What Prince Rupert Needs ---

arating these representatives of foreign interests into a separate Chamber by themselves for these foreigners would certainly not encourage any enterprise by Prince Rupert people in opposition to themselves.

Much Can Be Done

And there is so much that the people of Prince Rupert might do for themselves, which no one else can do, for them.

Prince Rupert is a seaport. It is the centre of a wide district—or is it only kidding itself it is a centre? For a beginning Prince Rupert people could supply proper facilities for the residents of the surrounding areas to encourage them to visit Prince Rupert oftener. It could develop a municipal wharf or floats where goods purchased could be assembled or loaded under cover in wet weather. For after 40 years experience with weather conditions there is not a single spot on the waterfront where a sack of flour can be loaded dry on a rainy day.

After 40 years, Prince Rupert people have not yet provided adequate waterfront facilities for the tie up of our fishermen's boats for the winter. The result is that boat after boat has gone to Vancouver to make its headquarters there. But it is not only the fishing vessel itself that goes, but the skipper and crew as well, with their wives and families. It is to take advantage of Prince Rupert's sleepiness. Vancouver is now spending $1,500,000 to take care of this overflow from Prince Rupert. And always remember that these fishermen are producers!

They could—but what's the use? These things would cost money and, if money is spent on these things, then there won't be so much for our people to take away to spend elsewhere. There are a thousand different things which might be done to make Prince Rupert a better place to live in, a better place to visit, a better place to spend old age in, but such details do not come within the scope of the subject. But they all add up in the expression "Local Enterprise" in which Prince Rupert people have been sadly lacking, to cure which we have an Industrial Development Committee, which, so far, has developed nothing but briefs to the government.

Produce— In Gods Name!

Month after month as we listen to the loquacity of some and the masterly silence of other members of the local business community, the writer remembers a jingle of former years which runs "It's not the man who knows the most who has the most to say" and these great talkers in Prince Rupert might with great benefit do a little reading for a change.

From its very title "Self Help" by the late Dr. Samuel Smiles is indicated. The previous generation who made Canada, were nourishing on Carlyle's philosophy, summed up in his own words—"Produce, produce! Were it but the pitifullest infinitisimal fraction of a product—produce it, in God's name!"

A statistician recently calculated that it takes a capital investment of $6 000 to finance one single job which may or may not be correct. But his figure gives an idea of the investment required. Prince Rupert people have the money. Surely, they have enough brains to put that money to work—for themselves! For his own sake every farmer knows he has to fertilize his land—to replace what he has taken out. Even Prince Rupert people scorn those who don't. But to see people who have consistently exploited this district, taken everything they could out and put nothing back. Prince Rupert people need only look in the mirror.

Until Prince Rupert people get busy and do something for themselves to develop these "wonderful resources of this northern country" of which we hear so much at election times, there is every likelihood that Prince Rupert will remain an overgrown village of 7,000 people. So long as Prince Rupert people sit crying for the moon, for the government to do something, for the dry dock to do something, for the railway company to do something, for everybody else to do something, while they themselves produce nothing and do nothing except talk, there is nothing else for our unemployed and for our growing sons and daughters but to seek a living elsewhere. And for those who have jobs, to continue living—off fish! It's an easy living.

I have a few dollars. So has every other one of the 2000 wage earners in Prince Rupert but we never have had an opportunity of investing our mite in developing local resources. Yet there is every facility for gambling in mining stocks. I would much rather gamble on a local man in some local enterprise. Even if it were unsuccessful financially, I would have had a better run for my money. We would have tried to do something anyway.

Today's conditions constitute a challenge to Prince Rupert's "Free Enterprise" business community. They will either accept this challenge and do something for their community and themselves, or the Co-op will soon be doing what they refuse to. And more power to it, if it does!

Timely TERRACE Topics

On Saturday evening, a special meeting of the school board and the ratepayers was held in the Legion Hall. O. T. Sundal was acting chairman for the meeting and C. W. Michiel was in charge. Mrs. F. Hall was secretary. Principal business of the meeting was the election of a trustee to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Gordon Kerr. Geoff Lambly, who has been a school board member before, was chosen. Following the election of Mr. Lambly, Mr. Michiel answered a number of questions with regard to the need for more classroom accommodation and the changes in taxation being brought about by the implementation of the Cameron Report.

Albert Graf of Ryan, Sask., who recently returned from service overseas, is visiting in Terrace with his brother Dave.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Perry and family arrived from Prince Rupert towards the end of the week. The Perrys have bought the home of Mr. and Mrs. N. Sekora. Four of the Perry children are attending school here.

NEW COMPANY WILL LOG AT KUMEALON LAKE

Local Partners Form New Operating Concern—Take Over Ketchum Operation

Incorporation proceedings for the Kumealon Logging Co. Ltd., which will operate in a limit containing 12,000,000 board feet of mixed timber on Kumealon Lake, 35 miles southeast of Prince Rupert, were filed yesterday. The company, made up of five partners, is incorporating at $20,000.

Partners in the firm are John Mulroney, well known union business agent, P. Z. Gagne, N. E. Thomas, J. N. McLeod and N. S. Campbell, who purchased the timber limit from the government forestry branch on Monday. They have also purchased the camp and equipment of C. C. Ketchum, who operated a logging outfit on Kumealon Inlet until his death two months ago.

Operations on the timber claim are expected to begin before July 1. Fourteen men left today on the tug Phippen to begin the initial work.

Consisting of an estimated 5,000,000 board feet of spruce, 4,500,000 feet of hemlock and 1,000,000 feeet each of cedar and balsam, the timber claim borders Kumealon Lake, and averages about two miles from tidewater. While initial logging will be done by the high-lead method it is planned to make it eventually a "truck show." The ground is level throughout, and suitable for truck logging.

The partners estimate that the operation should employ between 20 and 25 men when in full production.

Modern Etiquette

Q. What is the correct method of extending an invitation over the telephone?

A. The principle thing to remember is that the invitation given over the phone must be as correct and gracious as the written invitation.

Q. Is it correct for a person to use his fingers when eating an orange at the table?

A. Yes; peel the orange, then pull it apart with the fingers.
