MORE EVIDENCE ASSAULT CASE

Hearing of Witnesses in Flewin and Kevis Preliminary Hearing Continues

More evidence in the case of Clarence Flewin and Raymond Kevis, charged with attempted murder of R. Boyd Young at Port Simpson on September 11, was heard by Magistrate McMullin in the county court yesterday afternoon and this morning.

Mr. Young was put on the stand again yesterday afternoon after testifying in the morning. The first thing Mr. Patmore, counsel for the defence asked for as the statement made by the witness to police officers shortly after the crime. Mr. Hooper, for the crown, demurred in giving it to Mr. Patmore but said he would on the understanding that it would be put in as evidence.

"Nonsense! A man does not have to put in as evidence everything he sees," retorted Mr. Patmore.

"I do not want to give an undue advantage to the defence," remarked the crown. Mr. Patmore then asked the witness if he had given a signed statement to the police.

"I just put a cross to a statement which was dictated by me to Corporal Newenham in the hospital. I was blind at the time," he replied.

"Were you in your right senses at the time?"

"I was."

Statement Produced

Mr. Patmore to the court: "Now I want to see that statement."

"I don't want to block the wheels of progress and I want to give the prisoners the benefit of a doubt but the question is to me whether I should let the defence see it if it is not put in as evidence," Mr. Hooper replied. Magistrate McMullin then said that the only way would be to put it in as evidence. Mr. Hooper maintained it was the property of the crown but handed it over to the defence adding that he would reserve the right to persist in his statement later if he saw fit. The statement was put in as an exhibit.

Reading from the statement Mr. Patmore asked the witness why he had said the last thing he remembered was somebody feeling in his pockets. Witness stated that it was the last thing of the assault he remembered. He felt somebody going into his pockets of his vest. He added that he always carried his wallet in his coat pocket but this time he had put it in his hip pocket because he had been working in the store previous and had wanted to keep it on his person.

There was $200 in cash and some cheques in it at the time. The defence then questioned him again about his final recognition of Flewin and was informed that he was lying in the ditch at the time kicking at him.

William Tait

William Tait, an Indian of Port Simpson, was called next. He said he went to Ryan's store about 9 p.m. and remained there for about three-quarters of an hour. On his way home he passed near Young's store and saw two men 100 feet away from him. One was talking and he recognized Flewin's voice. He said he had known Flewin for a long time. He also recognized the other man pointing to Kevis in the prisoner's box. In answer to a question from Mr. Patmore, witness stated he had no doubt it was Kevis because he had been going around with Flewin all the time.

The next witness called was Joshua Ryan. He told of Tait coming in and staying about five minutes. At ten he locked the store and stopped to talk to Wilfred Booth outside. He saw two people coming across the bridge toward the mainland about 15 feet away and recognized one as Flewin. Mr. Patmore questioned him strongly on the point of telling Bert Flewin that he might have been mistaken but the witness said another man had said it was not Flewin but he was satisfied in his own mind that it was. He also stated he had heard shouting but thought it was the Indians from Naas River.

Sure of Flewin

"You were not sure it was Clarence?" repeated Mr. Patmore. "I was sure," I said," replied the witness stolidly.

Wilfred Booth, another Indian told of talking to Ryan outside of the store that night and he saw the two men pass. He took one for Clarence Flewin. Mr. Patmore asked witness how many times he had talked with Constable Watkinson about the evidence he was going to give.

"Are you imputing that Watkinson was coaching him?" demanded Mr. Hooper.

"This is once again when I ask the court to make Mr. Hooper sit down. It is none of my learned friend's business," retorted Mr. Patmore.

"Mr. Patmore has a right to ask the question," the court ruled.

The witness replied that he had only spoke once to the constable.

William Beynon

The most important witness of the afternoon outside of Mr. Young himself was William Beynon who brought the injured man to the house after the assault. He computed that the attack took place between ten and ten-thirty that night. He had gone to bed and was just dozing off when he heard cries for help. He got up, went to the window and looked out. It was a little foggy and the moon gave a diffused light. About 100 feet away he saw a bunch of boys to whom he called to go and help. They did not hear him so he called again and they went to the scene. He dressed and hurried to where the calls went up.

When Mr. Beynon arrived the boys had picked the injured man up and were carrying him along the road. Later he went over the ground with Dr. Spencer and found the spot saturated with blood.

He heard Young say to the boys that he was done for.

Witness said: "My God, Boyd what has happened?"

"I have been murdered and robbed," Clarence Flewin and the other fellow did it," Young replied. Mr. Young, continued the witness, was still moaning from the pain when they carried him to his house. He continued to state that Flewin had done it. Witness went around to the front door for the assistant and told him to open the back door. The assistant was slow in arriving so Young ordered them to break the door. They set him in a chair and found him covered with blood. The witness phoned to the hospital but was told the doctor was out. He left word for him and returned to bathe Young's wounds.

Removed to Hospital

Dr. Spencer came in shortly with Mrs. Knox and advised his immediate removal to the hospital. During this time the injured man was bleeding and vomiting badly, witness stated. However, he left instructions with his assistant regarding the mail and told him to tell the freight clerk on the boat to let the money go over for a week.

"I object," interjected Mr. Patmore.

"It just shows how the man kept his senses," replied the crown.

Mr. Hooper asked about Young's mental state during this time and was informed that his mentality was very clear. The defence asked no questions.

and Constable Martin produced most of the witnesses and the maps for the case.
