Japanese And Salmon Fisheries.

There is considerable agitation going on among the canners of southern British Columbia against the restriction on Japanese fishing for the canneries. It is claimed by them that the white people do not want to fish and that when they do fish they cannot deliver the goods through lack of skill, persistence and knowledge.

The cut of forty per cent made by this government followed by another cut of fifteen per cent has, they say, forced out of the industry from seven to eight hundred men who have invaded other industries while their places have not been taken in the fisheries. They have not been driven out of the country.

Defenders of the action of the government say that the only way to retrieve the fisheries for the white people of British Columbia is to restrict the number of Orientals who may be employed. There had for years been criticism, especially in the north, of the fact that the Orientals controlled the industry and it was even stated that the canners favored the Japanese as against white fishermen and gave them more privileges. They were said to be the worst lawbreakers when it came to fishing with double length nets.

The matter was made the subject of inquiry by the commission of which Fred Stork was a member and they recommended the gradual elimination of the Japanese until the industry was once more in the hands of the white fishermen and this policy has been carried out with the exception of one year when the request of the canners to have the time extended was granted.

Power Of Habit Subject Of Sermon.

The power of habit was the subject of a sermon preached last night by Dr. H. R. Grant in the Presbyterian Church. It showed the need of breaking up bad habits and the difficulty of doing so and the value of good habits. Perhaps the most interesting phase of the sermon was in which the preacher urged that in pushing out for new things it was necessary to build upon the past rather than to cut off from the former base. This was particularly true in social advancement. To carry on always in the footsteps of our forefathers was to make no progress but equally fatal to progress was if to cut off altogether from the past and launch out on an entirely new policy independent of everything which had gone before, as did the Bolsheviks.

Go forward steadily but let each step be carefully related to those that have gone before, building upon the experience of the past. In that way benefit is taken from the mistakes of the past as well as the successes. There must be progress. We cannot stand still. Either we are going forward or backward. Advancement must be our watchword but it must be the careful advancement of the army in the field always keeping open its communications with the rear.

Unscrupulous Agitators Are Condemned.

At the Methodist Church yesterday Rev. Dr. Ferrier spoke scathingly of the unscrupulous agitators who kept alive the demand for treaty money on behalf of the Indians of this province. He showed how by spending the money on industrial education the Indians really benefited much more than they could from the receipt of paltry doles.

We should like to add our mite of condemnation of the practice. The Indians of this province are not a downtrodden people. Many of them are developing into excellent citizens and should take their places as voters and independent people. Nothing would retard them so much as the payment of money which they do not earn. Anyone who knows of the treaty celebrations in other provinces is well aware what a curse the treaty money is to the native there.

WEEK AT THEATRE

Monday and Tuesday

Constance Talmadge in "Her Night of Romance." Comedy "The Walkout." International News.

Wednesday and Thursday

"Husbands and Lovers." Comedy: "Position Wanted." Topics of the Day.

Friday and Saturday

Samuel Goldwyn presents "In Hollywood with Potash and Perlmutter." Comedy: "Wall Street Blues." Pathé Review.

Drama and Comedy

Miss Blythe believes that "In Hollywood with Potash and Perlmutter" is not, however, simply comedy. Like all of the Potash and Perlmutter plays which have been seen on the American stage for the past fifteen years, pathos is delicately blended with humor, and the deep underlying friendship of the two partners, despite their incessant arguments, gives the story a remarkably human touch. This motion picture is the second of the Potash and Perlmutter plays to be brought to the screen by Mr. Goldwyn. It is an adaptation of the play "Business Before Pleasure," and in their attempt to make "million dollar movies" the famous partners are said to be even more humorous than they were in the cloak and suit trade.

HER NIGHT OF ROMANCE IS CONSTANCE TALMADGE LATEST SCREEN PLAY

Satire on English Society is Humorous Picture to be Seen Here Tonight

Constance Talmadge brings a new comedy, "Her Night of Romance," to the screen at the Westholme Theatre tonight. It is a highly sophisticated satire on English society and provokes gales of laughter from the audience.

Connie, as flippant and scintillating as ever, appears in the role of an American heiress who dons school teacher's "specs" and straight-laced demim in order to avoid fortune hunters while touring abroad with her father.

It chances that she bumps into a young English lord in London who is being hounded by his money-lender, and they become involved in one of those seemingly impossible but, nevertheless, real life situations where it is necessary for them to pose as newly-weds to avoid an impending scandal.

The situation finally clarifies itself, of course, but not before the young couple endure an amazing and highly amusing series of incidents. Constance introduces a new leading man in the person of Roland Colman, an English actor who acquires himself in the role of the British nobleman admirably. Others in the cast who do good work are Albert Gran, Jean Hershot, Sidney Bracy, Joseph Dowling and Templar Saxe.

LAUGHABLE VAMPIRE IN CURIOUS COMEDY

"Potash and Perlmutter" is Burlesque of Real Thing in Movies

Betty Blythe, whose seductive vampirism on the screen has set many a masculine heart a-quiver, is again a Vampire in Samuel Goldwyn's "In Hollywood with Potash and Perlmutter," which will be the feature attraction at the week end, but she expects to be laughed at. The champion movie vampire appears as a "movie vampire" and pokes gentle fun at herself.

Making Films
It is all because "In Hollywood with Potash and Perlmutter" describes the adventures of the famous cloak and suit partners in their initial venture as film producers. Fresh from the clothing business, they invade Hollywood and, like other movie magnates, decide to produce a "vampire" picture. After testing a dozen actresses, none other than Betty Blythe is selected for the important role. Their first picture is shown in "In Hollywood with Potash and Perlmutter" as a photoplay-within-a-photoplay.

"It seemed very strange at first," said Miss Blythe in describing her first appearance as a laughable vampire; "for I was obliged to burlesque the very characters which I created in the past in a serious way. This I did simply by exaggerating my acting. It was an excellent test for my sense of humor, and a splendid lesson. Now I am sure I will never be tempted to take myself or my work too seriously."

CURIOUS STORY MARRIED LIFE

Midweek Theatre Offering is Tale in Which Woman Marries Her Husband

Ann Emerson, married eight years, spends her life waiting on an unappreciative husband, to the neglect of herself. When the husband calls her attention to the fact that she is becoming careless about her own appearance he awakens her to the true state of affairs—that she is permitting youth and beauty to slip from her, in her devotion to him. She visits beauty parlors, buys a flock of new clothes and determines to be young. A man never knows what he does want, so quite naturally the husband disapproves of his wife's "flapper-like" appearance when he sees the transformation.

Charming and Desirable

The husband's best friend, however, sees the wife as a charming and desirable creature, and subtly flatters her. Soon a romance is afoot between the wife and the other man. The husband is not conscious of its seriousness until one night, at a party, he is mistaken—in a darkened room—for the other man. Thinking she is talking to the other man, Ann confesses that she loves him, and doesn't love her husband, but inasmuch as he has never done anything to intentionally hurt her, she does not feel justified in hurting him to the extent of procuring a divorce. Later in the evening the husband lets it become known that he was the man in the room, and offers his wife her freedom. They will separate, and she may sue him for divorce on any grounds she sees fit. He feels that this is just one of those unhappy things that happen in life, and he holds no bitterness towards his wife nor his friend.

After the separation the wife realizes the sterling qualities of her husband, and he, too, has an awakening; he neglects her, took her as a matter of course, and failed to give her the romance and attention that is so necessary in a woman's life. How he wishes he had it all to do over again—how different his conduct would be.

MOTHERS LIKE TO TREAT COLDS WITH VAPORS

Direct Treatment with Vaporizing
Salve Immediately Reaches
Inflamed Air Passages.

It is no longer necessary constantly to dose the children in treating bronchitis, sore throat, or deep chest colds. Many Canadian mothers now use the "outside" remedy, Vick's VapoRub, for the cold troubles of all the family, because it is just rubbed over throat and chest—there is nothing to take. When so applied Vick's gives off medicated vapors which are inhaled directly into the inflamed air passages, loosening the phlegm and making the breathing easier.

At the same time Vick's is absorbed and stimulates the skin like a liniment or plaster and thus aids the vapors inhaled to break up the congestion.

At all drug stores 50c a jar. For free size package, write Vick Chemical Co., 344 St. Paul St., W., Montreal, P.Q.
