Soviet Envoy Suspected Agent Trying To Set Up Spy System

PM Says Canada "Pretty Efficient"

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent says expelled Russian diplomat Gennadi Popov was a suspected NKVD espionage agent trying to set up spy links in Canada.

But he indicated at a press conference Friday he wished the story of the Popov-Staples affair had not become public. He would have wanted to keep it under wraps to protect James Stanley Staples' name and to prevent the possibility of the affair being blown up into an international incident.

He would not be surprised, he said, if all foreign governments represented in Canada had spy systems, though not necessarily operating in this country. In any case Canada has a "pretty efficient" counter-espionage organization.

DOUBTFUL RISK

Popov, Russian Embassy second secretary, was ordered out of Canada July 12 for attempting to get military secrets out of Staples, a Rockcliffe Air Station civilian clerk. He left Aug. 12.

Staples was fired June 29 after a civil service security panel decided he was a doubtful security risk.

Mr. St. Laurent, facing some 40 newsmen in his first press conference in 14 months, said there was no appeal from the panel's decision and he would not recommend that Parliament set up an appeal system. But he denied there was any "McCarthyism" in the government as charged in a newspaper editorial.

Staples has said he has been "blacklisted" from the civil service because of his association with Popov. Mr. St. Laurent said Staples was not blacklisted but the civil service had to be careful of the persons it hired.

Staples, 30, had not been a traitor and did not have access to secret documents but he had been a "little too indiscreet" in his association with the Russians.

The press conference in the prime minister's East Block office on Parliament Hill was arranged mainly to air the Popov-Staples affair but Mr. St. Laurent used it to knock out a few political balls, perhaps with an eye on the general election which he intimated may be held in June next year.

Canada's huge foreign trade deficit was not giving him "any worry whatsoever." Living costs in Canada were not rising "nearly as fast" as elsewhere and there had been no complaints of the high prices of individual items.

The Canadian dollar was at a premium and the flow of foreign investments into Canada was heavy.

The Progressive Conservative party was without a leader but that would not influence the Liberals in the selection of an election date.

"We're going to have an election in due course regardless of what the Progressive Conservatives do about selecting a new leader," he said.

With reference to obtaining a substantial quantity of liquor on his premises after two Natives had pointed out the accused as having supplied them with the liquor.

Appearing for the defence, Bruce Brown stated this was the accused's first offence of any kind and the Chinese community was very concerned lest it ruin their reputation.

Mr. Rutherford explained that in view of a need for blood donors, he was asking organizations throughout the city for their aid in having citizens come to the hospital to have their blood typed and grouped. He explained this has not been done for five years.

The board accepted the application of Dr. Smith to become a member of the medical staff.

In other business it was agreed that next month Mr. Rutherford should have an interview in Victoria with BCHIS representatives to discuss estimated costs of operation for the hospital. The move was taken on the basis of a letter from BCHIS finance manager W. J. Lyle which suggested a salary reduction of $100.

Mr. Rutherford explained that every action taken by the hospital during the emergency had to be in compliance with the orders of Dr. Smith since the handling of anything that might become a threat to the community was his responsibility.

Advice to Students

ALTHOUGH his remarks were addressed to university students, Toronto University president Dr. Sidney Smith, speaking at the opening exercises, gave some advice on methods of study which is applicable to students of any grade. He said:

It is essential to include the proteins of study in your diet from the very first. As Professor Bernhardt says, "the first few weeks of the term are very important. It is then that you set a pattern of activity for yourself and develop your program of work and recreation." So I offer you this advice: Don't start to work next week. Start this week. Last year, in the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering, 36 students who had failed previously and returned to repeat the year were interviewed and invited to assess the reasons for their failure. They might have said that they hadn't got enough preparation in high school, or that the instructors hadn't made things clear enough, or given many other reasons or excuses. But most of them simply admitted: "I didn't get down to work soon enough."

I am not telling you this to scare you. It is simply a fact of university life that loafing for the first term and cramming before the exams is not good enough. If I could sear that message on your brains, you would be the most successful entering class in our recent history!

My second piece of advice is this: Don't try to pass. Try to get honors. Try to do the very best work you can. I have just recently come back from a conference at St. Andrews, New Brunswick, where the industrial leaders of Canada were talking of the need for educated manpower in the Canadian economy. They did not say merely, "We need so many hundred graduates in this and so many thousand graduates in that." They said, "We need quality. We need men and women with good trained minds who are not afraid of work or of responsibility. We would rather have one good graduate who has excelled in his academic preparation than twenty who have just scraped through."

New Agriculture Minister

IT HAS been drawn to our attention that in yesterday's editorial we were mistaken in saying that provincial Minister of Mines Kiernan also carries the portfolio of minister of agriculture. Although he served in both roles in the last cabinet, the agriculture department has now passed into the care of Ralph Chetwynd, who is also minister of fisheries.

However, the point we were making remains unchanged. It was that W. J. Asselstine of Atlin, a former Liberal mines minister who is now a Social Credit MLA, might well have been given the position which Mr. Kiernan now holds. Not only has he had the experience needed, but he comes from an area which in the next few years should see great mining development.

Lack of cabinet material has been one of the chief difficulties of the Social Credit party since it came into power. Now that he has some scope of selection, Premier Bennett should make full use of it.

Discrimination by Landlords Against Indians Charged

The Editor,

The Daily News:

I never thought that I would sit down one day to write an open letter to the editor on the subject of discrimination on the part of some people, especially landlords of Prince Rupert.

My husband and I have been trying to look for a larger place to rent but up until now we have not been successful. The reason is because I am an Indian.

I telephoned a certain landlord tonight concerning a small house to rent. The house had not been taken nor had anyone else telephoned for it. The landlord told me that we could come to look at it and we were told it was $100 per month. Then these questions were asked:

Question: Is your husband Indian?

Answer: No, he is not.

OTTAWA DIARY

By Norman M. MacLeod

No matter how engrossing domestic politics, world affairs, and general economic problems may be in the months ahead, it's a safe wager that they're not going to divert public attention completely from CBC's intrepid anti-Davey Crockett crusade.

The object of the crusade is to persuade Canadian kids to put away their Davey Crockett hats and other regalia and devote their impulsive hero worship to some native figure equally stirring to the youthful imagination. Pierre Radisson, pioneer French-Canadian fur trader of the 1600's, the legendary character selected to supplant the Davey Crockett myth.

It seems that amongst other TV suggestions which CBC has been receiving over recent months is a plea from distressed Canadian parents for some Canadian TV hero capable of winning the devotion of young viewers. And the 1600's is the legend of the frontiersman Crockett. The parents appear to sense that it isn't too healthy a thing for Canadian youngsters to grow up with a reverence for the pioneer heroes of another country.

Always ready to champion a spirit of authentic Canadianism, especially where the country's junior citizens are concerned, CBC has prepared to film a stirring dramatization of episodes taken more or less from the life of the pioneer Radisson. The aim is to make the stories so dramatic that Canadian youngsters will conclude that Davey Crockett was just a sissy compared with Radisson.

One of the difficulties which CBC faces in the project is that a good deal of cleaning up is going to have to be done on Radisson before his life can be made suitable fare upon which to nourish youthful Canadian minds. For the record leaves no doubt about him having been a genuinely robust character, with considerable tendency to talk most generally accepted social refinements. Here is what Canadian historian Stephen Leacock says about Radisson:

"He spent many years living with the Indians, actually living them, and he bettered their instruction in craft and ferocity. Fighting against the Mohawks he had been captured and his tortures at the stake begun, when he was seized and rescued by a squaw, who knew a man whom she saw one. From then on Radisson did not hesitate to join in burning his enemies at the stake and to join in the cannibal feasts that were another variant of Indian pleasure . . . He left a journal, No history book, diluted by a hundred repetitions, can match the crude reality of it."

All in all, he sounds like quite a character and the CBC shouldn't have too much trouble in building him up into a figure splendidly awesome to the youth of the nation. But if the manners of the youth of the nation should fail to improve as they come to pattern themselves upon him, Canadian parents shouldn't be too surprised. Nor should CBC.

NEW LEVELS OF LEADERSHIP

Women Should Wake Up To Public Responsibilities

The following article is the last of a series published this week in connection with Business Women's Week, being observed across Canada between September 23 and September 29. The articles are contributed by Prince Rupert business and professional women who, along with the Canadian Federation of PWPC seek to improve the status of women in the business world.

By ALDERMAN KAY SMITH

There are all too few women in public life—both at the municipal level and also in the political world. I feel that there is a definite need for more women in these fields.

All Aboard

By G. E. MORTIMORE

There are many pleasures to light a dark world, in the autumn. For instance:

A tree full of small birds exploding into flight. The honk of wild geese.

The shiny face of a chestnut broken from its husk. Boys gather the nuts to play with. A grown man furtively hides a chestnut in his pocket and examines it when he thinks no body is looking. The nut is a talisman of boyhood. Its pure high gloss, like the bowl of a new pipe, fades to a dry, tough brown. The smell of apples and leaf-smoke. Yellow, brown and tattered green foliage reflected in a lake, until a wind smashes the mirror and sends the leaves flying.

It is true that some men are unwilling to accept women as equals on governing bodies, but fortunately, these men are in the minority.

Women now make up a large proportion of our voting groups and, therefore, should undertake an equal proportion of the work in deciding policy, spending our money and in all decisions connected with the affairs of our various governments.

We speak of our powerful "groups"—labor, management and so on. But let us not forget that the women of our land could be the most powerful "group" if they so desired by waking up to their responsibilities and taking their rightful place in the municipal, provincial and federal levels of government.

DISCOURAGED CHRISTIANS

When a person becomes a Christian, a really and truly born-again believer, he is not given a guarantee of a trouble-free life on earth until the end of his days. No indeed. Trials, afflictions and crosses will be his as God shall be pleased to permit.

The believer is spoken of as a pilgrim and as such is on a

and forbidding valleys, valleys

we would avoid if we could. But we must go through that way,

Passing through that dreadful

experience we come to a delect-

able mountain — a mountain top experience of untold blessing. Here again we may wish to abide. But the way stretches on before us. On and on we must come to many twists and tours and rough places, with hard going, staggering, jolting experiences — and it seems to last so long, for years and years,

Discouraged, the pilgrim grows

faint and weary and would give up were it not for One who has been with him all the way,

It is He who helps the believer

to sing:

We may pass through dark
and forbidding valleys, valleys
we would avoid if we could. But
we must go through that way,
Passing through that dreadful
experience we come to a delect-

able mountain — a mountain

Discouraged, the pilgrim grows

faint and weary and would give

up were it not for One who has been with him all the way,

It is He who helps the believer

to sing:

All the way my Saviour leads me, Cheers each winding path I treach; Gives me grace for every trial,

Feeds me with the living Bread.

Though my weary steps may falter,

And my soul athirst may be: Gushing from the rock before me,

Lo, a spring of joy I see.

Yes indeed, discouragement is a real experience in life and the Christian is not immune to it, but the Christian has One with him, and in him, to help him right on to the end of the way.

Do you ever feel downhearted and discouraged?

Do you ever think your work is all in vain?

Do the burdens thrust upon you make you tremble And you feel that you shall ne'er the victory gain?

Have faith in God, the sun will shine,

Though dark your path may be today;

His love has planned, your path and mine,

Have faith in God, have faith always.

Many small children have lost their lives through whooping cough. Those who recover are often left with some impairment of heart, lungs, ears or the brain. Immunization provides protection against this disease.

"On this hand it makes one trick difference," replied Mr.

Abel impatiently, "and while that doesn't sound like much, it means you would have made the hand instead of going down one."

HEART LEAD

This exchange stemmed from the following play in today's deal: Mrs. Keen opened the five of hearts and Mr. Muzzy was delighted that he was in a position to take the heart finesse with out any risk whatsoever. He played the jack from dummy and ruffed when the king came up on his right. Now he led the king of diamonds and Mr. Meek won with the ace and returned the suit.

Mr. Muzzy took the second lead of diamonds with the queen and led a third round of the suit to dummy's nine.

Next he cashed dummy's ace and queen of hearts, discarding the ten of spades and a small club from his hand. It was all up to the club suit now. He played the ace and another club, but when Mrs. Keen showed up with both the king and the jack, he was down one.

COMMON ERROR

Mr. Muzzy's faulty discarding is not an uncommon error. In discarding from two suits it seems natural to choose first the suit where it is possible to get rid of all losers—as was the case in the spade suit in today's hand.

Actually, there was no pressing need to get rid of the ten of spades from the closed hand immediately, because the ace controlled the suit.

Suppose Mr. Muzzy had bid his time and played as follows: Ruff the first trick with the ten of diamonds and lead the ten of diamonds to dummy's five.

Mr. Meek could gain nothing by holding off, so assume that he wins with the ace and returns

the suit. Win the second diamond in dummy with the seven.

Cash dummy's ace and queen of hearts and discard two clubs from the closed hand. Then lead a small club and play the queen.

Mrs. Keen would win with the king and would have no better return than a club.

Win this with the ace in dummy, return another club and ruff it high. Now enter dummy with a small diamond to the nine. On this line of play dummy would then have a good club on which the ten of spades could be discarded. Mr. Muzzy would lose the ten of spades and a small club from his hand. It was all one.

Bums Get Foot In Door

Braves Lose 5-4, Need Brooks' Loss

There's just one question left today in the National League pennant race. Are Brooklyn's world champs really old pros—or are they just old?

The flag rests on the answer. The Dodgers, looking weary and listless while losing four of and Milwaukee and Brooklyn each lose two, Chey will have a tie for the pennant.

ONLY GAME PLAYED

The Cardinals' jarring victory, secured on an unearned run in the sixth inning, was the only game played in the league. Rain stopped New York at Philadelphia.

In the American, the pennant-winning New York Yankees bopped Boston 7-2 with Mickey Mantle hitting his 5th home run. Cleveland topped Detroit 2-1 on the four-hit pitching of rookie Hank Aguirre—after the Tribe had clinched second place on Kansas City's 6-5 victory over the Chicago White Sox. Baltimore and Washington were rained out.

COULD MEAN PLAYOFF

Now a sweep of the three-game set with the Pirates, beginning this afternoon with a double-header, will guarantee nothing worse than a tie for the Brooks—setting up a penultimate playoff.

Milwaukee had a chance for a no-fuss title had they swept the Cardinals in three. Now the Braves can clinch the pennant outright only if they take the final two at St. Louis tonight and Sunday, and if Brooklyn loses one.

Here's the way the race looks at the moment:

Cincinnati got a reprieve with the Milwaukee defeat, so, Idle Friday, the Redlegs would have been expelled by a Braves victory. Now, if they can sweep their remaining two at Chicago,

Canada's Richest Race Meeting Opens Monday

TORONTO (C) — The richest meeting in the history of Canadian racing opens Monday at the New Woodbine track as thoroughbreds try for $770,000 in the 42 days of racing.

First race of the opening on the $13,000,000 track just north of here which was inaugurated last June, will be the $10,000 Breeders' Stakes, traditionally the race that decides the Canadian three-year-old champion ship.

Heavily-favored will be Bill Beauley's Canadian Champ, beaten only once on a Canadian track and this country's biggest money-winner. However, the champ will be heavy-weighted at 122 pounds and may find it hard going.

Glamor race of the meeting will be the running Oct. 27 of the $50,000 Canadian Championship Stakes. To add to the rich purse the race will have a strong international flavor as 22 of the 48 horses nominated are from the United States.

The Coronation Stakes and the Cup and Saucer Handicap, Canada's two richest events for two-year-olds, will be run Oct. 20 and Nov. 3.

Other big-money events are the Jockey Club Cup, Oct. 13, and the Durham Cup Stakes Nov. 10.

SPAHN, BURDETTE CONFIDENT OF TAKING LAST TWO GAMES

ST. LOUIS (W) — The old 1948 refrain of the champion Boston Braves "Spanh and Sain and a day of rain" now gives way to the Milwaukee Braves' jingle — "Spanh and Burdette with two to get."

Warren Spahn, the 35-year-old lefthander whose clutch pitching has kept the Braves in the race during these anxious hours of late September faces St. Louis tonight in another "must" game. Lew Burdette, the early season ace, figures to get the cell in Sunday's finale.

The Braves must win their two remaining games to be sure of a tie with Brooklyn if the Dodgers win their three games from Pittsburgh. In case of a tie, the best-of-three playoff will start Monday at Brooklyn.

"My roomie (Burdette) and I will decide our fate," said Spahn Friday night, piercing the gloom of the Milwaukee clubhouse after the Braves' 5-4 defeat by the Cardinals.

"They used to say Spanh and Sain," joked Spahn. "Now it's Burdette. Look at his uniform, number 33, John Sain's old number. We'll get 'em yet."
