Prince Rupert's weather seems to improve year by year. At least this is indicated by official meteorological figures. When it rains so hard and the sun seems so far away, this may be a little hard to believe. Yet, it is true. This year up to the end of October, Prince Rupert has hada total of 1160.34 hours of sunshine or thirty hours more than the 1131.5 hours up to a similar date in 1929. The last two rainy months, however, have boosted the rain record here to 62.54 inches for the year to date as compared with 58.10 in the first ten months of 1929.
