Provincial Election Campaign Commences From Labor Rostrum

Three Candidates Heard by Attentive Trades and Labor Council Delegates

Prince Rupert's three provincial election candidates had their first sounding off of the campaign last night from the rostrum of the Prince Rupert Trades and Labor Council. Speaking by invitation, J. D. McRae, Liberal; T. M. Christie, Progressive Conservative, and George S. Hills, CCF, made their initial addresses of the contest before a gathering of attentive and courteous delegates.

Each candidate was allowed fifteen minutes to present his case and then a period of questioning and general discussion ensued. W. H. Brett, president of the council, was in the chair. J. D. McRAE J. D. McRae devoted his discourse to two subjects—the part he played in bringing the 50-unit housing project to Prince Rupert and the report of the inquiry board of the Legislature into the Industrial Conciliation Act of which he was a member. Mr. McRae read from back numbers of the Daily News how just over a year ago the city council had advised him of the serious shortage of houses in Prince Rupert. As a result, he had appeared before the council three times and had pointed out the federal-provincial scheme whereby rental houses could be obtained on a 75-25 percent (federal-provincial) financing basis with a clause under which purchase could be made on a 10 percent down payment. That far the city council had taken a leading part in the admission of the (Continued on page 7)

160 official guests will converge on Nechako this week-end when the Aluminum Co. of Canada opens the great dam on the canyon of the Nechako River named after Hon. E. T. Kenney, minister of forests.

Attending will include Governor Clarence Walby, Mayor Byron Johnson, government dignitaries, and Trade and Commerce representatives from the perimeter between Prince Rupert and Prince George, village commissioners, magistrates, news- and company officials.

The opening ceremony, which will be a luncheon for official guests and a tour of the project, will take place at approximately 11 a.m. Saturday. Its main feature will be the opening of the dam by Mr. Kenney, a rock bearing a suitably commemorative aluminum and situated just below the high water mark at the end of the dam's main span, and the placing of a commemorative plaque that will form the dam to hold back the water of the river.

Manslaughter

A verdict of manslaughter was returned by a 12-man jury at 2:40 p.m. today following the Supreme Court assize retrial here of Harold Ryan, 33, of Port Simpson.

The native fisherman was charged with the December, 1950, death of Lorraine Tait, his common-law wife.

Evidence was completed in two days. Jury deliberated for one hour and 55 minutes.

Mr. Justice H. S. Woods remanded Ryan for sentence to end of assizes.

Labor Party Scores Wins

LONDON (C)—The Labor party ousted the Conservative city councils in 19 British cities in this week's election.

Results so far showed Labor has gained 656 seats and lost only 16 in 372 municipal borough councils throughout England and Wales. Against this Conservatives and Independents—in most cases they are Conservative supporters—lost almost 700 seats against gains of only 76.

Oil Shortage Hits Canada

MONTREAL (CP)—Trans-Canada Airlines Thursday announced reduction in flight schedules affecting most points on the TCA domestic system. Reduction, effective Friday, is taken to help conserve supplies of aviation fuel during a period of labor difficulty in the United States oil industry.

MURDER TRIAL

Statement Denied by Accused; Ryan Verdict Due This Afternoon

The second trial of a Port Simpson native fisherman charged with the murder of his common-law wife is near the end. The 12-man jury is expected to return its verdict this afternoon.

Harold Ryan, 33-year-old accused, yesterday took the witness stand himself for more than an hour to tell court and jury he had "blacked out" on his fishing vessel homeward bound from Prince Rupert December 23, 1950.

A few miles out of harbor was the last time he had seen Lorraine Tait alive, he said when questioned by Defence Counsel T. W. Brown, QC.

He denied he knew the contents of a statement produced as evidence by Crown Prosecutor Gilbert Hogg, QC, allegedly given to police by the accused.

Ryan said he remembered signing a paper after his arrest, following return from Port Simpson early morning of December 24.

Mr. Hogg gave Ryan the statement to read in the witness stand.

Never Saw Statement, Says Accused
"I never seen it before," accused said.

Ryan said he did not know he was charged with murder until he was told about it "two or three days later" by Indian Agent F. E. Anfield.

Mr. Anfield was called as a defence witness, as well as Dr. A. W. Large, Mrs. Lydia Webster, mother of the accused, and Clara Mather, a Port Simpson resident.

Following is statement, introduced by Mr. Hogg after its admission was granted in a trial within a trial by Mr. Justice H. S. Wood. He called the statement "voluntary."

"I live at Port Simpson. We started out from here right in Prince Rupert about 4 and 5 everything was alright—we had taken the outside course and that guy took his bottle out and we started drinking. Wilfred Knott, me and Lorraine.

"On our way over we started drinking. We got to Port Simpson somewhere around 8 or 9. We had a fight there and Lorraine tried to stop us. I hit her with my fist—I don't know how many times. I never meant to fight with her. I don't know what's going on after that. I did went overboard and got back in the boat that was outside Port Simpson. I didn't see Lorraine.

"I kind of sober in the chuck. I went house next and see my mother."
Question: "Do you own a boat?"
Answer: "The company own half of it—it's called the West-erly."
"I never meant to fight with her. I just got back from Vancouver about two weeks ago. This is true."
Signed: Harold Ryan.
Witness:
"A. E. WALES."

Air Mail to Alice Arm-Stewart

Within the next two months expectation is that air mail service will be instituted from Prince Rupert to Alice Arm and Stewart, thus marking another phase of the ever-increasing use to which aircraft is being put to use in this area.

Authorization has been granted by Queen Charlotte Airlines to carry the mails on its regular flights to the two mining communities which heretofore have been served by a weekly steamship service.

New Triumph

Alcan Power Outstanding

VANCOUVER—Aluminum Co. of Canada's $550,000,000 project at Kitimat and Kemano will establish "new triumphs" in field of engineering, a Montreal expert said at the annual convention of the Engineering Institute of Canada here.

"The Alcan project," said F. L. Lawton, chief engineer of Aluminum Laboratories Ltd., power department, "marks an outstanding event in the amazing development of aluminum."

When completed the project will include the largest underground power development in the world. The development's capacity will be exceeded only by Grand Coulee's output of 2,500,000 kilowatts.

The storage reservoir will be twice that of Grand Coulee and will be exceeded only by Boulder Dam's Lake Mead and Fort Peck dam.

Coast Pulp Mill Closes

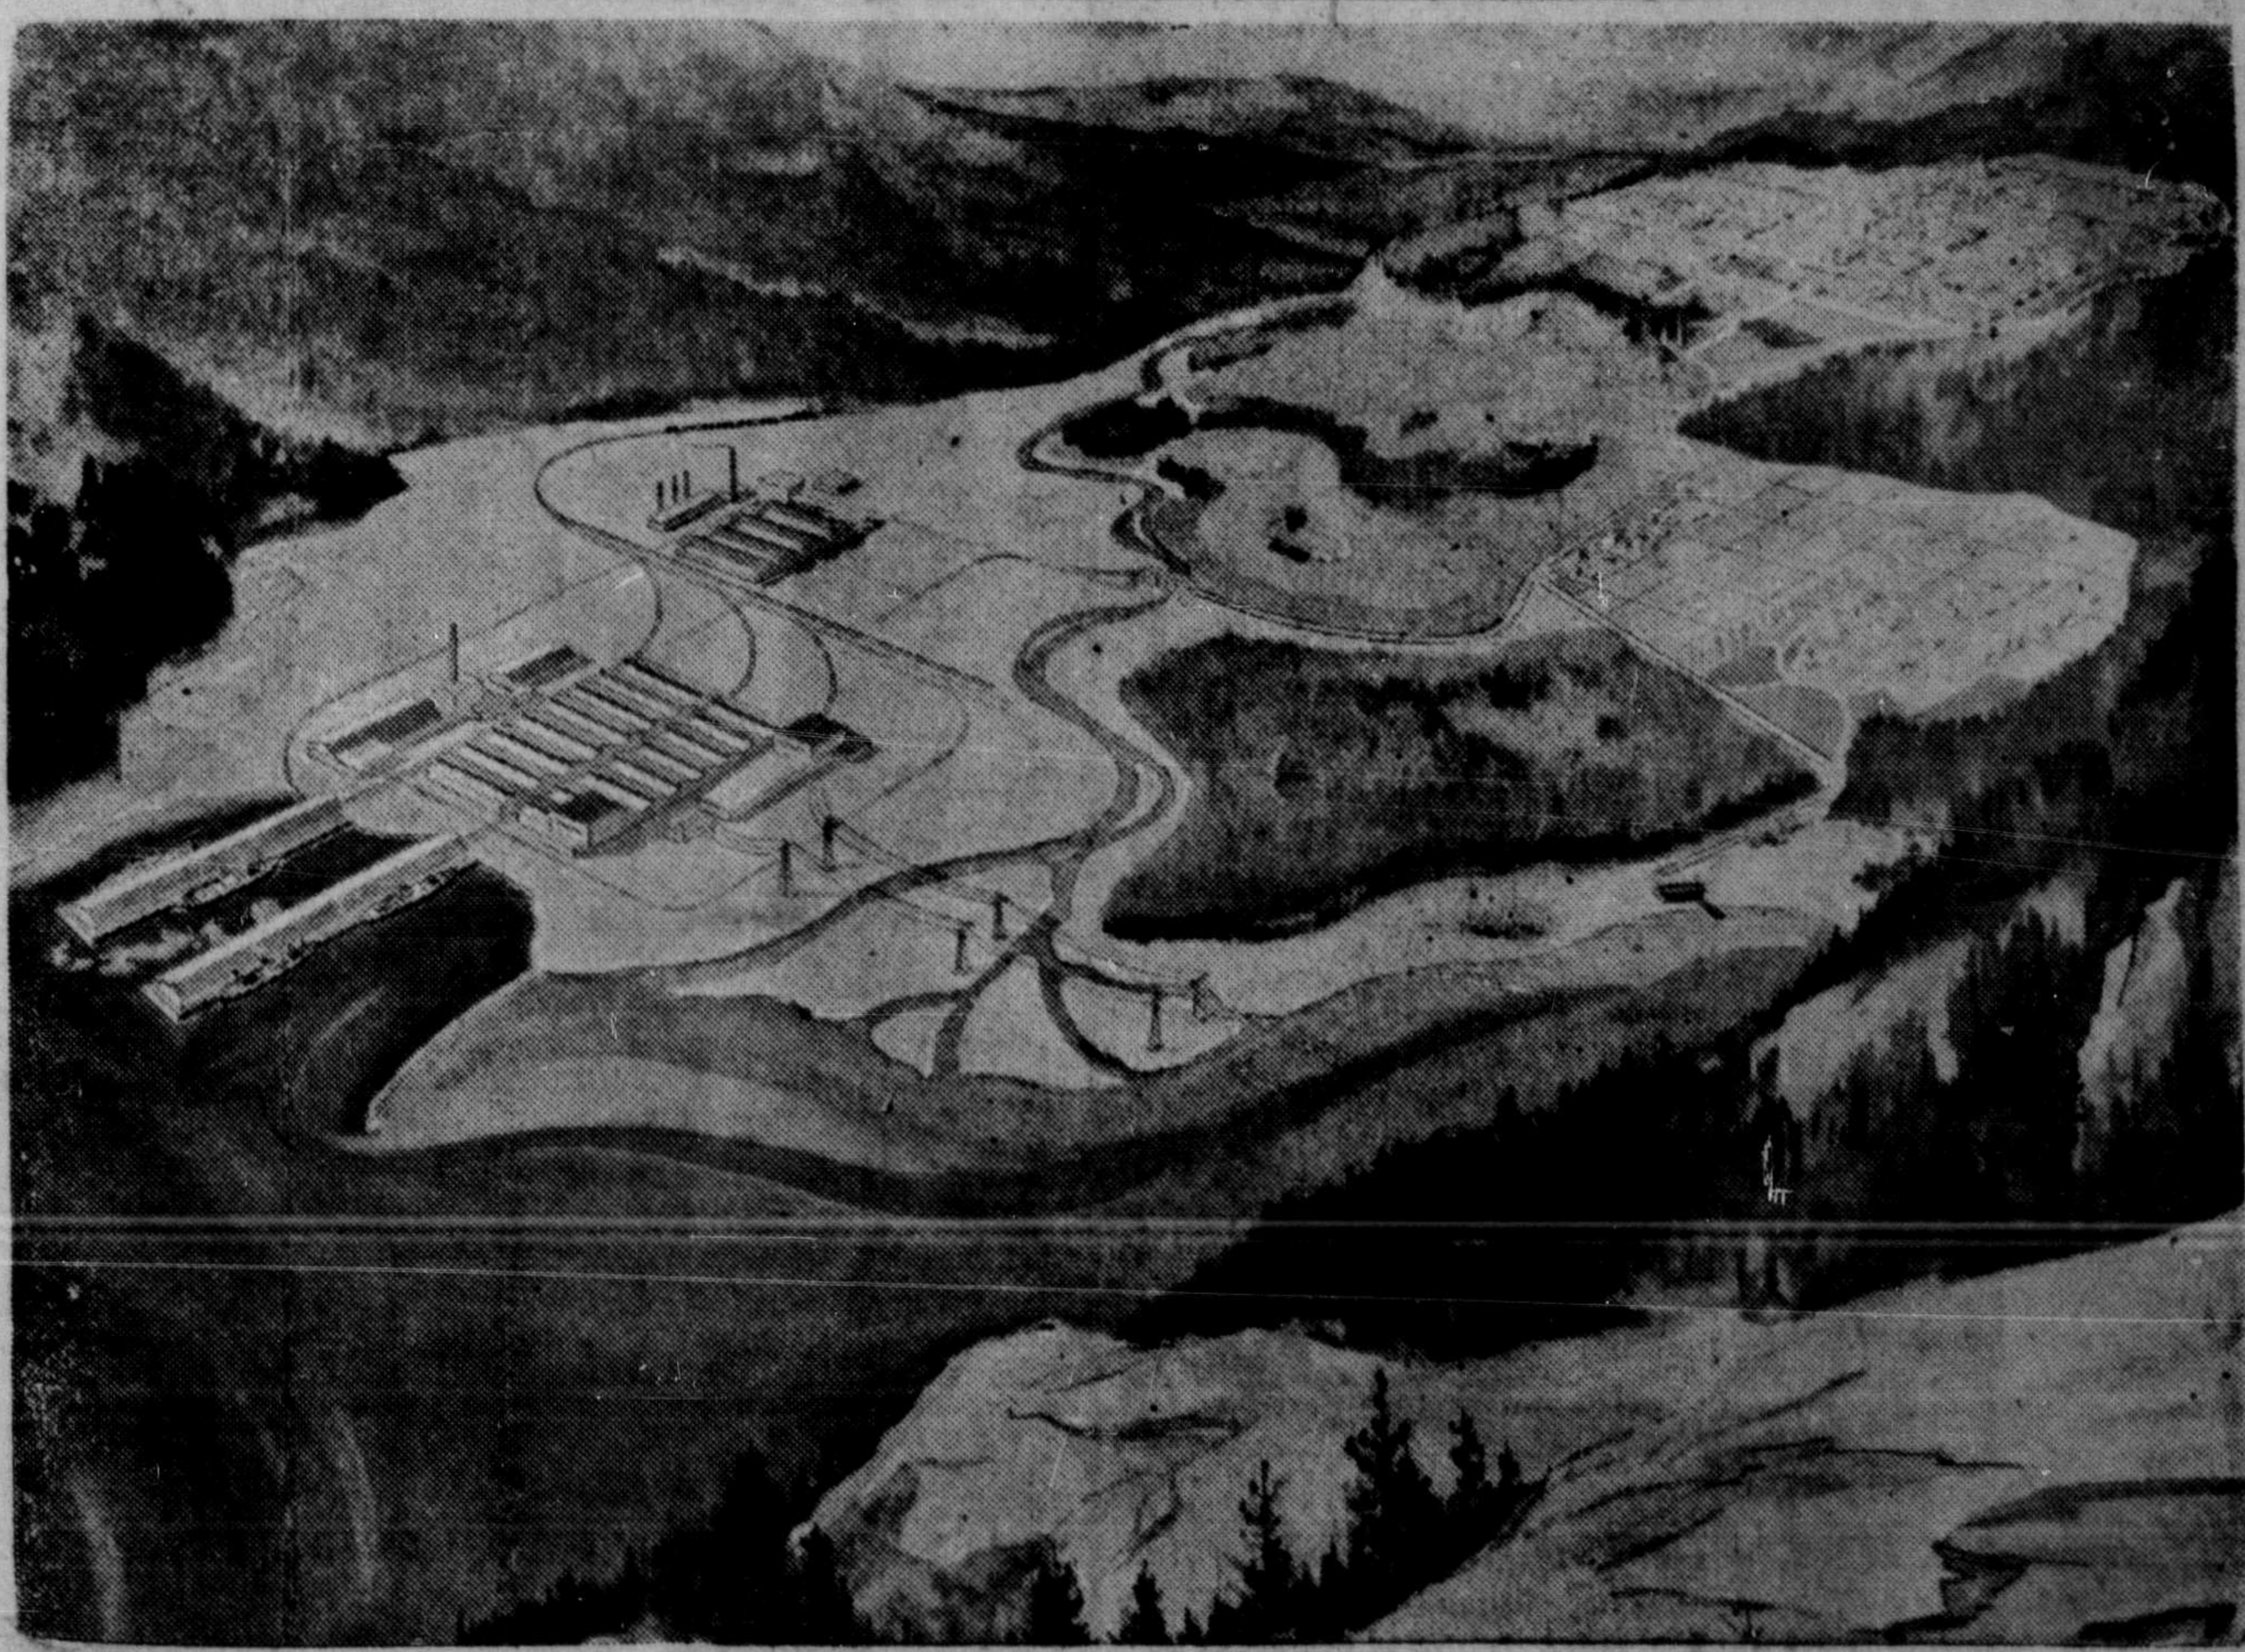

VANCOUVER (C)—The Alaska Pine and Cellulose Co. Ltd. will close its plant at Woodfibre, 20 miles from here, for the month of June, officials announced on Thursday.

Approximately 400 employees will be effected.

Company officials said closure was due partly to soft market for its products and also to repairs to the plant.

Industrial Revolution

CHRISTENING of the Kenney dam on the Nechako River focuses eyes for a minute on the extraordinary revolution taking place in this part of the country. Probably never in history has a wilderness been so abruptly and sweepingly converted to human use.

In the past, man has usually settled first and development has followed. Now the order is reversed and we have the strange sight of men being out-paced by their own works.

In the particular case of the Aluminum Company of Canada, a gigantic hydro-electric system will have been installed in almost uninhabited territory before a populace takes permanent root.

This new kind of pioneering is an important stage in human progress and the individual in it who stands out like a modern Daniel Boone is the engineer. Without him, nothing of the sort would be possible. This is his age and, where he goes, so go we.

In the Alcan project engineering skill is seen at its best. The course of a river is being changed and a reservoir of 335 square miles created from which the latent force will be drawn and harnessed to operate a smelter 50 miles away. It is an awesome performance which is only overshadowed by the probable effects it will have on the whole economy of this area.

As front-row occupants, we are glad we are in on this show.

Britanic Standard

IT'S NOT exactly a brand-new thought, but current political comment provokes an uneasy question: is Britain entitled, after all, to a higher standard of living?

Through the war years and the period of shortages which followed, the British people experienced disappointments, false dawns and hopes deferred. The weekly meat ration shrank to a parcel that could be pushed through a letter-box and a customer couldn't even take his dirty clothes to the laundry of his choice, but through it all most had faith in better days ahead.

Now there are doubts. While politicians talk about full employment, full stomachs and lower living costs, there are others who see Britain stuck with what she has, reduced to the sort of permanent fish diet for which the islands probably were intended in the first place.

In this view, the term United Kingdom conjures up a picture of 50,000,000 people living on a rock in the North Sea, with coal which they won't dig as their only important resource, but smugly accustomed to and clamoring for a standard of living dating from the days of the industrial revolution, cheap food and a paramount pound.

One such critic is columnist George Schwartz of the Sunday Times, a Conservative newspaper. As if the weekly Sunday roast were not sorry enough fare for British families, Schwartz for the last few months has been making the week-end even more uncomfortable by reminding his countrymen of some basic facts.

The first simple statistic, says Schwartz, is that the land area of the United Kingdom is 94,205 square miles, or something under 0.2 per cent of the land area of the globe. Looked at in that light, you'd think Britons would be pretty happy with their present share of the world's goods.

Not so, says Schwartz. Instead, the people are "more peevish, cross and splenetic" than if they had spent 300 years in the wilderness.

"Get Out and Vote" Campaign

Touring the province to stimulate interest in getting out the vote at the forthcoming provincial election and to develop, if possible, co-ordinated effort in every community with that end in view, Reg T. Rose, executive secretary of the Vancouver Board of Trade, has been spending two days in Prince Rupert.

He arrived yesterday by air and met with Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce and Junior Chamber of Commerce executives last evening and this morning. Today he returned to Vancouver.

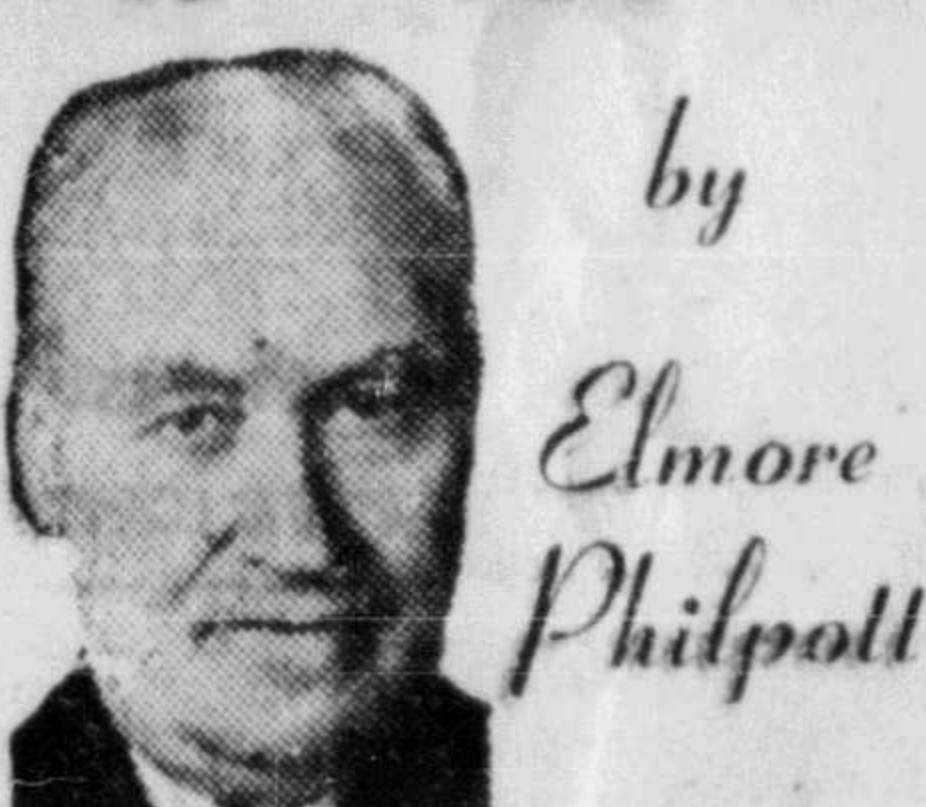

The idea, Mr. Rose said, is to get the boards and chambers to put "zip and spurt" behind emphasizing the importance of exercising the democratic privilege of the franchise—and to help the people to understand the new alternative voting system which is "quite simple."

The Chambers of Commerce and Boards of Trade, Mr. Rose made plain, were interested in "science of government" and certainly not in the promotion of any particular political party. "To get the people to take an active interest in government as a whole is our aim," he said.

As I See It

The New Hardy Novel

ABOARD CPR EAST-

BOUND: My son gave me a birthday present of the new Canadian novel by Dr. W. G. Hardy of Edmonton. He must think I'm a big boy now, for it's pretty sexy stuff!

It has given me many a smile on this trip—for the central character in the book is a queer cuss of a Canadian newspaper columnist whose confused liberalism and contradictory character is very much like my own.

THE UNFULFILLED is published by McClelland & Stewart, $3.50. I hope it sells well, for I think it is as penetrating an analysis of the Canadian expatriate family as has ever been written. But I doubt very much that it will "go over big" in the U.S.A. because the whole point of the story is that if the Canadian family finally takes the plunge into the American way of life he sells his birthright.

THE not-so-heroic hero of this psycho-analysis of the confused Canadian liberal is a leftist columnist, Gregory Rolph. Greg has served in the first world war, and fumed and fumed at the betrayal of democracy on the home front during the depression. He has opposed the Hitler-Chamberlain sell-out at Munich; with its inevitable consequence, the Hitler-Stalin deal of the next year.

Yet now he sees his own sons sucked into the war which is the direct consequence of the evil policies he has opposed. Meanwhile Greg is entangled in a flaming love affair with a divorcee in New York. When his caustic comments against the war profiteers get too tough they try to shut him up by showing him the private detective's report of his New York love-life. Greg is asked how he thinks the evidence will look when it is published in a Toronto scandal and blackmail weekly!

IN MANY respects the strongest character in the book is Greg's wife, Jane. She is a far more typical middle class Canadian female than Greg is a typical Canadian male. She is, incidentally, totally impervious to Greg's radical ideas. Yet it is she who keeps the family together when it would have been so easy to let it smash. There is one priceless scene where the family is in Montreal seeing off the second son, who gets killed in France. A pompous army brass hat bawls out the boy for not saluting. The enraged mother mauls the brass hat with all the fury of a she-lion, protecting her cub.

TO ME the one character in the book who is over-drawn is the super-capitalist, Wesley Drummond. Like some business big shots I know about, Drummond

Colonel Plants a Kiss of Thanks

SO ENTHUSIASTIC about the tanks he had been fighting with in Korea was Colonel Sir Guy Lowther, on a thank-you visit to a British plant where the tanks are made, that he planted a kiss on the brow of Mrs. Rose Blanchard, operator of a milling machine. Named Centurions, the 50-ton British juggernauts have won high praise from all the Allies in Korea and from the enthusiastic Colonel a blunt claim that they are the best tanks—equipped with the best gun, turret and sighting gear.

is out to grab and consolidate just about everything he can get his hands on. The unctuous, holier-than-thou character reminds me of at least a dozen business men who look out of Bay street windows in Toronto or St. James street windows in Montreal. But I do not know of any arch-capitalist who openly expresses the contempt for the common people that Drummond expresses in this book.

Most of them just go on playing the game they are in because that is the only game there is, in actual fact, to play.

THE CHARACTER I like best is old Professor de Lacey, who says:

"A liberal is a man with both feet planted firmly in the stratosphere. Two wars have proved us wrong. People don't want to know, to think. Christians want to believe theirs is the only true religion. Whites want to believe they're innately superior to Negroes. Americans, Canadians or Scotch or English or Irish or French or what have you want to believe they're better than anybody else."

Yet the kindly old cynic is himself the quintessence of liberalism.

The book is, in short, one of the keenest ever written in Canada. It ladles out the sex-episodes in steam-shovel sized scoops, however. It seems to say "I'm going to do this even if it kills me."

Reflects and Reminisces

Sometimes you hear it said "you don't get ulcers from what you eat. You get what's eating you."

A horse owner is reported to have taken his favorite steed to see a western movie. Each greatly enjoyed it. That must account for the hearty horse laugh in the row ahead.

In the last three years the city of Kingston has removed 627 trees from parks and boulevards. In the same period Kingston has replaced only 138 of those destroyed. When Prince Rupert was originally cleared of trees there were some might well have been spared.

Farmers advocate becomes more and more articulate as opinion concerning daylight saving draws nearer. There is less reason than ever, they say, to "tinker with timepieces."

As the horse and buggy vanishes from the streets of Canada, so become fewer bowls of oatmeal porridge in countless homes. It's to be found—more or less—of course, yet "the parritch" is becoming of less consequence. But that does not actually make it so.

The railway between Terrace and Kitimat will be operating within a couple of years. And it's going to make fat profits say those in a position to know. Not at all like twenty-five years ago when there was no such thing as a Skeena highway and the journey between Kitsumkalum and Prince Rupert was almost an adventure.

House Backs Malan Bill

CAPETOWN—Premier Daniel Malan's bill to alter South Africa's constitution and keep the courts from killing his white supremacy program won approval in principle last night in the House of Assembly.

The House, controlled by Malan's Nationalist supporters, gave the bill the second reading by a vote of 79 to 65 after a bitter 30-hour debate marked by insults and threats.

Specifically, legislation will create a Parliamentary high court to decide constitutional issues instead of court appeals, which court is at present South Africa's highest tribunal.

Spring Seeding Well Under Way

WINNIPEG—Spring seeding is progressing satisfactorily in most sections of Western Canada.

Heavy winds on Sunday last caused considerable soil drifting in Manitoba, creating the worst dust conditions in that province for several years. Precipitation was negligible in Manitoba but good rains were received in southwestern, central and north-eastern Saskatchewan. Frosts occurred in central and northern Alberta, according to the weekly crop report of the department of agriculture of the Canadian National Railways.

In the Okanagan Valley weather was unseasonably cold with some light frosts at night. Cold weather is slowing down of fruit blossoms and has an adverse effect on fruit but there are no reports of damage as yet. Again, the isolated cases, prospects are excellent but warmer and some rain is now

Enough Oil in Fort St. John Area to Fill All B.C. Needs

VANCOUVER (CP)—An official of the West Coast Transmission Company and Pacific Petroleum Ltd. said last night that, within six months, enough natural gas reserves may be proven in the Fort St. John area of British Columbia to supply all the pipeline needs of the province and estimated exports to Washington State.

Norman Whittall, speaking before the annual meeting here of the Pacific District Investment Dealers' Association of Canada, reviewed the progress made by the West Coast Transmission Co. in organizing construction of a gas pipeline from Alberta's Peace River district through the Fort St. John area and to Vancouver and the United States.

Whittall said it would shortly be announced that a new 100 gas well program will be launched in the Peace River area of Alberta.

He said total gas reserves in the gas and oil producing area will be known fairly accurately when the wells in outlying areas have been completed.

"This is not a short term operation," he said. "We are trying to prove a natural gas reserve in B.C. of from two to five billion cubic feet of gas."

Contracts for surveys of the line already have been let, he said. Laying of the pipe should start next year. The line would be completed in 1954.

Roberts said that enough steel pipe for 210 miles of the $82,000,000 line will be obtained by the end of June and another 170 miles by the end of the year.

Pipe deliveries will continue to allow completion of the project in 1953.

He said that Canada's crude oil production will match anticipated total requirements by 1957.

Fireproof Prison For Doukhobors

VANCOUVER (CP) — A $75,000 fireproof detention unit for future Sons of Freedom Doukhobor terrorists will be built immediately in a remote section of Oakalla prison farm in suburban Burnaby.

Attorney-General Wismer announced the move Thursday, less than 24 hours after it was recommended in a consultative report of the Doukhobor problem.

Mr. Wismer said the government would have to give more study to the forty-point program before announcing a policy on other recommendations.

British Air Training Cut

LONDON (CP) — The Royal Air Force called off all squadron training at home and abroad today because of United States oil strike.

Jet fighter units were excepted.

Most of the high octane gasoline used by the RAF comes from the United States.

Jet planes use kerosene from the mid-east oil fields.

Jet Eaglets Spread Their Wings From $40-Million Eagle

LIKE A TEAM peering out to a football game, flyers of H.M.S. Eagle, the British Navy's "atomic age" flat-top just built at the equivalent of $40-million, run to their aircraft during exercises in the English Channel. Also shown are two Attackers of the two jet squadrons the Eagle carries among her 100 aircraft. When their present rearmament program is finished the British will have seven more flat-tops than in World War II. British naval rearmament this year will be the equivalent of over $950 million.

Ontario Miners to Kemano

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont. (CP) — Twenty-two skilled rock tunnelmen, second group in a week, left here Thursday to fly to Kemano, B.C.

Fourteen men left in a previous group and William Ramsay, manager of the National Employment Service here, said about 150 hardrock miners from Northern Ontario and North-west Quebec have gone to the project during the last five months. He expects a continued demand.

General Crerar Worried About Defence "Show Window Army"

TORONTO (CP) — The biggest reunion of wartime army officers since 1945 took in Toronto's Royal York Thursday night to fete General H. G. D. Crerar and hear their old leader express fears about Canada's 50,000 strong "show window" army of today.

On the seventh anniversary of VE-Day, the hotel became virtually army headquarters as more than 600 reminiscing war-spinning veterans pitched into a rally they coyly labeled "Exercise No. 1."

Flanked by a platoon of generals—24 of them around him at the head table—General Crerar reminisced with the best of them but he also seized the occasion to say he was greatly worried about Canada's military position today.

Lt. Gen. Chas. Folkes, Canadian joint chief of staff, and Lt.

Gen. G. G. Simonds, chief of general staff, were among the brilliant assembly which heard the man who led the army through Europe.

Use Force For Release

SEOUL (CP) — General Matthew B. Ridgway ordered Allied troops to use whatever force is necessary to free an American general without delay from his Communist captors in the prison camp on Kojima Island.

And prisoners of war, defying the order today, still held Brig. Gen. Francis Dodd, commander of Kojima Island prison camp, as a hostage.

Ridgway said Communist prisoners are demanding in exchange for Dodd, "phones, permission to organize, writing paper and some other things."

Oil Line Defence Project

So There Will Be No Shortage of Steel

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada and the United States consider the 750-mile oil pipeline from Alberta to Vancouver a defence project and there will be no shortage of steel for its construction.

Members of the Engineering Institute of Canada here heard of construction plans Thursday from D. L. Roberts, vice-president of Canada Bectel Ltd. of Vancouver. He delivered a paper prepared by S. M. Blair, vice-president of Trans-Mountain Oil Pipeline Company of Toronto.

Announcement of the agreement was made here jointly by John Marshall, assistant chief engineer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and R. Hayes, chairman of railway's committee. Approximately 1,200 engineers are covered by the new agreement.

PRISON RIOT—Hundreds of inmates of Montreal's Bordeaux jail rioted Sunday and Monday in protest against alleged bad food. Smoke from one of the many small fires set blazes up behind the central dome of the six-wing prison. Prisoners broke into the central yard, wrecked furniture, broke locks on cell doors and threw rocks and debris at police and guards who tried to quell the riot. Unofficial estimates place damage caused by the prisoners as high as $400,000. Solicitor-General Rivard of Quebec will conduct an official investigation. (CP Photo)

Statement On Flying

Non-essential Use of Gas
To Be Cut, Howe Tells Appelwhite

Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe, minister of defence production, was requested today by E. T. Appelwhite, (Lib-Skeena) in view of the present situation in the United States, to make a statement on the gasoline and oil situation in Canada.

Mr. Howe stated it was not expected Canada would be seriously affected except with respect to aviation gasoline which is now a matter of concern and restrictions are being placed on the consumption of aviation gas which has been declared an essential commodity under the Act.

The regulations will allow for special consideration for remote areas.

The minister said the government had asked that all non-essential flying be discontinued and that TCA schedules are being curtailed.

Operators are to hold down to 65 per cent of April consumption in the month of May.

Sees Grave Situation

But Truman Thinks Third
War Can Be Averted

WASHINGTON (CP)—President Truman called the world situation very grave Thursday. He said Congress' move to cut defence spending and current labor management disputes are "right down Stalin's alley." But he added the flat prediction that a third world war will be avoided if Congress votes all he asks for the defence of the U.S. and its allies and industrial production can be kept at high level.

Truman offered these serious thoughts in a generally good humored press conference on his 68th birthday and seventh anniversary of Germany's military collapse in the second world war.

Indian Vets May Enter Clubs Now

VANCOUVER (CP)—War veteran Indians may drink beer in veterans' clubs, Attorney-General Gordon Wismer announced the ruling here Thursday. Previously war veteran Indians were allowed to drink in beer parlors as a result of the change but denied club privileges. The ruling followed protests from native Indian organizations which had charged discrimination in interpretation of the law.

Railwaymen Hear About Pension Rules

A meeting of Canadian National Railway employees at Prince Rupert last evening heard the regional pensions advisory committee, composed of Walter T. Patterson, Q.C., assistant regional auditor; C. M. Brown, regional auditor, and E. J. Gillingwater, staff recorder, all of Winnipeg, explain the revised CNR pension rules.
C. A. Berner, divisional superintendent at Prince Rupert, acted as chairman and introduced the committee.
Mr. Patterson, chairman of the committee, opened with an outline of the main features of the revised rules. He explained that the old pension plan, with important improvements, has been retained as Part One of the revised rules, and the new pension plan becomes Part Two. Mr. Brown followed Mr. Patterson with examples of questions and answers.

The committee advised that it is travelling the West from Port Arthur to Victoria, with meetings at all divisional points, to instruct employees on the effect of the new rules, and to answer their questions.
While employees were told that they can write to the committee at Winnipeg, those already on pension were instructed that they should obtain their instructions and advice from the CNR Superintendent of Pensions at Montreal.

The printed pension rules, it was stated, will be available for all employees in two or three months time.
The Committee also gave examples which illustrated the increased benefits which will be obtained by most employees and pensioners under the revised plan and explained that any employee or pensioner wishing to come under the new plan must elect within the times established by the new rules.

Employees who served in the armed forces were advised that their time in the armed forces is allowed as service time under the pension plan, and that no contributions are required for the period of service with the forces in order to obtain full benefits under the new plan.
In addition to increased benefits, the committee outlined new provisions permitting earlier retirement, either voluntary or because unfit for service due to illness or injury.
Following the meeting, the committee left aboard the Prince

Squeeze in Two Suits Helps Contract

“Why didn't you lead another spade, Meek?” complained Mr. Muzzy. “That would have taken me off the squeeze.”

Mr. Muzzy was right about being taken off the squeeze, but his complaint was somewhat unreasonable in that Mr. Meek didn't have another spade.

Mr. Meek had opened the jack of spades and Mr. Masters had made the right play, letting the jack hold. He saw that he had just 11 tricks and that the only hope for the contract was to develop a squeeze in two suits—hearts and spades.

One trick always had to be lost and it had to be lost at a time when the enemy could not quickly cash another winner.

(Try to make six diamonds on this hand after winning the opening spade lead.)

At trick two Mr. Meek shifted to a trump. Mr. Masters won and noted that, even if the hearts were divided 3-3, that suit could not be set up as there was only one entry on the board.

Still, he had to do everything he could to take any possible heart stopper out of Mr. Meek's hand. Otherwise, when the long diamonds were run and the clubs cashed, Mr. Meek could hold hearts and Mr. Muzzy could hold spades. In that case the squeeze would not operate.

Therefore, after taking two rounds of trumps, Mr. Masters led to the ace of hearts, returned a small heart and ruffed it, felling Mr. Meek's queen. Then he ran the diamonds, discarding three hearts and a spade from dummy.

Next came the king of clubs, then the queen of clubs to dummy's ace. At this point dummy had left a spade and a heart. Mr. Masters had ace and trey of spades. It was Mr. Muzzy's play to the eleventh trick from a holding of the king, queen of spades and the king of hearts.

He knew he had to keep the heart to prevent dummy's ten from winning, so he threw a spade. Mr. Masters then won the last two tricks with the ace and trey of spades.

“I didn't have a second spade, Muzzy or I would have continued the suit,” said Mr. Meek, sadly. “And I might add that if you were a little better with cards than you are with words, we would have set the hand. Why not overtake my jack of spades with the queen? Masters couldn't duck, then, or a spade return and a ruff would have beaten him immediately. And if he won with the ace, the squeeze, as you said, would be off.”

CANNED RHUBARB JUICE

Hot Pack—Wash, cut rhubarb in small pieces. Add one cup of water per quart of rhubarb. Bring to boil and boil, covered, 5 minutes OR steam without adding water. Strain through moistened jelly bag. Add sugar is desired. Reheat to boiling point. Pour into hot containers, leaving headspace. Process in boiling bath, allowing 10 minutes for both pint and quart sealers.

Freezing Rhubarb

Choose early spring rhubarb of good color. Use any one of the following methods:
1. Wash and cut stalks in one inch lengths. Make a medium syrup, using one cup sugar to one cup water. Pack rhubarb in cold syrup to cover OR pack in dry sugar, using 4 pounds prepared fruit (about 11 cups to 1 pound sugar (2 cups)).
2. Remove leaves and root ends, cut stalks to uniform size, about 8 to 10 inches. Tie in small bundles, carefully wrap in moisture-vapor-proof paper and tie or seal securely.
3. Make into sauce. Sweeten to taste and pack cold.

Rupert and will hold a meeting for employees on board ship, followed by meetings at Victoria, Vancouver and Kamloops.
