Radio-Telephone Plans

A LTHOUGH it requires a technician to under-/ I stand fully the North-West Telephone Company's plans for improving radio-telephone service in this area, one important fact which can be appreciated by all is the intention to centralize the service in Prince Rupert.

Since the city is the home of a great fishing industry and headquarters of the district's Indian affairs branch, there are special reasons why it should be considered the base of operations for such a system. Yet its surrounding topography is by no means ideally suited to radio communications, and any company undertaking the project might easily find excuses to make a less satisfactory arrangement.

To overcome the difficulty, North-West Telephone is thinking of establishing medium frequency sending and receiving stations in the relatively unobstructed locale of Masset. Connection with Prince Rupert would then be maintained by the --- VHF link which is as reliable as a delephone line in the service it provides.

To serve logging interests on the Charlottes, It is also planned to install VHF facilities at Queen - Charlotte City. In addition, the magic of VHF is expected to bring Prince Rupert—and Kitimat in touch by radio-telephone with Vancouver.

Of course, there are certain immediate problems to be met. One of the most serious affects ship-to-shore communications in this area. Because radio waves have a strange way of bouncing off the upper atmosphere and returning to ca earth hundreds of miles away, Prince Rupert fishermen at sea frequently find their wireless communications interrupted by traffic emanating from Astoria, Washington. This has been known to drown out radio talk right in Prince Rupert harbor. Interference from Ketchikan is also experienced.

But North-West Telephone appears determined that this area, which is so dependent on radio-telephone service, will get what it wants. It is a test for private enterprise which will be watched with interest.

He thinks North America is wide open to attack. Hence, he proposes to introduce a bill in the American Senate to set up a unified command for all the defences of North America.

It would be difficult to imagine a more mischievous proposal, coming in such a way.

Long before there was any such thing as a North Atlantic Treaty Organization; and, indeed, even before the U.S.A. had completely abandoned her "go 15 alone" isolationism, Canada had agreed to enter the joint defence board with the U.S.A.

This joint defence board has worked admirably. No serious difficulties have arisen which were not soluble on a basis common sense and good will. There have been from time time quite divergent attitudes between the American and Canadian sides of the conference table. But these have always been reconciled. Up to now, there has been a genuine meeting o minds.

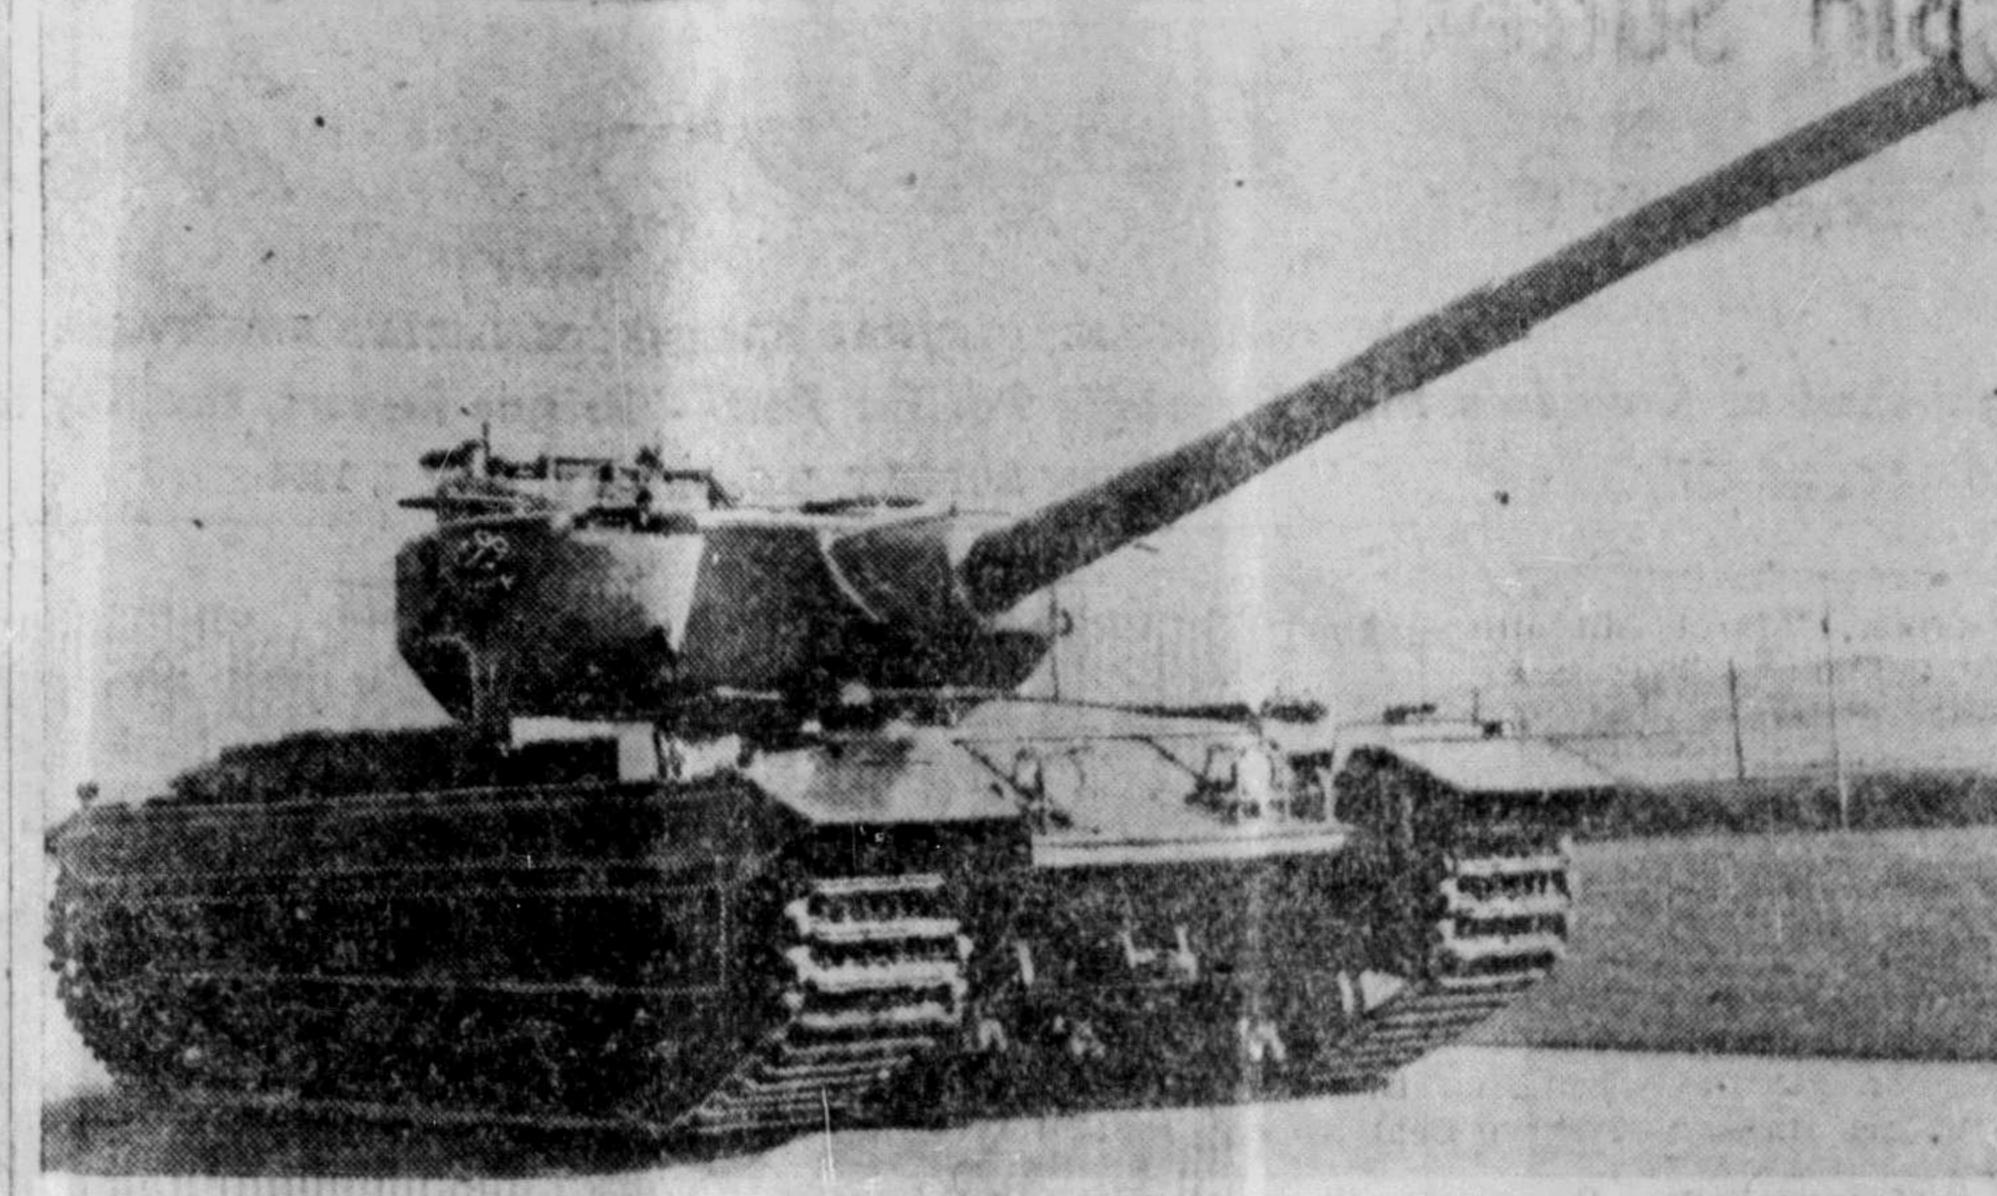

Canada did more to initiate MINERS FREED and promote the whole idea of NATO than did any other country. Indeed, it is by no means certain that U.S. public opinion could have been solidified behind the idea of stationing American troops in Europe had not her next door neighbor, Canada, already agreed to do exactly the

THE STARVING WORLD of tomorrow will depend on food provided by man-made moons launched into outer space to move in regular or bits around the earth, according to the story. "Moon Farms to Banish Starvation" in the May issue of Mechanix Illustrated magazine. Their principal product will be algae, a new food substitute recently discovered by scientists, which is rich in vitamins A and B1 and has a far greater protein content than meat, fish or fowl. The "moons" probably will be saucer-shaped with growing tubes concentrically arranged on the upper deck; drying and collecting equipment, storage bins, living quarters for the workers and other equipment will be housed in the shallow bowl beneath. A tubular dock in the lower portion of the artificial satellite will allow for docking of the cargo ships that carry produce back to the earth daily.

Canadian actor Hume Cronyn will star at 8:30 tonight in "A Letter for Evie," a comedy drama over CFPR on Ford Theatre. He will be heard in the role of a soldier who accidentally promotes a romance between a girl back home and his army buddy. The fun starts when the girl tucks a letter in the pocket of a shirt being sent in a shipment of army clothing. The soldier who receives the shirt writes her a touching letter and, because he is definitely not the tall and handsome type, encloses a picture of an army buddy who does fill those qualifications.

Romance blooms between the girr and this army friend but a series of highly amusing mistaken identity incidents follow resulting in a Linux climax when the girl must choose, between the letter writer and his friend.

Good Fit, Right Trump Plays Work 'Miracle'

A good fit between declarer's hand and dummy, plus proper handling of the trump suit, can work magic. And Miss Brash has to be on the receiving end of some kind of miracle in order to bring home some of her wild contracts.

He decided on the normal opening of the king of clubs and dummy's ace won. Miss Brash promptly laid down the ace and king of spades and found out she had a trump loser when Mr. Abel discarded the eight of diamonds.

With no show of surprise or disappointment, she proceeded as follows. She led a small heart to the king, returned a club and ruffed it. She cashed the ace of hearts, then rufted a heart on the board. She ruffed another club in her hand and now led her last heart. If Mr. Champion ruffed at this point, Miss Brash would merely sluff a diamond from the board, losing only two diamonds and the trump trick.

So Mr. Champion descarded a club and Miss Brash ruffed in dummy. She led back dummy's last club and ruffed with her last trump. Fuming now, Mr. Champion had to follow suit-and that was Miss Brash's tenth trick.

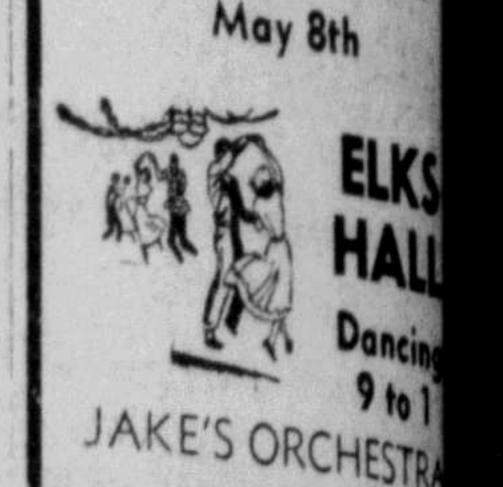

"Horrible bidding," said Mr.

"No worse than the defense."
