B.C. LIBERALS REFUSE SUPPORT OF FEDERAL PRICE FIX BAN

Executive Withdraws Motion

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia's top liberals yesterday refused to support the federal government's ban on price fixing by manufacturers. A resolution endorsing Ottawa's legislation on resale price maintenance was withdrawn by B.C. Liberal party executive after strong attacks by delegates from Vancouver, Victoria and Esquimalt.

RESOLUTIONS
 Other resolutions called on the provincial government to:
 1. Hold a liquor plebiscite not later than the next election.
 2. Permit margarine to be colored by manufacturers.
 3. Exempt pensioners from the three per cent sales tax if their income is so low they do not have to pay income tax.
 4. Redistribute seats in the legislature, dividing multiple seats into single-member ridings.
 A motion to ask the federal government to give B.C. 12 senators instead of the present six was withdrawn.

Truman, Churchill Agree On Unified Army

Co-operation Between Nations Keynote Of President's Message

Proposes Election-Year Political Armistice in View of Critical Situation

WASHINGTON, D.C. (CP)—International co-operation was the keynote of a "State of the Union" address delivered today by President Truman at a joint session of the 82nd Congress. "Our allies are essential to us," he said.

In his traditional address outlining the country's progress and problems, the President proposed that Congress join him in an election-year armistice on political fights that might endanger the national interest at a time when all men walk "in the shadow of a third world war."

"The United States and the whole free world is passing through a period of grave danger," Mr. Truman said. "Every action you take here in Congress and every action I take as President must be measured against the test of whether it helps to meet that danger."

The President declared that peace depends upon the free nations "sticking together and making a combined effort to prevent war."

In the President's box were Prime Minister Churchill and his chief aides who have just completed a series of talks with Truman. He referred to his talks with the British Prime Minister and said: "We had a most satisfactory series of meetings. We both look forward to steady progress toward peace through co-operation and teamwork."

President Truman, among other things, promised a realistic tax policy and a house-cleaning of those not worthy of trust in the public service.

Fierce Storm In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver windows were shattered and power communication lines were jumbled early Wednesday when winds sweeping down from the Queen Charlotte Islands struck Vancouver. Gusts reached 60 miles an hour and heavy rains accompanied the gale which began to subside as it moved inland. There are no reports of serious damage although power interruptions were general in the city.

Suit After Ship Fire

PORTLAND, Oregon (CP)—An Edmonton man on Tuesday asked $30,000 for the loss of his wife and daughter in a fire which swept the Danish motorship Erria near the mouth of the Columbia River December 20.

Angus M. Brunicez asked $15,000 death damages for his wife, Kathleen, aged 46, and the same sum for his daughter, six-year-old Elizabeth Mary, as well as $5,000 damages for his own injuries and $3,300 for personal possessions.

Gun Factory Seeks Workers

WASHINGTON—The naval gun factory said it is ready to hire several hundred persons with limited skills because of the shortage of skilled manpower.

The factory, the world's largest naval ordnance plant, said it would take persons with at least two years' experience in machine work either in an apprenticeship or some comparable work. Such experience should include the simpler routine operations of the machinist trade plus the ability to work from blueprints or oral instruction and a knowledge of use of hand or machine tools of the trade.

Talks of Two Leaders Held Satisfactory as Basis of Co-operation

WASHINGTON, D.C. (CP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill left Washington today for a visit to New York and Ottawa, apparently convinced that his talks with President Truman have laid a new basis for tightened British-American co-operation around the world.

WINNIE MAKES GOOD—Reaches satisfactory accord with Truman.

In a final White House session ending Tuesday night, Churchill and Truman agreed to give all-out support to the formation of a unified defence army including German, French, Italian and Low Countries troops.

Mr. Truman had wanted such a commitment from the British leader in the hope of speeding up the army project in Europe.

President Truman and Prime Minister Churchill today pledged their governments to full support of the "European Defence Community" with Germany as a "full and equal partner."

An official communique summarizing the results of four days' talks between the British and American leaders pledged their determination to work jointly to insure world "peace and security."

Both reported "complete identity of aims" in promoting stability, peaceful development and economic progress in the Middle East.

South Koreans Score Victory

SEOUL (CP)—South Korean troops killed an estimated 1000 Chinese near Panmunjon, truce talks site, Tuesday in the war's heaviest fighting in six weeks. The United States Army reported.

However, the South Koreans had to give up two small hills west of Korangpo when the Reds hurled 4000 troops into the battle of Sasi Bulge.

U.S. Vessel In Trouble

Caught in Storm Off Vancouver Island With Ominous Crack in Hull

VICTORIA (CP)—The United States freighter Pennsylvania is bucking a fierce Pacific storm off the northern end of Vancouver Island. It is reported a 14-foot-long crack has appeared down the side of the vessel. She is taking water but it is believed pumps can handle the emergency.

A message from the 623-foot, 16,700-ton ship was intercepted by the Gordon Head wireless station here early today. The tanker is about 620 miles due west of the northern tip of the island.

There is little likelihood, however, of any reaching Victoria. "That would give victoria one animal," one butcher remarked. "It would not go very far."

"Meat packing houses heard nothing of possible shipments of buffalo meat to Victoria. In the east it is expected the buffalo meat will cost more than Christmas turkey."

Heavy Seas Threaten End of Enterprise

LONDON (CP)—Mountainous waves threatened to write the end of the Flying Enterprise saga today, and almost swept Capt. Kurt Carlsen into the sea he has defied for 13 days.

Buffalo Steaks Are Coming Up

Choicest 200 buffalo of 600 killed by the government at the Elk Island, Alta., game reserve will be butchered and sold across Canada.

There is little likelihood, however, of any reaching Victoria. "That would give victoria one animal," one butcher remarked. "It would not go very far."

"Meat packing houses heard nothing of possible shipments of buffalo meat to Victoria. In the east it is expected the buffalo meat will cost more than Christmas turkey."

Stalin Successor Groomed

Malenkov Extolled On Fiftieth Birthday

MOSCOW (CP)—Georgia M. Malenkov, deputy premier of the Soviet Union, was fifty years old yesterday and Moscow's press left little doubt that he would be chosen successor to Joseph Stalin.

Extravagant praise was heaped on Malenkov and the government handed him the Order of Lenin, the Soviet's highest decoration. Big pictures of him were printed on the front pages of newspapers.

Malenkov, protege of Stalin, is a member of the Politburo, top policy-making organ of the Soviet Union.

Better Rates For Prairies

OTTAWA (CP)—Board of Transport Commissioners yesterday ordered the railways to implement recently passed legislation giving the prairies a share in benefits of British Columbia's low "transcontinental" freight rates.

The Board directed that the railways put new rates into effect by January 15.

Some rates between eastern and Alberta points have been double those for the longer haul from the east to the coast.

Perry Resigns as Head of B.C. Liberal Association

Move for Early Convention and Break With Coalition Headed Off

VANCOUVER (CP)—H. G. T. Perry, former minister of education and Speaker and long prominent in public life in the province as well as affairs of the Liberal party, resigned late yesterday as president of the British Columbia Liberal Association.

Mr. Perry's resignation capped the meeting of the party executive which turned back a move for an immediate end to the coalition with the Progressive Conservatives. But there now appears little doubt that the coalition will break up before next general election.

Mr. Perry, who received a tongue-lashing from Premier Byron Johnson earlier in the day, said his resignation was primarily for health reasons.

"My decision is final and irrevocable," said Mr. Perry, who has been active for 40 years in the Liberal party and was chosen provincial president at the 1949 convention.

Mr. Perry was flayed by the Premier for statements to the press that Mr. Johnson was selling out British Columbia and Liberal cabinet ministers were "weak-kneed."

Announcement of his resignation came just before the executive adjourned.

The office of president will be filled until the next convention by Mrs. J. L. Gates of Victoria, first vice-president.

Convention delegates, led by Premier Johnson, blocked resolutions demanding that the Liberals withdraw from coalition before the February session of the Legislature and decided, instead, to call for a full scale convention before June 30.

A general convention may be held during the Easter recess of the federal house. Original resolutions called for the convention to be held before the end of February.

Pyongyang Hard Hit

MOSCOW (CP)—The Soviet press said today that air attacks on the North Korean capital of Pyongyang during 1951 had killed 15,000 persons.

Reports said that the United States Air Force planes had dropped 42,000 bombs on the capital.

Trains in Collision

Fifty Passengers Hurt On CNR Main Line

EDMONTON (CP)—Two Canadian National Railway transcontinental passenger trains collided head-on early today near Yonker, Sask.

The CNR said about fifty passengers and crew members were injured but none seriously.

Yonker, where the accident occurred, is close to the Alberta-Saskatchewan border.

A CNR statement said the eastbound train failed to wait at Yonker to meet the westbound train in accordance with train orders.

All equipment remained on the rails.

A railway spokesman in Edmonton stated it was hoped to have both trains moving again shortly after noon.

Snowslide Buries Camp

Thirty-Seven Miners Killed In Bolivian Mountains

LA PAZ, Bolivia (CP)—Thirty-seven bodies were recovered from a mining camp buried by landslides in northwest Bolivia, travelers from the area reported Tuesday night.

Poor communications have prevented direct contact with the region and it is feared many others may have died.

The slides came down from Chimajauceta Mountain and buried the mining camp of Tipuani.

The camp was abandoned by the Aramayo Tin Co. three years ago but many Indian gold prospectors have continued to work the area independently.

U.N. Downs Russ Plan For Korea

JERUSALEM (CP)—The United Nations political committee today smothered a Russian attempt to force Korean truce negotiations to be taken up by a special high level meeting of the Security Council.

The vote was 50 to six with 11 abstentions.

The committee agreed, however, to recommend holding a later special security council meeting to discuss world tensions.

Jerusalem Disorders

JERUSALEM (CP)—Authorities moved reinforcements into Jerusalem yesterday to bring order after more than 340 persons were injured Monday night in street fighting between police and extremist Jews demonstrating against negotiating with Germany.

The authorities announced that nearly 400 police and civilians were injured.

A crowd of 10,000 marched on the government buildings where legislators were discussing proposals for German reparations.

Dr. Cleveland, Vancouver, Dies

VANCOUVER—Dr. E. A. Cleveland, chairman of the Greater Vancouver Water Board, died today at his North Vancouver home. He was 77 years of age.

WEATHER

Synopsis
 Snow and strong winds are still general through the interior as the Pacific storm which caused such strong winds on the coast yesterday and overnight moves toward the Prairies. This storm should move out of British Columbia late today.

Coastal winds dropped sharply before daybreak after reaching 60 miles per hour in gusts at most stations over the south coast. North coast winds were relatively light through the night, following the near hurricane values which were registered yesterday afternoon.

The weather today will be mainly cloudy with snow flurries in most regions. Another storm now forming in the Bering Sea shows signs of moving eastward in a path similar to that followed by the last storm. For this reason more strong winds are forecast for the north coast tomorrow afternoon.

Temperatures will continue fairly mild. The very cold polar air which has been poised over northern Canada for many days will slide a little further southward but continued storm activity for the west will serve to prevent any sharp outbreak of this air into British Columbia.

New Celanese Project

THE newly announced $65,000,000 wood pulp and newsprint project of Celgar Development Co. Ltd. in the Arrow Lakes region of southeastern British Columbia, added to the Columbia Cellulose Co. Ltd. operation of more than $30,000,000 at Prince Rupert, gives Celanese Corporation of America one of the greatest industrial stakes in British Columbia.

The southern interior project, termed the largest single forest development ever undertaken in British Columbia, solidifies the great American company's position in this province.

We appreciate how much the advent of Columbia Cellulose has meant to this central British Columbia area and are happy to congratulate another section of the province which, with the exception of the nearby Consolidated Mining & Smelting Co. operation at Trail, has been none too strong in industry and, like us, has been to large extent an underdeveloped hinterland.

Providing employment for more than 2,000 persons in mills and woods, it will be a great thing for that area, changing its entire complexion and economy.

It is gratifying to see such industries branching out in British Columbia, decentralizing the control and influence to some extent at least from the extreme southwest corner which has so long been dominant.

Coast Road to Alaska

EXponents in this state of a coastal highway to Alaska have strong support in the Burns Lake and District Board of Trade, whose headquarters is in Burns Lake, British Columbia.

In a letter to The Wenatchee World, Walter Wilson, highway secretary of that organization, asserts that "common sense, defense of Southeastern Alaska and its towns and peoples, as well as the strategic port of Prince Rupert, low comparative cost and economic revenue, dictate that THE all-time Alaska highway or railway or both should be a coast route."

Wilson, who has completed a detailed report on the subject to his Board of Trade, believes the natural starting point for such a highway should be from Hazelton with Whitehorse as the northern objective.

"Construction," Wilson says, "could begin from both points at once. There is already a highway from Whitehorse to Atlin, 50 miles of it using the Alaska Highway. . . Juneau could tie in to this Hazelton project, giving it a mainland connection. . . So could Stewart and Hyder."

The Hazelton-Whitehorse route is strongly advocated by the Associated Boards of Trade of Central British Columbia and Affiliated Chambers of Commerce of Southeastern Alaska. These groups contend that a highway following this route would "pay for itself in short order," since it would give access to large anthracite coal fields, besides proved deposits of gold, silver, lead, copper and other minerals. It also would open up at least half a million acres of first-class agricultural land and millions of feet of merchantable timber.

The feature of this proposed route that would appeal most strongly on this side of the Canadian border is the highway access it would give to Southeastern Alaska. Not only Juneau, Stewart and Hyder, but also Wrangell and Petersburg could connect with this coastal highway. They would benefit from the opening of the rich British Columbia hinterland as much as the Canadian ports and cities themselves.

A coastal highway to Alaska is as desirable an objective for the Pacific Northwest states as for British Columbia. The Burns Lake Board of Trade is doing a commendable job in helping to keep the subject alive.—Seattle Times.

ray.. Reflects and Reminisces

The forested country of Mount Hays, overlooking the townsite of Prince Rupert during a January blizzard is no place to stay. To be lost—to be uncertain about which way to go—is a dangerous experience. The three members of the Ski Club, who have their friends and others to thank for rescue services, are now alive to that fact. This is a large island and the wooded mountain includes heavy timber, waterfalls in many areas difficult enough to traverse. Prince Rupert is close at hand but that does not mean it's a simple matter to find anyone, chilled and exhausted, miles back in the pathless and storm-beaten woods.

GOOD OLD SUMMER

Comparatively few of Prince Rupert's newcomers have ever been on the summit of Mount Oldfield or Mount Hays, back of Prince Rupert. Until it is possible to drive a car there the peak cannot reach a maximum popularity. Years ago, a survey was run, and the feasibility of a motor road was clearly shown, both from engineering and financial standpoint. It could be a superb attraction for tourists and citizens, and there should be no reason why, in time, it should not be attained.

Cost of sleeping car accommodation, according to advice from Ottawa, will be increased. There are many persons the news will not worry in the slightest. We know some who have not travelled a hundred miles on a train in ten years.

STEPPING OUT

The present membership of the Chamber of Commerce, if not the largest it has ever been, should be nearly that, and indications are there is a growing activity. What was known as the Board of Trade was organized away back prior to incorporation and for many a year progress was anything but fast. Right now, Prince Rupert's real beginning is rapidly taking shape and, in this, a live and expanding Chamber is of valued assistance.

Captain Carlsen started the New Year in an unlooked for but memorable way. He stayed by himself with the crippled steamer Flying Enterprise and the course taken is leading him to a knighthood from the King of Denmark, the praise of the marine world and plaudits of business and finance.

Rental House Bid Calling

Tenders will be called January 15 for fifty rental houses to be built at Prince Rupert under the joint federal, provincial and municipal financing plan. W. F. Stone reported to the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce Monday. The federal government has put up $520,000 which is only 75 percent of the outlay and in addition to which there is 17 1/2 percent from provincial government and 7 1/2 percent from city (in the way of lots and clearing thereof).

They will be well-constructed houses with basements and concrete foundations. No difficulty is anticipated in obtaining bids from contractors, Mr. Stone said.

Canadian Services For Air and Sea Rescue Set Fine Record

By H. L. JONES Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Across broad expanses and along rocky coasts, Canada operates the world's most highly-organized and far-flung air-sea rescue service. The Search and Rescue organization can send scores of planes into the air within minutes of an alert. It can send rescue boats to sea. It can bring aid by trained para-rescue teams to victims of a hinterland plane crash or starving miners lost in the bush.

Mercy missions extend anywhere from the frozen north to ships at sea. It is credited with saving many lives, sometimes in dramatic fashion, sometimes in small jobs heard about only locally.

The RCAF provides the planes and communications and coordinates the searches. But Search and Rescue also can call on the facilities of the Navy, the Army, the government departments of Transport, Fisheries, Resources and the RCMP.

Search and Rescue costs millions a year. In 1949-50 the budget totalled $2,289,688. In 1950-51 it was $3,147,575. For 1951-52 it is $3,860,623 and this figure is expected to be exceeded because this has been a major year in the rescue business.

Recurring aircraft disappearances in the north brought recent proclamation of new regulations. Civil planes will henceforth be required to file flight plans giving complete itinerary details of northern flights and carry survival equipment for each person aboard. The equipment will include food, sleeping bags, tents and the like.

After July 1 next year each such civil plane must have either a two-way radio or a portable emergency transmitter. Changes in flight plans enroute must be reported to the nearest air station.

INCORPORATED IN ACT

The regulations are being embodied in the aeronautical act which provides penalties up to a $5,000 fine or a year in-jail for breaches.

They will apply to flights by civil planes into areas north of the Canadian National Railways' line through northern Ontario and to the northerly part of the Prairie provinces and the Northwest Territories. The northern parts of British Columbia and Vancouver Island also are included.

Civil plane owners, whether resident or tourist, must purchase their own equipment.

But transport department officials said Search and Rescue will go into action to search for any lost plane, whether it is properly equipped or not.

In 1949 Search and Rescue planes flew more than 3,600 hours on 213 operations. They ranged all the way from dropping insulin to an ailing passenger on a snow-bound British Columbia train, to parachute rescue aid to distressed fliers.

The following year mercy planes flew 4,667 hours on 252 operations. In 1951 they logged a total of 7,100 hours, or almost 300 days of flying. When all records are available this promises to be the biggest rescue year since the organization was set up in 1943.

Search and Rescue funds came from R.C.A.F. appropriations. No dollars-and-cents accounting as such is kept for each search. But on the factors of planes, fuel, the air and hours flown, "Operation Mike" probably was the organization's biggest job.

This was the massive hunt for a U.S. Air Force C-54 Transport which disappeared on a flight from Alaska to Great Falls, Mont., in January, 1950, with 34 passengers and a crew of eight. It was believed to have crashed in the Yukon and Canadian and American planes spent a combined total of 3,000 hours in the

LETTERBOX SOCIAL CREDIT

Editor, Daily News.—

Some weeks ago you published a short article from me on taxation.

Now I have an article setting forth some examples of how Social Credit (if in power at Ottawa) would affect taxation.

I suffered a heart attack in 1948 which left me almost a shut-in. I am almost 77 and unable to get around to accommodate my ambition which is to promote Social Credit study.

It was my lot to help put in the Abernethy government in Alberta in 1935 as I then lived at Jappi, Alberta.

Since 1930 I have learned more and more to believe the Social Credit idea is our deliverance from want and hardship.

I handle the subject with almost sacred admiration and faith and can envision wonderful results from its federal application.

As I am not physically able to get out and speak, I must confine my efforts to writing. However, written information takes well where so many men work all day but can sit by the fire and enjoy reading for an hour in the evening.

CHARLES W. RUSS.

REAL CHRISTIANITY

Editor, Daily News.—

Having read an article in Saturday's issue of your paper entitled "Unity in the Roman Church," I feel compelled to reply to it.

First of all, let me say that I have nothing against the average Catholic layman with a number of whom I have worked and had dealings. Like many in other churches, however, they have had no personal experience of salvation by having accepted the sacrifice of Christ on the Cross for every sinner. Therefore, they have not the joy of the knowledge that we are heirs of God and joint heirs with Christ.

Now for the article. In the first place Christians can never join the Roman Catholic Church for the simple reason that Jesus became our high priest to ever after the order of Melchisedec (Hebrews 6:20) because by His own blood he entered once into the holy place, having obtained eternal redemption for us. Also He is our only Saviour because there is no other name under Heaven, given among men, whereby we may be saved. Nor need we any other mediator for again "there is one mediator between God and men, the Man, Jesus Christ, who gave Himself a ransom for all. Therefore, it cannot be followed that we can have no man as priest or pontiff.

If the Catholic church means the union of themselves with the Greek and Russian church to fight communism, let them join and fight that which is anti-God but not fight, mutilate, murder, mangle and destroy Christians who are striving to live out God's law of love.

All Protestant churches are included as Christians.

Sinners, which we all are, must be converted to Christ, not to any church, creed or tradition.

Victim of Atrocities

SALT LAKE CITY (CP)—A 12-year-old boy, missing since last October, was yesterday found chained to a bed in a filthy home here.

Police said that a man held on a bank robbery charge admitted kidnapping the lad. Except for bruises over much of his body, Richard (Ricky) Henrikson was reported in fair physical condition.

In jail on $20,000 federal bank robbery charges is John D. Billett, 24-year-old Salt Lake City man.

Early yesterday Billett told police he had abducted the Henrikson boy and led officers to the hide-out.

The boy was found on a bed, a chain around his ankle and fastened to the foot of the bedstead.

Ricky and Billett were employed at a used car lot.

On October 20, Ricky said, Billett told him he was a special police officer. He said he was accused of various thefts and was informed he would have to go with Billett for questioning.

Ricky told of a series of beatings which he said were described as "tests to see if I would confess to stealing all that stuff."

Photos Preserve Ontario History

TORONTO (CP)—Historical research in photography is a project with the Women's Institutes and a hobby with its Ontario director, Anna P. Lewis. With the combined effort of institute members, community history in scrapbook form is being compiled.

Miss Lewis, an inveterate photographer, is always seeking anything of historical interest to snap while travelling from county to county on institute business. As an entertainment feature at her meetings, she occasionally shows her own interesting collection of pictures.

"Ontario is full of these reminders of the horse and buggy days, but no one thinks much about them—we should do something about preserving them while there is yet time," she says. Miss Lewis photographs them.

One of her views of Yonge Street includes a Quaker meeting house at Newmarket, built in 1809 by the Pennsylvania Quakers who settled there in 1801. At Holland Landing she photographed an old anchor which was drawn by horse and sleigh all the way from Kingston in 1812 for a man-of-war which was never built.

She also has pictures of Canada's first oil well, the first on the North American continent, drilled not far from Sarnia in 1858. The first salt well was opened in 1836 near Goderich. She has a picture of it.

Other shots show a cairn near Bath, a reminder of the days when it was a boom town where the steamship Frontenac was launched; the old coach road from Bath to Adolphstown, built in 1798 under government contract by Isa Danforth; St. Andrew's Catholic Church near Cornwall, built in 1784, whose graveyard contains the remains of John Standfield Macdonald, Ontario's first premier, and the explorer Simon Fraser.

Another picture is a shot of Ottawa's first home, a great stone house built by Colonel By, founder of the capital city and builder of the Rideau Canal. One shot is even of a tree, commemorating the discovery of the McIntosh apple in Dundas county.

Once a man is born again and becomes a Christian, he is a new creature in Christ Jesus—(2 Corinthians 5:17). If bad or poor, he needs reviving, not saving or converting.

God grant the Jews, Mohammedans and all pagans may repent and be converted but it will not be so may they be born again.

How can any church or denomination claim to be the sole followers of the Lord Jesus Christ?

I do not write these things to find fault but simply to point out the truth that the whole world knows.

I know it is asking a lot of you, Mr. Editor, to print this in your paper but surely this is a free country and we Protestants have the right to speak the truth, especially as we find it in the word of God. If not, we will soon lose the previous heritage which is ours—the glorious heritage, the Faith of Our Fathers.

CANADIAN SERVICES

entry: "Few pieces of planking sighted. Nothing more."

Canada's Search and Rescue organization's first took shape in 1946 when she made a commitment to the International Civil Aviation Organization to provide such facilities on the east shore. This was later extended to cover the west coast and Canada herself took on the responsibility of extending the organization across the country.

Search and Rescue operates on a 24-hour-a-day basis. It has five rescue co-ordination centres at Halifax, Trenton, Ont., Winnipeg, Edmonton and Vancouver, each responsible for a huge area. Thirty-four planes of various types and 10 high-speed launches specially-equipped for the work are maintained as "primary facilities."

There are 42 specially-trained four nursing sisters and 11 trained ground Search and Rescue parties of 10 men each. Also available are the facilities of the navy on both coasts as well as inland, the army, the R.C.M.P. and government departments which have stations and equipment across the country.

Once a plane is unreported for 30 minutes a "state of uncertainty" is declared and the organization prepares planes and men. This is followed by a "state of alert" after which a search is begun.

Once it starts the real job of the co-ordination centres begins. Reports come from farmers, police and others in the search area and all this information has to be checked and cross-checked. How long an unsuccessful search is maintained depends on a number of factors. Elapsed time, conditions of the country and chances of survival all are considered.

The guiding rule of Search and Rescue is that human life cannot be measured in dollars and cents. While there is any hope at all, the search goes on.

Big British Wage Boosts

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Approximately 12,000,000 British workers started the new year with something like £6,500,000 more in their weekly pay envelopes than they received last year to meet the rising cost of living.

The increases, based on new agreements negotiated in 1951, represent an average wage hike of about eight per cent, a post-war record. By comparison the weekly pay rates were increased by roughly two per cent in 1950.

But how much last year's boost has added to the purchasing power of the average wage-earner, trade union leaders and economists were not prepared to say. Living costs, as measured by the interim index, they explain, have risen in about the same ratio as wages.

Latest published figures show the current wage index at 125—based on 100—10 points higher than the level at the beginning of 1951. The interim price index for the same period increased approximately eight per cent.

In a year studied with record wage advances, November stood out as the pay-boost record-breaker. In that month alone the weekly wage total increased nearly double the earlier peak of £717,000 a week, reached in March. The figure was only £600,000 below the increase for the whole of 1950.

NOVEMBER AWARDS

The November increase was mainly due to the all-embracing round of wage awards to railwaymen, engineering and ship-

'52 Primaries Being Eyed

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The presidential primary, a 43-year-old experiment, is attracting new attention now that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower is in the ring for the Republican nomination.

On March 11, New Hampshire voters will go to the polls to express their preferences for presidential nominees and select delegates to the national convention. General Eisenhower's name will be presented there and there is little doubt he will be nominated.

Presidential primaries were started back in 1908, when Wisconsin held the first one. High hopes were held for them, not all of which materialized by any means.

The idea was that the sovereign people would, by having their say, thwart the political bosses. But it was found that political machines could often work their will through primaries as well as through conventions.

CONFUSING LAWS

Laws in the 16 states that use presidential primaries are confusingly varied and sometimes ambiguous. In some cases, for example, citizens vote their presidential preferences while at the same time voting for convention delegates whose intentions they do not know.

All things considered, the primary system as now practiced does not always give any clear indication of the nation's popular choices of nominees.

Nor does it give any sure-fire tip on what the national convention will do. For example, of the 496 delegates chosen by presidential primary for the Republican convention in 1948, only 153 from five states were definitely obligated to support the candidate favored by the voters in their states.

Between March 11 and June 3, Republicans and Democrats will elect about half of their national convention delegates by the primary method—the Republicans 590 out of 1,190, and the Democrats 570 out of 1,234.

STATE CONVENTIONS

The remaining 43 states pick their delegates through state conventions, or in a few instances by state party committees. State committees have the option, rarely used, of holding primaries in Alabama, Arkansas, and Georgia.

After New Hampshire, the next presidential primary comes in Minnesota, March 18. Up to now, Minnesota has used the convention method.

Until filing deadlines come along there can be no definite entries of candidates. On the Democratic side, the names of President Truman and Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee have been mentioned as possible entries, the latter in California. Neither has announced a willingness to run.

Republican primary contestants—with or without their consent—have been listed tentatively as Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, General Eisenhower, Gov. Earl Warren of California, Harold E. Stassen, and Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

building workers which came into operation that month.

For more than 2,400,000 workers in the engineering, shipbuilding, electrical goods, vehicles and metal industries, the increase boosted the weekly wage bill for the year by £1,300,000. To the individual it represented an average hike of about 11 shillings a week.

The same increase granted railwaymen in November, not only increased the current wage outlay by more than £100,000, but brought a weekly increase of £840,000 during the year to 1,270,000 transport and communications workers.

It is estimated that the wage boost given mine workers in December will cost the National Coal Board about £26,000,000 a year, adding another £500,000 to the nation's weekly pay-roll.

A government wage concession to 600,000 civil servants is expected early in the new year. It is expected the average increase will be around eight or nine per cent—the largest civil service pay increase since the war.

Repercussion In Forest License

Repercussions are expected over the provincial government's decision to grant a forest management license in the Sumas Mountain area, near Chilliwack.

A Vancouver lawyer, representing five companies operating in the general area, has filed an appeal against the cabinet's decision approving Clayburn's application. The appeal will be heard before the cabinet at a date yet to be fixed.

The five protesting companies, believed all controlled by one man, are Mission Forest Products Ltd., Mission Sawmills Ltd., Herman Sawmills Ltd., Collins and Mackin and the Skyline Logging Company.

Some of the timber granted in the license is believed to have been sought by the Skyline Logging Company last year.

It is understood there is a controversy going on in the communities in and around Mission. One faction is in favor of the license being granted, and another is not.

Evans, Coleman and Evans Ltd. has an interest in Clayburn Co. Ltd.

MONTREAL (CP)—Officials of the placement service at McGill University estimate more than 1,000 students will go on the list seeking part-time jobs to earn extra money. On New Year's Eve a flat $5 rate was paid for baby-sitters.

Russia May Not Want War But It Does Not Want Real Peace

Anyone surveying the latest events in the power struggle known as the cold war must come to the conclusion that while the Soviet Russian government plainly does not want a war, it apparently does not want a real peace with the West either, writes Joseph C. Harsh in the Christian Science Monitor.

This is not a novel conclusion about the men of the Kremlin. It is what many an expert on Russia, including Winston Churchill, Britain's Prime Minister, frequently has concluded over the past strenuous and dangerous years. What is new is a series of events which combine to provide fresh documentation in support of the old and established conclusions.

The most dramatic and revealing of these events has been the story of the four American fliers finally released from Hungarian prison. This has been a dangerous incident.

It is precisely the kind of thing which angers western man with his regard for fair play for the individual and which seems so unimportant to eastern man with his lack of concern for the individual.

U.S. CITIZENS AROUSED
The imprisonment, trial and flogging of the four fliers aroused American public opinion as it has been aroused only twice before over these past six years—once over the Communist coup in Czechoslovakia and once over the outbreak of the Korean war.

No one can say what the result would have been if the Soviets had carried out their apparent intention of staging a big public trial and convicting them on the charges of sabotage and espionage. One can only be sure that the usual Communist treatment meted out to the wandering four would have produced a degree of tension so high that war very possibly could have resulted.

Probably the Russians themselves did not appreciate at the beginning the dangers inherent in the situation. Certainly the fate of the four was uncertain in the extreme until December 22, when the State Department sent direct to Moscow an urgent warning that it would be making a grave mistake to underestimate American public reaction.

From the moment of that warning, matters took a sharp turn for the better. The Hungarians did not stage a public spy or sabotage trial, and they limited the charges to the technical matter of border violation. They then meted out a sentence based on the technically accurate contention that there had been an illegal border crossing. Then they released the four fliers.

FACE-SAVING EFFORT
American public opinion is outraged over the $34,000 fines which appear to Americans like medieval ransom, but to the experts who have followed the case closely, the important thing is not the highhanded and unreasonable matter of the ransom device but rather the fact that the four men were "deported" from Hungary after "nothing more than a trial on technicalities and a dollar fine."

By western standards, the whole affair is outrageous. By Asiatic standards, the Communist government of Hungary barely salvaged a minimum amount of face and actually backed way down in an obvious, if clumsy, effort to avoid real trouble. One must assume that Moscow ordered Budapest to close out the affair as speedily as possible in a manner which would avert serious explosion.

However, it is equally obvious that Moscow did not require of Hungary a means of settlement which would have seemed truly conciliatory to the West.

Two other stories can be read in conjunction with the one of the four fliers.

In Korea this week, as for several weeks past, truce talks dragged on at a pace just sufficient to keep them going, but not fast enough to produce any real relaxation of tensions. Here, as in respect to the fliers, Moscow's policy obviously was one of avoiding a turn of events which might lead toward war, but equally one not calculated to produce any real easing of tensions.

Also last week Moscow agreed to receive as the new United States ambassador in Russia George F. Kennan, but accompanied the diplomatic agreement with newspaper slaps at Mr. Kennan, charging him, falsely, with directing anti-Russian subversive operations in the United States.

BRIDGE KEPT OPEN
Here again we must conclude that Moscow, far from being engaged in any final bridge-burning operation, is being most careful to keep a minimum number of bridges open to the West, but has no desire to see really tree and friendly traffic moving over those bridges.

In brief, Moscow . . . got the four fliers released ungraciously, accepted Mr. Kennan's appointment ungraciously, and directed Korean negotiations toward an ungracious truce. Stated differently, Moscow continued to do the minimum necessary to keep world tensions from mounting to the danger point, but nothing which would really contribute toward a removal of those tensions.

Ever since the Korean truce talks really got down to serious business, the experts on Russia in western capitals have been going over their calculations and assessments and rereading their histories of Soviet behavior. There was a period, at the beginning of the Korean war, when all the old calculations were subjected to serious doubt. Many began to suspect that Russia had decided to move into a phase of direct military action.

Now, after a month of hard truce talking, after the acceptance of Mr. Kennan, and after the release of the four fliers, the experts feel justified in returning to their original theories.

More than ever they are convinced that the key to Soviet behavior is the fact that the Soviet regime operates on the conscious and deliberate theory that its survival in power in Russia depends on avoidance of war, but maintenance of the state of tension which we of the West have labelled the cold war.

Who For Governors?

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (P)—Suggestions that the governor-general might be selected from outstanding personalities in other British Commonwealth countries are being discussed with interest in New Zealand.

Commenting on an editorial in the Vancouver Sun approving such a step, the Auckland Star commends the idea and says it is eminently worthy of careful consideration by the New Zealand government.

The Sun editorial said: "The world would sit up and take notice if Canada decided to draw her governors-general from any or every part of the British Commonwealth of Nations. That would rekindle the Commonwealth spirit. It would typify Commonwealth unity. It would be a sign and signal to mankind that ideals still transcend power blocs and political currents."

A new governor-general of New Zealand will be appointed in midsummer. In the past the appointment has always been filled by nominations from Britain. A change was made with the appointment of Lord Freyberg to the position immediately after the Second World War. Although he had not lived in New Zealand for many years he had grown up in New Zealand and is Lt.-Gen. Sir Bernard Freyberg, V.C., led the Dominion's forces overseas throughout the war.

New Zealand thus followed the example of several other Dominions by appointing one of its own sons as governor-general. Lord Freyberg's term has been extended until June, 1952, because of the royal tour, and speculation is rising as to his successor. There is no New Zealander with anything like the prestige which Lord Freyberg won among his countrymen by his exploits as a leader in two world wars.

There was a suggestion that New Zealand might make a gesture to its Maori race by nominating Sir Peter Buck, world famous Maori scientist, to the post, but he died recently and there is no other Maori leader of sufficient stature to be acceptable to both Europeans and Maoris as governor-general.

This leaves the field very open for such proposals as that of extending the Commonwealth concept a step further by nominating some distinguished citizen of another Dominion.

WAR ON SKEETERS

WINNIPEG (P)—Annual report of the Greater Winnipeg anti-mosquito campaign showed more than 11,000 acres of likely breeding grounds were sprayed with oil and insecticide. Fourteen municipalities contributed more than $12,000 to the 1951 campaign.

Poorly-attended free-for-all Wrangell Wolves edge Booth Rainmakers by four points in the total point, two-point game. Score was 42-30 last night. Score was 42-30 last night. Score was 42-30 last night.

High scorer was Wrangell's Anderson who poured in 15 points in the first half, then was whisked off the floor for a flagrant foul. Referees held Anderson deliberately tripped Rainmakers' Young.

Last half was mostly rough-house play as 28 personal fouls were called on the visitors and 21 on the local students. Bradshaw and Schwartz were sent to the showers via the foul route as well as Letourneau.

Future For Skiing On Mount Hays

Deep snow—between six and eight feet—on the slopes of Mt. Hays is of a better texture for the time of year than has been seen for some time, local skiers report. And one of the best spots to enjoy this winter is the newly opened run located halfway between the ski village and the plateau run at the ski tow.

At present, only those earnestly interested in skiing or getting a picture of winter's true wonderland attempt the half-hour moderately strenuous hike which leads from Fairview Road to the ski village. From the cabins, it's another half-hour, but easier-going hike to the main ski run.

Club members often fondly think of what a chair-lift could do for skiing here. Many believe it would open up Mt. Hays to one of the finest tourists trades in the country for the locality has one of the longest good skiing seasons in the province, often lasting well into May.

Such development, however, is not a project the Ski Club could undertake. It would have to be a commercialized effort, and such capital—if ever—could be attracted here, local skiers will continue to do their week-end stint. Climb the mountain Saturday afternoon or night, then enjoy skiing all Sunday, returning to their homes in the evening.

The cabins are considered a luxury by club members who purchased the former Mt. Hays Army camp or some dozen buildings including a mess hall complete with fireplace, now the main Ski Lodge.

Prince Rupert Ski Club is a full-time member of the Canadian Amateur Ski Association, western division, and expects this year to have free skiing instruction by recently arrived Henry Skaladney, former Czechoslovakian Olympic Games entry.

Vanderhoof Wins Hockey

VANDERHOOF—Hockey league games between Williams Lake and Vanderhoof which were played on Sunday resulted in scores of 5 to 3 and 9 to 4 in favor of Vanderhoof.

A good crowd turned out to see the two games and the players were well rewarded. Vanderhoof now is feeling their strength. They play Prince George two return games on home ice, one on Tuesday and one on Friday.

Midgets Play Hockey Games

TELKWA—The Smithers Midgets played the Telkwa Midgets on Sunday here, with a tie result. The game was hotly contested and gave the spectators quite a thrill.

The midget games have provided good hockey with fast playing on both sides. Although the Smithers boys are larger, the Telkwa lads can hold their own and it looks as though some embryonic hockey players may be in the making along this north line.

Eight Entries In Chess Tourney

Eight entries will play in the Civic Centre chess tournament, now under way. Names drawn for the round-robin tourney show the following pairs in first and second rounds:

First round—G. H. Trapp vs. D. W. Carr-Harris; J. W. Stokes vs. Archie Mitchell; Rev. H. G. Bird vs. S. White; Jack Stirn vs. Larry Stanwood.
Second round—Trapp vs. Stokes; Carr-Harris vs. Mitchell; Bird vs. Stirn, and White vs. Stanwood.

Play-offs will be in one game rounds, two points given for a win, one for a draw. Meanwhile, the checker tourney draws will be announced tomorrow.

Remember when?

Joe Louis defeated Buddy Baer after two minutes 56 seconds of the first round, in his 21st consecutive ring victory since winning the world heavyweight title from James Braddock. The Brown Bomber had Buddy down twice in that fight, nine years ago tonight at New York, before Baer finally collapsed.

European Ball Team May Visit

PARIS—European baseball players hope to compete in the future against American teams. Luis Barrio, president of the Baseball Federation of Spain, told reporters recently.

Barrio is winding up a trip through Europe with the aim of starting an international federation as a basis for a world federation.

Baseball is played in Europe in an amateur way in France, Belgium, Holland, Germany, Italy, Great Britain, and Spain. Barrio plans a baseball congress at Madrid next spring.

American soldiers' teams from West Germany will be requested to enter the European organization.

The Spanish federation lists 70 teams. There are 180 baseball teams of record in the Netherlands where the sport has been played more than 40 years.

If you knew all this about ELECTRIC COOKING . . . would you want to cook any other way?

IT'S CLEAN! Clean as your electric light. Cooking heat comes from a wire. No combustion—no soot, no grime. Utensils, kitchen walls and curtains stay cleaner.

IT'S ECONOMICAL! There's no waste! The average cost of electricity for medium sized families using electric range, water heater, lights and other appliances runs around $2.00 a week.

IT'S AUTOMATIC! Freedom from the kitchen. Slip a meal in the oven. Set time and temperature controls—on your way. Control turns oven on, cooks meal, turns off—all automatically.

IT'S FAST! Electricity provides fast, clean heat. Surface units cook by direct contact with utensil bottom. Completely insulated oven retains heat to cook with maximum speed.

IT'S ACCURATE! Electricity can be accurately measured and controlled. Every switch setting gives the same amount of heat every time. No fluctuation. To good cooks that's important.

IT'S MODERN! An electric range offers you all the modern features you desire plus the advantages of efficient electricity—truly a cleaner, easier, more practical way of cooking.

These six advantages only tell you part of the wonderful story on electric cooking. So before you buy your next range, talk it over with a friend who cooks electrically. She will give you more facts. Then see your Electric Range Dealer or call at our store for a revealing demonstration . . . and start to enjoy this easier, better way to cook—today!

Two and one-half feet of snow has fallen here since the beginning of the year. Up until then this community had been congratulating itself on a light snowfall. If the month of January is anything like preceding ones there should be plenty of snow by the end of the month.

Effect of Price Fix Ban—Chaos

TORONTO — Merchants all across Canada have been spending hours in conferences following passage of legislation to outlaw resale price maintenance.

Chaos for producer, distributor and consumer is the first clearcut effect.

Price cutting has the public confused and bewildered. It no longer knows a bargain when it sees one. Some dealers say the price war has had the opposite effect in some cases; customers are suspicious of bargain prices, afraid of getting stuck with second-grade, or that they won't be able to get service.

For the consumer, at the start, it appears that the new law is having some effect in lowering prices.

The reason for this: January sales which come every year regardless of anything.

Some merchandise outfits which have said an end to RPM would lower prices are having January sales to "prove" their point.

But whether price cuts for January sales are higher because of the end of RPM than they otherwise have been, is something that only major merchandise executives and their consciences really know.

Typical and traditional price cuts for January sales on run-of-mill soft goods are 10% to 25%. Because inventories in this line are currently high, January sales price cuts would have been generous regardless of eruptions on the RPM front.

Some merchandise organizations, which have proclaimed the

"Starlift" Is Star Show

"STARLIFT," story of Hollywood stars, dozens of them, who travel to an air force base to entertain the troops, makes interesting entertainment for the Capitol Theatre this Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The picture is replete with a variety of individual acts and appearances and is one of those "hundred shows in one" pieces.

Such stars as Doris Day, Ruth Roman, Virginia Mayo, James Cagney, Gary Cooper, Frank Lovejoy, Lucille Norman, Randolph Scott, Jane Wyman, Gordon MacRae, Gene Nelson, Janice Rule and Dick Wesson have prominent parts, each fitted to their particular talents.

Totem Showing Lively Comedy

Romantic comedy tailor-made for the particular talents of Van Johnson and June Allyson is promised for Totem Theatre-goers in "Too Young to Kiss" which is coming this Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

June is seen as a young concert pianist who is constantly thwarted in her attempt to get an audition from concert manager Van Johnson. In desperation she finally crashes a children's audition in the guise of a thirteen-year-old and Van thinks he has discovered a new child prodigy. Circumstances force June to continue the masquerade and even to live at Van's country house in preparation for her first concert, an experience which not only brings about hilarious complications but also results in repercussions on June's irate fiancé. The manner in which the fraud is finally brought to light makes for a fast and furious climax.

Torontonians Settle Down

TORONTO (CP)—Torontonians settled down Tuesday to live without street cars but another and more serious crisis—a gas strike—had been discussed.

As 700,000 residents and 600,000 others in adjoining municipalities dug in for the duration of the transit strike, they were relieved of the possibility of the walkout of some 700 gas workers. An agreement had been reached between the gas company and union negotiators.

A gas strike would have affected 250,000 homes and 700 industrial and commercial firms. Gas workers had voted to strike sins of RPM are making a greater show of cutting prices—at least temporarily.

Another piece of truth that is hard to come by is what the effect of burying RPM will be when January sales are over and "normal" pricing is resumed.

"Chaos? It's chaos, triple distilled," said one confused, troubled merchandiser.

"Everything is up in the air—and spinning." "Short and longer term buying plans, advertising, the making of catalogues. It's the worst mess I've ever seen, and I've yet to see any indication that there will be any ultimate advantage for the consumer when the balloon collapses.

"Remember, price wars never last long, only a very few consumers benefit, even temporarily, and in the end everybody gets hurt."

Breaks Away From Towboat

LONDON (CP)—The hurricane-battered freighter Flying Enterprise broke away from the British tug Turmoil when the towline severed in rough seas and the vessel was adrift again in the Atlantic Ocean 53 miles from the port of Falmouth where it was expected. Capt. Kurt Carlsen and his ship would have made safe haven today after their dramatic experiences.

However, the captain of the Turmoil expected to be able to get another line aboard the listing vessel today.

With Capt. Carlsen strolling the slanting deck of his vessel and shouting out jubilantly that everything was O.K., the freighter began veering erratically at the end of two ropes yesterday morning and forcing a slowdown. The tug steamed on at a walking pace but the seas became rougher and finally the lines parted.

At that the weather is still considered good for January days. By sticking by his battered ship, which was said to be slowly sinking today, Capt. Carlsen could be saving his company more than $1,000,000. Maritime authorities here made this estimate today on the basis of international maritime law. Had he abandoned the vessel, it could be a big salvage prize.

It marks the first time that big industry has by-passed coastal timber stands for the forests of British Columbia's hinterland.
