Fourth Vote
Necessary
in France
Laniel Heads
Third Ballot

By The Associated Press
PARIS, France. — Parliamentary voting in France's presidential election went into a fourth ballot today for the first time in history. Premier Joseph Laniel headed the third ballot but failed to get an absolute majority of votes necessary to win, according to official results.

Foreign Minister George Bidault withdrew from the race this morning, several hours before the third ballot was to be held.

Three candidates were still in the race after the second tally Thursday night, in which Socialist Marcel Edmond de Menthon, former governor-general of Algeria, led with 299 of the 483 votes cast by 923 members of the National Assembly and 100,000 electors.

A majority is required for election to the seven-year post, but before, since the legislature began electing the chief of state after the Franco-Prussian war, had more than two ballots been required.

Trailing Naegelen on the second vote was Premier Laniel, rightist Independent, 276, and Delbos, a Radical Socialist (moderate) and pre-war minister, 185; and Foreign Minister Bidault, of the public-dominated Mouvement Republicain Populaire, 143.

Post Office
Now Flooded
With Stamps

Postmaster Jack Burgess is crying the Postage Stamp Act, but the song has changed. Now he has more stamps than he knows what to do with.

A rush order of 40,000 two-cent stamps arrived here yesterday afternoon and a regular order of 90,000 stamps, which failed to arrive as scheduled on the boat Wednesday, turned up on last night's ship.

Meanwhile, deadlines for all Christmas mailing are past. However, Mr. Burgess said that owing to the delay caused by the lack of stamps (there were none available here from Tuesday afternoon till Thursday afternoon) his staff will work overtime to get the cards out. They will make every effort to have city cards mailed up till midnight today, delivered before Christmas.

There was a minor rush for stamps yesterday after the first special shipment of stamps arrived, and a bigger crowd was expected today.

Ninety Oldtimers Feted
At Christmas Party

By SHIRLEY YULE
A unique Christmas party was held in the gaily-decked United Church hall yesterday.

The dinner wasn't unique. It was the usual wonderful Christmas dinner with turkey and ham and all the trimmings, but the crowd of about 90 people who met to eat it was unique.

They were of nearly every race, religion, class, but they had one thing in common. They were all over 70 years of age.

It was the 11th annual party staged by the Women's Co-ordinating Council for members of the Over-70 Club, and the 90 men and women attending ranged in age from 70 to 92 years.

They watched interesting films, gorged on tomato juice, turkey, ham, turnips, peas, carrots, stuffing and cranberry sauce, ice cream, cake and cookies, then munched happily on candies from little baskets set at each place, grapes and oranges, while they sang old songs and reminisced of early days.

ENJOY SONGS
They enjoyed songs and antics by Mrs. Beryl Karasosky, Mrs. Peggy Andrew, Harley Lewis and an impersonation of Grace Fields by Charlie Roberts in the program arranged by Mrs. J. S. Black, and sang, hummed, or whistled a number of old songs, led by Mrs. Black at the piano.

The oldtimers elected Ald. H. F. Glassey president of the club and named Hugh Killin vice-president and Mrs. P. W. Anderson secretary. Elected directors were Harry Walker, Leon Blain, Ald. George Casey, Mrs. Tom Spencer and Bob Wilson.

Mrs. George Vierick, B.C. retiring president was thanked for her work, as was Mrs. Mariana Haines, president of the Women's Co-ordinating Council who convened the party.

Sheriff M. M. Stevens, first president of the group, conducted the elections.

WIN PRIZES
"Kiltimat" Bill Brown won a prize as the oldest man present. He is 92. Mrs. W. V. Tattersall, 84, was the oldest woman present. Youngest man was Mr. Clapp and youngest woman, Mrs. W. D. Griffiths.

Rating prizes for being the longest married were Mr. and Mrs. Kelly and Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Dickens, married 54 years. Mr. Dickens also won a door prize as did Mrs. Eliza E. Timms, who also won a guessing game prize. Others winning prizes were Mrs.

Deadline
Nears For Prisoners

By The Associated Press
PANMUNJOM. — The top neutral officer in Korea indicated today that reluctant war prisoners, including 22 Americans and one Briton, may get one last chance to change their mind after the explanation period ends.

Meanwhile, hopes have dwindled that Allied persuasion teams will meet the 22 reluctant westerners before the deadline next Wednesday midnight.

The neutral repatriation commission put off until Monday consideration of demands by pro-Communist South Korean prisoners which the Americans and the British prisoners say must be met before they will attend interviews.

Lt.-Gen. K. S. Thimayya, Indian chairman of the repatriation commission, said in answer to written questions from correspondents that he might "take up at a later date" the possibility of screening all prisoners who have refused to return to their homelands.

Although Thimayya said he has "no plan, either concrete or tentative," there has been speculation that he will give the POWs one last chance, without any coercion. Thimayya said six weeks ago that he planned on it.

At that time, Thimayya suggested that he would station an Indian officer in a hut, have all POWs remaining in neutral custody file through individually, and express their desire in one word—"repatriation" or "non-repatriation."

WINDING THROUGH the mountains of Venezuela is the spectacular "Autopista" highway opened for traffic December 3 by Col. Marcos Perez Jimenez, president of Venezuela. An aerial view shows two of the 10-mile-long highway's three large prestressed concrete bridges. Costing $60,000,000 and three years, under construction, the new road will form a connecting link to the Pan American Highway and South American countries.

Turkey Price Up 10 Cents,
Small Birds Scarce Here

Prince Rupert's Christmas shoppers will find plenty of large turkeys available, but few small ones, and prices on the average will be about 10 cents a pound higher than last year.

Major decreases in prairie turkey crops are blamed for the increased prices, effective across Canada.

In Prince Rupert, as in most of the rest of the country, small birds, from 8 to 12 pounds, are scarce. Almost the entire supply is of big birds, weighing from 13 pounds up. However, local distributors say quality is good.

Grade A birds from national distributors are selling for about 72 cents a pound here. Some turkeys, brought here from the B.C. interior, are selling for about 65 cents.

The heaviest birds, over 18 pounds, sell for a few cents less, as do lesser grades.

Small families, which ordinarily would want only an eight to 12-pound bird, are taking advantage of the lower price on big birds, and halving or quartering the turkeys, and storing the remainder in freezers for use later.

A heavy mortality rate this year, and a tendency to hold back young hens for breeding purposes, reportedly caused this year's short supply.

Await Rescuers
After Life in Wilds

By The Canadian Press
SEPT ILES, Que. — Six experienced bushmen, with more than a week of tramping Quebec's bleak and rugged northern terrain behind them, today awaited a plane that will take them back to civilization.

They reached safety Thursday when they stumbled into an isolated transport department weather station at Lake Manicouane, 150 miles west of this lower St. Lawrence River centre.

All six were reported well and uninjured, although details of their trek through miles of wasteland in sub-freezing temperatures are skimpy.

They had been lost since Dec. 6 when their plane, a twin-engine Anson, disappeared during a raging snowstorm on a flight from Rose Bay, Labrador, to Sept Iles. The flight normally takes 90 minutes.

The fact that all made the hazardous journey unscathed was all the more remarkable as it was only slightly more than two months ago that seven men were rescued after being missing 39 days after setting their plane down on a lake when it ran out of fuel.

That was Oct. 2 and 100 miles away from the spot where the men turned up Thursday. They are construction company employees who were building a small railroad in the area.

At dawn today, two Beaver aircraft took off for Lake Manicouane to bring back the men.

When the men reached the weather outpost yesterday afternoon the news was radioed to Sept Iles.

When the men started they had provisions for about a week. Aboard the plane were pilot George Stapley of Sept Iles; Doug Dolby, assistant mechanical superintendent; Garnet Mooney, line mechanic and Wilbur Tudman, mechanic, all of Toronto; Clint Burley, mechanic, Thessalon, Ont., and Joe MacKinnon, mechanic, Middleton, N.S.

SHAPELY DOROTHY ALBURY, 19, of Islamorada, Fla., carries a basket of times instead of wearing a crown after being named Queen of the Upper Keys Lime Festival at the tip of Florida. With a smile like that, who needs a crown anyhow?

Britain
Shrouded
In Fog

LONDON (AP) — Thick fog settled on Britain today and the weatherman warned it might stay. Trains and buses ran late. All flying stopped at London airport.

Worst-affected areas were London, southern England, Glasgow and Edinburgh. Forecasters said the sun might break through in patches during the afternoon, but the fog would thicken up again by nightfall.

Most of continental Europe reported weather approaching normal after the early-winter mild spell. Italy, however, still basked in June-like sunshine.

A cold snap hit northern Germany. Slight fog covered the German coast and shipping was tied up in the Elbe and Weser estuaries.

Patrol Ships
To Be Armed

TOKYO (Reuters) — A fleet of 50 heavily-armed Japanese patrol boats will put out to sea early next year to shield Japanese fishing vessels from Communist Chinese attack, the maritime safety board here announced.

Japanese officials made this announcement after a report that a Japanese patrol ship had been fired on by Chinese vessels when trying to negotiate the release of a captured fishing boat.

The patrol ship was hit 12 times by bullets but no casualties were reported.

Thousands Cheer
As Liner Docks

OSLO (AP) — A throng of 7,000 persons lined Oslo's waterfront Thursday night to cheer the Norwegian liner Stavangerfjord after her 2,050-mile Atlantic trip without a rudder.

The big liner, whose captain steered with the vessel's twin propellers after she lost her rudder off Newfoundland in a hurricane Dec. 8, docked only two days late.

PAIR REFUSE FINAL REQUEST TO TALK
Christmas Lights Doused as Kidnap-Killers Die

By LARRY HALL
JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. — Lips reddened by a final kiss but silent on the missing ransom money mystery, Carl Austin Hall and Bonnie Brown Heady died together in the gas chamber early today for the kidnap slaying of six-year-old Bobby Greenlease.

The pair refused a final official request for a statement which might have shed light on what happened to half the record $600,000 collected from the millionaire father of the child they abducted and murdered Sept. 28.

Instead, they spent their last minutes in a brief conversation and farewell embrace, shared a final cigarette, bid their Missouri prison guards goodbye and died side by side amid swirling clouds of cyanide gas.

Mrs. Heady, 41, plump and dark-haired, mustered a parting jest at the leather straps that bound her to the death chair.

Her 34-year-old wastrel lover had words for none but her after both had prayed with two ministers who attended the midnight execution.

Hall died first, gulping in the poison fumes.

Mrs. Heady seemed reluctant. She appeared to hold her breath. Although she was unconscious after the first sniff, her lungs labored for two minutes and 10 seconds after Hall's body had slumped motionless.

Dr. G. Donald Shull, a prison physician, commented that her breathing lasted longer than any person he had ever seen die in the gas chamber. No other woman has ever been executed in Missouri.

The killers' final conversation (it lasted about 10 minutes) was in a small detention cell just off the gas chamber.

As he stepped out of this cell to clamber into the death chamber, Hall's lips were reddened as if with lipstick.

Hall was puffing on a cigarette as they approached the gas chamber. He passed it to Mrs. Heady, who took a final puff.

Federal marshal William Tatman stepped into the gas chamber with the two. After the guards had blindfolded them and strapped them to the chairs, the marshal asked: "Have you anything to tell me?"

Witnesses sensed in this question a last effort to find out if either knew what had happened to more than $300,000 of the ransom money they collected in Kansas City Oct. 4 and which was missing when they were captured in St. Louis Oct. 6.

Both shook their heads, and Mrs. Heady said aloud: "No."

As the death-chair strap was being tightened about her chest, Mrs. Heady, with a little chuckle, told the guards: "It's tight—I'm not going anywhere."

Then she called out to Hall: "Are you doing all right, honey?"

"Yes, mama," Hall replied.

As the official witnesses walked through the darkness of the prison courtyard, the Christmas decorations made by convicts, which had sparkled on the trees and bushes, flickered out. They were turned on soon after the execution.

Elaborate security precautions had been made, with extra guards and highway patrolmen brought in for the execution. But the extra men were not needed. There was no outburst from the 2,500 convicts.

Rev. George L. Evans, Episcopal rector from Kansas City who was Hall's spiritual adviser in prison, said both were "absolutely and completely reconciled" to death.

"They are prepared to meet Almighty God," he said after praying with them in the death chamber.

Looking Ahead

A FAVORITE pastime towards the end of each year is peering into the future.

A list of forecasts which seem to carry some authority appears in the current issue of the publication, Advertising Age. It represents the conclusions of a panel of experts who make their living studying business trends. While their findings apply specifically to the U.S.A., they also should hold generally true for Canada.

Here is what these experts say about 1954 and Christmas trade for 1953:

- A possible drop of five per cent in over-all business for 1953.
- A good year for advertising and promotion—at least as good as 1953 and perhaps somewhat better.
- A slight drop—much smaller than expected—in capital investment for plant and equipment.
- A rise in unemployment, but to a very modest level.
- An inventory situation which requires correction—with much hinging on the volume of Christmas trade.
- Relatively little expansion of existing levels of consumer credit.
- The long range prospect—say 1960—is for an economy considerably expanded over present record levels.

Gallant Fight

A WORD of sympathy and gratitude is due about this time to that little group which bears the full brunt of the Christmas season activity—the post office workers.

The fact that the Prince Rupert post office ran out of two-cent stamps is a measure of the strain they are under here this year. But sorting out an avalanche of letters is just part of it. The postal employees have a public to deal with which is calling on the mail service to handle in a couple of weeks or so an amount of business that would normally take several months.

Yet the hundreds pressing into that sturdy building in the city centre will agree that the employees there are manning their fort with tact and willingness.

Despite its heartaches, the battle of stamps and wrappings is being fought with finesse. Our hats are off to the gallant little band which takes such a beating from Santa.

Ontario Example

LAST WEEK I could look out from my office at the foot of the peace tower in the House of Commons and wonder if winter would ever come.

When I went to Toronto for the week-end I was wakened in the early morning by the cawing of swarms of crows. They may have been arguing whether or not it was mid-December or mid-March.

But today, from the same office, I can look out at a real snowstorm. Winter may have arrived late, but it is making up for lost time.

THE MAIN THING that strikes one about central Ontario, after an absence of some years, is that it is paying a heavy price for its own lack of foresight.

Factories have sprung up far into what used to be the deep countryside. The city of Toronto is now a great sprawling metropolis, which has no clear limits.

There is no guarantee that the new subway, now almost completed, will ease the road traffic problem. Indeed, one man who is closely connected with that particular enterprise told me it would simply move the bottlenecks by a few miles. Instead of trying to drive right down town, as they now do, people will drive and park near the outlying terminus of the underground tramway. Well, we shall soon know and not have to guess.

THE HORRIBLE example of what has happened to Toronto literally shrieks to Vancouver to avoid the same mistakes. Toronto has one good through highway, which runs along the lakefront and which handles an enormous volume of traffic.

But even that fine road is not a real freeway—and besides, it only runs half way through the big city.

Toronto desperately needs at least two main highways running through the heart of the city, both ways, but on their own fenced right-of-way.

Los Angeles has already shown how a great city can handle an immense volume of traffic on freeways, on which no car has to bother about pedestrians or cross-road traffic—for there are no pedestrians and no cross-traffic.

SWIFT and sprawling as is the growth of Toronto, it has nothing on Vancouver.

All signs indicate that in the next 10 or 20 years Vancouver will grow faster than any other city in Canada—past or present.

Now is the time to plan and build at least one main freeway—a four or even eight lane highway running from downtown Vancouver, past Burnaby and even past New Westminster.

The road should be completely fenced—without a single level crossing, either of crossroad or railroad.

IN The Vancouver Sun for Dec. 11, 1953, a letter signed "Tom Lorn" of Penticton, B.C., declares:

"Your writer Elmore Philpott now writes a complete falsification."

"Mr. Blackmore never did say Adlai Stevenson and Dean Acheson were top notch Communists. Mr. Philpott knows this as Mr. Blackmore repeated himself and was very emphatic."

Hansard, page 444, shows that on Nov. 30 Mr. Blackmore said: "What seems to be the secret of his effectiveness? McCarthy assailed the topnotchers of the Communist organization, the big fellows, the people whom most people cultivated—Acheson, Tydings, Jessup, Lattimore, Stevenson and Benton. All of them are now gone, but McCarthy still remains."

Steve and Nancy Santa Claus

The story so far: Steve and Nancy have toured Santa's workshops and are now ready to start doing his job so he can take a nap before his long ride Christmas Eve.

Chapter VII

On the way back to Santa's office, Santa, Steve, and Nancy passed through the train shop where hundreds of little engineers were at work making trains. They also stopped for a moment at the electric appliance shop to watch the dwarfs making little electric stoves, sewing machines and irons.

The dwarfs that were testing the electric stoves had just made some bran muffins. They were being made in thimbles, and a dozen of them wouldn't any more than fill your hand.

Steve and Nancy each ate a dozen. Santa ate three dozen and said they couldn't eat any more because they might spoil their supper.

Santa kept hurrying them along because it was getting late and he was anxious to get home and get to sleep.

TELEPHONE MESSAGERS

When they finally got back to Santa's living room, he said, "My office is through this door here. There are telephones to all departments and a messenger service in case you need to send anyone on errands. The dwarf at the desk outside the office will take care of most of the unimportant calls."

When Santa opened the door to his office, the children could see that it was a very important place. It had a thick green rug on the floor and several very fine-looking leather covered chairs.

At the far end of the room was a huge desk with a shiny glass top. At one side of the desk were seven rows of tiny buttons, each with a little light beside it that lit up when the button was pushed.

FIVE COLORS OF INK

At the back of the desk was a microphone, which Santa said was attached to the loudspeaker system, which everyone could hear. In front of the microphone was a fountain pen set with five fountain pens, each with a different color ink in it. At the right hand side of the desk, standing on the floor, was a Christmas tree.

Steve and Nancy looked at it, and then looked again, for it was decorated with telephones, just covered with telephones. "That is the telephone tree," Santa said.

SANTA TO TAKE NAP

"It has telephones connected to every department. Now I guess you know everything you need to know to be able to run things here," Santa said, yawning. "I guess I'll turn in and get some sleep. Nancy, you can stay here or go over to the book department, whichever you wish."

After saying that, Santa gave each of the two children a kiss on top of the head and left them alone.

"The first thing I'm going to do is to get a big electric train with enough track to run all around the office," Steve said, "and I'm going to get attachments to dump coal, load and unload milk cans, and an electric crane."

WANTS DOLL HOUSE

"And I'm going to get a doll house with all sorts of furniture, and a real electric range," Nancy chimed in.

Over they raced to the telephone. "Hello, train department?" Steve asked. "Send me over the best train you have and on the way pick up a fine doll house for Nancy."

"Boy, won't we have fun," he said, as he put the telephone back on the tree.

Harry Basso, Nancy Hill Pledge Nuptial
Vows at St. Andrew's Cathedral Rites

Traditional white was the choice of Prince Rupert's newest bride, Nancy Margaret Hill, for her marriage last night to Harry A. Basso, in a beautiful ceremony in St. Andrew's Anglican cathedral.

Richly brocaded white taffeta, fashioned on Princess lines, was worn by the bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Hill of this city. The lovely gown featured yoke and skirt panel of plain taffeta and long, fitted sleeves. Her floor-length veil cascaded from a white beaded tiara and she carried a smart little muf of brocaded taffeta.

NORTH LUFFENHAM, England (CP)—Twenty-five "older boys and girls," residents aged 72 to 98 of a nearby old folks' home, were the guests today of 439 squadron of this RCAF fighter wing.

The squadron personnel paid for a camp-cooked turkey dinner, carried it to the home and served it as part of the Christmas celebrations put on by the fighter wing for the surrounding residents.

Earlier in the week, the three-squadron base entertained 750 Canadian and English children at a Christmas party — after planning for 450. Santa called and there was food galore.

Rt. Rev. H. G. Watts, Bishop of Caledonia, officiated at the ceremony for which the bride was given in marriage by her father.

Only bridal attendant was Mrs. Jack MacIntosh, Jr., who wore a charming gown of bright coral satin and net, an adaptation of a Sadlers Wells ballet dress, with matching skull cap and satin shoes. She also carried a muf of matching coral, with white gardenias and streamers.

Mr. Louis Campagnolo attended the groom, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Basso of this city, and Alfred and Barrie Hill, brothers of the bride, were ushers.

Mr. Peter Lien was organist at the ceremony for which the church was graced with large white mums on the altar and baskets of pink and white carnations.

RECEPTION

For the reception, at the home of the bride's parents, parents of the bride couple assisted in receiving. Mrs. Hill wearing a smart light grey suit with pink hat and white accessories and corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Basso chose a rose-trimmed black crepe dress with matching accessories and corsage of deep pink carnations.

The bridal table, covered with a hand-worked linen cloth, held the wedding cake, flanked by tall white tapers. Mr. Earl Becker proposed the toast to the bride.

Serving refreshments were Mrs. John Basso, Jr., Mrs. Louis Campagnolo, Miss Mary Basso, Miss Phyllis Hill and Miss Carol Hill.

A feature of the reception was music by Mrs. J. C. Gilker at the piano and Mike Colussi on the accordion, and a surprise for the bride and groom was a serenade by the pipe band of the 102nd Artillery battery, in which the groom is a popular NCO. Unit and band members wished the bride couple good luck, and later entertained them at an informal reception in the sergeant's mess of the battery.

The newlyweds have taken up residence at 309 Ninth Avenue West.

Steady, Persevering Glen Skov Star Of Red Wing Victory Over Black Hawks

By The Canadian Press

Glen Skov never figured he would take big time hockey by storm. He didn't. But he has perseverance and that's why Detroit Red Wings pay him a National Hockey League salary.

The strapping 22-year-old centre, a fellow coach Tommy Ivan is counting on for a "brilliant future" has found some scoring punch. He scored two goals Thursday night to lead the Red Wings to a 5-1 victory over the last-place Chicago Black Hawks. Kelly counted the others.

The Black Hawks, never in the running, tallied their goal when George Gee beat goalkeeper In the only other game, Boston Bruins beat the third-place Toronto Maple Leafs 3-2.

Skov wasn't sensational. He was steady; all that Ivan asks for. Those two goals gave Skov five for the season, four of them coming in the last four games. At that rate the six-foot-one forward will surpass the 12-goal total he had last year, the highest since he joined the Red Wings as a regular in 1950.

The victory gave the Wings a total of 40 points and a tie for first place with Montreal Canadiens, idle Thursday night.

Skov scored at 10:23 of the second period on a pass from left-winger Marty Pavelich and tallied the other at 14:51 of the third session. Howe, Alex Delvecchio and defenceman Red Terry Sawchuk at 13:01 of the third period. Another two-goal performer was big George Armstrong. He scored the only two Leaf goals as the fourth-place Bruins gained their 13th victory in 29 starts.

Quakers Whip Stamps 5-2

By The Canadian Press

Red-hot Saskatoon Quakers are a step closer to regaining the Western Hockey League leadership they held almost unchallenged last season.

With the co-leading Calgary Stampede and Vancouver Canucks in the midst of, or recovering from, prolonged slumps, coach Doug Bentley's Saskatchewan sextet is easily the hottest club in the seven-team loop.

In Calgary last night Quakers made it 13 in 15 by whipping the Calgarys 5-2 in easy fashion. The win allowed Quakers to move within four points of the co-leaders and stretched to four straight the current Stampede losing streak.

A penalty to Stampede defenceman Art Michaluk paved the way for Quakers' victory. While last year's all-star rearguard was in the penalty box, Quakers rapped in three goals in 40 seconds to take a commanding 4-1 lead at the end of the second. The clubs split goals in the final period.

Veteran Alex Kaleta powered the Quakers to victory with a smart three-goal performance. Coach Bentley and Ray Manson got the others. The Stampede marksmen were Ray Barry and Archie Scott.

In a free-wheeling Okanagan Senior Hockey League game last night, Kelowna Packers and Vernon Canadians took turns hitting the scoring column.

When the red lights had finished flashing behind the embattled goalies, a total of 10 pucks had gone booming into the twine and the last-place Packers had a 6-4 victory over the second-place Canadians.

Talbert Aids U.S. Net Win

BRISBANE, Australia (AP)—Billy Talbert, United States Davis Cup captain, gambled and won today when he teamed up with his young protegee, Tony Trabert, and helped to carve out a 6-3, 6-2, 4-6, 9-7 victory over Belgium's Philippe Washer and Jacques Brichant in the doubles match of the Davis Cup inter-zone finals.

Talbert substituted himself for Vic Seixas, his slumping star. The 35-year-old veteran, who has been playing little competitive tennis in recent years, was superb for two sets, then held on for the last two when the pace began to get him.

The Talbert of today was a far cry from the happy-go-lucky Billy of the past. He teamed with Trabert because, no doubt, he thought he could instill confidence into the young University of Cincinnati student. Trabert and Seixas had not been going well in practice. Trabert had made no secret of the fact that he did not want to team with Seixas.

Brooklyn's Duke Snider Winner Of National Loop Slugging Title

NEW YORK (AP)—Brooklyn's Duke Snider is the official winner of the National League's slugging championship, edging Eddie Matthews, Milwaukee's slugging third baseman, by two-tenths of a percentage point.

Snider, 27-year-old outfielder, slugged for an average of .6271 to .6269 for Matthews, official statistics released today by the baseball loop's service bureau show.

The Duke put together 370 total bases in 590 at bats, including 38 doubles, four triples and 42 homers. Matthews, with 363 total bases in 579 trips, had 31 doubles, eight three-baggers and 47 home runs — most in the league.

Average compiled by The Associated Press and released last October also listed Snider as the slugging leader with .6271 and Matthews as the runner-up at .6269. Roy Campanella of Brooklyn finished third at .610.

PRINCESS, QUEEN MOTHER ATTEND PARTY AT PALACE

LONDON (AP)—Princess Margaret danced with a footman and Queen Mother Elizabeth did a quick-step with a page at a party in Buckingham Palace.

It was the annual pre-Christmas ball of the palace staff, and the two members of the Royal Family stayed for more than an hour.

Margaret and her partner, footman Cyril Dickman, first danced to Whistle a Happy Tune from the Rodgers and Hammerstein show The King and I. Then they stepped off an encore to the strains of Keep Your Sunny Side Up.

The Queen Mother's partner for two dances was page C. J. Halley.

Ken Watson's Curling

WHAT TURN, MISTER?

There are so many situations that can exist in curling due to the variety of ice conditions, the weight to be played, the position of rocks in play, the weaknesses or preferences of your players, the score, the end being played, etc., that it is difficult to frame a hard and fast set of rules governing a skip's actions in selecting the out-turn over the in-turn or vice versa.

Bitter experience is actually the best teacher. It takes a costly mistake to learn a valuable lesson, and once learned, it is never forgotten. You will always remember vividly the games you lost through misjudgment—not so much the game itself, but the errors you committed which were the prime causes leading to the bitter pill of defeat. No wonder the prominent placing of two referee letters from the alphabet—"IF"—in many curling clubs.

Harking back over the past, I can still remember with vivid clarity the many times I departed from the rink boiling inwardly at my own stupidity in selecting the unnatural turn. For what it may be worth, here are the outcroppings of a few of these reminders, but first may I warn you again that there are always exceptions under abnormal conditions:

- Play the turn working from the centre to the outside ice.
- Avoid the turn that cuts or swings sharply.
- Use the turn that "falls back" into your target—i.e., for take-out shots.
- Use the turn that offers you the greatest percentage in making the shot.
- Play the turn you have confidence in at all times. This applies to your third man too.
- Stay clear of the turn that calls for a draw shot to any part of the rings, where a draw is difficult because of very keen ice. Let the other skip have the honor.
- Don't get stubborn and persist in using the same turn after several "misses." Try the other turn for size.
- Lastly, and most important of all, when in doubt—don't. How about a draw?

Cabinet To Help in Ship Transfer

OTTAWA (CP)—The cabinet has agreed to co-operate in the transfer of more Canadian deep-sea ships to British registry, but has rejected the ship-owners' request for complete freedom in disposal of the decimated fleet.

At the same time it made clear it will make no general subsidy to the economically-crippled industry, but will consider granting special aid to particular services from time to time.

Transport Minister Chevrier communicated the cabinet's decisions in a letter to M. G. Angus, president of the Canadian Shipowners' Association. The letter, dated Dec. 11, was made public by Mr. Chevrier's office Thursday.

The owners have told the government that Canadian flag ships cannot compete with foreign vessels because of higher operating costs which they attribute chiefly to the world's second-highest standard of pay and living conditions for crews. There are about $100,000 a year more per ship than on United Kingdom vessels.

Wonderful "Break" May Spell Danger

Even Mr. Muzzy can occasionally see the need for the hold-up play at a no-trump contract when he has A 3 2 of a suit in his hand and the lone four in dummy.

Often, however, the situation is more complicated and especially (as in today's deal) where you get an opening lead which appears to be a wonderful break for your side.

Mr. Dale led the king of hearts in response to his partner's heart overcall. Mr. Muzzy was obviously elated and lost no time going up with dummy's ace.

"That'll teach you not to overcall on those lousy suits," he remarked to Miss Brash. Miss Brash said nothing, but her time was to come later in the hand.

At trick two, Mr. Muzzy elected to start on the diamonds and he led a small one toward his queen. Mr. Dale won with the ace and returned the deuce of hearts. Worried now, Mr. Muzzy ducked. But Miss Brash continued the suit, knocking out the queen.

There was no way to unass nine tricks without winning some clubs and when Miss Brash got in with the ace of that suit she ran off the rest of her hearts to beat the hand two tricks.

"That'll teach you not to make those lousy plays," said Miss Brash quietly. "What do you mean?" Mr. Muzzy asked. "What could I do about it?"

"You can make the hand," said Miss Brash. "If you just let the king of hearts hold the first trick."

Mr. Muzzy thought she was kidding. He considered the king of hearts the finest lead he could get. But he overlooked the fact he had two aces to drive out. If he had ducked the first heart trick, won the second one with the ace and then led a diamond as before. Mr. Dale, after taking the ace of diamonds, would have been out of hearts.

His best return would have been a spade. Mr. Muzzy could have won with dummy's ace and led clubs until the ace was played. He would still have had a heart stopper and plenty of tricks to cash for his contract.

Quebec MP, J.C. Nadon Dies at 54

MANIOWAKI, Que. (CP)—J. C. Nadon, Liberal member of parliament for Gatineau, died in hospital here yesterday. He was 54.

Mr. Nadon, who has been member for Gatineau since Oct. 24, 1949, was admitted to hospital Sunday with a coronary thrombosis.

Born at Ste. Famille Gaudin, Mr. Nadon, a jeweler, was active in municipal politics and was elected to the Quebec legislature in 1939 and 1944.

His election to the House of Commons came in 1949 in a by-election caused by the resignation of the sitting member. He was re-elected in the general elections last August.

His death leaves two vacancies in the Commons. The other was caused by the death of Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative member for Peel. The party standing in the 265-seat House now is: Liberals, 169; Progressive Conservatives, 50; CCF, 23; Social Credit, 15; Independent, three; Independent Liberal, two; Liberal-Labour, one; vacant, two.

Death Claims Mrs. Malabar

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Sarah Helen Malabar, 62, a former beauty parlor operator who parlayed a $100 loan into a costume business in Winnipeg, Toronto and Montreal, died Wednesday.

She attributed her success to the suggestion of a fortune teller who claimed to see her working in an odd business with clothes. She borrowed $100 from friends and started her first costume store in Winnipeg in 1903. She opened her Toronto shop in 1923 and one in Montreal in 1930.

Builders See Little Benefit In New Plan

VANCOUVER (CP)—Buyers will have to be satisfied with fewer frills if builders in Vancouver undertake to construct $8,000 homes.

Spokesmen for the builders said today property values will have to come down and the buyers must settle for "less house" if advantage is to be taken of the new federal housing legislation.

"A terrific clientele exists in the $8,000 price range," said Dean Buzzelle, honorary president of the Vancouver Contractors' Association, "but so far it seems unwilling to face the fact that $8,000 will only buy a 'minimum' home."

The new housing legislation was introduced in Ottawa Wednesday by Works Minister Winter and its major stipulation is for a 90-per-cent mortgage on the first $8,000 of a home's cost.

Mr. Buzzelle said buyers would have to lower their demands.

If buyers would forego fireplaces, fancy exteriors, garages, where carpenter will do, hardwood floors and elaborate electrical systems, it might be possible to build even a three-bedroom, non-basement home for $8,000.

"But again," he said, "that's only in the unlikely event that a lot can be found for $1,000 or less."

The architects agreed. A member of a leading firm said: "I don't think the government has studied the problem sufficiently to help most individuals."

The new plan might help some low-income buyers, but few low-priced lots are available in Greater Vancouver.

"If you could find a lot for not more than $300, you might be able to do it," he added. "With the remaining $7,700 you could probably build a living-dining room, kitchen, two bedrooms and bath home without a basement."
