Premier MacLean Tells Why People of British Columbia Will Return His Government to Carry on Work

VICTORIA, July 13 .- "I am convinced that the people of this province have made up their minus to keep the government in office because they are satisfied with it and the condition of the country," Fremier MacLean said here.

"I have visited almost every constituency of the province and I have absolutely no coubt about the verdict of the electors. The government will return after the poll with a strength greatly increased over its former standing in the Legislature.

"I have found everywhere a feeling that the government should be allowed to continue its work, and nowhere have I seen any real hostility to it. No audience which I addressed in my entire your was hostile to the administration.

"The great body of independent voters, as well as many formerly Conservatives, will vote for Liberal candidates for two reasons: First, because our cancidates are in every riding men of outstanding character and integrity; and second, because absclutely no good reason has been shown by our opponents why we should be replaced by them.

"The people of British Columbia, I believe, have already weighed the issues of this election and decided that the government is entitled to their confidence not only for what it has done but in what its program will mean to the future of the province."
