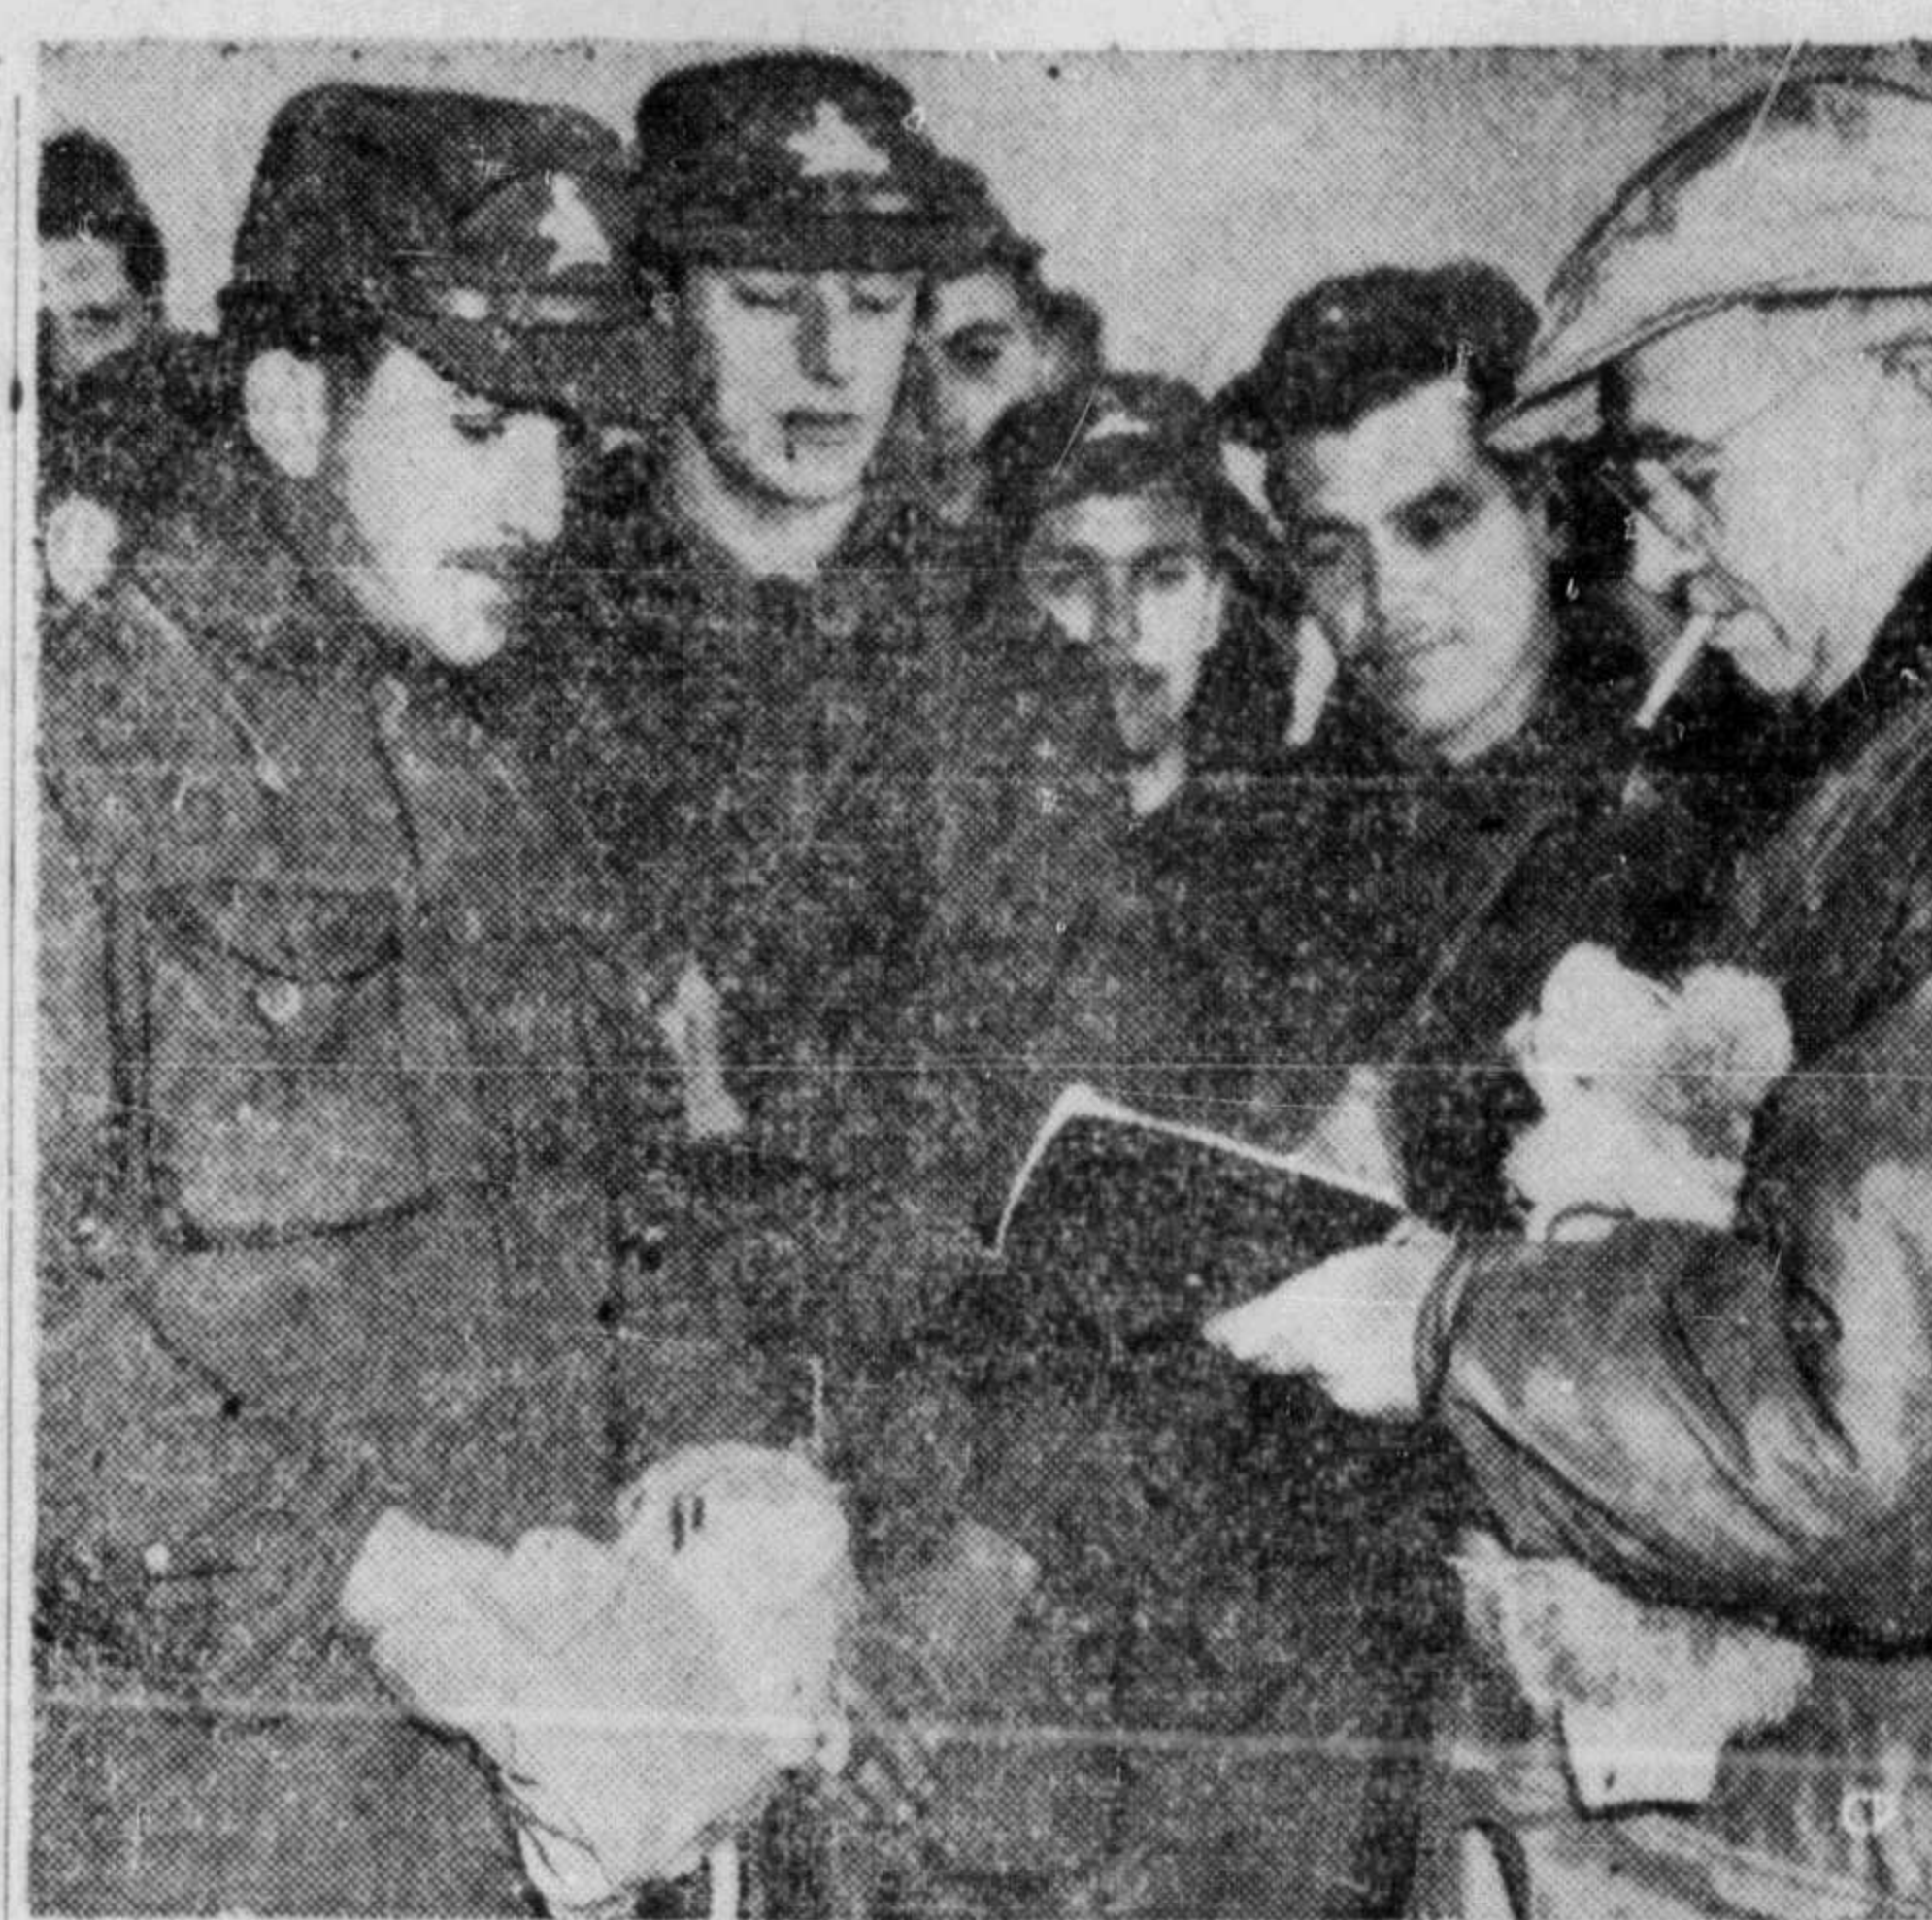

Artificial light should be furnished the seedboxes as soon as the seeds sprout. Its intensity should be at a minimum of 50 to 100 foot candles, and it may come from either fluorescent lamps or ordinary tungsten lamps. You can measure the intensity by the following easy method, provided you have a photographic light meter. Place two thicknesses of white letter paper on the spot where your seedbox will stand. Hold a late model Weston meter above it, and measure the light which falls upon the paper, being careful not to cast a shadow from the meter. Multiply the meter reading by four, and you will have the foot candle measurement of the light on the paper. Adjust the lamps until the desired intensity is achieved, and by providing this illumination 12 hours a day, you will enable most seedling plants to thrive, so far as light is concerned.

If the light is inadequate for the crop you are growing, the seedling plants will grow tall and spindly, and the light must be increased.

Warmth, water and light are the three essentials for seedbox success. It may be easier to watch your boxes if you place them in the best available window. Here you can supplement the daylight with artificial light, measured the same way to provide a minimum in all of 50 to 100 foot candles, 12 hours a day.

It may be that you have a south window which provides all the light needed; but that your seedling plants bend toward the light. You can straighten them out by turning the box around every day, but an easier way is to place a white cardboard back of the box, so that it reflects the sun upon the plants. This will keep them straight.

Plan what you expect to grow this year, and get your seed and boxes ready. It does not pay to waste seed on pasteboard boxes too small to develop vigorous

Naas River Village Celebrates Yuletide

KINCOLITH.—Yuletide and New Year's celebrations are just completed here, ending with the annual elections of various societies and clubs which commenced January 7. And despite 12 below zero weather, this village enjoyed one of its fullest celebrations, beginning December 22.

Ushering in of the New Year was highlighted by a public gathering around a Christmas tree at which every citizen received a gift. The affair was sponsored by the Sons of Kincolith.

The village hall was decorated in outdoor picnic style, featuring a huge Christmas tree with lights. Four different tribes gathered, each imitating old customs in a setting of wigwams and camp fires. Many party games and comical plays were staged to make it a night of laughter.

At 12:30 a.m., shortly after the watch night service, the "Maidens" appeared—a parade of comedians organized by Max and Arthur Collison in 1910. This group has never missed a parade on New Year's Eve, just after midnight, since it was organized. Present leaders of the group are Charlie Lincoln and Hubert Doolan.

A New Year's Day contest saw competition by four different tribes. Challenge trophies were awarded to the Wolf tribe for the best comical parade in a satirical "Korean" float, and to the Raven tribe for a float of a battleship on sleighs.

The parade lasted from 1 to 4 p.m. In the evening a masquerade ball was held in the Community Hall where prizes were awarded to Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Smart from the best costume.

A Hard Times dance the following day was attended by a large crowd as were all the dances, one held each night of the holidays.

Christmas celebrations were started by the school concert and Christmas tree, headed by school teachers Principal John Froese and Miss Kathleen Howe.

The following days were filled with music and concerts, including a banquet given at the hall by William Stewart.

Packer Eastfield was in port at the week-end from the Nanaimo area, where herring sealing is now in progress, with a load of 125 tons for the B.C. Packers here.

After having been in Vancouver since before the holiday season, the big dragger B.C. Producer, Capt. Fred Kohse, returned from the south during the week-end. Crew includes Walter Hanson, one of the port's best known riggers. The B.C. Producer is heading for the dragging banks.

Delayed by having made a special call at Kemano Bay with workers for the Alcan power house project, Union steamer Camosun, Capt. John Boden, arrived in port at 9 o'clock last night from the south and sailed early this morning in continuation of her voyage to Alice Arm and Stewart whence she will return here tomorrow morning to sail south at noon.

Interesting visitor in the city at the week-end, particularly to marine people, was Capt. J. P. Patrick, for many years skipper on trans-Pacific vessels of the Canadian Pacific Ocean Services plying between Vancouver and the Orient in the days before World War II. Capt. Patrick's last command was the old Empress of Asia. Now living in retirement in Vancouver, he was a passenger aboard the steamer Chilcotin heading for a visit to the Queen Charlotte Islands.

Taking the place of the Island Prince, damaged in Grenville Channel this fall in a collision with a fish packer, the Fort Ross is due at 4 p.m. today. This is her third trip north. Fort Ross is operated by B. C. Steamships with G. W. Nickerson & Co. local agents.

Another B. C. Steamships freighter, Alaska Prince was in over the week-end, leaving yesterday afternoon. Max Anderson is a seaman on the Alaska Prince, making his first trip aboard. Anderson was a member of the Canadian Army Special Force in Korea last August. Besides his certificate of honorable discharge from the army, he carries a unique souvenir of the Far East—a membership card in the "Dominion of the Golden Dragon."

"Know ye that on the 18th day of March, 1951, in latitude 43, longitude 180, there appeared in the limits of my august dwelling the S.S. Gaffey. Hearken ye that the said vessel and crew have been inspected and passed by my august body and staff; and know ye, ye that are campaigners, squaw men, opium smokers, ice men and all-round land lubbers, that MAX ANDERSON, having been found sane and worthy to be a dweller of the Far East has been gathered into my fold and duly initiated into the silent snowing.
