Lots of Fun

Because the close halibut season is in force it does not follow that the waterfront boys, who are faithfully holding the fort until things open up again, are not getting any fun out of life. Far from it. When not busy with the various chores that are being undertaken while the lull lasts they find time to enjoy themselves in various ways. With time on their hands at the Allin Fisheries, the boys have declared war on the hundreds of rats that infest the wharf and shed. Great execution is being done with John Ullman's patent rat trap. On Wednesday night the bag amounted to five splendid rodent specimens in one trap which speaks for the possibilities of John's new invention. The trap, which was originally built as a mink trap, has been converted into a rat trap and to say the least is ingenious in construction. The trap is made of wood and lined with zinc to prevent the rats from gnawing their way out. It is oblong in shape with two collapsible ends. When the trap is set the ends are lifted up and suspended from two cross bars by strings. The ends are fixed to a perfectly balanced piece of shingle caught by a wooden trip on the outside. The bait is placed on the shingle inside and at the slightest touch the ends drop down and the rats are securely trapped with no possible means of escape.

The tug Alcedo, Capt. Andy Alfredson, who is engaged in towing logs to the Georgetown mill from hand-logging camps in the vicinity, put into port this week on account of the severe weather and tied up at the dry dock.

The launch Vaquero, owned by Lt.-Col. Stuart, who made a cruise of the coast in the summer of 1923, has been taken out of the water and is now on the Ward Electric ways.

Fine Farm

Billy, the Jap, who owns one of the finest truck gardens on the coast at Kitkatla, arrived in port early in the week on private business. Billy, who is 70 years old, has reclaimed some six acres of fine vegetable growing land from the sea at Kitkatla and supplies a large number of the fishermen with green stuff. This reclamation work has been done by using 60 foot logs, which have been cribbed up to a height of over six feet and filled in with mud, to keep the sea back. Visitors who have seen the land marvel at the manner in which the work has been done considering Billy's advanced age and the huge size of the logs used in the work. Billy has erected fine living quarters for himself and is so fond of the place and his work that he says he intends to go on raising vegetables for "lots more years."

Capt. George Newcomb, owner and skipper of the launch Dixie Rupert, is now back in New Brunswick enjoying his holiday after a trip in the states. Geo. expects to return to the city early in the New Year.

Dan Mackenzie, the man who put the "steam" in steam roller, spent a very enjoyable day on Wednesday across the harbor looking for the odd wild duck. However, the wild ducks saw 'im first and Dan returned to the bright lights with a clam just to show that the artillery would work.

A Great Nimrod

The Whiff man learned with surprise the other evening that our waterfront friend H. A. Dodd, of Prince Rupert Lumber Co. fame, was one of the greatest nimrods of his day in the Aleza Lake country. It is said that there was a time when H. A. thought nothing of trekking fifty miles a day, killing four or five grizzly bear, catching around 100 trout from the end of his rifle, running down two or three wolves en route and finishing up the day back at his cabin in a game of poker with his chums. However, with the passing of time one grows old and now the mighty hunter takes his joy out of life in a quiet game of poker and spends many delightful hours shuffling pasteboards. It is said that every time H. A. wins a pot his face lights up with joy like a lighthouse on a foggy night. At the same time he is a good loser and seems to delight equally in paying out the nickels.

Eckstall Mill Closes

The Brown sawmill situated on the Ecstall river has closed down owing to the freeze-up and the consequent shortage of water. A number of the mill hands came into the city by gasboat on Tuesday and will remain over for Christmas. The mill will re-open as soon as the frosty weather abates. Considerable improvements are to be made at the mill including the installation of a dynamo for electric lighting purposes and the building of an additional planer shed.

The power boat Lydia K. with Emil Quist and Chris Ivarson aboard, arrived in port on Wednesday from Oona river with a cargo of fresh eggs and the island mail.

Raw furs have been arriving this week in good quantities from interior and coast points. The catches have included some fine specimens of marten, mink and beaver, which have all found a ready local market.

Jim Shoots Rock

A gang of hunters comprising Jimmy Durham, Jock Boddie, A. McEwen and Ralph Bernie struck out for feathered game in the good ship Shorty one day last week. The day wore away while the ducks flew away and the sport was rather lame. However, the fact of the game not perching on the gun barrels did not damp the hunting ardour of the party and on the return trip in the evening everyone was on the alert for anything moving in the way of a bird. All hands were given a sudden jolt when Jimmy shouted "Slow her down, there's a duck." With that he loosed both barrels of his fowling piece and when the "duck" didn't move the whole darned battery of guns blazed away sounding like the firing of a turret of 16 inch naval guns. Peering through the smoke, Jimmy was struck dumb when he saw the "duck" still sitting in the water. After a closer inspection of the supposed game the "duck" proved to be a rock and Jimmy learned that rocks don't fly.

The halibut boat Adeline, which was tied up at Sourdough Bay, filled and sank on Wednesday morning and only the masts sticking out of the water now mark the spot where the proud ship once floated.

Capt. Newell is having new water tanks fitted in his schooner Gibson by C. O. Rowe. The Gibson is tied up in Cow Bay creek.

Jack McIntosh was the winner of the waterfront crib tournament and is now the proud owner of a fine brand new Christmas turkey. Jack played against Frank Campbell in the final round.

A New Verse

Pete Solem, of cigarette picture fame is in receipt of a very fitting seasonal greeting card on which the verse runs as follows:

Hang up a pair of silken hose,
The kind that ladies wear,
Lay out some scented swishy clothes
Across a rocking chair.
Then down and pray upon your knees
As never in your life
Dear Santa call and fill up these
With ninety pounds of wife.

The famous schooner Gaygeon, owned and skippered by Capt. "Handsome" Jim Morrison, is on the McLean ways for general overhaul.

Lance Styles accompanied by his wife and family left on the Cardena last Tuesday to spend the Christmas and New Year holidays in New Westminster.

Porter House Steaks

Larry Halcrow started something on the waterfront when he landed one hundred pounds of live beef at the P.R. Boathouse dock from the steamer Prince John. Larry was over at the Queen Charlotte Islands and while having nothing else to do got mixed up in a raffle at Skidegate for a calf and of course won the raffle and the calf. Figuring that a live calf would be easier to handle than a dead one, the cattleman brought the beast along with him. It was easy enough to bring the calf but a difficult proposition landing him and finding a ranch on which to place it. As there were no ranches for sale on the waterfront when the calf arrived Larry appealed to Capt. Swanson to take pity on him and help him find a place in which to stow it. Cap., realizing the predicament of the livestock owner, thereupon offered the shelter of his tool house on the provincial dock and there the little animal will spend an indifferent Christmas. Bob Thomas was duly sworn in to act as valet to the quadruped and will carry out this appointment until either other quarters are found or Larry decides to distribute a few choice cutlets.
