WOULD ALLOW IMMIGRANTS TO COME TO B.C.

Hon. T. D. Pattullo Says Country Needs Clean Bodied and Clean Minded People

VICTORIA, Feb. 18—In speaking before the Liberal Women's Forum, Hon. T. D. Pattullo, Minister of Lands, began his address with an outline of the agricultural and stock-raising situation in B.C. There were vast areas in the province still without population, uncultivated. There was no range land in the world better than this offered, yet all told there were only 350,000 head of stock in the whole of B.C. On a smaller area, New Zealand has 23,000,000. Last year B.C. had to import 160,000 head while all this vast pasture land was going to waste.

The government's policy in respect of the sale of some of the B.C. University lands at Point Grey was explained. It cost about three-quarters of a million dollars annually to keep up the University and the government felt the necessity of selling some of this land in order to meet the upkeep.

People Going Out of Country

"There is a complaint that we have not settled many people on the land," he continued. But hardly anywhere in Canada was there a sympathetic attitude toward any energetic immigration policy. This was lamentable. People had said to him: what is the use of bringing people into the country until everyone is profitably employed? But that, to his mind was not a sound argument.

If people were not coming into the country, they were certainly going out of the country. He did not favor admitting all "the rag, tag and bobtail of Europe." But he did favor a vigorous selective policy. Naturally with an immigration of between 3,000 and 4,000 per annum there would be a few derelicts; but the bulk would more than carry this.

Sir John A. Macdonald's protectionist policy was recalled. Ontario at that time was in the doldrums and there were more Canadians in Chicago than there were in Toronto.

But Canada, for the last twenty-five years, at least, had worked on the assumption that she was going to have a much bigger population. Everything—railroads, city planning, had all been on that assumption. Now was it going to be the country's policy to shut out the people? If the country did that they would discover that there would be fewer avenues of endeavor for those who were already here.

"Let us encourage clean-bodied and clean-minded people to come into this country and share in the great heritage which we have in such superabundant degree," urged Mr. Pattullo. "Our opponents have been severe and even at times caustic in their criticisms. Many doubts are cast both on our sanity and honesty. But we are doing the best we can. And what we need more than anything else is a sane optimism. Pessimism is a disease, and it is essentially a conservative policy. One does not need to have much courage to be courageous about the future in British Columbia."

Resources Referred To

Mr. Pattullo fortified his argument by summarizing the wonderful resources of the province. British Columbia had the greatest mineral belt in North America; her agricultural lands were vast and various; her fishing resources were enormous; her scenery was unsurpassed; her climate was envied by every other part of the country; and for both water and rail transportation she occupied a strategic position. The government had nothing to apologize for, nothing to be ashamed of.

Mrs. Stuart Henderson presided and voiced the Forum's thanks to the speaker for his interesting address.

JAMES COOMBS LAID TO REST

Obsequies Took Place this Afternoon from Anglican Church With Military Honors

Under the auspices of the Loyal Order of Moose, the Great War Veterans' Association and the Deep Sea Fishermen's Union, all of which organibations deceased was a member, the funeral took place this afternoon of the late James Coombs, fisherman, returned soldier and ex-police commissioner. A large concourse of mourners and friends of the deceased were present at 3 o'clock at St. Andrew's Anglican Church where the funeral service took place, Rev. Walter Allen officiating. W. Vaughan Davies presided at the organ.

After the service, the cortege proceeded to Fairview Cemetery where military honors took place, there being a salute by a firing squad supplied by the 102nd Battalion, with which deceased served overseas, consisting of C. L. Youngman, Constable Tarr, R.C.M.P., F. Lavery, T. Morris, W. H. Waldorf, A. Hunter and Sgt. Jebson, R.C.M.P., as well as the sounding of the "Last Post" by Bugler W. Rance. The burial service of the Moose Lodge also took place at the graveside with B. J. Bacon officiating. The pall-bearers were F. Piper and T. Wilson, representing the Great War Veterans' Association; J. R. Slaggard and Gillis Royer, representing the Moose Lodge, and J. Candow and J. Penney of the Deep Sea Fishermen's Union. The St. Andrew's pipe band also participated in the obsequies playing a lament as the procession moved down Third Avenue and again at the graveyard. The pipe band consisted of Pipers James Sturgeon, A. McIndewar and Alex Macdonald and Drummers A. Paton and W. F. Browne.

There were many floral offerings including pieces from Mr. and Mrs. F. Piper, Mr. and Mrs. George Anderson, Mrs. Coombs and family, Loyal Order of Moose, Deep Sea Fishermen's Union, Trades and Labor Council, Mr. and Mrs. A. Murray, Miss E. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gordon, Mr. and Mrs. James Sturgeon, Mr. and Mrs. N. Mussallem, City Police Department and Mrs. and Mrs. J. Kinslor.

GIRL SHRIEKS AS CONVICTED

Seventeen Year Old Wife Has to do Four Months for Housebreaking and Stealing

SASKATOON, Feb. 16.—As she was sentenced to four months in jail for housebreaking, May Belle Rowlatt, 17-year-old wife of E. A. Rowlatt, 21, who is guilty of similar charges, broke into wild, hysterical shrieking and crying in the dock at the city police court and had literally to be carried out. Rowlatt, a former taxi driver here, took his sentence of six months quietly.

The girl showed signs of giving way as Magistrate Brown was addressing the couple just before he passed sentence, and as the words of the sentence were spoken she lost all control. Her body hurtled back in wild abandon and her shreiks startled the crowded court. She fell into her husband's arms and then slipped to the floor, rolling about, her voice raised in wild cries of "Oh no, no, no." Police in charge of the court and others rushed to her aid, as she fell just outside the dock, grovelling on the floor in apparently wild hysteria. In the milling group of figures about her she threw her arms about madly. As she was being led down the corridor outside the courtroom, where prisoners wait to be brought in, her shrieks and cries echoed back into the chamber she had just left. The crowd in the court room was some minutes in settling down again.

This was the second time the girl had broken down in court since the hearing of the charges against her and her husband was commenced last Saturday. Five charges of breaking into houses and stealing jewelry articles were laid, the girl being charged with her husband on one of these. She was stated to have known his intentions on all of the escapades. The offences were committed between January 3 and January 10 of this year.
