It was sure a pleasure to see her smiling countenance again—the solution of the problem of "perpetual youth" I should say. It was eleven years since I had had the pleasure of gazing upon her and, to judge from her looks, it seems but a day. Guess I'll get full marks for this if ever she reads it! I believe her journeys in these small islands have taken her as far south as Bournemouth and as far north as Scotland to say nothing of a "swim" over to Ireland. It was very gratifying to we na-
