Do Not Turn Clock Back

THERE is a point to the resolution adopted by the city drydock and shipyard committee which at first may escape attention. If it is thought that the proposal to have service on the northern line transferred from the CNR to another company is fantastic, let it be remembered that closing down the drydock and shipyard is equally so.

Had those who championed Prince Rupert as a major Pacific port at the turn of the century seen the opportunities opening up here today, they would have been more than ever convinced in the rightness of their cause.

Regardless of the figures showing large annual losses, there is no doubt that under an enterprising management the plant could be making headway. It has been brought out in discussion at the drydock committee meetings that several exceptional opportunities to do business in the past year or so were entirely ignored. The members were speaking of their own experience, so it may be assumed that other opportunities outside this circle were also missed.

While much emphasis has been placed on the repair of small boats, it must be remembered that the plant's capabilities extend far beyond jobs of this sort. One informed observer has remarked that the machine shop is one of the best equipped in western Canada. With the establishment of Alcan at Kitimat and the expanding needs of the Columbia Cellulose mill, the possibilities of doing industrial work here are taking on immense size and promise.

But apparently few, if any, of these have been explored. Since it is the CNR policy not to solicit business for the plant in competition with private firms (though this policy evidently does not extend to the rest of the CNR's operations), the activity has been at a low level which, in effect, has been imposed on it by the management.

Perhaps this policy is the correct one, and perhaps it is not. But whatever the case, it cannot be used as an argument that there is not sufficient business out here and that therefore the plant must close down.

If the CNR is unable to alter its policy, then someone else must take responsibility for ensuring continuation of operations until another company is found which can do business without such restrictions. From this distance, it would seem that the burden is on the federal government whose action is withdrawing financial assistance started all this trouble in the first place.

Prince Rupert was founded on the promise that it would become a major port on the Pacific coast. Despite the obstacles which have been almost deliberately set in its way, that promise now shows more chance than ever of coming true. Immediately north and south of us, and at Prince Rupert itself, there has been industrial development never dreamed of a few years ago.

In view of this, it is surely not the time to check our progress once more and closure of the drydock and shipyard will not just that. The spurious claim that there is no business for the plant could turn the clock back for this city by 40 years. May guilt lie heavily on the government which accepts it!

Ray REFLECTS and REMINISCES

The world has become a virtual paradise for pessimists. There's continually an ample supply of things to worry and complain about. Just what would we do, anyhow, without cold enough July and wet Augusts.

Most of us refuse to trust people for two reasons. First we are not acquainted with them. Second, because we are.

Woe! note from Windsor: "There's nothing sure but death, taxes, and beer."

TIME SOFTENED WALLS

The St. Lawrence Highway will swallow hundreds of treasure-laden homes in the Cornwall region of Ontario where successive generations have lived since the days of the American revolution and the United Empire Loyalists. These were given valuable land grants along the river, down from the highway, the path leads to many a beautiful red brick house, its time-softened walls covered with ivy, its pleasant sweeping lawns bordered with hedges and elms. Most of these old families have clung tenaciously to their original grants of land. It will be hard for them to give up the homes which they have cherished over the years. For you can't put a price-tag on history or buy memories at so much a yard.

Ontario followed British Columbia and on July 1 gave the Indians the right to drink in public licensed premises, comments the Ottawa Journal. They were dire predictions, but to date not a single complaint has been received about Indians conduct. In British Columbia Indians have been found as temperate as their pale face friends and often more so.

Where do nudists go in the winter? Like the flies and swallows they seem to vanish at least from public interest. In summer, wherever they go, they go together, but winter restores normalcy quicker than any other agent. Thirty below is the time for furs, and the cult of nudism quickly subsides.

All Aboard OTTAWA DIARY

By G. E. MORTIMORE

There was only one reason why Florence Chadwick, famous long-distance swimmer, failed so badly to swim the Strait of Juan de Fuca from Victoria, B.C., to Port Angeles, Washington State.

Miss Chadwick was robbed of triumph by a major blunder in navigation. For some reason, nobody has been brave enough to say so. There seems to be a conspiracy of silence about it.

Unless Miss Chadwick's navigator has learned a lesson by the fiasco, he could make a batch of the coming Lake Ontario swim as well.

If Miss Chadwick's planning staff had deliberately figured out the worst possible hour for her to start her swim, they could not have done a better job of ensuring her defeat.

Brushing aside the advice of men who knew local waters, the big intellects in charge of the swim launched Miss Chadwick at such a time that she would have been forced to fight contrary tides for more than 14 hours. She never stood a chance of swimming the strait under those tide conditions.

A veteran mariner, ex-sealing ship man and fisherman, Max Lohbrunner of Victoria, who knows the coast like his back yard, was asked to prepare a course for the swim.

He spent many hours drafting a route that would take the least time and effort and gain the most help from the tides. He figured it for several dates. The management of the swim wanted August 9, to cash in on British Empire Games publicity and bring big-shot newsmen from all over the world.

A later date would have been better but Max drafted a good enough time and route for August 9 anyway. Then he tried to get in touch with officials of the swim again. They were always "in conference" or "out just now." Nobody ever came to see Max.

When Max and other veteran seamen heard that Miss Chadwick would hit the water at 4:45 a.m., they spat out some salty oaths. Unless she had an outboard motor hooked on her bathing cap, she couldn't make it. Furthermore, the starting time was calculated to take her right through sewage which tides had swept into her path.

Miss Chadwick quit after five hours, less than seven miles from her starting point. She was losing ground. If she had swum for another five hours, she would have got no further ahead.

Max Lohbrunner's plan would have started her at 1:30 p.m. In eight hours she would have been in Port Angeles, with the tides working for her nearly all the way.

What caused the officials to start the swim at a time when it was bound to fail? Over-confidence and conflicting advice. Swim officials consulted navy men, tugboat men and hydrographic survey. They squabbled among themselves. But they ignored the very men they should have heeded—fishermen and old sailing ship mariners.

Miss Chadwick's navigator doesn't know the tricky waters of the Strait of Juan de Fuca, where you need four sets of tide and slack water tables, plus local experience in small boats.

Florence Chadwick failed because of mistaken guidance.

KILLED BY KINDNESS

KEEGAN, RAY. G.—Young seals left high and dry on the Lincolnshire coast that normally wait for high tide to reflect them are in some cases being carried to pools by strangers. Because they then bear the smell of human hands they are abandoned by the parent seals.

The diligent and often heartening Dominion Bureau of Statistics has gathered facts and figures which indicate that the pendulum of British overseas investment is swinging strongly once again in Canada's direction.

Since the close of the Second World War, United Kingdom capital has been responsible for the establishment of 81 new industries in Canada. Numerically this figure trails far behind the 307 new plants that United States investment has financed. But in the matter of volume of employment created the British are running the Americans a neck-and-neck race. The new plants financed from Britain have created 25,000 new jobs, as against 27,000 new jobs created by the off-shoots of United States investment.

The DBS figures show that prior to the First World War, the United Kingdom accounted for 85 per cent of all foreign investment in Canada, as against only 14 per cent by the United States. Now the situation is approximately reversed: United States capital represents 80 per cent of all foreign investment, and British capital less than 13 per cent. There is a general belief in the public mind that the decline of British investment in Canada is due to the liquidation by the United Kingdom of its Canadian securities to meet the costs of two world wars. This isn't, however, the whole story. For between the First and Second World Wars British investment here continued to drop by more than $100,000,000.

The real fact seems to be that in the era between the two world wars opportunities for international investment were plentiful all over the globe. And in several countries the rate of return was more attractive than Canada offered. As a consequence, British capital tended to flow into the areas offering the highest rewards—the Middle East and Asia especially.

But following the Second World War this policy led to such unhappy experiences as the Anglo-Iranian oil situation, the trouble with Communist uprisings in Asia, and other nationalistic and cavalier treatment of British investment. The British learned the hard way that political stability and respect for foreign capital were worth more in the long run than a high rate of return.

That is why Canada now is getting its second big influx from the British investor. In the unsettled world of today this is one of the few countries which combines respect and fair treatment for foreign capital with an expanding economy which offers outstanding opportunities for profitable investment. The United States and the United Kingdom both realize this and are funneling their surplus funds in this direction. Parliament Hill economists do not see how the situation can fail to produce a spectacular era of Canadian expansion and development in the years immediately ahead.

For new furniture; $634 for linen; $412 for art; $3,361 for new electrical fixtures.

The recent visit to B.C. of the Duke of Edinburgh didn't cost the B.C. Government one cent, as far as can be learned. Such items, however, are always buried by governments until Public Accounts are released to the Legislature, usually about a year after the money has been spent. In that way there can't be any embarrassing legislative arguments about it.

Looking back into B.C. public accounts we see that entertaining royalty isn't like entertaining ordinary folk. There must be many, many extras, not that Royalty demands them, perhaps, but local officials dearly love spending the people's money on pomp and circumstance in which they can shine.

British Columbians are never mean when Royalty is to be entertained. They go all out. The 1939 visit to this province of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth cost the people of B.C. $41,344. The bill for the government luncheon at the Empress Hotel, for instance, was nearly $5,000. Mind you it was a bare-up luncheon, with champagne and special cigars, and a lot of prominent British Columbians got in on it, so they thought the money very well spent indeed.

The 1951 visit to B.C. of the Queen, when she was Princess Elizabeth, and the Duke of Edinburgh, cost B.C. taxpayers $35,351. This included a government luncheon at the Empress Hotel with the tab marked $4,300, and $10,000 for a gift of platinum diamond and emerald jewelry for the Princess, and presents for Prince Charles and Princess Anne.

For the Royal visit the government helped cut Nanaimo with $2,000; Vancouver with $1,717; Victoria, the capital, got $3,500 because the Royal couple were longer here than anywhere else in the province.

For the Princess and the Duke too, the government spent nearly $50,000 prettying up Government House, so that it would be a fitting place for a future Queen. Unfortunately, in the prettying-up process the ancient Indian motif murals in the ballroom were wiped out.

In Public Accounts we see some of these Government House items: $1,351 for silver; $13,000

VICTORIA Report

by J. K. Hesbitt

VICTORIA—Canadian National Exhibition officials in Toronto are horrified because it will cost between $28,000 and $45,000 to bring the Duchess of Kent, her Princess daughter and an entourage of seven to Canada, where the Duchess will open this Autumn's exhibition.

It's a lot of money, all right, but then, Royal visits never come cheap. Looking back into B.C. public accounts we see that entertaining royalty isn't like entertaining ordinary folk. LETTERBOX

LACK OF PUBLICITY

The Editor,
The Daily News:

We have a drill team in this city known as the Jot's Daughters Drill Team which has made a name for itself and which over the years has become known nation-wide, both in Canada and the United States. A few years ago the drill team won international honors and later appeared at the National Exhibition in Toronto, where it received a hearty welcome from the Torontonians in the grand stand.

Recently, after several weeks of intense training, the team journeyed to Kelowna and was again well received.

In the days of the late Mr. Hunter, as editor of The Daily News, these doings of the young ladies from Prince Rupert were noted and the people here were kept in touch with their activities.

But it seems now that The Daily News has seen fit to ignore this local drill team and their hard-working leaders Mr. and Mrs. Alex Mitchell, who are advertising Prince Rupert much more than your local paper.

Though we understand you received pictures of the team a week before its departure not one picture or word of the team has appeared in the Prince Rupert Daily News to date. Why?

A. C. BAIN,
Prince Rupert.

Big Carnival, Swim Contest Set This Week

With three special events, carnival, picnic trip and swim day scheduled, youngsters of the McClymont Park playground program are in for one of the biggest weeks of the season.

The children are all set for their big events, opening with the penny carnival and masquerade Thursday. In this event, the youngsters will operate booths, selling a wide variety of articles, some made themselves, most garnered from city homes, at a penny per item. They also will dress up in weird costumes to compete for prizes.

OPENS AT 1:30 P.M.

The carnival will open at 1:30 p.m. at McClymont Park, and remain open till 5 p.m., re-opening at 7 p.m. to continue till 9:30. Judging of the masquerade is scheduled for 3 p.m. In the event of rain, the carnival will move to the Civic Centre.

Friday will see the kiddies on another jaunt to Salt Lakes, meeting at McClymont at 10 a.m. Some will stay behind to clean up the park after the carnival. Friday evening the weekly bonfire will be staged, with children bringing their own weiners and marshmallows to roast.

BIG SWIM MEET

Sunday, swimming classes throughout the season will be climaxed by the annual Swim Day, sponsored by the city parks board and The Daily News.

Youngsters are hoping for a big audience for the event which, after the official opening at 2 p.m., will see swimming races and diving competitions among youngsters of all ages, a non-competitive swimming and diving display, water clowning by funnymen Pat Bolton, Bill Sunberg and Mel Skalmerud, and an inhalator squad display. Capping the day will be presentation of prizes, including the Daily News trophy.

Roman Catholics Take No Part In World Council

EVANSTON, ILL. (AP)—Roman Catholics are not participating, either actively or as observers, in the World Council of Churches.

Members of that faith were barred from the international assembly by Samuel Cardinal Stritch, Archbishop of Chicago. In a letter dated June 29 he set forth the church's historic position on such assemblies and said the church bars its members from any activity "based on the false assumption that Roman Catholics, too, are still searching for the truth of Christ."

He added: "for to do so would be to admit that she is but one of the many forms in which the true church of Christ, may or may not exist... such an admission she can never make, for she is now as she has always been the one and only spouse of Christ, the one and only mystical body of Christ, the one and only church of Christ."

Among the denominations taking part in the world council is a group of Christians who identify themselves as "Old Catholics." These Catholics broke from Rome in the 19th century.

The schism occurred when they refused to accept the dogma of infallibility of the Pope as adopted by the Vatican council in 1870. One of these sects is the Syrian Church of Antioch, also known as the Jacobite Apostolic Church.

Natives Hail Anti-Segregation Move at Namu

Hailed by spokesmen of the Native Brotherhood of B.C. as a "blow against racial discrimination" was a move by cannery workers at Namu recently in demanding removal of segregation signs from rest rooms at the cannery.

A news release from the Brotherhood today reports that a meeting of 154 brotherhood and union members of the cannery voted unanimously to do away with signs, "Natives Only" and "Whites Only" on the women's rest rooms.

OLD GRIEVANCE

The issue of the signs had been raised in 1953 by Brotherhood Business Agent Alfred Seow, who had asked the management for removal of the signs with no results. Raised again this year in a grievance session between brotherhood and union and management, the issue had brought a promise from management that if the workers objected to the signs, they would be removed.

Mr. Seow reports that, as far as he knows, the offensive signs have been removed, and hails the move as an indication of improved relationships among all cannery workers, white and native.

"The Brotherhood press release says the move 'shows that the new accepted, but bigoted, concept of the superiority of the white man, is no longer 'all the rage.'"

LABOR COUNCIL Gets Park Booth

The Prince Rupert Trades and Labor Council was given permission to operate a concession booth at Roosevelt Park on Labor Day.

The City Parks Board gave the T.L.C. the green light after they decided to inform Albert Wade, concession owner at McClymont Park that owing to the fact that he had not provided service at other parks in the city, his concession activities were to be confined to the McClymont Park area for the balance of the season.

Honeymoon in Manitoba For Rupert Newlyweds

The city of Russell, Manitoba, is the honeymoon destination of a popular Prince Rupert pair who were married here at an evening ceremony in the Church of the Annunciation Saturday.

The Rev. Fr. M. Shevchuck of Prince George, conducted the 7 p.m. Ukrainian ceremony uniting Helen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Astoria, 238 Seventh Avenue West, and William, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Lopushinsky of Russell, Manitoba.

White and pink carnations banked the altar for the pretty ceremony in which the bride, given in marriage by her father, wore traditional white, while her four attendants formed a rainbow-like picture in their gowns of blue, yellow, mauve and pink.

The bride's lovely gown was of satin, lace and net with mandarin collar on the lace bodice and flaring lace peplum extending over the bouffant skirt of net over satin. A sparkling tiara secured her chapel veil and she carried a colonial bouquet of red roses.

MAIDS IN PASTELS

Mrs. Kenneth Nickel was matron of honor, wearing a gown of blue net and taffeta and carrying a colonial bouquet of pink carnations. Bridesmaids Miss Betty Oskey and Miss Delphine Astoria, sister of the bride, wore gowns of net and taffeta in yellow and mauve, respectively, both carrying mauve and yellow carnations. Miss Heather Baxter, as flower girl, wore a charming frock of pink net over taffeta and carried a nosegay of mixed flowers. All four wore matching headresses.

Mr. Don Hawryluk was groomsmen and ushers were Mr. Paul Lopushinsky and Mr. Kenneth Nickel. Mrs. D. Rowse was organist.

LEGION RECEPTION

The Legion Hall was decked with flowers for the large reception following the ceremony. Candles and flowers graced the nicely-appointed bride's table, which held the four-tier wedding cake.

Assisting in receiving the many guests was the bride's mother, wearing a smart suit of blue taffeta with yellow accessories and corsages of yellow roses.

Serviteurs were Miss Fay Rowe, Miss Evelyn Rowe, Mrs. C. Kurlock, Mrs. C. Daumont, Miss Marie Dvorneck, Mrs. P. Dvorneck and Miss Helen Kondratuk.

For her wedding trip, to Russell, Manitoba, the bride donned a smart brown suit with yellow accessories. Following their four-week honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Lopushinsky will make their

Hawryluk Tops Senior Loop Hitters; G & A's Scherk Brings In Most Runs

Reappearance of Don Hawryluk on the Senior League baseball scene was too late to prevent Esquires from being edged out of the playoffs, but it was in time for him to end up as the league's top hitter, percentage-wise, with an average of .367.

Hawryluk, who played in 10 games, hit 11 times in 30 official trips to the plate, including his one home run attempt to keep his team in the league August 5.

Runner-up spot goes to Commercial's Nick Pavlikis with .344, just two percentage points; up a third place Don Scherk, Gordon and Anderson's back-stop, first baseman and pitcher.

Of the three, Pavlikis has played the most number of games, 23, and has a record of 30 hits in 87 official at bats as opposed to Scherk's 27 for 79.

Scherk, however, leads in the runs batted in department with 17. Terrance's Larry Matthews is second with 16 while Pavlikis and G & A's Dave Hill are third with 15.

Esquires end up with three .300 batters, Hawryluk, Andy Marshall with .341 and Rey McKay with .316. Marshall played in 12 games, McKay 18. Commercial also have three .300 averages, Pavlikis, Bill Gunn with .334 and Jack Lindsay with .328. Scherk is the only one of the league winners with a .300 average.

Lindsay leads in home runs, three, while Pavlikis and Gun-nar Paulsen of Terrace are second with two each.

Fleet-footed Ray Spring of Esquires leads in two departments, Spring stole the most bases, 16 and also struck out the most times, 21.

Batting averages up to August 5 are as follows:

Pirates Going To Have Word On Where '54 Series Played

Three years ago Branch Rickey invited a group of sports writers to attend 1953 world series at Pittsburgh. The only way Pittsburgh will see the 1954 series is television.

But the old master's amazing assortment of greying veterans and fuzzy-cheeked youngsters is apparently going to have a lot to say about where this year's series will be played.

The Pirates own today's longest winning streak in the National League—five games, including a 4-2 triumph Tuesday night over the bewildered Brooklyn Dodgers. Pittsburgh has won nine of the last 11, the best record by a Pirate team since 1940.

Pittsburgh's streak became the longest when Milwaukee Braves were beaten 4-1 by St. Louis, ending a nine-game string. The leading New York Giants capitalized with an 8-3 victory over Philadelphia putting the Giants two full games in front of Brooklyn and 4½ ahead of the Braves.

Max Surkont, the pitcher Milwaukee decided it didn't need this season, beat the Dodgers on five hits. Frank Thomas drove in three of the four runs.

Johnny Antonelli won his 18th game against three losses for the Giants. Bobby Hoffman drove in four runs with a pair of homers and a single. Willie Mays smashed a triple and three singles running his hitting streak to 18 games.

In the American League the Yankees won their eighth in a row 11-1 over Philadelphia, but failed to close the three game gap on Cleveland Indians, who came from behind in the last of the ninth and nipped Detroit 4-3 for their seventh straight win.

Both Chicago teams won doubleheaders. The Cubs whipped Cincinnati 5-0 and 6-1. The White Sox defeated Baltimore 2-0 and 3-1. Boston edged Washington 4-3.

BERNIE CUSTIS, brilliant halfback with Hamilton Tiger-Cats, Grey Cup champions, tosses a forward pass.

Fans Singing Money Blues In Wenatchee

By The Associated Press

Wenatchee Chiefs fans were singing the financial blues Wednesday as a mounting debt threatened to force the community-owned club to give up its Western International League franchise.

Their troubles are identical to those that earlier this season caused Spokane, Calgary and Victoria to drop out of the Class A circuit—too few customers, too few dollars and, in Wenatchee's case, too few victories.

In order to keep their club in operation, Wenatchee fans Tuesday started a door-to-door canvass to raise funds. The Chiefs now are $6,800 in the red and probably will be more than $11,000 behind by the end of this season. The Wenatchee club has been conducting a drive for $10 contributions to raise $5,000 for immediate needs. Treasurer Fred Burnett expressed hope the door-to-door drive would meet this goal.

While the fans were trying to raise dollars at Wenatchee, the Chiefs were having trouble raising enough runs at Yakima and lost to the Bears, 7-3, Tuesday night.

In other games, league-leading Lewiston trimmed Vancouver 7-6 and 8-3, and Edmonton, white-washed Salem, 6-0, to move into second place, just a few percentage points ahead of Yakima.

Edmonton and Yakima now trail the Braves by 4½ games; Vancouver is ½ game out the pace and Seattle leads by 3.

B.C. Lions, Tiger-Cats Meet Tonight

By The Canadian Press

Two exhibition hand-football games are scheduled for tonight. Hamilton Tiger-Cats meet the B.C. Lions at Vancouver and the Edmonton Eskimos are in Kitchener for a meeting with the Kitchener Waterloo Dutchmen.

These are the final two games in the pre-season exhibition series.

The clubs return home to prepare for league openings this month.

Lions' Coach Annis Stukus will go against Tiger-Cats without the services of star kicker Vic Chapman. Chapman is resting an injured knee. Andy Hillhouse, formerly of the Chicago Bears is out with a twisted knee.

OUTDOORS With Marty

One of the greatest destroyers of wild bird-life is the domesticated cat, not only those cats which are completely feral and make their entire life and living away from human beings, but the cat that gets put out of the house just before bedtime. He too is a major culprit, and none of us know precisely what our own pet gets up to when he is away from the house. By nature these animals are nocturnal hunters and eaters of flesh, and in the springtime they capture many young birds as they leave the nest, besides the toll taken of other animals as opportunity offers. All persons who drive the highways by night are familiar with the eyes that shine in the car headlights, most of them are cats and rarely does one get hit by the passing cars.

Cats are known to carry certain diseases, at times their night cries are highly disturbing to light sleepers, yet almost without exception, there is no supervision over their numbers or transgressions. Several states, particularly those with a goodly game bird population, have enacted laws that permit the destruction of cats at large beyond the boundaries of the residence next door to their own, and a number of towns and cities (Seattle among others) have ordinances that call for licensing cats. It would appear that similar measures (in conjunction with the canine ordinance now in the making) would be quite in order hereabouts! The National Association of Audubon Societies, 1775 Broadway, New York City will co-operate with literature on this subject upon request.

Bob Armstrong doing nicely at Cloyah Bay, two bright spring salmon in the thirty pound class fell to his tackle last week; many more awaiting those skillful enough to take them. Cohos expected almost any time now.

A couple of moose have been seen several times near Usk lately, while others range the Kilmat valley; doubtless the opening of this country will bring these creatures into newer pastures, while the local ban on shooting cows should strengthen the herds numbers.

Two recent instances of people using the new under-water fish spearing equipment in near-by fresh water. To this date this method if fish-taking is not legal in this Province, better check before risking a brush with the Game Warden.

When purchasing your new fishing rod, whether fly-rod, spinning-rod or a salt-water rig, be sure that it bends throughout its entire length, for a poor rod bends only near the tip and is inadequate for its job.

Work bees at the Oliver Lake Clubhouse each evening this week, roof is sorely needed; have you done your stint lately?

Some small changes in the migratory bird season this year, also in bag limits, the same thing goes for the United States. These changes mean more shooting for larger bags, and is the result of wise conservation laws; support them!

BLACKWOOD on BRIDGE

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

Miss Brash Brings Home Contract with Typical Luck
Miss Lucy Brash bid in typical fashion in today's hand and enjoyed some typical luck to bring home her contract.

Mrs. Keen opened the deuce of clubs and Mr. Abel took the first two tricks with his ace and king. Then he shifted to the nine of diamonds. The queen lost to Mrs. Keen's ace and the jack of diamonds was returned.

Miss Brash won this trick and now cashed in just two hearts.

the ace and king—carefully preserving the queen in dummy. Break number one: everybody followed to the two heart leads. Next, Miss Brash took dummy's ace and king of spades and led a third spade, ruffing it in her hand. Break number two: the spades were divided 3-3.

SERVES DUAL PURPOSE

At this point the queen of hearts on the board served the double purpose of pulling the last outstanding trump and providing an entry for dummy's two good spades. On these two cards, Miss Brash discarded her losing club and losing diamond. Quite a fortunate result.

But the contract could have been defeated—and should have been. The opening lead of the deuce of clubs should have told Mr. Abel his partner had started with exactly four clubs. That is, it was obviously a fourth high-st lead.

There were two clubs in dummy, Mr. Abel himself had four and therefore Miss Brash had three. Mr. Abel had the spade suit stopped and he had as many as three trumps.

POSSIBLE OUTCOME

Now what if he had led the jack of clubs at the third trick? In that case Miss Brash would have had to ruff on the board, leaving only two trumps in dummy.

Now let her try to set up the spade suit and end up in dummy with the trumps out. It couldn't have been done. The spade suit could still have been set up all right, but Miss Brash would have found it impossible to pick up all three of Mr. Abel's trumps, and to have an entry on the board.

Britain, Greece Facing Spat On Future of Strategic Isle

By A. I. GOLDBERG

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Greece and Britain, outwardly long friends, have come to diplomatic blows in the United Nations over the future of Cyprus, a large Mediterranean island base which Britain has and Greece wants.

After five years of trying to get Britain to agree on a Cyprus plebiscite, the Greeks have announced they will come in with a plea for UN intervention.

Trading on UN declarations about the right of all peoples to self-determination, the Greeks now want the UN to vote for an election on Cyprus which they are sure would overwhelmingly favor union with Greece.

HAS SAME THOUGHT

Britain is pretty sure that the island's "preponderantly Greek population would vote that way, too, and don't like the idea.

Britain is fearful that Communist influence in Cyprus, as well as in Greece itself, might some day threaten effectiveness of what is now considered an important NATO base, made more important by the promised British evacuation of Suez.

Britain makes no secret of opposing any move to weaken her hold on Cyprus. She admits she is disturbed that the question should be brought to the UN, where African, Asian and Latin-American countries for years have been preaching the right of self-determination for peoples.

Such a campaign has erupted in the past over French control in Tunis and Morocco.

RAISE DOMESTIC ISSUE

Britain's first ditch of defence is to oppose the UN considering any Cyprus question on the grounds that it is a purely domestic question which the UN cannot debate. Cyprus has been under British administration since 1878 and has been a crown colony since 1925.

But the UN has voted the domestic responsibility plea down before, and Britain is not sure she can make it stick in the Cyprus case.

Preparing for the debate stage, she argues that Cyprus' never

Error Costs Agent Position

VANCOUVER (AP)—City purchasing agent William Penny, 43, was dismissed from his $8,500-a-year job Monday for an "error in judgment in taking home an old motor.

Acting-mayor Birt Showler following a closed council meeting, said:

"I am very sorry to see this incident. Mr. Penny has been an excellent servant of the city and has handled millions of dollars worth of purchases with no suggestion of improper doing." The purchasing department handled about $10,000,000 worth of purchases yearly.

Penny, married and father of two children, had been with the city 24 years. Ald. Showler said there was no appeal against the dismissal.

The motor, which was returned, was worth about $100.

A special committee inquiring into the incident termed Penny's action "an error of judgment."

was a part of Greece, that Turkey opposes any change in island rule because almost one-fifth of the island's 500,000 population is Turkish, and that any change might hamper NATO defenses.

FAVOR GREEK UNION

The Greeks retort that all elements of the Greek-speaking population—religious, cultural, political, conservative, liberal, radical, mercantile—favor union with Greece and have been going on strike recently to prove it. The population has rejected British offers of a new constitution because there is no Greek union clause in it.

The United States has not made up its mind how it will vote. One American source said it's not just a simple question of what the island people want. "The British worries about Communist influence, the threat to immobilization of the base, are very real things to be considered," this source said.

United Nations Asks New Count Of Prisoners

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The United Nations command yesterday demanded an accounting of 2,840 missing Allied soldiers named in a newly revised list of men the Reds are accused of holding prisoner.

Rear Admiral T. B. Brittain told the Communists the UN wants to know when the men will be freed if they are alive and when their bodies will be returned if they are dead.

The new list, given the Communists at a meeting of the military armistice commission, carries the names of 526 Americans, 50 from other UN nations and 2,264 South Koreans.

The Reds insist that all Allied war prisoners who wanted to return home were repatriated last year.

Britain said the revised list carries the names of POWs "we are convinced were in your hands and whom we still consider as not having been accounted for in a satisfactory manner."

The new prisoner list deleted from the earlier list names of 418 Americans, one British soldier and 146 South Koreans.

Bishop From Behind Iron Curtain Calls for Firm Stand by Churches

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—A bishop from Communist Hungary has urged that churches must not bow to a governmental system but should stand more resolutely as free instruments of God.

"In the face of all opposing views either within or outside the church we proclaim this freedom of the church's way," Bishop John Peter of the Reformed Church of Hungary told world Christian leaders.

He was the first delegate from behind the Iron Curtain on the program of the World Council of Churches assembly and the most controversial figure among them.

In a prepared speech brimming with scripture quotations he asserted that the church is not bound up with any social system.

"I believe that not only in our country but everywhere in the world where there are Christians the churches ought to voice this independence of the church of all social systems, more courageously and more resolutely than heretofore."

There are 20 representatives from Communist lands among 1,500 churchmen from 48 nations participating in the assembly. Their presence has been assailed by some outside groups, and Bishop Peter's role particularly has been questioned.

The State Department denied him permission to attend a world Presbyterian meeting in Princeton, N.Y., two weeks ago but issued a visa restricting his trip to world council activities.

Bishop Peter did not specifically praise or criticize the Hungarian regime but he did maintain that conditions for health and growth of the church had improved in recent times.

The Hungarian government, he said, in "guaranteeing the freedom of church life" provided for gradually decreasing state subsidies. He expressed gratification this was leading to church self-support.

To the assembly, the Hungarian bishop declared:

"I may tell you that there is no pulpit in our churches which has failed to voice in the last months the grand message of the word—Christ—the hope of the world."

This is the central theme of the assembly.
