"Tony" is pictured as the leader of band of wild horses. He is captured and tamed and then released. At the climax of the production, in the final scene he answers his master's call, ads his wild mates in a rush that saves the hero and the heroine from being shot to death by desperadoes. Mix himself says this is "Tony's" best picture and "Tony" says it's Tom's best production.

"THE FIRST EDITION" IS GRIPPING STORY

Scenes Are Laid in Gigantic Press Room of the Chronicle-Father and Son Principals.

In the story of "The First Edition which will be pictured on Wednesday and Thursday at the Westholme Theatre, Tom MacDonald, an old and tried employee of the gigantic press room of "The Chronicle," has tended and nursed his great roaring machines for years with all the loyalty and devotion at his commond. With the exception of his little family-his wife, his son and his daughter-the whirring multiple presses are his most cherished possession; and they almost seem to know and understand the care the assistant foreman lavishes on them. The remuneration of MacDonald's unremitting toil and loyalty has not been great; but at |* least, just as his son, Ray is appointed to a job in the District Attorney's

Raymond Hitchcock, which comes to the Westholme Theatre at the week-end a good comedy-drama with plentiful comedy and tender pathos. Most of the comedy occurs in the scenes where the young heroine's five foster fathers, actors, in order to create an impression who had decided to call on the heroine for the purpose of finding out whether or not she was coming from a family into, decorate their house with stage scenery, call the entire company from the theatre, and when the hero's mother calls each member of the company i They all act. It is really comical, particularly where Raymond Hitchcock, who takes the part of the butler, finds an opportunity to force Ford Sterling to pay him the five dollars Sterling owed him for several years; Sterling was compelled, in order to keep up appearances, to give Hitchcock the five. Mr. Sterling provokes good comedy all the way through. Louise Dresser makes a good business woman, mother of the hero. The scenes where the young heroine reveals to the hero's mother that everybody has been acting for her sake are tenderly pathetic. The love affair between the young heroine, and the hero, son of wealthy parents, is charming. The story has been written by Marshall Neilan, who has also directed it, from an intelligently constructed scenario by Benjamin Glazer:-

The heroine's mother was shot and killed by her father when she still a baby. She is adopted by four actors and a newspaper reporter. When she grows to womanhood she follows her mother's career, the stage. Accidentally she meets the hero, a taxi chauffeur, but really a millionaire mother's (his father didn't count) son, who took up taxi driving to obtain local color for a book | he was writing. They fall in love. The mother, when the hero tells her he is in love, decides to investigate the heroine's antecedents. When she learns all the facts about her, her objections to her son's marrying the heroine become stronger. She sends her son to Japan. The five foster fathers, however, outwit her; they put the heroine on board the same ship. The hero's mother becomes furious when she notices the heroine on board the same ship. But she soon gives in to the five foster fathers; she sends a radio message to her son saying that she is sorry that she could not be present at the wedding. Hero and heroine are united in marriage by the

An Open Letter to the Public from the Montreal Importers

To Our Friends and Patrons:

We are taking this means of making a personal appeal to you to aid us in tiding over a heavy buying period. To be frank, we have bought too heavily, are overstocked and must realize quickly on our innvestment. So our need becomes your gain. We need the money-you get up-to-date goods at about cost price, and some below cost. Do not be misled by unfair criticisms by others. Good, clean competition is the soul of business today.

The stock we are offering in Men's and Boys' Overcoats, Mackinaws and Clothing, has been manufactured by Canada's most reputable houses-such as SAMUEL HART & CO., THE DOMINION CLOTHING CO., FREED-MAN CO., and other makers of the world's finest Overcoats and Clothing. These clothes are dependable, and of the finest materials and workmanship. This is an exceptional opportunity to secure an Overcoat or a Suit of Clothes at about one-half the usual price. The entire stock is new-no shelf-worn articles to mark down. A large portion of the stock has only recently been checked off.

Our Montreal prices, which we introduced to the Prince Rupert buying public, and which were so greatly appreciated, have been further reduced to aid in unloading this immense stock before the New Year. We need your help, if we are to remain in your city. You will be the losers if we are compelled to close up shop. We are now offering values that will astonish you, and will defy competition even of the Eastern Mail Order

TO THE CHRISTMAS SHOPPER-We would like you to see our large and varied assortment of natty goods that are always so acceptable as XMAS GIFTS. These are being offered at prices 35 per cent below the regular price. We are showing the largest and most beautiful range of MEN'S AND WOMEN'S BATHROBES, MEN'S NECKWEAR, SOCKS, SCARVES, COLLARS, SHIRTS, ETC., ever displayed in Prince Rupert, for you to choose from.

For the BOYS, we have hundreds of suits, with long and short pants and vests. Some having two pairs of pants. These are smartly styled and of splendid value.

This is an opportunity of a lifetime. The stock is unsurpassed in the city. The materials are of the finest procurable. Our prices defy competition, and our service will please you. It will give us pleasure to show you the goods. We are in the city to stay, for we believe in the future of Prince Rupert.

PATRONIZE US-OUR SUCCESS WILL BE YOUR GAIN. Yours very truly,
