FAITH AS AN INFLUENCE THROUGHOUT LIFE.

Yesterday the despatches told of the burning of the statue to which are ascribed miraculous powers at Ste. Anne de Beaupre. Thousands of people have been cured at the famous shrine and other thousands have been benefited from visits made there. The results are said by some to be miraculous but as a matter of fact they are perfectly natural, although rather unusual, which is probably what is intended by the use of the word miraculous in this regard. The cures are faith cures. The devotee goes there intending to be cured and lo-the miracle. Nature asserts herself. The power of mind over matter has done the work. It matters not whether it be the human mind or, as is claimed by the religious, the divine mind, the cure is the same. The person who formerly was sick now is well.

Given the same amount of faith, the person who is cured at Ste. Anne de Beaupre of a sickness, never would have been ill. The same mind power which cures would have prevented, nipping in the bud the incipient disease. The difficulty with us all is that we have not sufficient faith to keep ourselves well.

Many doctors will admit that most sick people are ill because they allow themselves to get that way. With the proper attitude who hold the country back and still of mind they might be quite well. The spirit of cheerfulness helps less with those who carry it forward. a lot, refusing to give way to slight infirmities but resolutely setting the mind to think health, to act in a healthy manner and eventually to be healthy.

Health is the natural condition of the body and mind. Disease attacks a body that has a weak spot and that is not guarded by an active and healthful mind. As the mind is, so is the body.

CONVERSE ALSO IS TRUE SOMETIMES.

And the converse is also true at times. The mind is affected by the body. Given a healthy body and you are pretty sure to have a healthy mind. Keep the body bathed and exercised and sanely clad and avoid extremes of heat and cold and it is likelier to remain healthy. The difficulty is that too much attention to the body is apt to distract from the cultivation of the mind. Hence some religious people insist that the body is nothing and the mind everything. The physical culturist goes to the other extreme and says the body is everything and the mind depends wholly on the condition of the body. Probably neither are true. The mind is extremely powerful, but we have not heard of it replacing a leg that has been cut off. The body has to be cared for. Fresh air and plenty of it, regular exercise, food of the right kind and properly Canada will hold a smoker tonight in cooked, sufficient sleep, all these are inportant factors in life; but just as important are pleasant surroundings, cheerful companions, and a mind that is a directing force, that refuses to admit morbid in putting thoughts and that keeps the idea of health, strength, joy, peace and beauty always to the fore.

THEN THERE COMES

THE OUTSIDE MIND. We are all aware that the mind is affected by other minds. That is where religion comes in. The great, all-pervading outside mind, the mind that is not our own but that influences our own, or that may be said to work through our own, may affect all our actions. It does affect the actions of countless thousands and possi- in Prince Rupert took place in Self's much of the time as possible to show George C. Mackenzie, secretary of the bly of everyone. MAKE PEOPLE HAPPY BY HER

NOTED SINGER SAYS SHE LIKES TO

EDMONTON, Nov. 10 .- (By Canadian Press) .-- "Your Canadian audiences are wonderful; it is a delight to sing to them," said Madame Galli-Curci. "Not only do they applaud at-shall I saythe fireworks but they appreciate the really musical part of a simple song. And I am happy in singing, because I feel that they are happy. It is a singer's mission," she said, "to bring music to all, and not to the few. So often. Wifie drags Hubbie along to the concert, when he really does not want to come at all, and then I notice a look of boredom on his face after a course of Schumann and Schubert, and so I sing "Swaney River"-and I watchand he no longer looks unhappy. Here is something he knows, and understands. A smile creeps over his face. He is pleased, and so am I, for I must for many."

On the same ground Madame Galli-Curci defends the recording of indifferent songs by great singers. "We must lead these not-understanding people to love music by simple things. So they will want to go to other concerts, to all, not only mine." Jazz has its place the feet, rather than to the heart and brain, and is out of place on the con-
