ST. GEORGE'S DAY

AMETHER it is a sahib preparing to leave inde-VV pendence-bound India, a cockney pitting brawn against post-war crisis, or a missionary leading a Tanganyika native choir-today, as Englishmen all, they echo "Will of Avon's" "God for George! England and St. George!"

For of all days, St. George's stands apart not only as England's patron saint day, but as the day when Englishmen recall stories of the past, honor the birth and death of William Shakespeare, and recount the saga of the Royal Navy's daring attack on Zeebrugge in 1918.

From days of antiquity, St. George has been more than a patriotic figure in many lands. In Spain, Portugal, Czarist Russia, France-even Lamong Mohammedans of the Middle East-he has been the fearless defender of chivalry, the swordswinging doom of dragons and tyrants alike.

According to early legend, to some extent substantiated by theological historians, St. George was born of Greek Christian parents at Cappadocia about 270 A.D. At the age of 17 he entered the military service of the Roman Emperor Diocletian and later served at York, then Roman capital of England.

Strong in his faith, he early frowned on Roman persecution of Christians and bluntly rebuked Diocletian. To demands for liberty for fellow-Christians, the emperor's reply was brutal and speedy -St. George was tortured and beheaded at Nico-media, Asia Minor, April 23, 303.

Reverence for his memory spread through the Middle East, churches were built in his honor, the Hellespont (now the Dardenelles) was renamed St. George's Arm, and the narrow seas between England and Ireland became George's Channel. The crusaders, honoring the saint's heroic defence of his faith, made him their patron. In 1220 the Council of Oxford ordered April 23 set aside as an English national holiday. Edward III made him patron of the Order of the Garter and, in the 15th Century, Frederick of Austria founded the St. George Knighthood.

LETTERBOX

MR. ARCHIBALD EXPLAINS Editor, Daily News:

I wish you would publish this letter in the interests of Canadians of European background who are interested in having relatives brought to this country. There is a great deal of confusion existing in the country at the present time owing to the announcements made by the Immigration Branch of the Department of Mines and Resouces.

First, Europeans whose relatives could be considered as enemy aliens during the last war are still discriminated against to this extent—that as yet only wives and minors are being allowed into Canada. Relatives of Canadians in countries which were allies of ours during the last war are being allowed into Canada, but in two years' time only 800 relatives have managed to arrive.

Members of Parliament on all sides of the House are being literally deluged with appeals which the Immigration Branch simply cannot handle. I wrote to the Department on one case on February 25 of this year and it is now April 15 but I have yet to receive a reply on it.

Any person wishing relatives to come out should apply to the local Immigration Officer for the initial papers, of which five copies are necessary. If they do not obtain the five copies and just file one, they will receive the application back some time within two months asking them to fill out the five copies.

I am writing this letter simply to explain the absolute confusion that exists over this matter so that no one can be blamed. The Immigration Branch of the Department of Mines and Resources claims that it has not the staff to handle the terrific number of applications.

Anyone with relatives in Russia or within the boundaries of Russian jurisdiction will just have to wait until the international situation clarifies itself as nothing can be done under the present conditions.

Filing the five copies with the nearest Immigration branch and then waiting for further announcements as to progress in this vital matter is seemingly about all that can be accomplished under present condi-

PREVENTING ANOTHER COLLYER INCIDENT-Eighty-twoyear-old Ann Quinn, an indigent spinster, is shown being helped from her ramshackle home in Philadelphia, Pa., by city officials prior to her being committed to hospital for proper care. In removing the aged woman from her home which had been declared unfit for human habitation, officials of the city's department of health and sanitation said they didn't want a Collyer incident in the Quaker City. They referred to the two New York recluses, Langley and Homer Collyer, who were found dead in their trash-packed home.

With a view to giving proper prominence to Canadian literature it is planned to have a section devoted to books written by Canadians. There is still a difficulty in getting books, the book committee reported. Other book agencies will be consulted with a view to obtaining new books more readily.

Receipts in the pay section are increasing and the board is able to reimburse the Civic Centre for the cost of installing the fluorescent lighting system. This has proved to be a great boon as there is adequate lighting for all sections now.

With the object of providing a service to the community the board is planning with the generous support of CFPR, a monthly series of talks when members t of the board will discuss in radio talks problems connected with the library, its facilities, new books and neriodicals. THE KILLING frost came early to the Prairie grain fields in the Autumn of 1907. At an experimental farm in Saskatchewan, the morning of September 12th dawned on a scene of heart-breaking desolation to scientists who had labored endless days and nights to produce a more frost-résistent wheat . . . but, amidst those ruined patches of different strains was one straight-standing beautiful picture of life and strength . . . the red-gold miracle of Marquis wheat had come to the world.

Charles Edward Saunders, Canada's first Dominion Cerealist, developed the famous Marquis wheat and made it possible to roll back the wheat map of Canada for many miles into the North. Untold millions were added to the national wealth by his genius and unending patience. He was born in London, Ontario, in 1867 and as a young man devoted himself to music. In his thirties, however, he followed the family tradition and worked with his father, Dr. William Saunders and his brother, Perry, who were experimenting with strains of wheat that would ripen before the Prairie frosts could ruin them. A scientist to his finger-tips, he tested the baking and milling qualities of wheat from all over the world in the only way then known, by chewing little globules to compare the gluten strengths.

Although the development of Marquis wheat was his most spectacular achievement, Charles Saunders also helped to give the world Garnet wheat and new strains of other grains of incalcuable value. In 1934 he became Sir Charles Saunders. After twenty years of service to his country, he died in 1937, but his work, carried on by his successors, still goes on to the greater glory of Canada's scientific agriculture.
