More Service for Prince Rupert

THE FACT that Prince Rupert is suffering under a step-down of coastal ship service is giving much concern to merchants of this city. It should also be viewed with concern by the public for it is they, who in the end will suffer most.

Since Union Steamships has dropped its Sunday shipping service to Prince Rupert, grocers here can get fresh milk and vegetables only twice weekly. This means that the produce must either be sold quickly once it is on the shelves and it must be used quickly by the householder or it spoils. A good deal of spoilage and financial loss already has been reported.

It appears that Prince Rupert is being pushed into the background and that the reason for this is the development at Kitimat and Kemano.

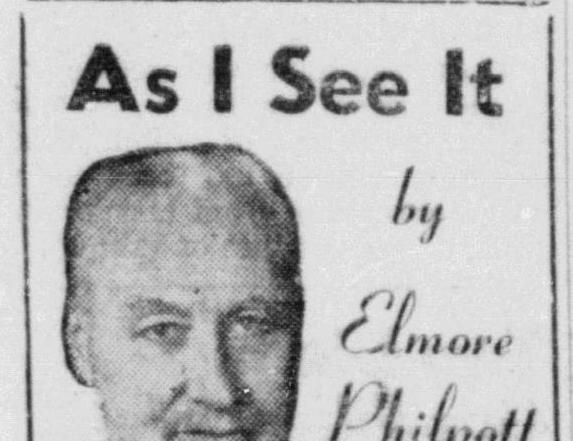

A lot of equipment is needed there, besides food products and supplies. Two main shipping lines on the coast call in at the Alcan sites to keep up the flowing stream of supplies. But this is only the beginning. As Kitimat and Kemano grow, their needs will be greater.

Does this mean that we in Prince Rupert must get less and less service?

That is hardly a feasible deduction, for Prince Rupert has been the main excuse for any of the shipping lines to make the coastwise trips.

We still have a trading area here of more than 20,000 people who have to be fed and should not pay a penalty of out-of-range prices or of being brushed aside for living in a semi-isolated part of the province which they are developing beyond greatest expectations.

If we need extra shipping into Prince Rupert, the public will demand it. Prince Rupert is too strong an area now to be cast aside without a lot of noise.

Certo in either form gives equally good results

RECIPE BOOKLET under the label of every bottle and in every package. Each type has special recipes which must be followed. They are not interchangeable.

It takes only 15 minutes from the time your fruit is prepared to make a batch of jam or jelly with Certo. It's the easy way because Certo is a highly concentrated fruit pectin * product - the natural jellying substance extracted from fruit.

With Certo you use only a ONE-MINUTE full, rolling boil. You don't boil down your juice, so you average 50% more jam or jelly. You keep the lovely fresh-fruit taste and color, too. There's a separate kitchentested Certo recipe for each kind of fruit. Follow the simple directions carefully to be sure of sparkling, taste-tempting jams and jellies.
